Liberals of Minnesota as liberals elsewhere undoubtedly received considerable amusement from Herbert Hoover's appeal for a "Holy crusade for liberty," and Senator Frederick Steiwer's clarion call to the assembled Republicans gathered in convention in Cleveland; "There are no party lines when human liberty is at stake."......

Are these gentlemen asking the Republican party of today to forsake its principles of the past five decades and assume a role it has held in utter contempt? Are they asking the Republican party to shed the skin of conservatism and to pose as liberals?......

That is hardly likely. They have probably discovered that the old catch-words have lost their magnetism, and that they must go into the enemy's camp and steal his thunder. The party is going to continue to be the party of Wall Street, of Mellon, of Harding, Teapot Dome, Coolidge, Hoover, the United States Chamber of Commerce, U. S. Steel Corporation, oil monopoly, and not return again to the party of Abraham Lincoln. They have vilified the things that Abraham Lincoln has stood for in government to such an extent that a return to the ideals of the Great Emancipator is impossible.

Foolish Question No. 87339

What will the Democrats do in 1936? Answer: Run for Office.

The Radicals Congregate

A few weeks ago the Socialists held their presidential convention and again nominated Norman Thomas for president. But the most significant feature of the gathering was the split between the left wing and the right wing. The old stand-patters cast themselves adrift in an old leaky boat patched with concessions and compromises and were last seen heading into a fog of speculation off the dangerous coast of Oblivian. Meanwhile Norman Thomas and his "wing" which really constitutes the bulk of the party, sailed full steam ahead towards a broad united front of all radical parties, by endorsing the idea of a national Farmer-Labor party.

On Sunday, May 28, the Communist party will have its convention in Madison Square Garden, New York City. They also intend to nominate a candidate for president, but will willingly support a Farmer-Labor candidate in the national field. It seems as though no-one feels inclined to start the ball rolling. When the November elections come around, perhaps a good many liberals and half-radicals, faced with a choice between Roosevelt and Landon (which is not much of a choice) will wish he supported the Farmer-Labor idea more strenuously. Of course, it is not too late yet, but it is getting darned late.

The Landonslide

Hear-st thou about the landonslide? Of course you did, or you were deaf, dumb, blind, and lived all by yourself on a desert island. As a matter of fact, we were well nye borahed stiff by the knoxious proceedings of having delegates come from such outlandish places as Maine, Minnesota, and North Dakota, to nominate a candidate who was picked months and months ago by the wizard of San Simeon. For a while certain progressives thought they could put over borah, borah, borah-rah-rah; but, as usual, borah found that the Republican party is what it is, and gave up and went home alone, while progressives from Wisconsin and North Dakota and elsewhere woke up to the fact AGAIN that something had been put over on them.

But Mary Jo Weiler of Jamestown, N D. state director of the junior Farmers Union, sure told the assembled fatmen about WAR. This 24 year old slim bundle of energy announced that the millions of youth who voted for the first time this year would not support a party that takes no decisive stand against war—and she made the congregation feel as though she meant it.

Of course, Miss Weiler realizes that there is little hope along this line from a party that names two millionaires as candidates and which has the secret support of William Randolph Hearst, ace war maker. But it doesn't hurt to voice anti-war sentiment, and it doesn't hurt to have people hear it.

Adolf Had Nightmares

My gangster friend Adolf Hitler must have the jitters bad these days, what with several thousand erstwhile comrades in France vowing vengeance upon him for his treatment of his bosom pal Ernest Roehm way back in the day of the bloody purge. It's bad when pals start killing each other off. You can't draw the line anywhere.

Yes, we have 'em over here, too, but as yet they haven't captured the government—unless you are a Republican, and the word "boondoggler" has a nasty accent to you.

"Opium of the People"

You've heard of the phrase "opium of the people". Well, we now have a modern realistic instance, in the case of Japan's subjugation of Manchuria. Last year a subcommittee of the League of Nations reported that Japanese officials in Manchuria were actively engaged in the distribution of opium, presumably upon order from the Nipponese government. Drug-ridden people are easy to rule.

Minute Sermon

By Dr. Crawford Grays

The captain of the ship was tired. He had been up all night for four nights. "The only thing I fear on the ocean is the fog," he said, "I have been up on the bridge, myself—watching".

I suppose there were many people on that ship who thought only of their own comfort. They possessed little if any thought to the vessel.

There must have been the evil-minded aboard, and those who thought little more than that ocean liners of modern times practically crossed the oceans by themselves. But over all of them the good captain watched.

While they slept, or danced, or drank, or joked or prayed, he guarded the weary, the sinful, the materialistic, the thoughtless—over them all, in the hours of trial and danger, he set his firm watch.

He was responsible. He must give of his best to save them.

Thinking of this, a saying from the Psalms came to me: "He watching over Israel slumbers not nor sleeps."

There is a kindly Providence present with us thru the years; anxious to save us from drifting, from getting lost in life's fog. He never slumbers or sleeps A friend who sticketh closer than a brother. If He can save us from misfortune, He will.

Soil Plan Pays Cash

By Frank J. Brown
Director of Information
For Soil Program in Minnesota

All phases of the soil erosion problem in the United States are now being dealt with on a nationwide basis through the coordinated efforts of two branches of the Department of Agriculture, which are cooperating with states and individual farmers.

The Soil Conservation Service, under the provisions of the original Soil Conservation Act of 1935, is developing and demonstrating correct land-use practices and advising and assisting farmers in the application of these practices. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act of 1936, is carrying out a national policy designed to make possible a fundamental change, farm by farm and for agriculture as a whole, from an exploitive type of farming to a conservative type.

Without concerted action on a nation-wide scale, there would be little hope of accomplishing the objectives of the act. A single state could not get its farmers to spend the time and money to rebuild fertility and improve the farm plant if most of the farmers of all other states were engaging in a competitive race to squeeze the last dollar out of the land at once, forgetting about long-time interests in their need for immediate cash returns.

The law of self-preservation demands that a farmer give first consideration to providing for his family and himself. Sound farming practices which promote wise and proper use of the land produce the greatest ultimate returns and are of first importance to the nation: but to the farmers the saving of the soil may become, by force of circumstances, secondary to the stark necessity of making a living.

The Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act provides the economic mainspring needed to overcome the competitive handicaps under which farmers operate. Under this act, farmers may qualify for payments by adjusting their operations in the interest of soil conservation. They may also benefit from the improvement in the supply-and-demand situation affecting the price of their principle cash products.

The act thus provides farmers all over the country with an opportunity to replace soil-mining competition with soil-conserving cooperation. For the first time, soil conservation will pay its way not only in the long-run, as it always has, but also on an immediate one-year basis

The Washington Commentator

By E. C. Stengelsen

NEW LEADERSHIP

The idealistic and patriotic element are, allegedly, now in control in the Republican roost. At the convention held recently in Cleveland, they are supposed to have given the Party's erstwhile bosses a swift kick in the slats, with the result that those paunchy political gentlemen are now stumbling about the outer darkness, gnashing their bridge-work in helpless discomfiture

* * * *

And your commentator is able to give emphatic assurance that this happy state of affairs is established fact and not mere loose supposition. If there are skeptics who require further proof, they have but to read the Republican press to discover that it is indeed so.

* * * *

This, of itself, should be enough. For the Chicago Daily News is known for its truthfulness. . . that is, it has, on occasion, been known to be truthful. But on the chance that there are those among the readers who are hard to convince, please give ear to the following remark by the International News Service . .

"Youth in control of the Republican Party!" it says.

* * * *

And if there are still doubting Thomases, here and there, attention is called to the following further headline. . .

"Common man rules G. O. P.!"

* * * *

Finally, to clinch it beyond all questioning, cast an eye on a recent cartoon in the Duluth News Tribune, depicting Landon's campaign manager, Hamilton, laying about him with devestating fists and knocking 'Old Guard' members hither and yon.

* * * *

Instead of the boss-ridden organization it has always been, with major scandals cropping out in almost every one of its four-year periods in office, it has suddenly become pure and white as the newly fallen snow.

To the tune of 'The Old Grey Mare', all will now sing:

"The Republican Party ain't what it used to be!"

* * * *

Just why the 'Old Guard', with whom the Republican rank and file have heretofore been on such intimate terms that they've almost borrowed each other's false teeth, should have suddenly thus become an offense to the schnozzles of the convention delegates, is a bit hard to understand.

For certain it is that the old boys aren't wholly popular. Quite the contrary, they suddenly find themselves in much the same position as the hound-dawg who has been out and gotten acquainted with a skunk. Everybody disowns him.

* * * *

The reason isn't too hard to find. however For the rank and file of the party leaders had come to realize that to the voter, the 'old guard' looked much like the fellow sneaking around the chicken coop with an empty sack under his arm.

And so, to lend color to the G. O. P.'s claim to sudden and dazzling purity, the 'old guard' were kicked out on their ear.

* * * *

However, one wonders what improvement, if any, this may spell . . . whether it may not mean merely the exchange of a set of old rogues for a set of new rogues. . .

For, squinting carefully about at each of the thousand some odd delegates at the Convention, one might have been hard put to it to have found a single one who was there for any better purpose than to pluck the largest possible persimmon for himself.

One could not have avoided the impression that the Convention was nothing more nor less than a gathering of politicians, mostly of the small-time type, each imbued with the same burning desire—to see the party win out this fall, to the chief end that he himself might thereby get a chance at the political trough.

* * * *

How generally the voters will accept as truth this fervid assurance of the Party's re-birth, will be learned only after the votes have been counted this fall.

But there are already those pessimistic souls who feel certain that if the Republicans win, it won't be long till there will be many who will be sadly chanting this little ditty . .

"The devil was sick,
The devil a saint would be.
The devil got well,
The devil a saint was he!"

WOMEN AND CHILDREN FIRST!

A splendid motto for shipwrecks, —but when it comes to learning "how to carry your liquor", do you like to see women and children as star pupils?

It is a definite fact that women and children of America are being offered the chance to drink and that there is organized effort to teach them to drink.

At the U. S. Brewers' Association annual convention, Los Angeles, October 28-29, 1935, "Prudence Penny" outlined a nine-point program to win women as beer customers, concluding. "You will have to appeal to the coming generation; and, while I have the greatest respect for the wisdom and experience of our elders, it is the teaching you do now for our younger generation that is going to help you increase your percentage of beer consumed by women"

If you don't want women and children taught to drink, did you ever stop to ask WHY so many household magazines carry not only advertisements of beer and hard liquors, but also articles telling the homemaker how to flavor her cookery with brandy or sherry, or how to serve drinks "smartly"?

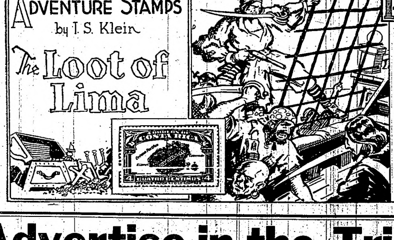
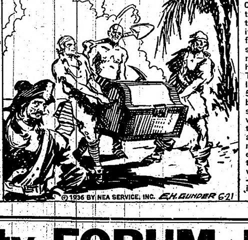
The Loot of Lima



COSTA RICA
CUATRO CENTIMOS

REVOLUTION gripped South America in the 1820's. Simon Bolivar was marching on Lima, capital of Peru. The Spanish nobles and priests were frantic. The treasures that they had wrested from the native Indians were threatened. Gold and silver from the Andes. Lima Cathedral a veritable vault of wealth. Solid gold chalices studded with rare ornaments. Gold chasubles lined with diamonds, rubies, sapphires, and emeralds. The Spaniards sought a hiding place for their riches. The British ship, Mary Dear, was anchored in the harbor nearby. To the strange Captain Thompson the Spaniards entrusted their loot.



© 1936 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. E.H. GUNDER 6-21

In the dark of night, $60,000,000 worth of wealth was transferred to the ship and the Mary Dear set sail with its precious cargo and its fleeing dignitaries. Out at sea, Thompson and his crew massacred the Spaniards and hurled them overboard. Then Thompson sailed for Cocos Island, a lonely, rugged point 500 miles off Costa Rica. He buried the treasure there, but scarcely escaped with his life when other buccaneers attacked and killed all but him and one of his men. Little more is known of Thompson, except that charts purported to be his have led many adventurers to dig up the island—in vain! Costa Rica recently issued a map stamp of Cocos.

COPYRIGHT, CHANNING POLLOCK WNU SERVICE

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

"I might talk to Winslow at the Hambidges," he thought, sleepily. "But I guess Peggy's right. Better see Jack first. I've got a date with Winslow at his office on Monday."

The hall clock struck three.

He shaved, and bathed, and tossed a few things into an overnight bag he'd seen in the closet. Emerging, he ran into Willetts.

"Breakfast for two," the Duke ordered. "Mrs. Rogers and I are taking the 9:27 to New York."

He thought the butler looked at him sharply.

As their train left Southampton, Peggy looked even shabbier in her cheap black dress and her little red beret. Her face was very white, for want of make-up or sleep. "It's funny," she said awkwardly, "but I sort of feel that everything's going to be all right now."

"Why don't you and the boy move out here?"

"To stay, you mean?"

"Sure. I can square it with Willetts. Come along, the end of the week, Peggy. After all, it's where you belong, you know."

"I belong with Jack," she said. "And, anyway, has it struck you that the old man might come back unexpected? He's been mad six years. What's he going to do when he finds out about all this?"

"Well," Barry hazarded, "if we've got his son out—"

"He won't care," Peggy interrupted, her voice again hard and pitiful. "He never did.

"He smashed Jack's fiddle. Jack wanted to be a violinist. He could've been, too. But the old man found he was taking lessons. 'I don't want any jazz-banders in my family,' he snorted. 'You're going to take my place when I die.'

"That started it. He'd always been hard on Jack. Bossy, the old man is. And you can't boss Jack. He got another fiddle. He was good on it, too. When he went up to Harvard, he used to play it at parties.

"When his father heard about that, he threatened to cut off Jack's allowance. So Jack stopped fiddling, and began to drink. And, one night when he was awful drunk, he wrote the old man's name on a check. He tried to get it back the next day, but the bank had turned it down, and the guy he'd given it to was sore, and had Jack arrested.

"Jack had sold his second fiddle to make good. He never got another one. The old man cut Jack loose. He came up to Boston, with a newspaper that printed the story in his hands. Cold as ice, he was. 'You've disgraced me,' he said, 'and you'll go on disgracing me, if I'll let you. I won't. You can go where you like and do what you please, but not with my name. If you ever use that again, you can starve.'"

Peggy turned to the window.

Then, abruptly, "How are we going to get in to see him?" she asked.

"You're his wife," Barry answered.

"And you?"

"I'm his friend. And my name's Ridder."

John Clarke Ridder, Jr., proved to be merely a frightened youngster. A slim, rather frail lad in his early twenties, with soft, dark hair, and large, dark eyes, and a peculiarly sensitive mouth. His hands were soft and sensitive, too, but there was nothing effeminate about the boy. "Gee, I'am glad to see you, Peg," he blurted out. "I was getting a little bit worried."

Peggy's presence reassured him. Evidently, he counted on her, and felt safe while she was with him.

"Jack," she said, quietly and significantly, "I've brought your friend, Mr. Ridder. He's going to help us."

"That's great," he observed.

Fortunately for them, the guard had other things on his mind. He kept disappearing, and coming back, and looking away from them to a paper that someone had given him, and that seemed irritating. In a low voice, Peg outlined what had happened, and the conclusion that had been reached.

The boy turned to Barry.

Young, frightened, and soft, he could reason quickly, and talk straight.

"I don't understand," he said to the Duke. "If these people will do things for you, because they think you're Jack Ridder, why won't they do 'em for me, when they know I'm Jack Ridder?"

Quickly He Mapped Out His Plans.

"Because they like me. They've never met you. And because my record's clear. I'm not accused of murder under circumstances that—well, they don't sound pretty, at first, do they?"

"They do not."

"And, of course, there's your mother."

The sensitive mouth tightened.

Barry gave him the letter he had shown Peggy.

The lad read it.

"The old man's got her buffaloed," he remarked; "same as he's got everybody else. O. K. I wouldn't have used my own name, anyway. Letting you use it's another thing, but Peggy thinks you're straight, and she's never been wrong yet. It's a queer game, but I'll sit in. What next?"

Barry was relieved. The guard had been showing his paper to a colleague. Quickly, he mapped out his plans—so far as he had any. "I've got a date with Peter Winslow on Monday. And I'm going to cable your mother — for money. We've got to have that. I hope to get a job pretty soon, and make my own way, but, just now, there's less than a hundred and fifty dollars in the kitty, and I'm going to give most of that to Peggy for current expenses. You'd better write your mother, too—the kind of a letter you'd write in answer to that, if you were in my shoes. I'll bring you the stationery, and, of course, I'll mail your letter from Southampton. We'll have to smuggle it out of here, I suppose. Now, tell me exactly what happened the night before last."

The story differed very little from the one Barry had heard, but it was full of shrewd questions that hadn't occurred to him.

"Did you ever see Kelly?"

"No."

"He was enormous. Must have been six-feet-two in his stockings. I'm five-feet-five in mine. I'd've had to stand on a chair to hit him on top of the head."

"Unless he was sitting in one."

"The body wasn't anywhere near a chair. It was up against the door to the hall. The paper says so. The Filipino got in through the dining room. I got out through the hall door. He saw me. How did I do that, if Kelly was lying against it?"

"I don't know."

"Two more things: The lights were burning full tilt when I left. I could see Kelly's shadow on the blinds as I passed the house on my way home. Were they still burning when the butler came in the next morning! And, if not, who turned 'em out?"

"What's the other item?"

The other item's the crux of the whole business," Jack answered. "Mike rushed me out because the phone rang, and the fellow that rang it was coming over to talk to him. Did he come? If not, why not? And if that fellow did come, isn't it likely that he's the guy that killed Kelly?"

CHAPTER IV

IT WAS long after one o'clock when they walked out of the Tombs.

Peggy was all in now. Barry splurged on a taxi to take her "home" to the dingy boarding house where the disowned Ridders lived, in the upper Forties. In spite of her protests, Barry kept his word as to giving her most of that hundred and fifty. "It isn't mine," he declared.

"We'll eat together Monday, after I've talked to Winslow. I'll be around about six o'clock."

It was two now—a warmish Saturday afternoon. Nearly forty-eight hours before he could hope to find the attorney. Any inexpensive hotel would do. He registered at one a few blocks from Peggy's. "Barry Gilbert," he wrote.

The message read:

"Making good stop water-wagon and on track of a job stop friend of mine met in Florida locked up for murder didn't commit stop can you arrange credit here up to two thousand dollars stop won't use unless necessary for friend and will return every penny stop wire Peter Winslow lawyer for confirmation if desired stop this is my big chance to do something worth while stop writing details all's well don't hurry back love.
John."

"I'll need that two thousand quick," Barry thought. "Winslow'll want a retainer, and there'll be a lot of other things." Barry wondered what to do with his forty-eight hours. "I'll stroll down to Kelly's place," he decided, "and give it the once-over."

From Sixth avenue, he turned into Sixteenth street, and stopped before what the tabloids were calling "the scene of the murder." It was an old-fashioned red-brick house, with a bay window, and a heavy front door. A policeman stood guard, and a group of curious loiterers as near as they dared.

There was another little group at the corner, where workmen were putting in a new traffic light standard. Broken off short, its predecessor lay on the pavement. Having nothing better to do, Barry asked, "What's the excitement?"

"Taxi smash."

"When?"

"Just before two o'clock yesterday morning. Killed a woman. Crushed her right up against that post. Broke it off short. Don't seem possible."

No wonder the Judge was "upset."

Curious, Barry thought, these two violent deaths within a few yards and a few hours of each other. Curious, too, that the Judge's stroll should have brought him so near the house in which Kelly lay murdered, but no more remarkable than the series of events that had involved Barry in the whole affair. "Life's full of coincidences," Barry mused. "It's only in fiction that people pay much attention to 'em. Winslow said the Judge went for a walk, and that's the simplest explanation of the whole matter."

He was at the attorney's office before ten o'clock on Monday morning. He was ushered into the pleasantly furnished corner room that was Peter's. The lawyer rose, as Barry entered, and came forward, one hand outstretched, and the other holding a newspaper. "The early bird, eh?"

"I'm not exactly looking for worms," Barry replied. "I want that position we were talking about, if I can get it, but, just now, I'm a lot more interested in this Kelly murder. You've read about that, I suppose."

Peter nodded.

"I saw the headlines after you left the Hambidges on Friday," he said. "I didn't bother about it much then. But, this morning, I found Saturday's Herald Tribune on my desk. And, of course, I'm always interested in murders."

"I know the boy who's accused of this crime," Barry said.

Barry did, omitting only the detail of Ridder's identity.

"I met them in Florida," he related. "Rogers worked in a hotel there. I liked the girl even then. She'd been putting up such a game fight to make a man of her husband, and was succeeding so wonderfully. I suppose I'm the only friend they've got around here, and that's why she came to me."

Winslow listened sympathetically.

"That sort of thing always gets me," he observed. "A woman tied up to some man who's not worthy of her, and in love with him."

"This boy's not so bad," Barry argued. "And it's a lead-pipe cinch that he didn't kill Kelly."

"Think so?"

"Dead sure."

"All right. Make me sure."

Barry tried.

"There was some one else coming when Jack left," he concluded. "If he came, he either found Kelly dead, in which case he'd've given the alarm, or he found Kelly alive, in which case, of course, Jack didn't kill him."

"Very ingenious," Peter remarked. "But what makes you think some one else was coming?"

"That's why Kelly fired Jack out."

"Who says so?"

"Jack—and Peggy."

"Not very conclusive," Peter objected.

"Who do you think did it?"

"I'm not concerned as to who did it," Peter declared. "Only as to who didn't."

"Jack didn't. You'd know that if you looked at him."

"I feel sorry for the girl. I'll go down to see Rogers. Somebody ought to've gone—long ago—to file an appearance. There shouldn't have been any preliminary hearings without proper representation."

"You'll take the case, then?"

"I suppose so. Now, how about that job I thought we might land at my brother's?"

"I certainly need it."

"Let's see if he's in."

"Get Jamison Winslow," he instructed the operator.

In a few minutes the phone rang.

"That you, Jimmy?" Peter said into it. "You've heard of John Clarke Ridder, haven't you? Well, his son's in here, and wants work. How about it? Got anything over there?"

MAILS BACK WATCH STOLEN 8 YEARS AGO

Mountain Lake—Eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yokiel of Wells left their home to spend the day with relatives. Upon returning that evening they found a porch climber had evidently gotten into their home but by no mistake. The house had been thoroughly ransacked and a few articles taken. Among them and the most valuable was a 17 jewel Swiss watch belonging to Mrs. Yokiel. The other day Mrs. Yokiel received thru the mail a package containing her watch. The sender failed to put his return address on the package. Evidently after eight years of service the watch needs cleaning, and the thief is returning it to Mrs. Yokiel for that purpose. Possibly the sender didn't need a return address as he probably isn't worried about getting the wach back. He might even have another by this time.

BOY TAKES 90-MILE JAUNT ON BICYCLE

Alexandria—Bob Westerberg, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R Westerberg, Alexandria druggist, had made plans to "camp out" with a group of his playmates in Itasca State Park this summer, but was disappointed when they all backed down on their original plans. Bob, however, was not to be deprived of his trip, and set out to visit relatives at Detroit Lakes the other day. He started out on his bicycle at 4 o'clock in the morning and peddaled the ninety-odd miles in about 12 hours, arriving at his destination at 4 p. m. In a message received by his parents, he stated that he "hadn't had any trouble at all, hardly, except that he got a 'hot bearing'." He also made the solo trip back to Alexandria by the same means.

BASS WOD TREE RIVALS JACK'S BEANSTALK GROWTH

Granite Falls—You've all heard of the mammoth growth of Jack's bean stalk that the story books have told and retold since you were very young. Now listen to this: Over at the Paul Tesch home in East Granite there is a basswood tree that can snub its nose at Jack's bean stalk. This tree started by producing leaves that would measure about 9 or 10 inches in diameter. But the last couple of rains caused the basswood tree to quite outdo itself and this morning Mr. Tesch brought in a leaf that measured 14x12 inches.

While he classed himself as a Middleman, he cited that Thief River Falls has many co-operative enterprises and that good will exists between them and the business element. His father, he stated founded the creamery which later became the farmers cooperative creamery in this city.

Response on behalf of the union was made by Theo. Swanson, a member from Monterey, Martin county, who thanked the Mayor for his kind words and complimented the city on its fine business enterprises. "The mayor classes himself as a middleman," Mr. Swanson said, "but I class him as a serviceman. The servicemen perform a useful and necessary function to society," he stated. Response to the greetings from the cooperatives was made by J. E. W. Anderson, secretary of the union and his little son who gave a short and appropriate recitation.

The address of the day was delievered by Thos. C. Croll, for many years associated with M. W. Thatcher who was scheduled to speak but was prevented from attending. He gave an inspiring speech urging his listeners to support their co-operative enterprises. "Wrecking is always done from the inside," he said "A well managed cooperative can not be wrecked by the best private institution that was ever organized."

An impressive talk was also given by Geo. Nelson of Milltown, Wisconsin, national farmers union board member and socialist candidate for vice-president.

The convention proceeded after some debate to ballot on the question of changing the name of the organization, which carried 378 to 10. On the question of amalgamating with the national union, the result of the ballot was 378 for and 21 against. The question of delegating to the board the power to effect the amalgamation carried 278 to 115.

While the ballots were being counted E. E. Kennedy, national secretary of the Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union of America was heard and he assured the convention that his best efforts would be devoted to assisting the work of amalgamation and to seeing that fair treatment should be accorded all members of the Minnesota Farmers Union in the transfer of memberships. He urged upon the assemblage the need for unity of action with all farmers in a nationwide united front.

John Erp, president of the Minnesota division of the Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union of America from which the present Minnesota Farmers Union parted five years ago when a division of opinion on the conduct of the co-operative terminal activities at South St. Paul arose, was asked to take the floor and was given a stern grilling by several of the delegates. He assured the convention that he is a strong believer in co-operation, but hedged when he was pointedly asked if he and his group would support the Farmers Union Central Exchange, the National Grain Corporation and the Farmers Union Livestock Commission. He apparently would be willing to support the two former but was not so sure of the latter activity That would have to be decided by the membership, he said

About 25 junior members were present and presented a very interesting program. They presented their program in an educational manner stressing the purpose of the organization and the ultimate goal that they hoped to accomplish. The creed of the group was read by Robert Olson and Donald Ellis gave a short speech on forest conservation.

Mr. George Nelson, gave an interesting and instructive talk on the effect that the present system has on the welfare of the younger generation. He pointed out that the large corporations had exploited the natural resources and had shackled the nation with a debt burden that will fall on the shoulders of the younger generation. He also maintained that the only solution of the problems that confronted the coming generation is a cooperative commonwealth.

Daniel Aakhus played three violin solos, and other members of the Farmers Union gave musical presentations. A number of readings and recitations were given by the junior members that helped to make a well rounded program.

Plans were discussed about furthering the junior camp for this year. Each year the Farmers Union maintains a camp for the junior members on the Cooperative farm at Cross Lake, Minnesota.

Crookston Host To Fire School

The Crookston Fire Department together with the State Fire Marshal's office will be host to several hundred firemen on Sunday, June 28th, at the Red River Valley Fire School to be held at Crookston. Chief Ross Schmidt of the Crookston Department together with Deputy Chas. Gehrke of the State Fire Marshal's office, has been making arrangements for a full day of instructive lectures and demonstrations.

The Red River Valley Fire School at Crookston is one of a series of 25 schools being held all over the state of Minnesota this spring, summer and fall, and the Crookston School has promise of being one of the largest schools of the year. Deputy Fire Marshal said, "The Crookston school which is being put on under the direction of Chief Ross Schmidt, is going to be a "Volunteer School" in every sense of the word. We expect to stress firemanship from the standpoint of apparatus and equipment used by the smaller departments and the fire problems worked out will involve one and two story buildings. In short, the knowledge gained at the Crookston school will fit in exactly with the problems of every town represented.

especially for farm hands and for girls to do maid work. At the present time the office is not in a position to fill all the jobs that have arisen in this type of work. Girls seem to be rather reluctant to accept work on farms but would rather work in towns, as a consequence there has been little difficulty in securing girls for maid work in the cities

The employment office has been able to make contacts with 12 employers in this district to secure all help through this office. They are mostly on contract jobs, on road and bridge work, and demand men skilled in grading, graveling, and other technical branches of road and construction work. The office supplys all the help needed for the new school that is being built at Hallock and for a number of bridges that are under construction in the district.

During the month of May the employment office has secured 146 new applications for positions and have made recontacts with 797 applicants. The applicant must contact the office either by mail or in person every thirty days, if this is not done his application will be placed in the inactive file. The 797 recontacts include men who have not compiled with this requirement. They are placed in the active file again upon making a recontact with the office, Mr. Stanghelle stated.

The district that is handled from Thief River Falls includes the five following counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake, and Pennington. An itinerary service is maintained from this office and sends a man to take care of the work at Warren and Hallock on Thursdays, and to Roseau on Fridays. Red Lake county is handled from this office either by mail or in person.

Mr. Stanghelle requests that local applicants limit their contacts with the office to the forenoon as the office is very busy making assignments and gathering data for the district.

The local has 67 members and meetings are held the first Thursday of the month Smiley local No. 4: Fred Luke, president; B. F. Beiswinger, vice president; L. O. Stenseth, secretary-treasurer; Signe Stenseth, junior leader; Walter Lendobeji, reporter. The local has 61 members and they meet the first Monday of each month.

Mr. Blake is organizing Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties. A meeting is to be held at Grygla on Thursday evening at which the state president, Robert Miller is to speak. The meeting is to be held at the Stewart schoolhouse, west of Grygla.

Chevrolet Demonstrator Jumps Ties and Hurdles

Jerry Edwards, Chevrolet Motor company's "Daredevil Demonstrator" entertained a crowd estimated at 2,000 people at the fairgrounds Saturday evening.

He drove a stock model Chevrolet car over a series of railroad ties laid about ten feet apart and also wove the car to blow out a front tire at high speed He jumped the car at about 35 miles an hour over an incline and made several attempts to roll it as advertised that he would do but failed to make it tip. The car came out of the demontsration apparently little the worse for the rough handling.

Amateur Contest to Be Held Friday P.M.

An outdoor amatuer contest will be held Friday afternoon, July 3, at three o'clock in the Bridge St. park, as a part of the summer playground activities of the WPA recreation project. Any person wishing to participate must register and arrange for an audition with one of the playground supervisors before the time of the contest. Playground supervisors are Mrs. Verna Becker Purcell, Miss Frances Kavanaugh, and Mrs. Israelson. A cash prize will be awarded to the contestant winning first place in the contest. If sufficient interest is shown in this project, other amateur contests will probably be staged at intervals throughout the summer

Miss Corinne Haugen of Thief Lake, Minnesota, has been visiting at the John V. Olson home in this city for the past two weeks. She will leave Saturday for her home at Thief Lake

Library Will Be Closed July Fourth

The local Carnegie Public Library will remain closed all day on the Fourth of July, it was announced this week.

For the summer months the puppet shows, which have been given each Saturday afternoon, will be presented on each Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the basement of the library, Mrs. Hazel Halgrim, librarian, announced this week. "Little Black Sambo" will be dramatized in puppet style today

WATER CONTROL COMMITTEE TO REPORT TO BD.

Drouth Brings Added Interest To Report of Red River Basin Inspection

With continued drouth an active threat rural Minnesota will be vitally interested in the preliminary report of the Joint Committee on the Water Plan for the Red River of the North Drainage Basin scheduled for July 7 and 8 at St. Paul. Chairmen and federal consultants of the Dakotas and Minnesota will meet as an Inter-State committee on call of W. W. Horner of St. Louis, Water Consultant, on the 7th to discuss the report which will be presented to the three State Planning boards on the next day, July 8.

Federal authorities consider the report of such major importance that the second day's session will be attended by Charles W. Eliot, 2nd, Executive Officer of the National Resources Commission, Washington, D. C.

The Inter-State commission, of which Mr. Dean Holm of Minneapolis is executive secretary, consists of James P. Cain, chairman, and Irvin Lavine, consultant, of the North Dakota State Planning board; W. R. Ronald, chairman, and C. W. Pugsley, consultant, of the State Planning board of South Dakota; and Richard E. Scammon, chairman, and Roland S. Valle, consultant, of the Minnesota State Planning board

Dr. G. A Penney's dental office will be open to receive clients again on July 9th.

NOVEL ACTS TO BE FEATURED AT PENN. CO. FAIR

Painting and Repairing At Fairgrounds Are in Full Swing

NEW BLEACHER IS BEING BUILT

Boys and Girls Bicycle Races to be Featured; Entries Close 15th

Considerable building and repair work is being done at the Pennington county fair ground preparatory to the annual festive event scheduled for July 28th to 31st

The bleachers are being rebuilt and the new section will be 16 feet longer and 6 feet deeper than the old structure. It will be placed up to the grandstand without the walk between as in the past and two ramp entrances will be built one at the joining of the two buildings and another in the center of the bleacher. The new bleacher will be covered with a bleacher canvas top. New exits are being constructed, one at the west end of the grandstand and the other at the east end of the bleacher. All buildings are being repainted in aluminum with black trim. Three new ticket offices are being built.

New low grandstand prices are announced to take effect this year, namely 25c, 35c, and 50 cents. Harry R. Lund has been named superintendent of speed events, replacing Roy Lambert who has moved from the city.

In addition to a high grade carnival company which will present its features on the Midway, there will be the usual high grade free acts, Robert J. Lund, Secretary stated this week. Feature evening grandstand attraction will be "Around the Town", a swift-moving and refreshingly modern musical revue. An eight piece orchestra composed of specialty artists will provide the music for the revue. Complete and novel scenic settings, lighting effects and amplifier system makes the revue a modern musical show. 22 people are in the cast.

Several novel amateur features are being planned for the entertainment of fair visitors this year, Mr Lund states. A girls pig race wherein the girls must drive harnessed pigs is one of these and two bicycle races, one for boys and one for girls from 12 to 15 years of age is planned. The course will be for the half mile and good prizes are offered. Entries for the bicycle races must be made with Mr. Lund before July 15th.

Northwest Alumni Hold Annual Reunion at Crookston on Monday

Crookston—Over four hundred alumni, former students, and faculty attended the annual Northwest School summer reunion held on the campus Saturday. Activities included a baseball game between alumni and present students in which Edwin Widseth, '32, McIntosh, co-captain of the University of Minnesota football team and Coach R. J. Christgau, former captain of the University of Minnesota baseball team appeared as the opposing pitchers In a kittenball game, the faculty defeated the alumni by a narrow margin of one score. Class reunions, a business meeting of the Alumni Association, and a dance and party concluded the scheduled events.

Fifteen members of the class of 1916 returned for their twentieth annual class reunion. This group included: Ole Flaat; Fisher; Herman Skyberg Fisher; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Engelstad, Crookston; Mrs. Wm. Mienert, Fosston; Randolph Saugstad, Crookston; Mrs. H. M. Femrite, Crookston; W. S. Ash, St. Vincent; Victor Younggren, Northcote; Carl E. Olson, Felton; Oscar J Lund, Twin Valley; Ed Hammer, Twin Valley; Hilder Lindfors, Fosston; Ruby McDonald, Fisher; Henry Rud, Viking, together with class advisors Professor and Mrs. T. M. McCall. Prof. McCall is completing his twenty-fifth year of service as horticulturist at the school.

Former members of the staff who returned included Miss Anne Simley, St. Paul, former head of the English department; Mrs. Harry Hedin, East Grand Forks, former music instructor; Mr. Carl Berg, Thief River Falls, former engineering instructor, Mrs. Carl Berg, former accountant; and Mrs. Olga Nettum, Roseau, former secretary to the superintendent.

Brief addresses were given by Paul Engelstad, '16; Phinney Stenborg, '26, Clearbrook; Clarence Peterson, '31, Hawley; Miss Anne Simley, Edwin Widseth, Carl Widseth, '27; Archie Lee, '23, Roseau; and Superintendent A. A. Dowell, Professors T. M McCall, R. S Dunham, R. J. Christgau, and Miss Retta Bede.

Noel Hanson, '35, Detroit Lakes and Miss Alice Johnson, '33, Newfolden, were awarded the traditional red oil can as the most recently married couple, their wedding having occurred the day preceding the meeting.

Post 117 Junior baseball team played Red Lake Falls Tuesday evening and trimmed the boys down the line 13 to 10 in a hotly contested game.

This afternoon they will meet the fast East Grand Forks juniors at the fairground at 2:30 o'clock. The game will be played in the afternoon rather than in the evening as usual because of the fact that the Eastside lads are employed evenings.

An article intended for this space has been withheld until next week.

Annual School Election July 21

The annual school meeting and election in district 18 is to be held at the city auditorium on July 21, A. Skarstad, clerk announced this week. Three positions on the board of education are to be filled, namely those held by B. O. Norby and A. Skarstad whose terms expire and which are to be filled for three years and that held by Mrs. L. G. Larson, who was appointed following a tie vote last year to be filled for a two year term.

Filings will close on July 9th, Mr. Skarstad stated. No filings have been made to date. The meeting is to be held in the evening and the polls will remain open for one hour.

More demonstrations of bread baking and room furnishing projects are desired. 4H girls who wish to take part in either of these projects or any of the other projects should send their names and kind of demonstration in which they wish to take part to Miss Thelma Solie, temporary club agent.

Make the 4th Safe

A. V. ROHWEDER

A. V. ROHWEDER, Chairman of the Minnesota Public Safety Committee, says—

"Sixteen killed in auto accidents during the Fourth of July period 1935.

"We CAN go by the holiday period this year without deaths and injuries if the thousands who WANT to prevent accidents will walk or drive safely———and play safely.

"Cooperate with your local public safety committee and traffic officials to help MAKE MINNESOTA THE SAFEST STATE".

CCC Enrollment to Close Monday, July 6

Plans for enlisting boys from this county in the CCC from July first to July 15th has been changed, L. G. Larsen, in charge of enrollments in this county stated this week. Under the new arrangement a member of the R. O. T. C., will be in the city to enlist the boys on Monday, July 6th, only.

Mr. Larson urges all boys who wish to enter the CCC to be at his office at the court house this weekend or not later than Monday.

Community Hall Being Built at River Valley

Residents of the River Valley territory in Deer Park and adjoining townships are staging a strong drive for funds to build a community hall at the River Valley creamery. The structure has become necessary to accomodate the people who congregate at their Tuesday evening educational meetings and other community enterprises.

Funds are being raised thru a subscription drive for $1 memberships and members of the committee in charge of the drive, Mesdames R. G. Gordon, Stanley Radnicki, Arnold Korupp and Jack Radnicki, and Peter Mandt visited Thief River Falls last week and succeeded in signing up a large number of businessmen as members.

Plans are being laid for a home talent play to be held later in the summer and a number of other entertainment features as soon as the hall can be completed.

Workmen to Meet Monday

There is to be a special meeting of the workmen's protective league at the union hall on Monday evening at eight o'clock, Earl Long, Business agent, stated this week. Everyone is invited as this is to be a public meeting, Mr. Long said. The set-up under which the workmen are organized is to be explained and some work projects are under discussion, he stated.

Domestic Are In Demand Says NRS

The national re-employment service has many handymen who are willing to take part-time work, mowing lawns, cutting brush, repairing and so on, E. R. Stanghelle, district supervisor stationed here stated this week. He urges those who can employ men on this type of occasional work to call his office for placements Placing orders for help with the NRS will facilitate employment, Mr. Stanghelle stated and make it easier for the service to help the unemployed as well as the employers of labor.

Band Concert at Corner Second and Main Tonite

The Thief River Falls municipal band will appear in concert this evening at eight o'clock at the corner of Main and Second Street, across the street north of the municipal auditorium. The program, which is under the direction of E. L. Egermayer, conductor, will include, in addition to selections by the band, Euphonium solo by Donald Chalmers and vocal solos by Walter Ekeren.

Still Lead the League, With Record of Straight Victories

Thief River trimmed Warren in a bang-up game of ball last Friday evening to the tune of 2 to 4 The game was well played thruout except for three inexcusable errors on the part of the Warren second baseman. Orvalla on the mound for Thief River struck out nine men and held the visitors to five scattered hits. Pahner on the mound for Warren, struck out five men and allowed six hits.

Again on Sunday the locals were triumphant when they met the Goodridge team in a league game here, taking the boys from the east by a score of 5 to 3. Coach Lee used three pitchers in this game, putting Robinson, Orvalla and Olson into the box for workouts. The locals are at the

W. C. Fields at the Avalon This Sunday

The motion picture entertainment provided at the Avalon Theatre for Sunday and Monday, July 5 and 6, presents America's beloved comedian, W. C. Fields, in one of his outstanding roles as Professor Eustace McGargle in the production "Poppy". Mr. Fields' role is that of a traveling show entertainer whose adventures provide the theme for a rousing comedy. Two outstanding young motion picture players, Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell, play the romantic leads in the picture: Others in the supporting cast include Lynne Overman, Catharine Doucet, and Rosalind Keith.

Crookston Stages Large Celebration With Seven Bands

RED LAKE FALLS TO CELEBRATE

Picnic at River Valley, Also at Grygla and at Valhall

The national anniversary will be marked with hilarious fun and frolic in this section of the state judging from the number of celebrations that are being staged in the communities thruout the territory. The band and the Auxiliary drum corps of this city are engaged by the village of Plummer where a large celebration is in prospect and speakers from the city have been engaged for various fetes in other communities. The River Valley co-operatives are holding a picnic at Kolestrand's Grove, 25 miles east of the city; a picnic is given by the St Petri congregation at Grygla; the Rocksbury Community club is celebrating at Valhall; and major celebrations are being staged at Crookston, Red Lake Falls, Bagley and other points.

An ambitious program including a grand parade, street drills by the drum corps and concerts by the band as well as sports, races and a baseball game between Plummer and St. Hilaire is on the program at Plummer. Congressman R. T. Buckler and Mallard Ahlstrom of St. Paul are the speakers.

The Rocksbury club will have activities thruout the day including games, contests and dancing. Coffee will be served free by the club.

The picnic at Grygla is to be held at the Holbrook farm, 1 mile west of Grygla and dinner is to be served. Theo. Quale of this city and Rev. Anderson of Grygla are the speakers.

A full program, including bowery dancing is scheduled at River Valley. R. M Aalbu of this city is the speaker.

A real gala event is promised in advance notices from Crookston, where the city has been decorated by a firm of St. Paul decorators for the occasion. Mayor Queen of Winnipeg is to speak at this program and five out of the city bands are to be on the program as well as two bands from Crookston. A Northern league game between the Crookston Pirates and the Winnipeg Maroons is on the schedule.

Doll Buggy Parade Opens Playgrounds

Tindolph Park was the setting of a doll parade Friday afternoon in which thirteen little girls between the ages of five and twelve years displayed their dolls in competition for one of the two prizes being awarded for the best dressed doll and carriage, and for the best dressed doll being carried. The parade was the opening event of the summer playground activities being sponsored as a WPA recreation project. It was directed by Mrs. Verna Becker Purcelle, and was under the sponsorship of the Lein's Popular Price Store.

Betty Ann Brahs was the winner in the group of six girls competing in the doll and carriage class. Her doll's costume was pink and white with the carriage decorated in ruffled streamers to match. Esther Bradley won the prize in the doll group. Her doll was dressed in dress and beret to match Esther's dress.

The parade began at four o'clock, each entrant modelled singly, with a grand finale march of all thirteen entrants. Each girl was introduced to Miss Thelma Solie, contest judge, by Neomi Gran, who acted as hostess. About 150 people viewed the parade.

Middle Class Homes Procuce Best Children

St. Paul, Minnesota—What kind of homes do the "superior" children come from?

The Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association cites findings of the Harvard Psycho-Educational Clinic in a study that was begun in 1921 and recently concluded to show that the largest percentage of superior children do not come from the upper classes, so-called.

The best children, on the contrary, come from the middle section of the population and many of them are from that special section that is obliged to worry and connive and wonder about where the next pair of shoes is coming from.

Some 3,000 children from all kinds and conditions of homes were used for the study and the percentage of children to be proud of from homes of luxury was declared to be small.

The physical and mental health of children is not improved by luxury according to the physicians. Every doctor is familiar with the under-nourished, under-developed children of wealth, many of whom are as much in need of help as his poorest patients.

The essentials to good physical and mental development in children are comparatively few and simple. They need plenty of good food, plenty of sleep, medical supervision and considerable judicious letting alone so that they may learn to work out their own problems and stand on their own sturdy feet. Too many luxuries, too little responsibility usually hinder rather than help.

A sound appreciation of the value of a good pair of shoes and of the necessity for earning such expensive extras as a good "bike" is obviously not unwholesome for the growing child.

Foresters To attend Annual Fire School

More than 150 state forest service and federal Emergency Conservation Work employees will attend the annual Fire School at Cloquet June 25, 26 and 27.

Sponsored by the state division of forestry, the school will give forest rangers an opportunity to inspect work being done at the Cloquet Forest Experiment Station and at the University of Minnesota nursery.

Conducted trips through the Cloquet wood manufacturing plants will be a feature of this year's fire school. Modern fire-fighting equipment will be demonstrated during the three-day meeting.

As in former years, a number of contests between the various ranger districts have been arranged. Prizes will be offered for the ranger districts setting up the neatest and most efficient camps

The meeting will give an opportunity for conferences between federal ECW employees and officials of the state division of forestry. ECW projects in the Cloquet district will be inspected.

GOODRIDGE

Guests at the V. C. McLeod home over the week end were Mr and Mrs. Martin Stenberg of Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Payne and granddaughter, Ruth Rockne, visited at the Dan Payne home at Grygla on Sunday.

The local baseball team lost to the Thief River Falls team Sunday by a 3 to 5 score.

Miss Sena Christianson and niece, Doris Brunner, left Monday for Markville to visit at the home of Doris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brunner.

Bill Diehl, who has spent the last week visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Diehl, left for his home at Walford, N. D, on Monday morning. He was accompanied back by his sister Rachael, who will visit at that place for a while.

F. A. Beulke and M. G. Thoreson spent Tuesday in Fargo, N. D., on business.

The third meeting of the Home Management Project, Goodridge township group, met at the home of Mrs. Jay Payne on Tuesday, June 23. "Storage Space" was ably discussed by the leader, Mrs. Fred Urdahl.

The Minnesota Homemakers creed, was read by Mrs. J Payne. Roll call, each member gave the improvements they had made since the last meeting. The next meeting will be July 28th at the home of Mrs. Nicholy Urdahl.

AUXILIARY NOTES

The American Legion Auxiliary will meet this evening, July 2, in the club rooms. Reports of the district convention will be given and delegates to the state convention will be elected. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. A. B Stenberg and Mrs. A. M. Campbell.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION

Mrs. Louis Nadeau, Nashau, N. H., writes: "My husband was suffering from stomach distress. He tried many remedies without satisfactory results. I suggested Kuriko, and after he took one bottle, his condition improved immediately. We will never be without this remedy." Kuriko is an herb remedy which has been used by five generations of suffering people with splendid success. It is used to combat constipation, indigestion, common colds, nervousness, insomnia and skin impurities. It is not sold in drug stores, but can only be obtained from local agents. For information write to Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons Company, 2501 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Adv.

Lacking in Principle

Mr. Meek—Darling, haven't I always given you my salary check the first of every month?

Mrs. Meek—Yes, but you never told me you got paid twice a month—you unprincipled embezzler!

Game Commissioners Ask Curb on Ducks

The Midwest Association of Game and Fish Commissioner, meeting at Madison, Wisconsin, last week asked the federal government to refrain from liberalizing the waterfowl seasons in 1936 and 1937.

The action was taken after a split threatened to develop over a resolution advocating closing of the waterfowl season in 1936 and 1937. Representatives from Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota had favored this resolution.

Minnesota was represented at the conference by E. V. Willard, commissioner of conservation; Dr. Thaddeus Surber, superintendent of fish propagation; Charles McFarlane, deputy Commissioner of conservation; Emil Rahja, deputy director of the division of game and fish; George Weaver, superintendent of fisheries; and John R. Foley, member of the Conservation Commission.

Commissioner Willard, in a prepared address, discussed federal bureaus and regulations and Congressional acts that "constitute a challenge to undivided state jurisdiction over wildlife." Mr. Willard stated that much confusion is resulting from divided jurisdiction as against unified control of wildlife by states.

SMILEY NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thom, Mr. and Mrs. Erving Thom and son Richard from Aurora, Ill., were callers at the Freeman Allen home last Monday evening.

Mrs. Henry Snetting, sons LaVern and James, who have spent the past week or ten days visiting relatives and friends here and at Newfolden returned to their home at Minneapolis last Monday. They were accompanied back by Mrs. M. Scribener, who has spent the past ten weeks with her brother Olaf Snetting and family.

Mr. and Mrs. O N. Olson and son Mark left by car last Wednesday. They will visit with relatives at Lisbon, N. Dak., Volin, S. Dak., and on their return will visit at Willmar, Minnesota, with Mr. Olson's brother.

Mrs. Martha Lokken, Margaret and Beatrice were dinner guests at the Henry Lappegaard home, near Rosewood, last Sunday.

The Smiley Community Club held its meeting last Friday evening. The program of songs, plays, and tap dancing numbers was presented by the Steiner club.

Mrs. Tobias Stene returned from a Thief River Falls hospital last Thursday where she has been a patient the past four weeks.

Word was received at the Freeman Allen home last week that Freeman Allen, Jr and Miss Edna Liden both of this community were married in Montana. At present they are both working, but they expect to buy a farm out there.

Last week occurred the marriage of Miss Bernice Peterson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Peterson of Viking, formerly of Smiley, to Mr. Weslie McCrum, son of Mrs. Margaret McCrum of Smiley, at the bride's home at Viking. The attendants were Margie Peterson, sister of the bride, and Leon Lendobejee. Rev. Peterson of Viking performed the ceremony. They left for a few days trip to Warroad. They will make their home in Smiley where the groom bought a farm.

ONE-POUNDER ONLY BAIT FOR BIG ONE

Breckenridge— The situation that every fisherman looks forward to—when a one-pound pike can be used as "bait" for a real big one—occurred to Gardy Boll while fishing at Rush Lake recently. Boll, unaccompanied by Chester Gewalt, both of Breckenridge, felt a tug on his line and began to reel in. The fish seemed to be a big one, as the pole was bending badly. As Boll pulled his fish into the boat, the two men were surprised to see there were two fish instead of one. Attached to the hook was a pike, weighing one pound. A large pickerel, weighing ten pounds, had started to swallow the pike. The fins of the pike were caught in the gills of the pickerel which enabled Boll to get both of them.

ONLY ONE LASSIE IN SCHOOL CLASS OF 20

Springfield—The Springfield high school graduating class of 1947 is going to be predominantly male unless an influx of girls sets in before that time, for the first grade this year contained only one girl. Miss Marjorie Mueller was not only the most beautiful, but the most popular, most talented, and most everything of her class. Out of an enrollment of 20 pupils in the first grade, Miss Marjorie alone represented the female element, and altho she may not be so much interested at this tender age, some day she may find the situation highly desirable with a total lack of competition for "dates". This unusual situation has never before occurred in any Springfield class of that number, altho several smaller classes have had no boys It is almost unique in any city the size of Springfield, which has almost 2,000 population.

RAISES TWO OWLS AS BACKYARD PETS

Isle—A pair of young owls he is raising as pets is providing Neubert Swanson of Onamia a lot of fun. Captured in a couple of nests near Braham this spring. The birds are now housed in a wooden cage back of the store in which he is employed. They stand about 10 inches high and have a wing spread of nearly three feet. "I feed them sparrows and blackbirds, Neubert says. "If I put a swallow head-first in their mouths they will swallow him at one gulp. Other birds they tear up with their claws before eating They seem to have the most trouble swallowing the wings. Sometimes they have to pick all the feathers off a wing before they can get it down." Swanson plans to use the owls as decoys in crow hunting this fall.

LIGHTNING DISREGARDS ARRESTERS IN STORM

Fergus Falls—Although four lightning arresters are on the house and two grounds are in good working order at the Oscar Swanson home at Phelps, near Fergus Falls, lightning diregarded all opposition and did considerable damage when it struck there recently. The lightning apparently struck the rods, but also struck the roof in two places, entering the house, damaging the attic and knocking the plaster from the walls in five rooms before it found its way to the basement. Fortunately, the room in which the two children were sleeping was untouched. The lightning passed directly behind and within a few inches of Mr. Swanson, who was standing in one of the rooms which was damaged. The telephone was put out of order and the radio was completely ruined.

MAKES FATAL ERROR OF ROBBING JUDGE!

Grand Rapids—Hickey Morgan, claiming Oregon as his home, made a serious blunder in his "profession" when he picked the shoe repair shop of Justice of the Peace James Dawson for a bit of plundering in Deer River last week. Mrs. George Thorson, who lives near the shop, heard the breaking glass as Morgan entered, and called her husband, who caught the young man and held him until officers arrived. Brought before the bar of justice, Morgan found the man he had attempted to rob was presiding. Fortunately, however, for the culprit, a justice of peace has only the authority to bind the offender over to the district court in cases of felonies. but you may be sure this was done by Justice Dawson with a good deal of enthusiasm.

CLOCK 130 YEARS OLD KEEPS ACCURATE TIME

Mountain Lake—A clock 101 years old, as reported in these columns recently, is just an infant, according to Henry J. Kliewer, of Mountain Lake. He owns a clock which is 130 years old and still running. It was brought to the United States by Kliewer's great grandfather about 1875 from Russia. The clock has only one hand, pointing out the hours. The works are all made of brass and the wheels and cots are of quarter inch material. The escapement went wrong many years ago, and Mr. Kliewer's father put the wheel in the stove, heated it red hot and shaped it with a hammer and file so that it was accurate. Now it keeps pretty accurate time. The mechanism contains no springs, the motive power being furnished by a weight suspended on a chain. An alarm bell, which undoubtedly used to arouse the ancestral Kliewers in the morning has been allowed to fall into disuse The date of the manufacture is stamped on the works and proves that the instrument is actually 130 years old. The last painter put his mark on the job and painted in the date, 1857.

HOME FOR VISIT, FINDS MOTHER DEAD IN BED

Red Wing—What had long been planned as a pleasant reunion turned out to be a tragedy for Mrs. A. C. Ruddy of Wessington, So. Dak., when she reached the home of her mother, Mrs. Christine Swanson, Red Wing pioneer woman. Following her arrival by train, Mrs. Ruddy went directly to her mother's home. No one answered the ring of the doorbell, and she finally gained entrance herself. Fearing something was wrong, she rushed to her mother's room and found the old lady dead in her bed. Death, it is believed, occurred during the night from a heart attack. There were indications about the home that Mrs. Swanson had made preparations for what she, too, had planned as a happy reunion The home, where she lived alone, was in perfect order and preparations had been made for a family dinner.

FARMER FINDS GOLD COINS IN GARDEN

Bayport—Hans Peterson, Hudson former who tills the soil near Prospect park in that city, has struck gold in his own backyard. The "strike", not at all typical of its kind, has been spread over the past three years. Occasional gold coins, all antedating the Civil war have been turned up in the plot while plowing or gardening. The revelation of a $10 piece last week made a grand total of about $100 which has been found on the spot. The coins have been found at varying depths and over a widely scattered area. The scattering has been attributed to stump dynamiting operations. One store has it that an obscure resident of the city buried his wealth near a crooked tree, but desultory searching failed to reveal the hiding place. Peterson and his boys have gone over the ground with great care, but have attempted no serious mining operations. Several offers have been made to work over the ground on a 50-50 basis, but as yet Peterson has allowed no one to stake a claim in his backyard.

KITTENS HAVE LEGS, TAILS OF A RABBIT

Benson—Only a mother could love and cherish two of the kittens born to a cat owned by Bob Green of DeGraff, near Benson, the other day. For the pair are half kitten and half brush rabbit, according to surface indications. Part of a litter of five, three of which were normal, the two freaks have hind legs like a rabbit and no tails. In the place of a tail, they have a small bunch of hair. But to the mother, her five kittens are all the same.

EDITORIALS

By R. M. AALBU

"Governments can err—Presidents do make mistakes, but the immortal Dante tells us that divine justice weighs the sins of the coldblooded and the sins of the warmhearted in different scales.

"Better the occasional faults of a government that lives in a spirit of charity than the consistent omissions of a government frozen in the ice of its own indifference."——Franklin D. Roosevelt in his Philadelphia acceptance speech.

THE PRESIDENT'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

We have just read President. Franklin Delano Roosevelt's acceptance speech delivered to the democratic convention at Philadelphia on Saturday night. This speech, an excerpt from which heads this column, we consider one of the most masterful orations ever delivered in the English language. We hope that those Forum readers who did not hear it as it came over the radio, will make it a point to read it.

We commend the democratic party on the stand it has taken on many of the leading issues in the coming campaign in its platform, and we heartily commend the president on the stand he has taken in his acceptance speech. We hope and believe that the American public will so far shake off its lethargy that it will back up the president in the moves which he has outlined for the government when he is returned to office this fall.

We have probably criticized the president as severely as anyone, at times, for the things that he has done, as well as for the things that he has left undone. However, we do realize that it is undeniably hard to lead a pack that is so indifferent and apathetic that it hasn't gumption enough to follow.

LEMKE'S UNION PARTY

The announcement made by Congressman William Lemke of North Dakota last week, stating that he is a candidate for president and the subsequent support given him by Father Coughlin and his Social Justice League came as a surprise to all progressives. We have given William Lemke credit for being a shrewd politician and a true liberal and loath to change this opinion we are at a loss to fathom his motive.

Certainly William Lemke can not believe that he has the remotest chance of election. The one and only effect of his candidacy, if he carries out his announced intent, can only be to divide the liberal vote and assure the election of Landon with a consequent plunging of the nation into another abyss of graft, incompetence and starvation. We have consistently supported a third party move, but we have had in mind an organization that can muster behind it all liberal and radical factions. Such an alignment would mean victory here, as it did in France. We can voice nothing but condemnation for a flash in the pan such as Lemke's candidacy would be.

If on the other hand, Mr. Lemke's move, coming as it did on the eve of the democratic convention, was intended as a threat to drive Roosevelt to the left, we can recognize it as an adroit political move which has already served its purpose. The democratic platform and Roosevelt's acceptance speech gives us reason to believe that in this campaign, the forces of progress should mass themselves behind the president.

May 6-7, 1933

More than 150 years ago our forefathers proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence that the supreme function of government is to make secure for men their inalienable right to life, to liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Moreover, the fathers declared that "Whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it and to institute a new government, laying its foundations on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

Such are the two basic principles of human liberty and genuine Americanism laid down by the founders of this Republic.

It has now come to pass that there has grown up in this Nation a system of business, industry, and finance which has enthroned economic kings and financial barons over our lives vastly more powerful more irresponsible, and more dangerous to human rights than the political kings whom the fathers overthrew in our American Revolution of 1775. These economic rulers now have such absolute control over the economic life of the people as to threaten the very foundation of this Republic.

Under this system of production for private profit these rulers have created conditions that are intolerable.

They have drawn billions in profit, rent, and interest; and they have slashed our wages and the prices of our farm products.

They have used the marvels of the machine age not to lift the burden of toil from our shoulders, but to speed us up beyond human endurance, and to throw us jobless upon the streets.

They have taken the products of our labor, and not paid us enough to buy back the goods we have produced.

They have wasted our natural, technical, and human resources, and led us into ever more tragic periods of industrial chaos.

They have mortgaged our farms, and then sold them from under us.

They have lived in mansions, and evicted us from our homes.

They have led us to trust in their banks, and then have stolen our savings.

They have spent millions on bombs and battleships while we have gone cold and hungry.

They have forced us to bleed and die in defense of their loans and markets abroad and to kill our fellow workers in other countries

They have done these things as part and parcel of a profit system which places the few in control of gigantic monopolies and puts profit above human life.

Since the first Declaration of Independence the American people have discovered and created the means for unheard of wealth. Wide rivers have been tamed to provide electric power; huge mountains have been tunneled to give ore for the creation of new and marvelous machines; and the prairies have been made to yield rich crops. Man's power to produce wealth has been increased a hundredfold until now a life of security and abundance is possible for all.

But today the Nation starves in the midst of plenty. The gigantic machines stand idle; the crops lie in warehouses or rot in fields.

The system is collapsing before our very eyes. It is destroying itself with a destruction that threatens the historic gains of human rights and the achievements of human civilization. It is for us, workers and farmers of America, to build now a new economic system of justice and freedom. Only through our organized power can mankind be freed from the crushing and needless bonds of poverty and insecurity.

We, the representatives of workers' and farmers' organizations, in continental congress assembled, call upon all those who toil to organize to achieve one supreme aim, a new economic system based upon the principles of cooperation, public ownership, and democratic management, in which the planlessness, the waste, and the exploitation of our present order shall be eliminated and in which the natural resources and the basic industries of the country shall be planned and operated for the common good.

Farmers and workers of America, the wealth and knowledge of 150 years of achievement are at our command if we will organize for power. We shall not starve in the midst of plenty. We are the majority. Workers and farmers everywhere unite. Agitate, educate, organize. We have a world to win.

A GOOD POLITICIAN

(Union Advocate)

To be a good politician requires more than a gift of gab. It requires colossal nerve, unlimited gumption and an ability to use a lot of words to avoid making any definite statements or promises. Moreover, a good politician must be a contortionist of no mean ability. He must be able to straddle the fence, carry water on both shoulders and keep his ears to the ground all at the self-same time. Plus all this, he must be able to fool some of the people part of the time, most of the people most of the time—and himself all of the time. If he can do that—he can go to congress and in due course of time he may sit in the White House.

LIBERTY LEAGUE CAN'T BALANCE ITS OWN BUDGET

(The Progressive)

The Liberty League has just filed its financial statement with the House of Representatives, as required by law, for the second quarter of the year 1936.

The report shows that for the first half of this year, the Liberty League spent $58,810 in excess of receipts. In the three short months of March, April, and May, the League went into the red for $32,653.

And this is the outfit that is continually maligning Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal administration for not "balancing the budget!"

The Liberty League better balance its own budget (and it has the DuPonts and the Sloans and the Delaware millionaires for contributors) before it condemns Mr. Roosevelt.

And the League's report to the House shows that the Du Pont family "loaned" it $28,000 during the period, that R. R. M. Carpenter and Chas. D. Copeland of Washington, Del. chipped in $5,000 each, while Edward F. Hutton (New York food manufacturer) gave $10,000, J. Howard (Sun Oil Co.) Pew gave $10,000, and Alfred P. (General Motors) Sloan Jr. and Ernest T. (Wierton Steel Co.) Weir each shelled out $5,000.

KNOX

(From the N. Y. Post)

The nomination of Colonel Frank Knox as the Republican candidate for vice-president is a fitting sequel to the nomination of Landon.

If there was any doubt about the reactionary stamp on Landon, there can be no doubt whatever about Knox.

Knox, as a former general manager of the whole Hearst chain of newspapers, is familiar with the Hearst ballyhoo methods which "made" Landon. He is familiar, too, with the motives that have made Hearst the outstanding anti-New Deal publisher in the United States. Indeed, Colonel Knox's Chicago Daily News has outdone his old boss in hysterical vilification of the New Deal.

It was Colonel Knox who initiated the bright "recovery before reform" slogan and who also led the anvil chorus of knocking Roosevelt for "excessive spending".

How recovery was to be achieved without some economic reform and without the spending that has started us toward recovery is on of those points which Colonel Knox, Hearst-fashion, never bothered to clear up.

Nor has Knox bothered to explain how he can be for both a balanced budget and the bonus at one and the same time. Perhaps the best explanation is that they both begin with "b".

It must be a great day at San Simeon, what with two Hearst proteges atop the Republican ticket.

May we suggest that if, by some sinister mischance, a Republican ticket should be elected, the most appropriate gesture would be to round out the Hearst trio and make William Randolph himself secretary of state?

Arkansas the dry forces won six counties and fifteen villages, the vote averaging nearly two dry to one wet. In one county wets won by only nine majority.

Governments the World Over

ICELAND

Iceland was first settled about 874 A. D. chiefly by immigrants from Norway. In 930 the Althing was established as the highest governmental authority. For the next 300 years Iceland continued as an independent republic, celebrated in its rich saga literature. The contest for power, however, among the leading chieftain's families gradually created such anarchy that in 1262 the Island was made a dependent tributary under the King of Norway. When Norway joined with Denmark in 1380, Iceland followed as a Norwegian dependency; after Norwegian independence lapsed, it came to be governed from Denmark as a Danish tributary or colony; together with the Faroe Islands and Greenland it stayed in Danish hands when Norway was transferred to Sweden.

The Althing which had gradually degenerated to the position of a court of justice, had been entirely abolished in 1800 and Iceland had practically no local independence. In 1843 the Althing was revived, but only as an advisory body. After 1849 vain attempts were made from the Danish side to introduce the new Danish constitution into Iceland, where the independence movement had become more and more powerful. In 1874 Iceland was granted a free constitution with a large measure of self-government and a legislative Althing. But these concessions did not satisfy the demands of the Icelanders. Of equally little avail was it that in 1903, after the parliamentary form of government had been introduced in Denmark, Iceland received a special cabinet minister, responsible only to the Althing. In 1918, during the World War, a compromise was effected in the so-called Danish-Icelandic Union Law, by which Iceland was recognized as an independent county with, however, the same King as Denmark and with Denmark in control of its foreign affairs and of the fishing in its waters. The Union Agreement is to run for only 25 years (to 1940) after which it can be denounced by either party.

The present fundamental law is the constitution of the Kingdom of Iceland of 1920. In general it is modeled after the Danish constitution with the important difference that the Althing consists of a single chamber. The Althing, however, follows the procedure of the Norwegian Storting and divides itself into two sections called the Upper and Lower; in case of disagreement between these two sections over any legislation except financial in which case a decision can be reached only in a joint session of the entire Althing and by a two-thirds majority. There are three ministers. The regime is of a decidedly parliamentary character. The system of local government differs from the Danish in that there are no county councils; the local and parish councils functions directly under the central government. Neither are there any courts of appeal but appeals go directly from the lower courts to the Supreme Court.

Iceland whose population exceeds 100,000 has in recent years undergone a marked development, particularly in its fisheries. Have declared itself permanently neutral, and has no military establishment except three fishery inspection ships under the Icelandic flag.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

By Ben C. Haeglund

Bomber vs. Nazi

The "black threat", nicknamed Brown Bomber, went down to the hammering fists of Max Schmeling one night last week, and now the civilized world has settled back restfully, confident that the heavyweight boxing championship is again safe, even though it threatens to fall into the hands of a man from Naziland. Joe Louis always had a double fight—one against his opponent, the other against race prejudice. Perhaps he was too confident and inexperienced; most certainly he will fight his way up again; but the fall was thunderous and resounding, and wrought music to the ears of all those whose stomach turned at the thought of a mere "nigger" being supreme in anything.

The very fact that Schmeling made a comeback ought to indicate that Joe Louis, who is six years younger, can do the same. That is, if he is given another chance. Harry Wills passed his prime without getting a chance at the crown, then worn by Jack Dempsey. Will history repeat itself?

Gertrude Stein and Russia

Gertrude Stein, high prophetess of obscurity, recently said in a Saturday Evening Post article, that "money is money" and that Russia (the enigma which all prophets and prophetesses of obscurity try to understand, and sometimes fail) is discovering just that. The trouble with Russia up to now, Gertrude asserts, is that Russians thought money was something else.

The object—example behind this astounding revelation was the recent movement of Stakhanovism, which aims to reward workers who produce superior quality and quantity, with more wages. In America, it has been the practice to pay the biggest rewards for those activities which cannot be termed "work", but which are in reality grafts or rackets.

Gertrude Stein's article is merely another example of the capitalist classes attempt to rationalize what is happening in Russia, in terms of Americanism. In order to further socialism, Soviet leaders found it necessary to reward those workers who turned out the most work. Results have been very gratifying.

Ah, we get it now! To Miss Stein's way of thinking, which is characteristic of bourgeois thought in general, failure in Russia is a failure of socialism, while success is the success of capitalism. It is similar to the old formula, "Heads I win, tails you lose". Do you follow me? All hail to the Russians for having discovered at last what Americans have known all the time—that "money is money is money is money".

Reaching for the Stars

"Hitch your wagon to a star," sang Ralph Waldo Emerson, the mystic trancendentalist, without taking into account that the nearest star is several million miles away. To compare—if the world were the size of a buckshot, the nearest star would be seven or eight miles distant.

But astronomers, who figure only in millions, have nothing on our national budgeteers, who figure in billions. For instance: our federal debt is now 34 billion dollars, in round figures. It was 16 billion dollars in 1930 and 30 billion dollars last year. It is increasing by several thousand million dollars every year.

Last year all governments in the USA spent approximately 15 billion dollars, considerably over one hundred dollars for every man woman and child. The federal government alone spent nearly 7 billion dollars.

Foreign governments owe the USA a total of $13,670,087,391,28, to be exact for once. Finland is the only government to come thru 100 percent. Good old Finland! England and France are the big defaulters. And Alexander Kerensky, who borrowed several million dollars to help crush the Bolshevik uprising, has not been heard from, and the Bolsheviks ungenerously will not pay his bill, any more than the US government will ever pay the money borrowed to the Confederate States of England.

All I care for right now, all that many of us would care for, would be to be able to spend that hundred bucks personally, that the government has spent for us, and to get back my share of that money WE loaned to the European nations.

CLASS HATRED

While talking with some of his friends on a certain occasion last fall, President Roosevelt was heard to remark:

"The people who ride in the Pullmans are against me, but the people who ride in the day coaches are for me.

* * * *

This was promptly seized upon by his political foes as a basis for the accusation that he is trying to promote class hatred—hatred of the poor for the rich.

And this was something the earnest gentlemen deeply deplored. It was, they said, Un-Christian and Un-American.

It may also be that they feared, if the effort were successful, that it would turn out to be unfortunate—unfortunate, that is, for the Republicans in the coming election. One suspects, indeed, that this may have been the real crux of the matter . . . though if they admitted that this angle counted at all, they probably whispered it to each other.

But whatever the President's motive, your commentator sturdily joins with the Republican gentlemen in voicing his protest against Mr. Roosevelt's insidious scheme. He would earnestly urge that the President refrain from doing or saying anything, which might end the delightful chumminess which has always, heretofore, characterized the relationship between the two classes.

Certainly, the wealthy have done nothing to warrant an unfriendly attitude on the part of the poor. They wish no man ill and ask to be let alone.

All they desire is to be left free to go about their simple amusements, such as forming trusts and combinations, obtaining monopolies on this and monopolies on that, promoting an occasional war, and indulging in other, such-like innocent pasttimes.

* * * *

To encourage class hatred is, of course, quite as Un-American as the critical gentlemen say it is. But so too, for that matter, is anything else which rubs Republican bristles the wrong way.

It is even possible that to the Republican way of thinking, it is also Un-American for Mr. Roosevelt to seek re-election

* * * *

Your commentator, always painstaking in ascertaining the truth, has gone to some lengths in checking up on the effect of the President's words . . . to find out, in short, whether class hatred actually exists.

And, after searching inquiry of a representative cross-section of the populace, including policemen, milliners, barbers, clerks, laborers, and a considerable number of bartenders, he is obliged to say, as did the man who, in the dark, inadvertently stepped into the garbage pail. . .

"There's something in it!"

* * * *

But to say that this class antagonism is of recent origin and has been caused by the words or deeds of the 'New Dealers', may be only partly true.

In fact, the more your commentator mulls it over, the more he is inclined to conclude that a measure of class feeling has always been with us.

* * * *

Even back in colonial times, when the founding fathers were solemnly proclaiming that 'all men are born free and equal', some of them, at least, must have subscribed to that remark with their tongues in their cheeks.

Alexander Hamilton doubtless spoke the minds of his fellow Federalists (The forerunner of the present Republican Party) when he said:

"All communities divide themselves into the few and the many. The few are rich and well born. The other, the mass of the people. The people are turbulent and changing. They seldom judge or determine right. Give, therefore, to the first class a distinct, permanent share in the government "

* * * *

Thus, it appears that in the beginning, the aristocratic and wealthy had more than a small share in promoting the very class feeling of which they now complain.

So, instead of laying the entire blame at Mr. Roosevelt's door, your commentator wonders whether it may not be, in part, at least merely the return of certain chickens which are now coming home to roost.

Minute Sermon

By Dr. Crawford Grays

I cannot take the attitude that all is good, therefore there is no bad; nor all is God, therefore there is no devil; nor all is health, therefore there is no disease; nor all is life, therefore there is no death; nor all is right, therefore there is no wrong; nor all is heaven, therefore there is no hell.

Personal experience, history, observation, the sacred Scriptures are one in the conclusion, there is that which is bad, wrong, torturous, diseased, dead.

The inspiration for me is not in trying to believe something is not that is, but rather in believing in the presence of Something able to give overcoming power over every harmful presence.

There is a strengthening Presence.

There is Invisible, yet ever present, a Power that heartens, that enables one to state: "Yea, though I walk through the valley and the shadow of death I will fear no evil for Thou art with me."

There is a strengthening blessing that produces bravery, sweetness, confidence. Seek and ye shall find.

France Prepares for New Order

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Paris.—The capitalist system is nearing its end, and the task of the present French government is to improve the well-being of labor and prepare the conditions for moving on to a better social order, Leon Blum, premier of France, told Federated Press in an exclusive interview.

As French trade unionists advanced to new gains in a sweeping victory unparalleled in the nation's history, Premier Blum, Socialist leader and chief of the People's Front regime, explained for the American labor and liberal press the mission of the government he heads.

"My government will be the last attempt to see if some order and prosperity can be extracted out of a bourgeois democratic regime," the French premier said. "We are not to follow a socialist program. We have been put in power to carry out a program which was drawn up jointly with our liberal allies We will abide by our pledge.

Capitalist Regime Ruined

"We know the capitalist regime is ruined. The collapse of bourgeois society is an accomplished fact, for it is in irretrievable contradiction with itself. It is in conflict with reason, intelligence and morality. The question, as I said, is whether there is a possibility of at least securing within the present regime relief for those who suffer.

"At the same time, I want Socialists in America to know that we consider ourselves elected to create conditions for a peaceful transition from this moribund capitalist society to the society which remains our aim. I repeat: we abide by our pledge to the liberals to try to bring a small ration of justice and well-being and a large ration of hope to those who long for a better world.

"They shall not long in vain. For if I find that it is impossible, if I were to fail through insurmountable resistance, I will be the first to tell the working class: 'It was a dream, nothing can be done with this regime,' and then the working class can draw its own conclusions.

Plans to Oust Fascists

That Leon Blum indeed expects his government to be a transition to socialism became evident as soon as he assumed office. He intends to clean the army, the judiciary and police of all suspicious Fascist elements. Committees of vigilance and action are being set up by the People's Front in every town and community, and in some towns of the Parisian red belt, workers' militias are being created.

Without waiting for the Blum government to assume office, the workers of Paris and the neighboring industrial centers launched the struggle which won them the 40-hour week without reduction in pay, a week's holiday a year with pay and the right of collective bargaining. Factories were occupied day and night to prevent the owners from rushing in strike breaking crews. Wives, sweethearts and children organized the food supply to the hundreds of thousands of them on sentinel duty

Other Workers Join

The Paris victory served as an incentive to the workers in the northern and eastern textile industries, to railroad employes, to longshoremen and to many others to put forward similar demands, until finally all French labor was swept into the onward march

The owners have learned that the working class of France will know how to assert its rights hereafter. The reactionary press is filled with lamentations and predictions of ruin, chaos and Bolshevism. Fascism is beaten but it hopes the hour will come when socialists and liberals split.

Pierre Laval and Andre Tardieu, reactionary leaders, publicly predicted the People's Front government would collapse before the year is over and that they would form the new government. This prediction may cost Laval dearly. The 72 Communist deputies immediately introduced a motion in parliament to investigate the sudden rise of Laval's personal fortune to 300 million francs, following the dicker with Mussolini 18 months ago. And Gaston Bergerey, Independent Socialist, demands a trial for high treason against Laval for the dubious role he played in the Italo-Ethiopian war and his sabotage of sanctions and France's traditional League of Nations policy.

My Dear Editor:

As a citizen living near the village of Buffalo, Minnesota, I want to congratulate the city of Thief River Falls on its many accomplishments.

The Farmers Union Convention was held in your city. To this Convention came delegates from all corners of Minnesota. It is true that they did not come in as great numbers as they usually come to such conventions, but the season of the year had something to do with that.

We left Thief River Falls with the best of impressions except for your drinking water. You have a fine city auditorium.

A new skating rink is in the process of construction. The Library and Post Office are a credit to the city. The business people with whom we came in contact were considerate and helpful. Your Mayor extended to us words of welcome that will long be remembered.

We like the Editor of the Tri-County Forum. He impressed upon us the value of the newspaper Our friends in the cooperative movement have been slow to realize the value of helpful publicity.

As for the Farmers Union, we think it made history while in your city. The situation looks brighter to us than ever before. We envision the time when we may come back to Thief River Falls in much larger numbers than we came this time.

But just what is the historic legend connected with the name of your city?

Very truly yours,
COOPERATIVE UNION

SOCIETY

FOR MRS. OTTO STENBERG

Mrs. Howard Cheney and Mrs. Louis Cheney were hostesses at a shower given at the former's home Tuesday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Otto Stenberg. Those present were the honor guest and the Mesdames Albert Severson, Carl Olson, Morris Mogan, Fred Hanson, Lloyd Hanson, Marie Stenberg, A. B. Stenberg, M O. Stenberg, Haakon Johnson, Helmer Helgeson, Charles Conner, Ed Roslie, Oscar Hogquist, Peter Furuseth, Reuben Johnson and Enga Lindberg, and Miss Inga Stenberg. The afternoon was enjoyed informally and lunch was served by the hostesses.

RUPPRECHT—JOHNSON

Miss Eleanor Rupprecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rupprecht of Thief River Falls, and Willis Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Johnson, also of Thief River Falls, spoke their marriage vows at a Sunday morning service June 28. The service was read by Reverend R. M. Fjelstad at 9:30 o'clock at the parsonage.

The bride wore a white silk linen suit. She was attended by her sister. Miss Winnifred Rupprecht, who was attired in orchid crepe. Joe Stattleman was groomsman

A wedding dinner was served at noon to the bridal party and the immediate families, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom left on a two weeks' motor trip through Yellowstone National Park. They will reside in the Wennberg Apartments in this city.

The groom attended the local schools and was graduated in 1923. For the past several years he has been employed as shop foreman at the Ford garage. The bride has been employed at the Rex Cafe.

LOCAL COUPLE WED AT EAST GRAND FORKS MONDAY

At a quiet afternoon ceremony in the Bethesda Lutheran church at East Grand Forks, Miss Helen Louise Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Algot Johnson of this city, was married to Theodore A. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlson of this city. Reverend A. O. Bloom read the service. The bridal party proceeded up the aisle to the strains of Lohengren's Wedding March. Nuptial music was played softly on the piano as the vows were exchanged

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin, and silver slippers. Her veil of tulle was of three-quarter length. Her only jewelry was a necklace of pearls, a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses, sweet peas, and baby breath. Miss Ruth Marie Johnson, the bride's sister, was the bride's only attendant. She wore pale pink silk organdy and silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of pink roses, larkspurs, and baby breath, tied with a harmonizing bow. Arthur A. Johnson, brother of the bride, attended the groom as bestman.

The bridal party returned to this city after the ceremony, where they were guests at a dinner at the bride's home. Pink and white peonies and tapers carried out the pink and white motif in the table decorations. Mr. and Mrs. Carlson left on a two weeks' trip to the West Coast.

ENTERTAIN AT DINNER

Honoring Miss Waldie Bergland on her birthday anniversary, Reverend and Mrs. George Peterson were hosts at a seven o'clock dinner at their home. Their guests were Miss Mae Lundquist, Miss Edla Erickson, Miss Vivian Skoglund, and Elwood Lundquist.

SHOWER

Mrs. Alv Vistaunet was honor guest at a shower given for her by Mrs. Wesley Wheeler and Mrs. Harold Rasmussen. The guests motored to Red Lake Falls where a five o'clock picnic supper was served in the Red Lake Falls park by the hostesses. Presentation and opening of the shower gifts occupied the remainder of the evening. Guests were the Mesdames Alv Vistaunet, E. Overland, J. H. Hermanson, Thora H. Nelson, B. J Hoium, Clarence Sande, Hugh Carlson, Clair O'Hara, Albert Ulleberg, Wallace Miller of Red Lake Falls, Pete Dresse of Vesta, and George Mitchell of Roseau; and the Misses Lucille VeVea, Jane Buse of Red Lake Falls, Agnes La Course of Red Lake Falls, Frances Rossmeisl of Red Lake Falls, Celeste Pouliot of Red Lake Falls, Dorothy Norlander, Ann Svical, Josephine Johnson, and Yvonne Miller of Red Lake Falls.

KOGLIN—ANDERSON

On Wednesday morning, June 24 Miss Agnes Koglin, daughter of Mrs. Marie Koglin of Steiner, became the bride of Axel Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs J. G. Anderson of Stephen, Reverend E. L. Tungseth of this city reading the service at the parsonage. The ceremony was performed at eleven o'clock.

The bride's sister, Miss Alvina Koglin of Anderson, Indiana, was bridesmaid, and the groom's brother, Iver Anderson of Stephen, was best man. For the ceremony, the bride wore an afternoon dress of pastel blue crepe with corsage, and white accessories. Her attendant wore a yellow crepe dress and a corsage. Her accessories were white also.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mrs. O. L. Skorheim was pleasantly surprised by a group of her friends at a party at her home on Monday evening, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. Bridge was the diversion of the evening. There were three tables, with high score prize going to Mrs. P. J. Michaels, and low score prize to Mrs. Skorheim. The group presented a lovely gift to the guest of honor. Refreshments were served by the Mesdames John Cronkhite, Lucy Mathewson, and Ed Holmstrom Those honoring Mrs. Skorheim were the Mesdames J. W. Ruane, L. Johnson, A. Johnson, John Cronkhite, C. A. Wiltrout, L. C. Reidy, J. H. McClelland, P. J. Michaels, D. Conners, Joe Dostal, L. Dillon, C Simonson, E. Holmgren, Abbie Wassgren, M. O. Stenberg, Lucy Matthewson, Frank Hammergren. J. Robinson, E. What Bait?

The dear old soul watched the gaily-clad cowboy dexterously swinging his lasso in the grounds of the circus.

"What a long rope," she said at last. "What do you use it for?"

"Waal, lady," he replied, "when I'm out West on the ranch I use it for catching cows."

"Catching cows!" she echoed. "How very interesting. Tell me, what bait do you use?"

Ancestral Advantage

"Some of the founders of noble lines couldn't read and write."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "If they had been accomplished in matters of language they might have organized associations and fought among themselves instead of going forth to meet the foe."

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

MUCH IN LITTLE

He pondered over the menu for quite a long time. At last he looked up.

"I see you have six of my favorite dishes on the menu today, waiter," he said. "Which do you specially recommend?"

The waiter, whose position in the restaurant expired at the end of the week, sniffed.

"Well, sir," he said in a hoarse whisper, "if I were you I'd take the stew and have the whole lot!" —El Paso World.

The soul—the power of thinking and feeling—whence does it come, whither does it go?

If the cabman drives too fast, you can console yourself with "Oh, well, he ought to know."

Livelier Loaves

British bread is the best in the world, says Tit-Bits Magazine, but the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research is not satisfied and is in league with the millers to discover why flour from one kind of wheat produces so much better bread than the flour from another kind. The answer is probably not only a chemical one, but is concerned with the elasticity of the cells of the dough. That spongelike quality of the bread-crumb, which was seldom absent from the old-time homemade loaf, was probably due to an innate quality of the flour which gassed the dough and made it light. This quality science is seeking to rediscover and then to standardize.

Erosion on All Coasts

Coast erosion is to be found on practically all the coasts of the world. In the United States notable instances are on the coast of New Jersey, where the beach is being washed away in some sections and built up in others. At Longport the coast line has receded continuously and the sand has worked its way gradually across the inlet, to increase the acreage at Ocean City. The Cape Cod shore is slowly yielding, as are the exposed shores of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. The sands of the southern shore of Long Island have persistently drifted to the westward toward New York harbor.

Potato Consumption High

If every man, woman and child in the United States ate an equal amount of potatoes each would consume 133 pounds annually, according to records of the Agricultural department kept over a number of years. Peak consumption was reached in 1922 with 170 pounds per capita; the lowest point was in 1930 and 1932, each with but 118 pounds.

Boy Burned as Sacrifice

To propitiate their god after successive failure of crops, five men flung Bhima, a youth, into a fire as a human sacrifice at Nagpur, India. Two of the men, Adku and Tima, were sentenced to death, the three others to life imprisonment.

POPCORN PARTIES

The Latest Fad

PARTIES must be full of pep. So must popcorn if it is to pop properly. So why not combine the two, as so many people have been doing recently, and have a peppy popcorn party at which everyone will have lots of fun?

Be sure to have your popcorn peppy. That's fifty percent of the fun. Every kernel will pop if you get your corn in cans because nothing but selected kernels are put into these receptacles, and they are hermetically sealed with just the right amount of moisture in each so that there will be no "old maids" left to sort out.

Provide Costumes

Although this is not necessarily a costume party, it's a good plan to provide long kitchen aprons for everyone, for not the least part of the fun is making dainties with the popcorn after it has popped. You can either make these aprons yourself in pretty pastel colors, or you'll find some very attractive ones in the stores.

There's a thrill, too, for young folks in cooking things together. It suggests all sorts of pleasant future domestic possibilities, and perhaps the corn will not have done all the popping before the evening is over. Some young man may pop the question to a pretty girl whose hands look so alluring as they busy themselves with dainty confections on a board or in a bowl.

Dainty Confections

And here are some recipes for a few of the confections which may bring about this surprising result:

Baked Popcorn Perfection: Melt two and a half squares chocolate, add contents of one can condensed milk, and stir over the fire a few minutes. Add one cup finely ground popped corn, one cup canned moist cocoanut and one-half teaspoon vanilla, and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet. Bake in a 325-degree oven for about fifteen minutes. This makes about twenty-eight small cakes.

Popcorn Penoche: Boil two cups brown sugar, two-thirds cup thin cream and one tablespoon corn syrup to 236 degrees, stirring as little as possible. Add two tablespoons butter, and cool to lukewarm. Add one-half teaspoon vanilla, and beat until it loses its shine. Add five tablespoons ground popped corn, and spread out in a buttered pan. Be sure that the corn is finely ground. Makes one pound.

These Taste Good

Popcorn Brittle: Pop two-thirds of the contents of a 10-ounce can popcorn, and then run it through the food chopper. It will make one cup. Make a syrup of one cup sugar, one-half cup brown sugar, one-fourth cup canned molasses, one-fourth cup water, one tablespoon butter and one-fourth teaspoon salt, boiling them to 300 degrees, or until brittle. Pour over the corn, stirring as little as possible. Pour out immediately onto a buttered slab or inverted pan, and spread very thin. When cold, break into pieces.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

The instrument made raucous noises.

"Chrysler building," he informed Barry, "and he's waiting for you."

"I don't know how to thank you."

"What for?"

"Mainly for helping two people in a lot of trouble."

Peter smiled once more.

"That inside-job theory sticks to my mind," Barry remarked. "Is there a Mrs. Mike Kelly?"

Peter laughed outright.

"You're determined to be Sherlock Holmes, aren't you?" he asked. "All right. There is a Mrs. Mike Kelly. I'd just finished reading about her. She sued for divorce recently and withdrew the case. Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?"

"Cherchez la femme, you know."

Peter laughed again.

"Search for the woman," he translated. "But, then, there appear to have been a good many women in Kelly's life. We mustn't jump at conclusions."

"No," Barry admitted. "No, I suppose not.

"All the same," he thought, the other side of the door, "it's pretty evident that a woman who sues for divorce is a little bit anxious to get rid of her husband."

But there was nothing doing at Jamison Winslow's.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but we're laying off men every day now. Why aren't you on your father's newspaper?"

"My father and I haven't been very friendly."

"So I've heard. But I've got an idea. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."

It was quite a simple idea.

"We place thousands of dollars' worth of advertising with The Globe. And I know the city editor pretty well. His name's Harwood. If I gave you a letter to Ernie, and he gave you a job, and you made good while the boss is in Europe, wouldn't that square things when he got back?"

Barry grinned.

"It might," he said, "and then again it might not."

"What I heard," Jamison Winslow went on, "was that your father wanted you in his business. If that's true, he'd certainly be pleased at your going in."

"I'd like to succeed on my own."

"Well, why not? We don't have to tell Harwood who we are. Not in the beginning, anyway."

"That is an idea," Barry agreed. "Since the row, I've been calling myself Barry Gilbert."

"Not a bad pen name," Jamieson Winslow declared. "All right; we'll stick to it. I've a hunch that you'd make a good newspaper man."

"That's what your brother said."

Ten minutes later, Barry Gilbert—himself again, so to speak—was on his way to the office of The Globe.

The Globe occupied a new and imposing building in Thirty-ninth street. Asking for Mr. Harwood, Barry found himself in the city room. Men in their shirt sleeves sat at desks, smoking and pounding typewriters, and most of the people who had rushed in and out of the elevators rushed in and out of the double doors. Harwood's office proved to be a small and comparatively quiet cubby-hole just off the concourse.

He had always been a newspaper man. Square cut, not very tall, but with big hands and broad shoulders, his hair was as red as Barry's. He had been John Clarke Ridder's city editor when John Clarke was a cub reporter, and he remained John Clarke's city editor still. John Clarke's friend, too, with more real power, and ability, than any other man on The Globe.

Now he glanced at the Winslow letter, and grunted.

"Think you can write, I suppose?"

"Pretty sure I can't."

"Then what're you gonna do on a newspaper?"

"Get news."

Ernie Harwood looked him over.

"How?"

"Well, just now, it happens that I'm a friend of Jay Rogers."

"The fellow that killed Mike Kelly?"

"The fellow they say killed him."

"Yeah?"

Ernie squinted into the bowl of his pipe.

"How long have you known Jimmy Winslow?" he inquired.

"About half an hour. His brother asked him to get me a job."

"Peter Winslow?"

"Yes."

"Peter Winslow going to defend Rogers?" he snapped.

"Yes."

Ernie reached for a telephone.

"Peter Winslow's defending the Rogers boy," he barked into the instrument. "If it's straight, play it up in the next edition."

To Barry he said: "How did you get Winslow to take the case?"

For the second time, Barry related his story of meeting the Rogers in Florida. From there, he jumped to the visit of Mrs. Rogers, repeating what she had told him, and dilating upon their interview with the boy in the Tombs.

"What did he say?" Harwood asked.

"I don't feel at liberty to repeat that until I've spoken to Peter Winslow," Barry answered, "but it's given me two clues that I'd like to follow up."

"All right," Ernie said. "Follow 'em up. Your salary's fifty dollars a week. Report straight to me."

"Yes, sir."

"Wait a minute. I'll put you next to somebody who'll introduce you at police headquarters. We've got that angle covered, of course, but you'd better be in touch there. What I want you to do is to follow your own leads. Bring in something."

"Roth, come here!" he called. "I want you to take Mr. Gilbert down to the homicide bureau."

Nothing seemed entirely impossible that bright mid-May morning, as Barry swung into Broadway.

Up to now, he owed everything to his imposture—that first stake, the clothes he wore, Peter Winslow's favor, and all that had followed. They constituted an amazingly fortuitous chain of circumstances. But the chain had lifted him to solid ground. "It's up to me now," Barry said, feeling square with himself, and the world, and strangely gay and self-confident.

"I'm going to start right," he said, "by paying those bills, and giving Peggy the rest of that two hundred. I'm going to figure up my board and room at Southampton, and give her that, too. A fellow like me can't afford to be crooked."

He had turned into a cheap restaurant, near The Globe, where the slim young man had promised to meet him. Lunching, he mapped out his immediate future. Workdays, Barry Gilbert would live in the little rooms he'd taken Saturday. Week-ends, of course, he'd have to spend at Southampton, as John Clarke Ridder, Jr. That was essential to his contact with Bad Nauheim. And to another, even more essential contact. He was to dine at the Hambidges again next Friday, he recalled—with the lady from Boston to whom Pat must have written flattering things about him. A grand girl, Pat, and suddenly, as we have seen, not altogether unattainable. "If I make good," Barry thought, "I can tell her the truth about myself, and ask her to marry me. Why not? All this John Clarke Ridder, Jr., business'll just seem funny then."

The slim young man arrived in due time, and duly presented his charge at the homicide bureau. First, there was Tim Laugherty, as Irish as Barry, and with almost as ready a grin. They took to each other immediately. "Barry Gilbert," Tim repeated. "Well, the name's all right, anyway."

Tim regarded the Kelly murder as a closed case. So did MacDevitt, and every one else Barry met at headquarters. "The Rogers kid done it, that's sure," Tim declared. "This Filipino says he didn't let nobody else in that night."

"Maybe somebody else let himself in."

Tim smiled scornfully.

"How? There was a new lock on that door. Show him the keys, Mac."

Mac obliged.

"Here you are," [illegible] chained to Kelly's pants button."

"Show him the decanter. Maybe he can get something out of that."

"Why not?" Mac laughed. "There's about half a pint in it."

It was a gruesome exhibit—that bottle which had killed a man. Real cut glass, and nearly a quarter full of reddish liquor. "Wonder why that didn't spill out," Barry ventured.

"Maybe the cork stopped it," Tom replied.

"They didn't find any finger prints?"

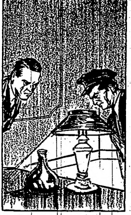
"No. The guy must have worn gloves."

"Listen," Barry ventured again. "Why weren't the Filipino's finger prints on the bottle—if he served it?"

"Guess he wore gloves, too. My butler always does!"

"Well, if he wore 'em—"

"I get you," Tim interrupted. "If the guy that done this wore gloves, and the Filipino wore gloves, why then maybe the Filipino's the guy that done this."



It Was a Gruesome Exhibit—That Bottle Which Had Killed a Man.

"Exactly."

"Say, you got a bean on you," the detective conceded, almost admiringly. "Of course, I still think we got the right party, but he's a cagey guy, that Oriental, and he didn't say nothing about gloves to me. Why don't we go round and see if he wears 'em?"

He didn't.

At least, not when he opened the front door.

"Say, Charlie," Tim began; "let us in. We want to ask you sumpin'. Do you wear gloves when you're serving stuff?"

"Sometimes."

"Did you wear 'em that night?"

"Maybe. I don't remember."

He was a thin, sallow youth, with the usual glossy black hair brushed back from his forehead. Nothing remarkable about him—not even his shiftiness. The three men stood in the broad hall of the Kelly house, and Charlie repeated the tale of admitting Rogers, and hearing a quarrel, and returning to his room until the visitor left.

"You were in your room when the row started, then?" Barry asked.

"Yes, sir."

"And you could hear the voices pretty plainly?"

"Yes, sir."

"You came upstairs, and then went back to your room, and stayed there until just as Rogers was leaving?"

"Yes, sir."

"Kelly must have been dead then, if Rogers killed him?"

"Yes, sir."

"But you didn't hear the sound of a blow in your room, nor the thud of a body falling?"

No answer.

"If you could hear voices downstairs, don't you think you'd've heard that, if it had happened?"

The Filipino looked down from one inquisitor to the other.

"Maybe I didn't stay in my room," he said at last, very slowly. "I don't remember."

Tim was about to press the point when there was the rasp of a latchkey being thrust into the lock of the front door.

Then the knob turned, and Mrs. Kelly entered.

The door remained opened.

"Well, Mr. Laugherty!" she exclaimed. "So you've come back again? With a friend, too! Why don't you step in the parlor?"

Tim thanked her, and presented Barry.

"Glad to meet you," Mrs. Kelly declared. "Run along, you"—to the Filipino. "Come on in, boys!"

"You're forgetting your key," Barry said.

He took it out of the lock.

"It's a brand new key, isn't it?" he asked, casually.

"Sure," Mrs. Kelly answered. "It's a new lock. Mike had it put on only a few days ago."

"How many keys were there?"

"Two. That one, and Mike's."

Barry was scribbling on the back of an envelope.

Mrs. Kelly was a large woman, in her fifties. Her hair was dyed red—a brilliant, aggressive red unknown to Nature. But she was affable, and extremely good-humored. Evidently, not grieving herself to death about Mike.

BULL TAKES PLACE OF HORSE, PULLS PLOW

Montevideo—Inability to secure a fourth horse for his gang plow did not deter Herman Zielsdorf, Montevideo farmer, from plowing. Owner of only two horses, Zielsdorf was unable to plow for his flax crop. A neighbor loaned one horse, but all efforts to secure a fourth, including application for a rehabilitation loan, were in vain. But Zielsdorf owns a three-year-old Red Poland bull, and he conceived the idea of using him instead of the missing fourth horse. To carry out this plan he was forced to alter a harness to fit the bull, then by way of initiation hitched him to the disc alone. The bull pulled the disc over unbroken ground easily, but when turned in to the plowed field stopped. Zielsdorf then unbolted the evener from the disc, and standing on the evener drove the bull about the yard. The following day he hitched the three horses alongside the bull onto the gang plow. After a few jumps and a little cavorting, he soon settled down to a steady gait, easily pulling up his end of the load. With this combination Zielsdorf was able to plow about five acres a day. When the bull gets tired, Zielsdorf says he lays down in his tracks and no amount of coaxing or bullying will make him get up until he is rested and ready, but in about 30 minutes time he rises of his own volition and resumes his stride.

OVERSHOES IN JUNE ADD TO TRAVELER'S JAIL LIST

Appleton—Traveling about the state with high overshoes for footwear in June, coupled with a nervous disposition and tendency to pass remarks that do not always make sense to the listener, is a situation that may widely extend one's acquaintance with jails. This is particularly true when several criminally insane individuals are at large. Stephen Peacock found this out. A transient, 28 years old, he was picked up by the Appleton police after several residents were put on edge because of his peculiar attire and strange conversation. An examination proved him mentally normal, or as much so as the average citizen. An injury in the woods last winter from which he had never fully recovered, and lack of more suitable footwear explained some of his peculiarities. He stated he was on his way to Deadwood, S. D., where he has a wife and family. Before coming to Appleton he had been picked up in Minneapolis and detained for examination and finger printing, under suspicion of being one of those who had escaped from St. Peter. Three hours after he had been released by Appleton police, he was in jail at Dawson and being put through the mill again.

Performing Dogs Coming to Penn. Co. Fair

Originality is the keynote in show business, and it attends to the outdoor stage as well as the theatre. Without it, there's little chance these days to win public favor.

Not only has the public accepted Ruton's Dogs, coming to the Pennington county fair, July 28 to 31, as an unusual act, but the most original novelty to come from this field of show business in some time. Eddie Ruton spends months, even years, to perfect a difficult feature trick. His little star, "Fuzzy" does one that amazes all who see it when he performs a perfect "hand stand" with just one of his paws resting on Ruton's thumb. Another good trick, now accomplished, one that Ruton himself doubted he ever would perfect, has two dogs walking the wire from opposite directions. In order to pass each other on the wire, one of the dogs must climb over the other without losing his footing.

As a sensational feature of the act, Ruton presents his high-diving dog; a leap from a 40 foot high pedestal to a blanket held for him to land in.

One of the best all around performers in the act was rescued from a dog pound in Ft. Worth when Ruto paid 75c for his release. Mongrels often show more intelligence in learning tricks than do the thoroughbreds, according to Ruton.

Comedy is interspersed in the Ruton act, and the children especially will laugh loud and long at some of the funny stunts.

Swimming Classes Show Progress

Considerable progress is being made in the swimming classes being conducted at Tindolph park, Don Chalmers, instructor stated Wednesday. Junior classes are being conducted daily at 11:00 a. m., and senior classes at 3:30 p. m. A women's class is being conducted five evenings a week at 7:30 p. m.

Persons interested may still enroll, Mr. Chalmers stated and they should register with him, at the park. The classes are being sponsored by the Red Cross and are conducted as a life-saving and safety project each summer.

Weed Meeting Held at Court House Monday

Between 25 and 30 township officials attended the weed meeting at the court house on Monday, at which time representatives of the state department informed them of their duties and responsibilities and gave information on proper weed eradication. Methods of identifying various noxious weeds was also discussed.

NEWS of the WEEK

STEEL MEN FIGHT UNION

New York City—Through the American Iron and Steel Institute, the steel industry has served formal notice that it will resist to the extent of its resources any effort on the part of John L. Lewis's newly organized Committee for Industrial Organization to unionize the 500,000 steelworkers of the country. "The steel industry", states the announcement, "will oppose any attempt to compel its employes to join a union or to pay tribute for the right to work."

GRAIN PLUNGER DIES

Chicago, Ill.—Arthur W. Cutten, credited with winning and losing fabulous millions in grain deals, until barred from further speculation by a Government commission, dies at the age of 66. The U. S. Court of Appeals reversed his disbarment from the grain pit shortly before his death.

NAVY CHANGES HEAD

San Pedro, Calif.—Amid traditionally impressive ceremonies on the quarterdeck of the flagship Pennsylvania, Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn took over command of the United States Fleet, succeeding Admiral Joseph M. Reeves who goes to Washington as President of the Navy General Board

REACTION IN FRANCE

Paris, France.—As an aftermath of the strike of a million workers when Socialist Premier Leon Blum assumed power, less aggressive Socialists are demanding an end to violence. From Marseilles, Deputy Billoux exclaimed: "The Rightists are sending gangsters into the streets. They want to turn my city into another Chicago!" Cried another Marseillais, "Communism is in France! The Soviets are here! As a Socialist I will not stand for it!"

INCOMING TOURISTS PROTEST

New York City.—Until last week voyagers arriving in American ports could bring in liquor up to the $100 tax-free customs limit. But while 915 steamship passengers destined for this port were on high seas, the Treasury Department revised its rules, limiting such importations to one "winegallon" per person. Amid loud protests the returning travelers paid $2,000 in duties, left their liquor on the dock or sold it back to the steamship companies.

THIRD PARTY LAUNCHED

Burlington, Iowa—Promising a "new day" instead of a "new deal", Representative Lemke, of North Dakota, candidate for President on Father Charles E. Coughlin's new Union Party, scored both President Roosevelt and Governor Landon in the opening gun of his campaign. Two favorite sons of Iowa fell under his critical eye: "Herbert Hoover, who lived so long in England he forgot what true Americanism is, and Henry Wallace, who teaches birth control to American pigs so he can arrange imports from foreign countries."

SAY IT WITH FINGERS

Seattle, Wash.—Until he learned that both were exceedingly rapid finger-talkers, Judge Kazis Kay was puzzled as to how a deaf-mute husband could annoy Mrs Eliza Seth, also a deaf-mute, with garrulous criticism. After a demonstration, the Judge granted Mrs. Seth a divorce.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

New York City—Not only little boys, but big business is interested in this weekend's celebration. Some 30 American firms manufacture fireworks with sales of $6,000,000 a year and a payroll of $700,000 for 1,000 workers. On the other side of the picture, the National Board of Fire Underwriters estimates that fireworks caused $3,867,000 damage during the years 1922 to 1926; since then more rigid restrictions have cut down losses. Dr. Leland E. Cofer of the American Museum of Safety, states that last year fireworks killed thirty, wounded 7,738.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASES

Washington, D. C.—In only two years since statistics have been kept have May employment and payrolls exceeded those of April, in 1922 and 1933. Last May showed 88,000 more workers employed, payrolls increased by $6,700,000 "A symbol of underlying confidence," declares the Department of Labor.

STREET CARS' NIRVANA

Savannah, Ga.—The rapid replacement of street cars by motor busses has aroused nation-wide interest in what happens to good trolleys when they die. Citizens of this city bought them as fast as they were retired, moved them to nearby beaches and converted them into attractive cabanas.

TAKING NO CHANCES

Cairo, Egypt.—For centuries Moslems spurned insurance, because they regarded disasters as the "will of Allah". When the 79-year-old Mosque of Mohammed Ali in this city was recently repaired, the devout took out an insurance policy with a New York company. This is the largest mosque in Egypt.

ZIONCHECK FLEES ASYLUM

Twoson, Md.—Within a few hours after a District of Columbia lunacy court had suspended an inquiry into his sanity, because he has been committed to a private institution for observation, Representative Marion A. Zioncheck, of Washington, scaled an 8-foot barrier surrounding a local asylum and escaped. The Capital proceedings charged that he is "an unfit person to be at large," and a wide search is being made for him. (Ed. NOTE—Watch this item for probable capture.)

DOCTOR PERFORMS MIRACLE

Philadelphia, Pa. — Eighteen months ago Kelvin Rodgers 2-year old of Boort, Australia, swallowed an inch-and-half nail, which lodged in his lung. After two local unsuccessful attempts to remove it, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, noted larnygologist of this city, cabled an offer of a free operation. Interested Australians financed the 14,000 mile trip to this city. In seven minutes Dr. Jackson added the nail to his collection of tin soldiers, jewelry, marbles and other impedimenta that he has successfully extracted from youngsters' throats.

ETHNOLOGICAL PUZZLE

San Francisco, Cal—For two centuries scientists have speculated on the huge stone monoliths, grotesquely carved, found on lonely Easter Island, 1,100 miles from the nearest inhabited spot in the Pacific. On the second largest island of the Fiji group Bruce Fahnestock, young New York explorer, has just found buried in tropical jungle 19 large stone slabs bearing symbols unknown to the tribes of the South Seas. The inscriptions resembled those made by a tribe that once roved Northeastern Canada nearly 10,000 miles distant.

Moscow, Russia—As the first step in a project to link up 10,000 miles of inland waterways, twenty eight explosions opened up channels into new dams controlling the Volga, largest river in Europe. When completed the system will make this city a port connected with five seas, the Baltic, White, Black, Azov and Caspian.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETS ARE SET FOR JULY 21ST

Many Districts Plan To Continue Economy Coming Year

Annual school meetings in Minnesota will be held July 21, the third Tuesday of the month, when all common and independent districts will hold the voting at 7 p. m. unless the time has been changed at a previous meeting of the school board. At these meetings, officers of districts are to be elected for the ensuing term, and school levies for the school year will be made.

Preceding the elections, an interesting statement has been prepared by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association pointing out to school boards the importance of providing equal educational opportunities for every child and at the same time keeping an ever watchful eye on education costs.

The statement shows that total public school expenditures, including both state and local units, for the previous year approximate $40,000,000. This is a decrease of approximately $3,000,000 from school expenditures in a year's time.

It is interesting to note that the state is now contributing an increasing share toward local school costs. The state's annual contribution was recently placed at $12,300,000, or 30.6 per cent of the total. This compares with 24.7 per cent in 1933; 22 2 per cent in 1932; and 19.8 per cent in 1931.

While the local school levies made at the coming annual meetings is assessed entirely against general property, the state's share of the school burden comes

4-H CLUBBERS DECIDE ON NEW MEAT CONTEST

County Picnic Is Set for August 9th; Will Have Their Booths at County Fair

Twenty-one leaders of Pennington County 4-H clubs, representing eleven of the clubs in the county, attended the 4H Leaders' Council meeting held on Monday evening in the Municipal auditorium, at which time plans for future 4H activities were discussed. H. A. Pflughoeft, of Crookston, district club agent, met with the leaders and introduced a new contest, which is known as the "Meat Identification Contest". The contest has for its purpose the instructing of 4H Club members in the various meats produced on farms of the United States All 4H club members who are enrolled in cake baking, bread baking, canning, meal planning and preparation, and all livestock projects are eligible to compete in the contest. Completion of the project requires that the club member is able to identify thirty cuts of meat and write a story on one of the chosen subjects. Eligible club members wishing to participate in the meat identification contest should notify Miss Thelma Solie, temporary club leader, of their wish to enter.

At the leader's meeting, the Pennington County 4H picnic was set for Sunday, August 9. It will be held at Smiley Hall. The Home Economics Achievement Days, in which Pennington county club girls enrolled in home making projects will participate, will be held July 21 and 23 in the Lincoln high school. Members participating in demonstration and bread baking will participate on July 21. Members who are enrolled in cake, clothing, style review, and meal planning and preparation will participate on July 23.

The leaders decided that county 4H clubs will again have their booths at the fair, as has been customary in previous years. Clubs are now selecting a project which they wish to display. All clubs interested in maintaining a display booth at the Pennington County Fair this year should notify Miss Solie of their choice of a project for display.

OUR FARMERS TO SAVE $500,000 INTEREST IN YEAR

Under The Law As Amended Special Rate Is Extended For One Year

Minnesita farmers will save more than $590,000 during the next year in interest on land bank loans now outstanding through the continuance of the 3½ per cent rate by act of congress which was approved June 25, it was learned this week from the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul.

This same rate will also affect new as well a sold land bank loans made through national farm loan associations and apply to all interest payments coming due before July 1, 1937. This 3½ per cent rate which was enacted more than a year ago as a benefit to offset some of the adversities under which agriculture had been operating, was to have expired on June 30 this year.

Under the law as amended the special reduced rate is extended one year, after which time all loans will be returned to the interest rate at which they were written, as the law does not change the contract rate, but operates only as a temporary reduction.

The reduced rate applies to all of the outstanding land bank loans made through national farm loan associations, which amount to nearly 2 billion dollars.

The reduced rate on loans made directly by the land bank—not through associations—will be 4 per cent for the one-year period.

In the region served by the Federal Land Bank of St Paul the interest saving to farmers on loans they now have will amount to more than $1,650,000 for this one year.

Workers to Ask Immediate Relief; Send Delegates

The local Workmen's Protective League circulated a subscription list this week in Thief River Falls soliciting funds for which to send delegates to a mass meeting called by the Workers Alliance of America, at the state capitol at St. Paul, Saturday, July 11. Immediate relief for the needy and employment on WPA projects are sought by the workers. A special session of the legislature will also be asked for at this meeting to provide funds for relief purposes.

LOCALS DEFEATED BY R. L. FALLS

By Score of 6 to 5—Win Sunday at Plummer by Score of 5 to 2

In a special game between Red Lake Falls and the local team, played at Red Lake Falls on July Fourth, the locals lost by the close score of 6 to 5 in a wild game. Errors behind Orvalla, who was on the mound for the locals, were responsible for the poor showing of the locals. Red Lake Falls bunched five hits with four errors in the fourth inning to score five runs. Outside of this inning they got only two hits. Thief River Falls got off to a slow start, scoring their first run in the fourth inning and another in the fifth. They rallied to amass three runs in the eighth inning, thereby almost evening up the score. Saturday's game was the third of the season with Red Lake Falls, and each ended 6 to 5, twice with Thief River Falls on the long end of the score.

The locals remained undefeated in league play by defeating Plummer at Plummer 5 to 2, behind Robinson's fine pitching, on Sunday, July 5. The local team had trouble with the slants of Plummer's left handed pitcher Fremling until the ninth inning, when a walk and three hits produced three runs. Their other two runs came in the second and fifth innings. Plummer's two runs were both made in the sixth inning. Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire are still tied for top place with six wins and no losses.

On Sunday the locals will take on the Oklee team here at the fair grounds at three o'clock

THANK YOU, GOODBYE AND GOOD LUCK

This is my final article as editor of the Forum. the writing of it is the hardest job that I have ever undertaken.

Last week I had an article written, but when the time came for publishing it, I withheld what I had written in anger; a destructive anger, wherein I would have destroyed that which I have with the collaboration of so many sincere people built up over a period of four years of heart-breaking labor. An institution in which I take a justifiable pride. Let those who would detract from my achievement point to one instance in the history of American journalism where a comparable newspaper was built in less than twice the time and with less than double the capital. Its continued success, for which I hope and pray, will be a monument to my efforts and to the faith, loyalty and labor of those who have been associated with me on the staff during the four years preceeding its sale to the co-operative association last February.

My desk is cleared— my successor is here— only the farewells remain— and still I linger. Memories crowd in upon me. A small truckload of equipment— a broken-backed Diamond two-page press—eight cases of moth-eaten assorted handtype. (It stood out over night—we didn't have a building to put it in) Three men with a desire to earn an honest living.

A four-page sheet with an ideal— a philosophy of Human Brotherhood that the people understood and appreciated. If it remains so I shall have no regrets. More and more readers— greater and greater demands for a bigger and better paper— hours upon hours of labor with an occasional nap on the paper bundles in the corner when the spirit could prod the flesh no farther. Willing hands but inept fingers— pied type— glaring errors— more demand and more equipment— slowly, a trained staff— and then, at last, the paper came out on time. Few people, if any, will ever know by what slender thread their Forum was sometimes lifted up out of the pressroom and placed in the postoffice.

The institution is built. There are over one hundred and fifty stockholders and a board of directors with their own ideas of how a newspaper should be operated. After four years— it seems an eternity. To such a degree has it been necessary to concentrate— the work of the builder is completed and I say goodbye to my friends and fellow workers, they have been true faithful and loyal. I shall cheerish them always. Where to?— Oh, down the road— Goodbye, Good Luck, God Bless You.

Mercury Climbs Over 100 Degrees Here

The sweltering heat of the past four or five days, with temperature reading of over 100 degrees on Tuesday and Wednesday, has caused considerable damage to grain crops. Early this morning a small rain shower visited this immediate section and did much to freshen up gardens and lawns. More rainfall is badly needed. Hot spots in Minnesota Wednesday were Hibbing, 105; Crookston, 104; Argyle, 103; and Detroit Lakes 101.

Parts of North Dakota, Montana and Canada reported rainfall on Wednesday. Grenora, N D., reported a .05 inch precipitation.

The death toll in Minnesota attributed to the excessive heat is given at eight persons.

"Old Timers" to Try and Get Back in Form

Local baseball fans will be provided with something new in base ball entertainment Friday evening, July 10, when the local league team takes on a team of "Old Timers" recruited from the ranks of local men who are former baseball players. The game is scheduled to be played at the fair grounds. It will commence at 6:15 p. m., and admission prices will be the same as for a regular league game.

The league team will furnish the Old Timers with a battery, which will consist of Orvalla and Lee Local men who have already signed up to participate in the game are Frank Tunberg, Al Holzknecht, Bill Dahlquist, Oscar Paulson, Herman Kjos, Leonard Hanson, Joe LaBoe, and Ward Long. Others interested in entering are requested to report to Frank Tunberg.

STREETS BEING OILED

Several city avenues and side streets are being treated to a bituminous oil treatment this week. This work will be a great and much needed improvement when finished.

MUNICIPAL BAND CONCERT TONIGHT

The municipal band, under the direction of E. L. Egermayer, conductor, will present a concert at eight o'clock this evening, on the corner of Second Street and Main Avenue, directly across the street north of the city auditorium.

The program will include the following selections: a march, "The Billboard", by J. Klohr; a medley selection of the best-loved Southern Melodies, arranged by Hayes; a march, "The Crimson Flush", by R. Alexander; a serenade, "A Night In June," by K. King; a march, "On the Square", by F Panella; "Humoresque", by Anton Dvorak. The selection "Humoresque" will have a special brass arrangement by E. L. Egermayer, with "Swannee River" as a counter melody. Other numbers on the program include a comic selection and two marches, "The Goldman Band", by K. L. King, and the "Gallant Zouaves", by King Karl.

MEETING CALLED

The Farmers Union are to hold a meeting at the Otto Rehm farm, Monday evening, July 13. All members should try and attend.

Drouth Causes the Grains To Rise

Prices of all grains have responded to the excessive heat and drouth news in this country and Canada, and have risen rapidly during the past ten days. On several days wheat, barley and rye have advanced as much as 5 cents in a day and flax 10 cents. Oats also has had a good-sized advance. Prices today for all grains are much higher than a year ago and should the present drouth continue there is no telling of how far they will advance. Reported rains in the Canadian wheat belt caused a moderate setback of prices on Tuesday. Crop reports all point to a decreased yield from last year

FARM BUREAU MEMBERSHIP AT HIGHEST POINT

Numerical Strength of Minnesota Organization Now Exceeds 60,000 Members

With the Minnesota Farm Bureau membership at the highest point it has ever held at midyear, 20,008 paid-up farm families, the membership campaign continues with the goal of at least a 20 percent sign-up in sight in a majority of counties. Lake of the Woods county, on the Canadian border, holds the highest percentage record, with more than 40 per cent signed up. Faribault county, on the Iowa line, has the largest numerical strength, with 974, or one out of 3 farm families signed

Other counties that have passed the 600 mark are Martin, with 813, or one in three; Blue Earth, 652, or one in five; Freeborn, 641, or one in five; Meeker, 624, or 30 per cent, and Cottonwood, same enrollment and 35 percent.

Counties of lesser farm population, but with high percentage figures, include the following group that have signed at least one in four farm families: Brown, Waseca, Nicollet, Houston, and Scott, the latter with a one-in-three record.

Counties in which every fourth farm family is a member of the county, state and national Farm Bureau include, in addition to the above, West Polk, Marnomen, Koochiching, Crow Wing, Stevens, Rock, Jackson, Steele, Winona and Dodge.

LOCAL CREAMERY SHOWS INCREASE IN PRODUCTION

Net Production In Past Six Months Over 100,000 Pounds More Than Last Year

The local Farmers Co-op creamery showed in their report a production that has been unparalelled in their past history and a cut in the cost of production that reflects on the efficient management of the organization.

For the six months ending July the 1st in 1935 the Creamery produced 227,189 pounds of butter fat at a cost of 3 8 cents per pound while in the same period of time in the year of 1936 they produced 348,454 pounds of butter fat at a cost of 2.6 cents per pound, showing an increase of 121,265 pounds over the preceeding period of time and a reduction of 1.2 cents per pound. In the month of June the creamery produced 87,068 pounds of butter fat.

DIAMONDBALL CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY TIGERS

House of David and the Gophers Are Tied in Senior Girls League

The Tigers, a diamond ball team consisting of fifth and sixth grade girls from the Northrop school who have been leading the Junior Girls' Diamond ball League in the number of games won, were declared League Champions and were awarded the prize, which was given by the Oen Mercantile Company. The Junior Girls' Diamond ball League was composed of fifth and sixth grade girls from all the schools League games have been in progress since the first of June.

In the Senior Girls' League, the House of David team, captained by Dagne Tungseth, and the Gophers, under the leadership of Marguerite Simonson, are tied for first place. The two teams will play a series of three games beginning July 13th to decide the championship.

MORE POLITICAL BUNK

Under this heading the Mille Lacs County Times, edited by State Senator Fay Cravens, last week published an editorial that deals with malicious misrepresentation of facts aimed to enhance the chances of a republican plunderbound victory at the polls next fall. Senator Cravens, who has served a number of sessions in the legislature, has been one of the outstanding progressives in the state's law making body and one who has consistently fought the reactionary element. Editor Cravens nails the vicious misrepresentations as follows:

"The St. Paul Dispatch has joined the chorus of Republican papers that are trying to make the people believe that Governor Olson is responsible for the tax spending in the state of Minnesota. The Dispatch, with the plain intent of deceiving its readers, for the editor of that paper knows better, said as follows in a recent editorial

" 'In 1930 the state tax levy in Minnesota was 5.7 mills; in 1935 it is 13.57 mills. The state debt on December 21, 1930 was 88 million dollars; now it is 129 million dollars. When Governor Olson took office he inherited a cash balance from Theodore Christianson's administration of $3,500,000. Today there is a gross deficit of 15 million dollars, an estimated net deficit of not less than eight million dollars, making liberal allowance for future collections of delinquent taxes, highway revenues and liquor licenses.'

"Of course the statement of the Dispatch that Gov. Olson "inherited a cash balance from Theodore Christianson's administration of $3,500,000" is sheer nonsense. No governor does or ever can inherit any funds of the state from any predecessor in that office, under the state constitution. Not one dollar of state funds can be inherited or appropriated by a governor of the state. The writers of the state constitution were wise enough to put safeguards around the spending of the state tax money and so they put a section into the constitution prohibiting any expenditure of the tax money of the state except by an act of law by the state legislature appropriating such money. The governor cannot touch one cent of it until the legislature says he may do so. He cannot even draw his own salary until the legislature appropriates the money by formal act made into law passed by both houses.

"For instance at the last regular session the legislature failed to appropriate any money to arrange for the continuance of the state drivers' license bureau by which they could collect fees again to maintain the bureau, and that state institution had practically ceased to function except in a minor degree on funds left on hand. Safety organizations know the importance of having a drivers' license bureau and in this state they tried every means to have the legislature provide for its maintenance. The Republican bosses in the legislature refused to consider it however, and there is nothing that even the governor could do about it.

"The governor of the state of Minnesota, no matter whom he may be, has no power to spend tax money, or to incur debts for the state, unless the legislature by special act of law should happen to grant him that power. Gov. Olson was never granted such power during his period in the governor's chair. In fact the Republican majority group worked the other way and stripped him of every usual prerogative of a governor where they could find means for doing it. And all of the expenditures of the taxpayers money that comes into the state treasury are made only by acts of the legislature providing the necessary appropriations. And all bills of the bills for appropriations. And all of the bills for appropriations have had to meet the approval of the Republican controlled committees of the House and Senate before they could even be considered on the floor of each body.

"It must be that a newspaper that will lower itself to the extent of misrepresenting facts to its readers has a very poor opinion of its readers if they believe they will swallow such apparent bunk. The founders of Minnesota were too wise to not provide safeguards over the expenditure of funds by providing how it must be done in the state constitution, and so they left it to no one person, but placed it in the hands of the state legislature.

"Martin Nelson, Republican candidate for governor, in his speech at the picnic in Milaca on Community Day, tried to give the impression that it was the Farmer-Labor party that controlled the spending of state tax money, and he expressed a lot of sympathy for the oppressed taxpayer who had come under the oppression of this party of the common people. But he didn't fool many of our readers as they are kept informed of the facts through the Times, and they have noticed that nobody has been crude enough to dispute our editorial statements on this subject. The slightest consideration of the subject will show that it is ridiculous for anybody to blame the governor of the state for reckless spending of the tax money when a hostile majority in the state legislature is there in control of the situation."

HOOVER—COOLIDGE—DUPONT CONTRIBUTE TO SOCIALISTS

CHICAGO—A Hoover, Coolidge, and a DuPont are among the first to make contributions to the 1936 Socialist Campaign Fund Drive, according to an announcement made from the national campaign headquarters at 549 W. Randolph St., Chicago.

THE MEANING OF LIBERTY

"The world has never had a good definition of the word 'liberty,' and the American people just now are much in want of one. We all declare for liberty; but in using the same word, we do not all mean the same thing. With some, the word 'liberty' may mean for each man to do as he pleases with himself and the product of his labor; while with others the same word may mean for some men to do as they please with other men and the product of other mens labor. Here are two, not only different, but incompatible things, called by the same name,—liberty. And it follows that each of the things is, by the respective parties, called by two different and incompatible names,—liberty and tyranny.

"The shepherd drives the wolf from the sheep's throat, for which the sheep thanks the shepherd as his liberator, while the wolf denounces him for the same act as the destroyer of liberty, especially as the sheep was a black one. Plainly, the wolf and the sheep are not agreed upon the definition of the word 'liberty'; and precisely the same difference prevails today, among us human creatures, even in the North, and all professing to love liberty."

The above words might have been written yesterday, but they were not. They were spoken by Abraham Lincoln at a fair in Baltimore on April 18, 1864. He was answering those who contended that the abolition of chattel slavery would destroy liberty.

Today the problem is not chattel slavery but wage slavery. Both Republicans and Democrats contend that the abolition of wage slavery would destroy liberty. Let's get the meaning straight.

When capitalists and capitalist politicians speak of liberty they mean liberty "for some men to do as they please with other men and the product of other men's labor." They mean the right of capitalists to exploit labor.

LEMKE ALLIES HIMSELF TO PRO-FASCIST GROUP

CHICAGO—Rep. William Lemke, Union party candidate for President, has definitely tied his organization to the openly fascist "Third Party" outfit of Newton Jenkins in Illinois.

On a stop-over in Chicago, Lemke conferred with Newton Jenkins, and announced that there would be "perfect cooperation" between the Union party and Jenkin's "Third Party." Jenkins, a discredited and unsuccessful candidate for office on the Republican ticket, has organized his own political instrument which he calls the "Third Party". He has established contact with the Chicago Nazi organization, has appeared on platforms with uniformed Nazis at the official meetings, is openly anti-semitic, and has announced as part of his policy the formation of highly militarized storm troops to defend and protect the interests of his party. The Jenkin's party is also anti-labor, Jenkins having prescribed hanging to a lamp-post as the cure for all "agitators'.

Illinois Socialists announced that John Fisher, their candidate for governor, and George A. Nelson, farm leader and Socialist candidate for Vice President, will tour the state calling these facts to the attention of the voters, especially in the farm areas, where Edward E. Kennedy, secretary of the Farmers Union of Illinois, has sought to swing the Farmers' Union behind Lemke.

SOCIALIST MAYOR DECLINES CALL OF COMPANY UNIONS

READING, Pa—The determination of the Socialists that organized labor must be recognized and dealt with as an important civic unit was demonstrated last week when Mayor J. Henry Stump and Councilmen Charles F. Sands, Howard McDonough and Stewart Tomlinson declined to accept an invitation to participate in a so-called "community gathering" to consider ways and means of making Reading more attractive to industry.

The call for the meeting was issued by the hosiery company unions which have been organized with the consent and patronage of anti-union hosiery interests. The bona-fide organization of the American Hosiery Workers was not invited to send representatives.

Instead of accepting the invitation of the company unions, the Socialists sent the following communication: "Since receiving your invitation we have received information that a large section of the hosiery workers have not been invited. We feel that in order to discuss questions of interest to the hosiery industry it is essential that all groups connected with the industry be represented. In view of this fact we are compelled to decline your invitation and suggest that a genuine community meeting be arranged which will include all groups concerned."

BUY AT HOME

Civic organizations, wage earners, and, in fact, most taxpayers, think that home buying has become supreme and an obligation to perfect a complete and rapid recovery. Business is now "ready to go" and farm prices are up, with predictions made that the shortage of livestock and manufactured commodities will lift them sharply over the next six months. There seems a general shortage of all food stuffs, experts say.

Your local newspapers present many bargains for those who are careful in making their purchases. Businessmen however, must exercise the greatest care in their advertising, and it might be well to consult prices advertised "At Home" before going elsewhere to buy.

Ballyhoo has had a retarding effect on the recovery movement, but indications are that the "Thinking Buyers" finally have moved into a position where they are able to forecast a definite improvement in the home trade throughout the state for 1935.

The government is determined to aid the small community as well as the large. Wage earners will profit with increased employment. Already wages and commodity prices are high enough so that each may make a profit. With that thought in mind—let's not forget to spend our dollars wisely "At Home" and do our part in this program to hasten the return of normal times.

If Morgan, Rockefeller and Mellon could get a prescriptive right to the air and water, they would take it and the supreme court would sustain them five to four.—Upton Sinclair.

THE WAR DEBTS

It began back in war-time days, and continued until well along into the Harding-Coolidge administration of the 1920's.

And very little was heard of it at the time—which is strange. For it involved a huge sum of money, which, in a veritable torrent, was flowing out of the U. S. treasury. . 14 billion dollars, in round numbers.

It was there that our national debt had its real beginning, and not, as administration critics would have us believe, the sums spent the last half dozen years for relief.

But no one then rose to warn us against the danger of thus dissipating the country's wealth.

The Borahs, Vandenbergs' Dickinsons, Shouses, Hearsts, Landons and Knoxes were, presumably, as talkative and glibly persuasive as now; and several of them were, even then, prominent in public life. But not one voice was raised to scare us common people that it was we who would, eventually, have to foot the bill.

What we are talking about is, of course, the loans made to our late allies during and after the war.

Just why there should be all this hue and cry today about government extravagance and an unbalanced budget, when the expenditure of a much larger sum, 15 or 20 years ago, brought no protest, is hard to understand.

It certainly wasn't that the Nation's life was at stake in the war with Germany; for, in a large measure, these loans were granted after the war was over.

Nor were we facing any other crisis which justified the lavish generosity our government was showing.

No . . . it was neither of these things. . .

That which made it as proper to shovel out the money in large gobs then, as it is improper to do it now, was something quite different.

The reader will be surprised to learn that it was solely and entirely a matter of trousers.

Picture, if you will, the French ambassador in correct morning attire—striped trousers, cutaway coat, spats, cane and all—come strolling, of a fine summer forenoon, into the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. . .

. . Presently to emerge with an expression on his face somewhat like that of the cat who has been in the cream pitcher. If he looked pleased, it wasn't strange; for he had just talked our generous Secretary out of some few odd millions in the shape of a loan.

Your commentator admits that as to the following, he may be drawing on his imagination; but it is suspected that as the ambassador passed out through the front gate, he marked, surreptitiously, on the gatepost, with a handy bit of charcoal, the symbol well known to all hobo-dom, indicating that here was a place where generous handouts were to be had for the asking, with no wood-sawing required in return and no bulldogs about. . .

Or it may have been that his fellow bums were hidden behind the hedge and that all he had to do was to flash them a brief, covert signal. . .

It was probably the latter; for there was, immediately, such a rush of silk-hatted gentlemen in striped trousers (the ambassadors of all the rest of our allies, it will be understood) that the French ambassador himself wasn't able to scurry back for more than an additional dozen hand-outs before the larder was well nigh empty

By that time, the grand total had reached 14 billions, about.

At first thought, one may feel inclined to blame the Secretary of the Treasury . . . which would be unjust. For it is a recognized phenomenon that even the sternest sales resistance crumbles before striped trousers.

Where the applicants are garbed in overalls and work shirts, as most relief clients are, yes! Anything granted these should be deplored, precisely as the Republican gentlemen are now, by indirection, doing.

But turn down one who wears a cutaway coat and striped pants?

Never!

It just isn't done!

And now, after this analysis, one sees suddenly how our vexing debt of 34 billions may be dealt with, easily and painlessly.

The method is simple! . . .

Merely dress each relief client in cutaway coat and striped trousers. If desired, add a silk 'topper', spats, cane, and a geranium in the buttonhole. And if one wishes to go the whole hog, include a monocle and a Van Dyke beard.

The critical Republican and Liberty League gentlemen will then immediately become calm; for to them, all relief clients will then look so much like ambassadors that they will be as apt as not to believe that they are merely giving a few billions to chiseling foreign nations.

Thus, the threat to our national future, which we hear so much about, will of itself disappear, and all will be quite well

LET BOTH LIVE!

Asked about the so-called "chain store problem", an Oregon editor recently replied:

"The chain store is of tremendous benefit to all who must consider price closely, who will carry rather than pay for delivery, and will pay cash rather than pay for credit.

"The individual store is better for people who want variety, delivery and credit.

'Let both live!'

It would be hard to find a sounder, more rational attitude than that. Attempts to outlaw or penalize the chain because it lowers prices are as dangerous and as unsound as would be attempts to out law the independent store because it offers services the chains can't offer. The old cry that the chain is driving the independent to the wall has absolutely no foundation in fact. Case after case is on record where independents have not only prospered in the face of chain competition, but have actually driven chains out of business—because the independents offered better and wider service. When an independent store fails, and blames it on chain competition, the real answer usually is that the independent was incompetently and wastefully run and so couldn't hope to survive under any sort of competition, chain or otherwise.

The chain stores provide a valuable service, particularly to persons of small means. Independent stores serve an equally valuable purpose, and are patronized by a large proportion of citizens. Both are established—both are essential to a sound merchandising setup. Yes—let both live!

The farmers who band together into cooperative selling groups never get through learning. Continuous education in questions relating to farming is one of the most important activities of the cooperative movement.

Central organization for the dissemination of information and opinion is the American Institute of Cooperation, which meets each year and is attended by several thousand representatives of the 2,500,000 farmers now enrolled in co-ops.

Regional institutes of cooperation have been established in New England, the south, the middle west and elsewhere, and keep intimate contact with farmers

The result of these eminently worthwhile activities is found in the steady progress farmers are making in adjusting supply and demand, improving farming methods, cutting the cost of production, and earning a better return on their work and investment.

The League Struggles Desperately

Recent dispatches show that the League of Nations is calling on the USA to bolster its ebbing strength. With the virtual withdrawal of England from the League, the power behind the covenant is growing feebler. Italy takes Ethiopia, Japan takes part of China, and Germany rearms, without much opposition from League members.

France and Russia are now perhaps the most influential members of the League, and this is no accident. They both know that the welfare of their people depends on peace, and that the League is the only existing agency to prevent war. They are both against fascism, and against the expansion of Hitler's Germany in particular, for such expansion menaces both of them.

Because it is the helpless pawn of rival powers and can do nothing in an actual crisis, the League is regarded as a laughing-stock. France and Russia are not blind to this state of affairs, yet they will use all available means to stave off another war as long as possible.

Imperialism Must Expand

The key to the present situation in Europe is found in the maxim that it is necessary for capitalism to expand in order to keep going. That such expansion weakens the structure of the country concerned and hastens its downfall, is beside the point. World imperialism has reached the point where it must choose between two exits—a slow, rotting decline or a violent fascistic end. Beyond the finish line the Great Boogyman—Socialism—waits patiently, guarding both exits.

Very few imperialistic countries prefer stagnation to expansion. It is true that some of our "relatively unimportant countries," to use the phrase of one bright student of current events, like Denmark, Holland and Portugal, have long ago passed their period of expansion, and are now in a period of stagnation; the same bright student suggests that their immense colonial possessions be divided among those larger countries who discover at this stage that they were left out when the cake was passed around—Japan, Italy and Germany, for example. Certainly one cannot favor the colonial system of exploitation at all, but if there must be a choice, it is difficult to see what advantage there would be for colonists to be transferred to a fascistic exploiter I'm inclined to think such a change would be for the worse.

England's Dilemma

In recent League actions to curb the colony-grabbing activities of Italy, England was placed in a tough spot. Possessing a vast colonial empire itself, it was forced to go into action to prevent a brother member of the League from attaining a like empire, on a much smaller scale. More than this, British politicians found themselves leaders in a campaign which, if successful, meant the collapse of Italy and the probable success of socialism in that country. The problem was this: How to apply economic sanctions sufficiently to discourage Italy's expansion and at the same time guard against her collapse. It soon became evident that the old maxim still held good—Italy must expand to keep going. Consequently, during the actual storming of Ethiopia, not too much pressure was brought to bear, and now the British statesmen want sanctions withdrawn.

England's possessions — "on which the sun never sets"— have long been regarded with envy by other countries. She has been the model, the acme of imperialist development. Therefore, England's efforts to have sanctions against Italy revoked, and England's striving to maintain diplomatic relations with Hitler in the face of his formidable armament program and his professed desire to subdue eastern and southeastern Europe, come naturally.

Of course, the English people themselves have very little to say about such things. The time may come, however, when they are able to form a strong united front such as has been done in Spain and in France, and then there may be a vastly different story to recount.

GERTRUDE HANSON WEDS ORVILLE CHRISTIANSON

Miss Gertrude Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hanson of Hickory, became the bride of Orville Melvin Christianson, son of Mrs. Olive Christianson of Erie, at a pretty ceremony performed by Reverend Sigurd Fladmark at the Nazareth church on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

The bridal procession proceeded up the aisle to the altar to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Christine Nelson. The vows were spoken before an altar of green and white, banked with ferns and wild roses. After the ceremony, Miss Elizabeth Dahl and Joseph A. Dahl of Trail sang, "Crowned with Thy Benediction".

The bride was attired in a floor length gown of white organza, over which was worn a long veil caught with sprays of lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, white sweet peas and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister, Miss Sanna Hanson, who wore a pale green organza dress, and Miss Alice Christianson, sister of the groom, who wore a dress of pink organdy. The groom was attended by his brother, Merritt Christianson, and by the bride's brother, Harry Hanson.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. One hundred guests were present. The bride and groom left Thursday evening on a wedding trip to McIntosh, Lake Park and Amenia, North Dakota. When they return they will be at home at the Olive Christianson farm near Erie.

The bride was graduated from the Lincoln high school, and Mayville State Teacher College. Since that time, she has taught in schools in North Dakota and Minnesota.

PAGEANT AT ITASCA PARK IS HISTORICAL

Pageant Exercises Sun.; Norway Boy Scouts Are Guests

Packed with drama—strange, potent and fantastic—the second Minnesota Historical pageant will be shown next Sunday, July 12, at Itasca State Park before an anticipated audience of 2,500 with 28 Boy Scouts from Oslo, Norway, as guests of honor.

Early Indian rituals, rich with the lore of spirits and the magic of the medicine man, will enthrall the boys from the land of the Vikings who have heretofore known about redskins only through their history books. Norway's part in the settlement and development of Minnesota will be aptly illustrated in five dramatic episodes tracing the early history of the North Star state.

According to H. Z. Mitchell, publisher of the Bemidji Pioneer, and pageant publicity director, the boys from Oslo will get "a history lesson in capsule form" when they witness the pageant cast in scenes relating to the coming of the Jesuit and Franciscan fathers to the Lake Superior region, Father Hennepins's journey, and encounters with the Sioux. Early mission days near Lac qui Parle, the Fond du Lac post, the romantic and famous Boutwell-Crooks wedding, the scene at Leech Lake where Reverend Boutwell saved Nicollet from a band of marauding Indians —all will be enacted in detail faithful to history for the boys who have traveled 4,500 miles from the Land of the Midnight Sun, to the Land of 10,000 Lakes.

Minnesotans generally should attend at least one presentation of this great historical pageant every season, as a great deal of hard work and research is put forth in making these showings possible.'

4-H Club Members to Select Representatives

Pennington County 4H club members who will represent the county in the sub-district 4H contest to be held at Crookston on August 11, and at the state fair in September, will soon be selected.

Capitol News Review

By A. I. Harris

Governor Olson, in addressing the Swedish Mid-Summer celebration held at Minnehaha park, Minneapolis, was not afraid to say that the people of Sweden have done a better economic job than have the people of the United States and that the living standard of the masses, [illegible] resources of the country, is higher than in this country......

To say a thing like this, even though it may be the truth, is nothing short of sacrilege to the so-called 100 per cent patrioteer. Failure on our part, however, to recognize these facts is one of the barriers to social and economic progress......

Here is something from the Governor's speech which is food for thought: "We may call what they have done in Sweden socialism, or co-operation, or anything else, but they are not so doctrinaire about it. They merely go about solving public problems in the most practicable and thorough way, and as long as it does the job effectively and benefits the people, they care very little what name or ism you apply to it."

Harry Hopkins, National WPA Director, in his interview with the press in St. Paul declared that the government owes an obligation to the farmers to aid them in their present distress, as it owed an obligation to all citizens to aid them in time of need. "We are not giving them a gift," he said, "nor are we doing anything for the people that is outside the sphere of ordinary governmental activity. The people are entitled to the aid of the government, as the government is entitled to the aid of the people."......

He added that the Federal government was ready to take all steps needed not only to furnish work to people in the drouth-stricken districts, but to aid in the feeding and marketing of livestock, to furnish direct relief to those unable to work, and to rehabilitate families within this territory......

One of the most encouraging features of Mr. Hopkins' plan is that the work projects are to be of permanent benefit to the communities effected......

We might contrast this policy with the philosophy of Hooverism and the public pronouncements of Landon and Knox that local communities should take care of their own needy

Teachers throughout the state are complaining that school boards in many counties are refusing to renew contracts of teachers who have joined unions within the last year or are suspected of union activity. Such action is particularly un-American and in striking contrast to the cooperation existing between school boards and teachers in days past.

The farmer got only 36 cents out of the consumer's meat dollar in 1934 as compared to 58 cents in 1926, according to an investigation made by Farm Research, Inc......

There has been a general drop in the farmers income all along the line. What holds true in the case of meats is substantially true of vegetables and other agricultural products......

The greatest loss sustained by the farmer on meat products was in the case of mutton and lamb. In 1934 the farmers got 34 cents out of each consumer's dollar while in 1926 he received 65 cents. This represents a decline of nearly 50 per cent......

The farmer is still on the toboggan downward notwithstanding the efforts made by the Roosevelt administration to bolster up the agricultural industry.

Development of alternate routes to relieve congested trunk highways of some of the traffic is one of the things gradually being accomplished by Highway Commissioner N. W. Elsberg......

As an example, the narrow and dangerous pavement between Minneapolis, Elk River and St. Cloud will soon be supplemented by an excellent route up the west side of the Mississippi river. Only the stretch between Champlain and Dayton now remains to be finished before this "safety valve" can be turned over to the public. By going a short distance farther west motorists can now escape the Elk River-Minneapolis congestion and still have a castless drive by following Trunk Highways 101 and 152. Similar alternate route plans for other congested trunks are being developed but it is a process which requires time to complete.

Among the speakers addressing the national convention of the Farmer's Holiday Association was Attorney General Harry H. Peterson Mr. Peterson, in a brief address, summed up some of the outstanding legislative achievements of the Farmer-Labor party, particularly the mortgage moratorium and tax legislation. He vigorously attacked the United States supreme court for its hostility toward farm relief measures, and discrimination in favor of big business.

A wildlife conference called by Commissioner of Conservation E. V. Willard met at Cloquet last week to discuss a closer coordination between the several agencies engaged in wildlife research in Minnesota......

Speakers at the conference included Herman T. Olson, Superior Capitol News Review—Gal. 2 National Forest; Frank Blair, of the division of game and fish; Gordon Fredine, ECW biologist; H. E. Statler, warden supervisor at Duluth; Dr. Ralph T. King, of the University of Minnesota; Allen Laidlaw, of the Federal Soil Conservation service; Dr. R. Fenstermacher of the University of Minnesota; Dr. Samuel Eddy, of the University of Minnesota; and Dr. Thaddeus Surber, superintendent of fish propagation......

Mr. Willard said that the conference was one of the most successful he has attended and should result in a more advanced wildlife research program in Minnesota.

—o—

"It would not be proper for a relief board to adopt a sweeping regulation declaring that every veteran who receives payment upon his adjusted service certificate should be stricken from the relief rolls"......

This was the ruling made the past week by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson relative to the policy adopted by certain local welfare boards in removing World War veterans from relief rolls by virtue of receiving their bonus. This ruling of the Attorney General makes it possible for war veterans to receive and utilize their bonus money in the spirit the government intended.

—o—

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court invalidating New York's minimum wage law for adult women workers will not in any way affect the administration of Minnesota's minimum wage law as enforced by the Division of Women and Children, State Industrial Commission, since this court decision did not apply to minors. Minors in Minnesota have had the protection of minimum wage laws for so many years that a return to a condition of unregulated competition and exploitation would be a distinct loss to both minors and adult workers. The Industrial Commission is, therefore continuing its policy and practice of correcting minimum wage discrepancies by requiring employers to pay in full the total amount of unpaid minimum wages due a minor.

MIDDLE RIVER

The Historic Society will hold a picnic at Thief Lake next Sunday. The association is county wide and a comprehensive program is being prepared. The program committee for this eastern part of the county is Arvid Carlson, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Carr. Bring your picnic dinner and come prepared to spend the day.

Jacob Ides, of Fertile, the second victim of last weeks auto tragedy, died in the Greenbush hospital Sunday at 3 p. m. He was 81 years old. His wife who is still in the hospital is 85 Both she and Mrs. Cady are expected to survive.

Arvid Carlson returned Sunday from the lake at Bemidji, leaving his family there for a six weeks visit.

D. M. Johnson and family returned Sunday from a weeks outing at Cloquet and Duluth. They spent the greater part of the week at the home of Mr. Johnson's parents at a lake at Cloquet.

Notwithstanding the disheartening reports of drouth stricken crops in the Dakotas and elsewhere we hear optimistic reports from many farmers tributary to Middle River, altho there is some apprehension of a short growth of hay.

Harold Gullikson (formerly known as Taft) arrived here Friday for a month's visit with his parents. He is a naval cadet stationed at Long Beach, Calif., where he has been for the past three years.

Mr and Mrs Emil Peterson and daughters Blanche and Effie drove from here to Alexandria last Thursday and after a short visit there continued on to the cities, from where they are expected home on Tuesday.

E. M. Evans drove to Minnewaukon, N. D., Sunday evening and on Monday brought back his family who had been visiting there for about two weeks with Mrs. Evan's mother.

Gus Peterson and his two daughters have set up housekeeping for themselves in the upper story of the Jens Offerdahl building.

Bennie Hanson and family celebrated the Fourth at Red Lake Falls and Crookston and incidently visiting Mr. Hanson's parents at the latter place.

Mrs. C. A. Berg returned Monday from Duluth. Mrs. Victor Berg was released frotm the Thief River Falls hospital Tuesday.

Miss Veda Risberg, who has a regular job near Roseau on a farm was at home with her mother over the Fourth.

A large crowd thronged the grounds at Gatzke on the Fourth of July. E. M. Evans and H. O. Chommie, the scheduled speakers of the day gave short pointed talks touching the vital problems of the present day. Ray Molholland was chairman of the meeting which he opened with an introductory speech of considerable force and interest.

The program was greatly enlivened by the music of the Holt band. Preceding the platform program there was a sports program of foot and horse races and a tug of war. The three Olson brothers, acrobatic clowns with their trick pony furnished a lot of amusements during the forenoon. Refreshments were served by the Moose River Ladies Aid. Dancing was engaged in until the early morning.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

NOT SO SERIOUS

"And it is estimated," concluded the scientist, "that at the present rate the heat of the sun will be exhausted in approximately 70,000,000 years, at the end of which time this planet will be a cold, barren ball of rock, and all life will be extinct."

A small, worried-looking man at the back of the hall rose to his feet.

"How long did you say it would be before this terrible calamity occurs?" he inquired.

"About 70,000,000 years," replied the lecturer.

"Thank heaven!" said the worried one, resuming his seat. "I thought you said 7,000,000!"

That Was Why

The examiners were checking up the students' papers.

"Can't let this youth pass," said one, handing his colleague a paper. "He can't spell properly."

"What's he done wrong?" asked the other.

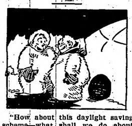
"He spells 'proceed' with only one 'e,'" said the first.

"Where's he come from?" his colleague asked.

"Ceylon," came the reply.

"H'm," smiled the second, "that accounts for the spelling. He comes from the land of the Cingalese."—Answers Magazine.

IN ANTARCTICA



"How about this daylight saving scheme—what shall we do about it?"

"Set the clock ahead about a fortnight."

Cold Storage

A man saw a message and an address on an egg he got for breakfast. The message said:

"This egg was packed by a girl thousands of miles from the United States. She is supposed to be the prettiest girl in this neighborhood, and is prepared to marry the man who eats this egg."

The man cabled her: "I'll marry you"

The girl's reply read: "I am flattered by your proposal, but I am now married and have three children."

Boyhood Recollection

"Would you not like to be a barefoot boy again down on the farm?" said the romantic lady.

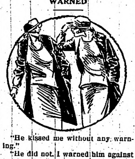
"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "It sounds peaceful enough, but in this life you can never escape some kind of hostilities. Even when I was trudging over the meadow to call the cattle, some big bull would frequently stop me and try to give me an argument."

Accommodating Thief

Friend—You say that thief was very accommodating?

Merchant—Yes; he took all the money out of the cash register and rang up No Sale.—Chelsea Record.

WARNED



"He kissed me without any warning."

"He did not. I warned him against it often."

Speed Argument

Cop—Say, do you realize you were going 65 miles an hour?

Sweet Young Thing—Sixty-five! Don't be silly! I couldn't have been going over 30 at the most. In fact, I don't believe I was going more than 25 at the outside.

Moving Pictures

"Putting the portraits of great men on our paper currency is a proper and deserved tribute."

"Yes," replied the impecunious person, "but who gets to hold on to a piece of paper money long enough to look at the picture?"

Let Our Motto Be

GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

MALARIA

The newspaper reports telling us of hundreds of thousands of cases of malaria in Sumatra have brought to our attention again the fact that malaria is still the greatest scourge of the warm, moist climates. Malaria is caused by the bite of a certain genus of mosquito the anopheles. This mosquito breeds in ponds, swamp puddles, and other collections of still water. It can fly from one to one-and-a-half miles from its breeding place, and it is active at night only. So persons in malarial districts, who live in unscreened houses, are quite right in saying that night air is bad air, and that they will get the "ague" if they go out after dark.

Anopheles mosquitoes hibernate when the temperature is below forty degrees; hence they cause little trouble in regions north of the south temperate zone. The tropics, subtrophics, and warm temperate zones are the malaria areas. Occasionally one hears of a malaria case breaking out in the North, but the patient then usually has been infected on a trip South.

All anopheles mosquitoes do not have malaria parasites, however.

Mosquitoes do not transmit malaria to each other. They simply serve as hosts. The infected mosquito gets infected by biting an infected person.

The malaria parasites incubate in its body for from twelve to fourteen days; then when the parasites are "ripe," if the mosquito bites a healthy person, that person at the end of 12 or 14 days is liable to develop malaria. The incubation period is the same in both hosts. If uninfected mosquitoes could not get access to malaria patients, there would be some hope of stamping out malaria. But unfortunately the problem is complicated by the fact that many persons who have apparently recovered from malaria, are still carriers of the disease, and a mosquito biting one of these carriers will become infected with malaria, just as if it had bitten a person clinically sick with the disease. These malaria carriers have chills only in the spring and fall; at other times they seem to develop a tolerance to the parasites.

Malaria is a very old disease. It is believed to have originated in Africa.

Malaria was brought to this country by infected African slaves, and its home has been the southern states; the belt reaches, however, into the river valleys of southern Illinois and Indiana. It has now become largely a rural problem, as the cities have managed to rid themselves of mosquito breeding places. The South still has about 250,000 cases annually, with half as many carriers.

It was the Englishman Ross who discovered in 1895 that malaria is transmitted by the anopheles mosquito. Only the female carries the infection. She needs blood to feed upon when developing her eggs. That is why she seeks man. And the malaria parasite also needs the blood of man to complete its life cycle. It can complete that in the blood of no other animal. So man is the only animal that can become infected with the malaria parasite. Cattle can develop a fever that is somewhat similar, called the Texas fever, but this is transmitted by a tick.

Malaria can be cured by liberal doses of quinine, which should be prescribed by a physician. Malaria carriers can also be cured, if they will put themselves into the hands of a competent doctor.

Death from malaria is not to be feared so much as the weakening effect it has on the resistance of the body.

Some recent investigations carried out in South Europe show that the malaria-carrying mosquito may by habit become accustomed to feeding upon live stock in the barn and thus lose its taste for human blood. The blood of the cow serves the mosquito as well as the blood of man for developing its eggs, and the cows can't get malaria from the mosquito. This would seem a rather happy arrangement for man, but in this country we shall continue to put more reliance upon sanitary engineering, and upon detecting the carriers and curing them of the infection.

The mosquito, as everyone knows, lays its eggs on water, and it is easier to kill it in the aquatic or water stage of its life's cycle, than when on the wing. Placing oil over the water will prevent laying and will destroy the eggs that are already laid.

Wants Information

The lady with the stern visage glared across the counter at the post office clerk, and said: "I sent away for a bottle of medicine and it has not arrived."

"In that case," said the clerk in soothing tones, "I must get you to fill in a form. What is the exact nature of your complaint?"

The lady looked taken aback. "I don't see what that has to do with it, but it is chronic indigestion, if you want to know."—Montreal Gazette.

Advice

A young man who wished to get married wrote to his father, asking his advice. He received the following reply:

"My dear son, your mother and I would like to see you happily married. She tells me to point out the many advantages—cozy fireside chair, slippers, pipe, etc., with your darling wife beside you. I am proud to know, my boy, that you have decided to settle down."

"P. S.—Your mother has just left the room. Keep single, you darned idiot!—Father."

Correct Definition

In the course of a general knowledge test, some small boys were asked: "If your mother is shopping and finds she has left her purse at home, she may ask the shopkeeper to send the parcel C. O. D. What do these initials mean?"

It was a very earnest boy, not yet old enough for frivolity, who answered: "Care of Daddy."

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

"Just dropped around to see Charlie," Tim said. "Anything you [illegible]ort?"

"Just one thing. Where were you the night of the murder?"

Mrs. Kelly laughed.

"You don't read the papers much, do you?"

"Why?"

"Because all about that was in The Herald Tribune the morning after the body was found."

"All about what?"

"All about my being up in Harlem at a dance."

"And what time did you get home?"

"Around daylight."

"Did you let yourself in?"

"Sure."

"And you didn't wonder where Mike was?"

"I thought he was asleep. We didn't room together. The lights was all out."

"No light in the front room?"

"No."

"Sure?"

"Dead sure. Anything else?"

"No, thanks. I didn't mean to keep you so long. But one thing led to another."

"That's all right," Mrs. Kelly assured him. "I got nothing to hide. Drop around any time you feel like it."

"No holes in that alibi," Tim said, as they reached the sidewalk. "Straight shooter, she is. Ran a saloon when Mike married her. You certainly got wound up. What was all that about the latch key?"

"Bright and shiny, wasn't it?"

"Brand new. She told you that. So did I, when we were looking at Kelly's key-wallet."

"Yes," Barry admitted. "But there wasn't any new key in that wallet."

Tim Laugherty stopped short in Fifth avenue.

"You're right," he said.

"I've got the number," Barry went on, producing his envelope. "A 66152. Write that down. A plain, round head. Two of 'em. Where's the other? It never was in that wallet, because every hook's filled."

"Maybe he carried it loose in his pocket."

"Wherever he carried the key, where is it?"

"I don't know," Tim answered. "It wasn't on the body—that's sure."

By now, it was time for his dinner appointment with Peggy.

Still in high spirits, he walked around to her boarding house. Barry remembered Southampton with shame when he saw the Ridders' two shabby rooms. The boy lay in one of them; a bright youngster, five years old. "The doctor doesn't seem to know what the matter is," Peggy declared.

"I know," Barry said. "I'd be sick in this dump. Why don't you bring him out to the country?"

Peggy shook her head.

"I want to be near Jack," she repeated.

"Winslow says he's likely to be free in a week."

Dining comfortably in a nearby cafe, he told her everything that had happened since their parting; all the astonishing events of that day. And, with the recital, Peggy's spirits rose, too. When Barry mentioned his new job, she actually laughed.

"That's funny," she said. "You're doing what the old man's real son wouldn't do."

"I've two reasons," Barry explained. "In the first place it puts me in a splendid position to help Jack. In the second—well, the fact is that I'm nuts about a girl, and I want to make good on her account."

"What's her name?"

Patricia Hambidge. She lives at Southampton, and she and her father both knew the Ridders. They think I'm young Ridder, of course."

The next morning, Barry dropped in again on Pete Winslow. The lawyer had talked with Peggy's husband, and was persuaded of his innocence. They've got a prima facie case, though," he admitted. "The grand jury'll indict the boy, I'm afraid. We'll get him tried as quickly as possible, and there isn't the slightest chance of his conviction."

"That was a shrewd question you asked that Filipino. Only I wish you'd asked it of me. He's prepared now. Never mind. When it comes to cross-examination—"

He rose, with the joy of battle in his eyes.

"But be careful about tipping our hand," he said. "Bring in Mrs. Rogers. I'd like to check up on her statement."

"Tomorrow?"

"Make it next week."

"He's a great lawyer," Ernie Harwood said, when Barry repeated as much of this conversation as it seemed wise to repeat. "And a wizard at cross-examination. I've seen him discredit one witness after another with mere monosyllables. Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day. It's nothing now. Just a phone call. But, if I ever find who it was—"

Barry devoted that evening to drafting a letter for the real Jack Ridder to copy and send to his mother. Something told him that whatever the boy wrote himself would be cold and resentful. That would make the old lady unhappy, and Barry didn't want her to be.

"I've got a job on father's paper," he wrote, with genuine pride. I've respected father's wish as to using his name—except at Southampton, of course. They had to know there. At The Globe, I'm on my own, and getting ahead. I'll be a credit to you yet, darling."

From that, he went into some detail as to his interest in the friend "locked up for murder he didn't commit," and the need of funds for his defense. Even to Jack Ridder, it was obvious that the letter had to be sent, so sent it was—in Jack Ridder's hand-writing—from the railway station post box at Southampton the following Friday. Barry arrived on an early afternoon train.

He had wired Evans to meet him, and found Willetts waiting in the front hall. There was no doubt now that the butler suspected something, and Barry, sure of what he suspected, faced him with a broad grin. "What's the matter with you, Willetts?"

"Matter, sir?"

"You've been acting queer ever since the night Mrs. Rogers spent here. I don't know what you heard that night?"

"Do you mean eavesdropping, sir?"

There was a pained surprise in the man's voice.

"Not me, sir. I've got my position to remember. I've been a butler with some of the best families."

"All right," Barry soothed him. "You think I'm back at the kind of behavior that alienated me from my father. Well, I'm not. That 'glittery lady' is the wife of a man I met in Florida . . ."

And, for the third time that week, Barry related his story.

"She's a brave little kid," he concluded, "and she's in trouble up to her neck. I'm going to stand by her. I've got a job on my father's newspaper — under an assumed name, because I want to win out on my own. I've cabled my mother for money, and everything I can get goes to that lady until her husband can win on his own. I'm going to be in town most of the time now, working my head off."

"Yes, sir."

"I've been a loafer most of my life—and this is the beginning of a new chapter."

"Thank you, sir," Willetts said. "I'm very pleased, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, very pleased."

There were three memos of telephone messages from Pat.

Looking at them, on the library table, Barry went on grinning. He called her immediately, and she asked where he'd been all week. When he told her, she seemed almost annoyed. "So you've deserted me for a chorus girl," she said.

Could Pat be jealous?

"How soon can you come over?" she inquired. "Marian's not here yet, and dinner'll be late, but I simply can't wait to hear your adventures in sleuthing."

As he dressed, Barry kept thinking of this conversation. Absurd that Patricia Hambidge could be worried by his attachment to the "glittering lady." "Willetts and Pat both oozing disapproval. Or do I merely imagine it?"

But Pat's disapproval, at least, was depressingly evident from the moment he saw her.

"Let's sit on the sun porch," Pat greeted him. "Father'll be down in a minute. Marian came over by ferry from New London. She's dressing. Fancy your being concerned with this Kelly murder. A true motion-picture hero. Go on; I want all the details."

And, as Barry related them, the girl's irritation began to show in her face. It wasn't fair, she said, to "drag poor old Peter into it." Just because they'd met in this house at dinner. Nor could she see why he wanted to go into his father's office under the name of Barry Gilbert. "Frankly, I'm disappointed in you," she concluded, and obviously meant it.

Before Barry could reply, the Judge appeared, looking tired and haggard. That changed the subject, and Patricia's voice, which had been a little strident, softened again. She was plainly disturbed about the old gentleman, and kept glancing at him anxiously. "Father's been ill all week," she said.

"You ought've called off this dinner."

"I wanted you to meet Marian. But I do hope she comes down soon. Father's got to get to bed early."

The Judge patted her hand.

"Nonsense!"

"The doctor warned you against late hours," Pat reminded him. "But you would go to that banquet last Friday."

"That wasn't late hours," the Judge argued. "We were all through before midnight."

"But then you went for a walk," Barry said.

He said it quite innocently, but he was startled at seeing Hambidge's hand close spasmodically over Patricia's.

"Who told you that?" the Judge asked.

"Mr. Winslow."

Hambidge relaxed again.

"So I did," he recollected "But only a couple of blocks."

"Near a couple of miles, wasn't it?"

Barry was still making conversation, but there was nothing casual in the Judge's "Why do you say that?"

The Judge raised his eyes to Barry's, almost defiantly.

"The taxi accident I saw was in Times square," he declared. "I don't know where you got the idea that it was at Sixteenth street. I certainly didn't say that to Peter."

"What does it matter?" Pat asked. "Here we are, gossiping, when I'm supposed to be preparing you for a reunion."

"A what?"

"A reunion. With an old friend. That's the reason Marion was so anxious that I should have you here. I didn't know myself until half an hour ago. Marian Lorn. Do you remember? She knew you at Harvard."

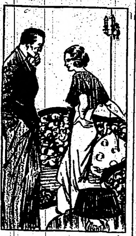
Well, it was bound to come, Barry thought.

"Are you surprised? Marian wanted you to be—terribly."

"I am—terribly."

This was the pay-off. What would Patricia say?

Patricia was saying. "Well, you must be delighted, too. Marian was going to surprise all of us, and then she lost her nerve. 'Wouldn't it be too catastrophic,' she said, 'if he didn't remember me?'"



"Well, It Was Bound to Come," Barry Thought.

Miss Lorn was on her way down the stairs.

Barry braced himself.

Marian raced down the steps, and halted, looking at him across the balustrade.

"Mr. Ridder?"

Now for it!

"Well," she continued, "the joke's on me. I should never have known you."

"I'd've known you anywhere."

"Of course, you had to say that. But didn't your hair used to be dark?"

"Sure; I hennaed it."

"No foolin'! I thought you were slighter, too. But, of course, there was only that one evening."

Thank God for that!

"Don't tell me we met only once?"

"Don't you remember?"

"It doesn't seem possible that I let you slip through my fingers."

"Come on," Patricia urged. "Everything's getting cold."

Not Barry. He was warming up, and actually enjoying himself. It was amazing how his luck held!

Millions of Acres In Northern Minn. To Revert To State

Several million acres of land are to revert to the state of Minnesota in July, because of nonpayment of taxes, according to the Federal Re-Settlement Administration. Much of this is property from which timber was stripped by the lumber companies and is now worth less than the taxes assessed against it. The research division of the land utilization section is to classify this property and take steps to guard against having worthless land sold for agricultural purposes.

There seems to be general agreements, according to officers of the state conservation commission, that isolated areas should be kept from settlement, in order to obviate the necessity of building new roads and schools. County boards in general are strongly of the opinion that the back areas at present unsettled should so remain and are giving their hearty co-operation to plans for classifying large areas as non-agricultural

This movement toward retirement of sub-marginal land is in line with the policies of the Farm Bureau.

The land that will revert to the state comprises about 5 1-2 million acres, most of it being in 27 Northern Minnesota counties. Much of this land has paid no taxes for years, so taxpayers in these areas would not be penalized if it were formally removed from the tax roll, state officials declare.

Regents To Visit State Farm Schools

The Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota are leaving Minneapolis today for a visiting tour of agricultural colleges and experiment stations in the northwest. They plan to visit at Morris, Crookston, Itasca Park, Grand Rapids, Duluth and Cloquet.

The trip will be strictly one of business and the university people have asked that receptions and social activities be omitted along the route so that all of the time of the party may be put in on its official duties. A brief board meeting will be held en route largely from three state funds: (1) Permanent school trust funds; (2) state one mill tax; (3) special state aid appropriations from the general revenue fund secured thru property taxation and from other sources.

Among those who will go are Regents Fred B. Snyder, W. J. Mayo, O. J. Hagen, George W. Lawson, Frank W. Murphy, A. J. Olson and Ray Quinlivan; President L. D. Coffman, Dean Walter C. Coffey of the Department of Agriculture and Frank W. Peck, director of agricultural extension and vice-director of experiment stations; Comptroller William T. Middlebrook, E. B Pierce, alumni secretary and T. E. Steward, director of news service. Others will probably join the party.

In addition to the above, the revenue from the state income tax is allocated to school districts for the purpose of alleviating, to a certain degree, the local school levy on general property.

1931	$54,131,880
1932	$50,077,893
1933	$43,981,968
1934	$40,460,000

Facts on Beef Imports Not Very Alarming

Beef imports under the reciprocal trade agreement with Canada are not likely to scare any farmer who has all the plain facts on the situation.

J. B. McNulty, agricultural extension economist, University Farm, points out that even if Canada and other countries go the limit in shipping cattle and calves to the United States at the reduced tariff rates provided in the trade agreement, they will not be permitted to send in more than one per cent if our average annual federally-inspected slaughter. The agreement sets a quota limit of three-fourths of one per cent on large cattle, and one-fourth per cent on calves. Moreover, the President can change the agreement whenever imports under the reduced rates appear to be hurting American producers.

Those who blame the reciprocal trade agreement for lower beef prices apparently overlook that imports of slaughter cattle have increased only about one-half of one per cent since January 1936, while domestic federal inspected slaughter has jumped from 10 to 20 per cent and slaughter of hogs has shown a similar gain. The resulting increase in domestic meat supply has overshadowed many times the supply of Canadian cattle shipped in.

McNulty says moreover that reciprocal trade agreements should be judged on their indirect effects on all agricultural producers as well as on their direct influence on individual groups of producers. Under the agreement, Canada has opened up her markets for some of our cured pork, eggs, fruit, rice and other farm products.

The more market outlets improve for such products, the less danger there is of the producers going into beef production in competition with present producers of beef. Still more important, Canada has opened her markets to many of our important industrial products, meaning more jobs for American city folks and in turn a better domestic market not only for beef, but for all other farm products.

Typhoid Is Only Sleeping Menace Doctors Declare

Tourists on Vacation Trips Urged To Demand Assurance of Safe Water

St. Paul, Minnesota—If typhoid fever prevailed in Minnesota today as it did 30 years ago, there would be thousands sick with the disease and close to a thousand deaths this summer alone.

Members of the Committee on Public Health Education of the Minnesota State Medical Association point to the fact that only four cases and no deaths were reported in May in Minnesota to show the magnitude of the conquest that modern sanitation and modern methods of disease prevention have won over what was the greatest of summer plagues up to very recent times.

The fact that typhoid is only a sleeping menace is shown by the fact that a real epidemic broke out only two years ago in a city that has been noted for years for its progressiveness in sanitation. The source of that epidemic was generally agreed to have been a lapse somewhere in the expert care that had always been bestowed on the water system of the city.

Any carelessness anywhere either on the part of the individual or the community, in the protection of milk, water or food supplies, finds typhoid fever, there, alive and waiting its turn.

Vacationists and campers are especially warned to boil the water they use if they are not absolutely assured of its safety. A consistent demand upon the part of tourists for safe water and safe milk will help to convince all municipalities and all others who profit by tourist trade of the advisability of proper sanitary safeguards.

Tourists who are going into unsettled regions where all sanitary arrangements are primitive may be protected by typhoid vaccination against the possibility of returning with a dangerous illness. Each year sees a few such cases even in the absence of epidemics anywhere.

State Report on Feeds Available to Farmers

Dairy, livestock and poultry feeders who purchase commercial feeds or rations may learn much about the ingredients, chemical analyses, and general reliability of feeds offered for sale in Minnesota from the Seventeenth Annual Feed Bulletin just published by the Feed and Fertilizer division of the State Department of Agriculture, Dairy and Foods, St Paul. While the supply lasts, copies of this 400 page book will be sent free to farmers on request, says H. A. Halvorson, chemist in charge of the feed and fertilizer division.

During 1935, feed and fertilizer inspectors visited 1,695 Minnesota towns, inspected 3,216 stores and warehouses, and collected 1,515 official samples of feed which were analyzed, and the results are presented in the bulletin along with information obtained in previous years. For each feed listed, the book gives the manufacturer's name, the dealer from whom the sample was taken, the manufacturer's claims as to the content of moisture, protein, fat, fiber, ash, and nitrogen-free extracts, and along with this gives the findings of the official analyses made by the feed and fertilizer chemists. Ingredients of mixed feeds are shown, and this year, for the first time, the content of calcium, magnesium and phosphorus are shown as well as the calcium-phosphorus ratio.

A valuable feature of the report is an explanation o fthe Minnesota commercial feed laws and their purposes, and a definition of nearly 150 kinds of feeding stuffs offered on the market.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION

Mrs. Louis Nadeau, Nashau, N. H., writes: "My husband was suffering from stomach distress. He tried many remedies without satisfactory results. I suggested Kuriki, and after he took one bottle, his condition improved immediately. We will never be without this remedy". Kuriko is an herb remedy which has been used by five generations of suffering people with splendid success. It is used to combat constipation, indigestion common colds, nervousness, insomnia and skin impurities. It is not sold in drug stores, but can only be obtained from local agents. For information write Dr Peter Fahrney & Sons Company, 2501 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Adv.

MANY VIOLATIONS

Taking over the limit of game fish heads the list of offenses, with fishing without a license a close second. A. C. Hanson, director of the division of game and fish, last week warned anglers that failure to obtain licenses will result in fines

Courteous Cowboy

She was struggling with a hot cup of coffee in a small-town railway station, trying to gulp it before the train pulled out. A cowboy, seated a couple of stools away, noted her plight, and seeing the guard waving to the woman, came to the fore.

"Here, ma'am, you can take my cup of coffee. It's already saucered and blowed."

Money Maker

Two shopkeepers were discussing business.

"Do you know," said Smith mysteriously, "I've a machine in my shop that would make me a millionaire if only I could keep it working all day."

The other shopkeeper pricked up his ears.

"What sort of machine is that?" he asked breathlessly.

"A cash register," laughed Smith.

The Instructor

Two business men were discussing a competitor, a former employee of the older of the two men.

"I happen to know that fellow is a sharper and not above lying or stealing when it's to his advantage," remarked the older man.

"Do you know him personally?"

"Know him? I taught him everything he knows."

"I want to see the editor," said the poet.

"Sorry, the editor is in Africa shooting lions," said the boy.

The poet gasped.

"Impossible!" he said. "I saw him through the window as I came along."

"Yes, but he saw you first," the other blandly replied.

MANY FARMERS IN PENNINGTON WERE AIDED

Land Bank Loans Are Now at 4 Percent Interest

Observing this week the 20-year anniversary of the passing of the farm loan act of 1916, which marked the beginning of cooperative credit for farmers in the United States, President Roy A. Nelson of the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, said that there are 179 farmers in Pennington county who have federal land bank commissioner's loans

"In these 20 years one of the most outstanding services the land bank has rendered to farmers of the Northwest is the reduction in interest rates," Mr. Nelson said. "Starting with 6 per cent loans, the bank has been able to progressively reduce interest to the point where the borrower of today is keeping in his pocket one dollar out of every three that he would have had to pay under conditions that used to prevail."

Under the 4 per cent rate at which all new loans are made, the land bank borrowers pays off both principal and interest with installments that together amount to only 5.4 per cent, and in 34 years the loan is wiped out.

"The system that was inaugurated 20 years ago," Nelson said, "has to its credit 4 main features: it has reduced interest, given the farmer a long period to pay off his mortgage, provided him with a share in conducting the institution from which he obtains his credit, and it has established definitely the principle of making loans on the basis of what the farm can earn. By so doing it is providing helpful instead of burdensome credit, for it is of no real value to a person to obtain a loan larger than his income can repay."

The land bank system of 1916 was expanded into the Farm Credit Administration in May, 1933, and now provides short-term production loans and credit for farmer's cooperative business enterprises in addition to the long-term farm mortgage credit of the beginning.

"Freak" White Sparrow Shown Here Tuesday

Did you ever see a white sparrow? We never had, until on Tuesday morning when Mr. Von Wold, who farms 8 miles east of town, brought just such a "freak of nature" into the Forum office and now we are convinced it is a reality. While Mr. Von Wold was milking in the barn the sparrow flew in and sat on his knee. At first sight he thought it was a small chick.

KNUTE O. SOLHEIM

Knute O. Solheim died at his home in Smiley township on Saturday afternoon, July 11, at the age of sixty-six years. He was born February 18, 1870 in Hal Hallingher, Norway. He came from Norway to Nicollet county in 1893 and later lived in Blooming Prairie, Beltrami County, and Red Lake County, and in 1906 he moved to Smiley township where he has since made his home. He was married in 1906 to Ingeborg Landsem. He is survived by his wife, one foster son, Knute Nelson of Minneapolis, three sisters, Mrs Bergette Solheim, Mrs. Carrie Haugen, and Mrs. Hald's Gangeness, all of Norway and two brothers, Ole Solheim of Norway, and Iver Solheim of Mavie. His parents and one brother preceded him in death. Reverend E. O. Sabo and Reverend I. Lasseson officiated at the last rites and interment.

SCHOOL BOARD HELD REGULAR MEET MONDAY

Resignations of Two Teachers Accepted—Expenses Kept Within Budget Set

At its regular meeting Monday evening, the board of education accepted the resignations of Lyle Lanning, commercial instructor in the Lincoln high school, and Miss M. Ellen Brooks. Both Mr. Lanning and Miss Brooks asked to be released from their contracts for 1936-1937 to accept better positions elsewhere. Mr. Lanning has been offered a position in the high school at Owatonna, Minnesota, and Miss Brooks has secured a position in the public schools of Austin Minnesota.

Successful bidders for the public schools' coal supply for the coming year were O'Hara Fuel and Ice Company with their bid of $7.75 per ton for Cavalier screenings, and Central Lumber Company with their bid of $8 05 per ton for 200 ton of Youghegany dock run, and $9.50 per ton for Pocohontas dock run.

The Northern School Supply Co. bidding through the Hamilton's News Stand of this city, obtained the contract for teachers desks, typewriting tables and chairs, rear desks, and school scales. New flues will be purchased at a cost of $210.

The board approved the school calendar for the coming year, including the football and basketball schedules.

It was revealed at the meeting that the expenditures for the year 1935-1936 kept within the budget of such expenditures set up at the beginning of the year. Of the $95881 set aside by the budget for current expenses, $93853.32 were spent. The budget for capital outlay was set at $4900, the amount spent was $4665.48. The debt service set aside amounted to $38,295, and exactly that amount was paid out for that purpose.

The Lincoln high school has again been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The high school has been on the accredited list continuously since 1911.

U. S. PREDICTS LARGE DROP IN SPRING WHEAT

Wheat Crop Shows Drop of 33,000,000 Bu.; Rye Is Also Smaller

A big drop in the spring wheat crop, ruined in many areas by the drouth and severe heat, was forecast Friday by the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture at Washington.

The board's report, based on conditions as of July 1, put the spring wheat crop at 126,314,000 bushels compared with a 159,241,000 bushels in 1935 and an average spring wheat crop of 241,312,000 bushels for the years 1928-1932.

Condition of all wheat was estimated at 60.9 per cent of normal, indicating a production of 638,399,000 bushels. This compared with a 1935 crop of 623,444,000 bushels.

Winter Wheat Crop

The winter wheat crop which has suffered only slightly from the prolonged drouth was estimated to be 512,085,000 bushels, compared with 433,000,000 bushels produced last year and an average crop of 618,000,000 bushels for the five year period of 1928 to 1932.

The board's report said total wheat acreage amounted to 51,059,000 acres, compared with 51,348,000 wheat acres the same date last year of 99.4 per cent of the 1935 acreage. Wheat yield per acre was placed at 12.5 bushels, compared with 12.1 bushels per acre last year.

The corn crop was placed at 2,244,874,000 bushels It was 2,291,629,000 bushels last year.

Corn Acreage

Corn acreage was estimated at 98,517,000 acres on July 1, 1936, compared with 95,333,000 acres planted to corn July 1, 1935, or 103.3 per cent of the 1935 acreage. Yield per acre was forecast at 22.8 bushels, compared with 24.0 bushels per acre in 1935.

Condition and probable production of other crops:

Rye, production 26,380,000 bushels.

$16,500,000 STATE WORK UNDER WAY OR COMPLETED

Officials of State Road Program Expect to Start This Month On $7,000,000 Program

More than $5,000,000 of road construction work has been completed by the Minnesota highway department so far this season, and projects costing another $11,500,000 are in progress, according to an announcement by N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner.

The work completed or under way includes the following:

900 miles of grading.

125 miles of concrete paving.

102 bridge structures.

41 railroad crossing electric signal installations.

Approximately one-third of this work has been finished, Mr. Elsberg said, while the remainder will be completed by fall. The highway department is prepared to launch another $7,000,000 program for the fiscal year beginning this month, but has been prevented from getting this work under way by delay in authorization of state bonds for matching $3,400,000 of federal aid which is available.

MEETING CALLED

There will be a meeting of the newly organized West Rocksbury Local No. 6 of the Cooperative Union Activities at the Aubol schoolhouse, Thursday evening, July 23. A business meeting will be held at which time officers for the coming year will be elected. George Blake, state organizer, will be present. A social time will be held after the business session.

Gov. Floyd Olson To Undergo Major Operation Today

Rochester, Minn., July 15—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, scheduled to undergo a major operation here Thursday, was reported to be resting easily at St. Mary's hospital late today. It was definitely stated that the governor's condition has not changed during the past 24 hours. Relief from excessive heat has brought Governor Olson some relief

The state's chief executive will go on the operating table tomorrow for an obdominal operation, the purpose of which, Mayo physicians stated, is to insert a tube through which the governor may be fed directly to the bowel. The purpose is to give his stomach a complete rest, as the food he takes nauseates him.

Surgeons reported in advance of the operation that Governor Olson's condition is serious, but not critical at the present time. They were silent as to hazards of the operation, and indicated that the response in the next three or four days to the treatment now being undertaken will to a large extent determine how well the Governor gets along.

WILL SELECT 4-H CLUB WINNERS ON JULY 21 & 23

Two Days Exhibition at Lincoln High School; Public Should Plan to Attend

The public will be given an opportunity to inspect the achievements of Pennington County 4H Clubs on the 4H Home Economics Achievement Days which will be held in the Lincoln high school building Tuesday and Thursday, July 21 and 23 Club members representing the various clubs in Pennington County will give individual and group demonstrations of the projects on which they have been working, and which are now on the verge of completion. Demonstrators and exhibits will be selected to go to the sub-district contest at Crookston on August 11, and to the State Fair.

The program for July 21 will open with the bread baking demonstrations, which are scheduled to begin promptly at ten a. m. Individual bread baking demonstrations will be followed by team competition.

Activities will open again in the afternoon at one o'clock, with oral demonstrations of meal planning and food preparation to be given by individual club members. Other groups competing on July 21 will be the clothing teams, who will begin their demonstrations at ten o'clock in the Sewing Rooms in the high school, and the room furnishing demonstrators, who will compete at one o'clock.

The individual, oral cake demonstrations will begin at ten o'clock sharp on Thursday, July 23, in the home economics rooms. The girls will furnish their own utensils, materials will be supplied. The clothing exhibits, which must be on display by ten o'clock a. m. on July 23, will be judged in the afternoon.

As a grand finale to the two days of exhibition and demonstration, a style revue will be conducted at one o'clock.

The following demonstrators and exhibits will be selected at these Achievement Days to go to the sub-district contest at Crookston on August 11: two bread teams one cake demonstrator, two clothing demonstration teams, one room furnishing demonstrator, one meal planning and preparation demonstrator, and one room furnishing exhibit. The following demonstrators and exhibits will be selected for the State Fair: one individual bread demonstrator, one style queen, one clothing exhibitor, and one clothing exhibit.

Judges will be Miss Evelyn Bierbaum, county club agent of Marshall county, Miss Esther Anderson, county club agent of Mahnomen county, and Mrs H. A. Pflughoeft of Crookston.

STUDENTS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF NEW AID LAW

Fall Term of Northwest School to be Opened September 28th

An increasing number of rural boys and girls are taking advantage of the recent state law whereby eighth grade graduates from rural schools may attend the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston with all necessary tuition, and laboratory and equipment fees paid from state funds. This law, which was passed by the State Legislature in 1935, went in to effect for the first time last fall. According to A. A. Dowell, Superintendent of the School, over 250 boys and girls qualified for aid last year when a new attendance record of 395 was established.

The fall term of the Northwest School will open September 28 and the winter term will close the last week in March. Farm boys and girls are thus available for work at home during the crop growing season. Courses are offered in agriculture, farm machinery, home economics, business training, music, and citizenship.

Students graduate from the regular school courses after three years attendance in addition to home project work that is required during the summer months. Those who wish to continue their training may return for a college preparatory year following which they are eligible to attend any of the Colleges and Universities in the State.

STORM BREAKS TREE

Monday night's storm which was accompanied by rain and a terrific wind blew down a large boxelder tree in the Soo depot park The tree was broken in two about four feet from its base and measured fully two feet in diameter.

COUNTY AGENT SUGGESTS AID FOR CLOVER FIELDS

Farmers Should Watch Sweet Clover Fields—Small Insect at Work

County Agent R. M. Douglass, in reply to the question asked frequently during the past week as to why many fields of sweet clover are not setting seed properly, offers a few suggestions as to the reason for this condition.

The extreme heat and dry weather may have done considerable damage. Another factor may be a very small insect that destroys the flowers before fertilization takes place, Mr. Douglass states. He adds that, at present, there is no known method of controlling this insect.

Mr. Douglass suggests that every farmer should watch his sweet clover fields closely in regard to the setting of seed. Because of the drouth conditions hay prices will no doubt be somewhat higher than they were last year. Therefore, if a farmer feels that his seed crop will be very small because of a low seed set, perhaps he may find it more advisable to cut his sweet clover for hay.

WORKMEN'S LEAGUE TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

There will be a special meeting of the Workmen's Protective League Monday evening at eight o'clock in the League's rooms below the Union State Bank, Earl Long, business agent of the organization, announced today. Official reports from the convention of the Workmen's Alliance of Minnesota and St. Paul will be given. There will also be a report from the city council as to their decision on the request for a wage scale for city employees working in the street department, Mr. Long stated.

Dry Spell Causes Damage To Gardens

The heat wave of the past two weeks and lack of moisture have caused much damage to growing garden stuff. Peas, beans, cucumbers, etc., have suffered the most and are practically ruined. Sweet corn has wilted under the intense heat and much of it is a total loss Pastures are fast getting to be in bad shape and a great amount of moisture is needed to replenish their growth. City lawns are scorched and the ground becoming baked.

MRS. ANNA LARSON

Mrs. Anna Larson of Viking passed away at the home of her son, Hartvig Larson, Friday, July 10, at 2:45 a. m. She was born in Dahlsland, Sweden, August 16, 1849 At the age of 23 years she was married to Gustaf Larson and in 1886 they came to the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Larson retired from farming in 1915 and moved into the village of Viking. Mr. Larson preceded his wife in death on February 9, 1932, and two children also preceded Mrs. Larson in death. She is survived by her son Hartvig of Viking, Fred and Charlie of this city; also twenty grandchildren. Funeral rites were held on Monday afternoon at the home of her son, and at the Mission church of which Mrs. Larson was a member. Reverend Boman and Rev. Lundell officiated.

'OLD TIMERS' ARE TOUGH OUTFIT; WINNERS 11 TO 3

Orvalla Pitches Spectacular Ball Allowing Leaguers Only Two Lonely Hits

A small but appreciative crowd was on hand last Friday evening to witness the struggle between the "Old Timers" and the local League team, at the fair grounds The game had to be called on account of darkness at the end of the seventh inning, the score being 11 to 3 in favor of the "Old Timers".

It was a surprised and dumbfounded lot when the "Old Timers" came to bat in the first inning and lambasted four successive singles out into the outer gardens, and this coupled with superb base stealing and base running, managed to push three scores across the rubber in the first inning. Floyd Olson was on the starting mound for the Leaguers and pitched for three innings, to be relieved in the fourth by Robinson, who in turn passed them on to Hellquist and H. Sahl, who finished the ball game. Much credit is due these fellows for their nerve in standing up in the line of fire before the fierce batting eyes of the "Old Timers".

Orvalla and Lee, the battery recruited from the League team, did stellar work, only one ball being hit to the infield, and two going to the outfield, resulting in home runs, due to the fact that the "aged" lacked the zip to get the ball back into the infield, which ordinarily would have gone only for doubles. "Bill" Dahlquist was the "master mind" of the "aged" and his instructive coaching at the initial sack kept the boys on their toes all the time when on the bases. Frank Tunborg, the records show, was the heavy bludgeon wielder for the team.

Due to the fact that the score book was such a jumbled up affair at the end of the game, many substitutions being necessary, and too many score keepers, we will only strive to give the names of the players that participated in the lineup for the "Old Timers", the League team having their regular playing lineup, with the exception of Orvalla and Lee. Here they are: Ole Engelstad, George Orvalla, George Lee, Frank Tunberg, O. Eide, Lenard Hanson, Herman Kjos, Harry Glanders, N. Johnson, Cliff Storholm, Bill Dahlquist, Russ Mahoney, Al Holzknecht, Christofferson and A. Johnson.

The "Old Timers" have been holding secret practices since their recent victory, entertaining the idea that the "youngsters" will be declaring war on them and issuing a challenge to another game One of the "Old Timers" casually mentions that, "We will be all right if the pitcher keeps the ball in the catcher's mitt."

CITY DADS LAY OVER SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLAN

Decide More Consideration Necessary; Approved Many Appointments

At the regular meeting of the City Council Tuesday evening, the already much-discussed problems of sewage disposal and the drycleaning ordinance were again brought before the council and were again set aside for more consideration, the ordinance for the proposed change in light and power rates was given its first reading and bids were opened on street lighting equipment.

Harry Roberts, supported by a delegation of residents of the third ward, appeared before the council and demanded that something be done to give relief from the oppressive odor from the river in the south end of the city. Earl Long presented a resolution to the council suggesting that the construction of a sewage disposal plant be undertaken by the Workmen's Protective League as a WPA project. Alderman Myrom revealed that a man would be in the city to meet with the city council and other men in the city to discuss plans and make suggestions for the construction of such a plant. Mr. Myhrum stated that as a measure for temporary relief until a WPA grant for the construction is obtained, it may be possible to extend the sewer pipes to a point outside of the city at which the disposal plant will later be erected.

Paul Lundgren, appearing before the council in behalf of the Red Lake River Development organization, invited the councilmen to attend the meeting of the organization held in Crookston on Wednesday evening, and showing the direct tie-up between the purpose of the organization's meeting and the sewage disposal problem.

It was again brought to the attention of the council that a drycleaning establishment was operating without a license in the city, contrary to the dry cleaner's ordinance. The council instructed the city attorney to attend to the matter

The ordinance establishing new light and power rates for the city, and repealing the old ordinance with the exceptions of sections 167 and 179, dealing with the ten per cent discount and the special rates for hospitals respectively, was given its first reading. A resolution was made and adopted to amend section 179 to include the sanitorium in the special rates granted to the hospitals. The rate for commercial heating was set at 1¼c.

WEST ROCKSBURY LOCAL HELD BUSINESS MEETING

Only a few were present at an organization meeting of Farmers Union Local No. 6, which was held July 10 in the Aubol school house in District 54, Rocksbury township Henry Mehrkens and Walter Wilken were appointed as chairman and secretary, respectively, for the evening.

Mr. Gilbertson, chairman of the Hazel local, gave a talk on organization procedure. Archie Marcott manager of the Red Lake Falls local, was also present and compared prices and quality of machinery, twine, gas and oil against competitive products. Geo. Blake, state organizer, spoke, and a business meeting was held, at which time it was decided that the new local formed, Local No. 6, be called the "West Rocksbury local".

The following officers were elected to serve at the next meeting only, at which time, if enough members are present, officers for the coming year will be elected: chairman, Ed Aubol; vice chairman, Henry Wilken; secretary-treasurer, Walter Wilken, and Junior leader, Martin Wilken.

CAFE TO OPEN IN CITIZENS BANK BUILDING

Olaf Sorenson has rented the ground floor of the Citizens bank building, which until several months ago, housed the U. S. post office. The building is being remodeled somewhat and will be recorated and it is Mr. Sorenson's intention to open a first-class cafe.

NELSON ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL FARM HOLIDAY ASS'N

ST. PAUL, Minn.—The national convention of the Farm Holiday Association, militant farm organization, honored George A. Nelson, Socialist candidate for Vice-President, by naming him as their vice-president.

Defeating the attempt of a small minority to endorse William Lamke for President, the delegates voted not to endorse any party that does not advocate drastic changes in the form of society. The association also broadened its scope by voting to help organize tenant farmers.

"The Holiday News", organ of the National Farm Holiday Association, in a column story hails the nomination of Nelson by the Socialist party as the running mate of Norman Thomas. Nelson is characterized as a fighter who "has earned his spurs in leading the struggles of the farmers."

The article recites Nelson's career as an Alaskan "sourdough", as a crusader for farmer's rights, and as a Socialist.

"Nelson first joined the Socialist party early in its history during the first decade of this century," the "News" says.

"For the next 20 years he worked in the farmer and labor movement of Wisconsin, organizing cooperatives, following the tradition of that hardy stock of American pioneers in working his own farm while leading the farmers of western Wisconsin in the many fights against grasping bankers and ruthless mortgagors.

"In all of these battles he has been successful. In his area not one single farmer has been thrown off his land. Practically every business in his area is cooperatively owned due in no small part to his efforts as a lead in the cooperative movement."

Nelson has already been acclaimed at large meetings where he has spoken in Wisconsin and Minnesota in the past month. He will conclude his Minnesota tour on July 25 when he will address the Socialist state convention. On July 26 he will speak to 25,000 people at the Wisconsin state Socialist picnic.

Starting on the 27th of July in Waukegan he will spend a week in Illinois speaking in a different city every day. He will cover the following cities after Waukegan: Yorkville, Bloomington, Trenton, Gillespie, Galesburg and Starved Rock. From Illinois he will go into Indiana and Michigan.

WINTER IS COMING

Summer is here. Unfortunately, it is a brief season—and the wise householder will take advantage of the warm months to prepare for the rigors of winter.

In doing that, he should keep in mind the dangerous fire hazards that come with the cold weather—hazards which have caused millions in property damage and thousands of deaths, and yet can be easily and inexpensively eliminated.

One of the most prolific causes of fire is heating equipment. The best of furnaces need periodic inspection and overhauling, as do pipes and chimneys. It is obvious that such a job can't be adequately accomplished in winter, when the furnace is in constant use. Now is the time to check up on your heating plant and to make sure it is safe and efficient. Have the work done by a qualified expert who knows his business. Amateur inspections, like amateur repairs, are often worthless.

Another important source of home fires is electrical wiring and equipment. Heating appliances are apt to get out of order. Wiring becomes frayed in time. Call in your electrician—don't trust your own hazy knowledge of electricity.

A majority of the most dangerous fire hazards can be done away with in this easy fashion. The expenditure of a little time, effort and money may save your property, to say nothing of your life. Do it Now!

DOING SOMETHING FOR THE FARMER

During the coming campaign, spokesmen for both the great parties will do a lot of talking about farm relief. Both will claim that their party has found the Royal Road to farm prosperity, and that anyone disagreeing with it is an enemy of the people.

This is to be expected, politics being the kind of game it is. But a great many unprejudiced persons, without any partisan axe to grind, are coming to the opinion that the best kind of farm relief originates not in Washington but on the farm. The old maxim that "self help is the best help" may have been obscured by some modern theories, but it hasn't been outlawed yet. It is as sound today as it ever was.

The finest example of that old-fashioned "self help" is found in the agricultural cooperatives, which act as the farmer's representative in the process of producing and disposing of his products on the most profitable basis. These co-ops are permanent—they are non-political—they aren't managed by bureaucrats—they aren't trying to advance the fortunes of this party or that one. And they're doing more that is sound in a business way for agriculture than all the "farm relief" bills proposed since the war.

The total governmental debt of the United States now stands at the record figure of $53,000,000,000, according to the United States News. The Federal debt accounts for $34,000,000,000. The balance, $19,000,000,000 is represented by state and local debt.

HUNGRY PICKET; MORE FUNDS GRANTED

CHICAGO—It took a demonstration of hungry unemployed men and women, members of the Illinois Worker's Alliance, to force the Chicago City Council to pass a tax levy for relief. While police on the outside were trying to disperse the picket line around city hall, the councilmen on the inside lost no time in voting on the levy although they had been evading the issue for weeks.

The relief situation was so bad in Chicago that relief stations were closed and food orders could not be mailed for lack of postage. Unemployed men and women besieged the homes of council members and a special meeting was declared.

Members of the Worker's Alliance jammed the council chamber and shouted, "We want cash relief," until they were thrown out by several hundred police officers hastily summoned by Mayor Kelly. When they started picketing outside of city hall, mounted policemen rode on the side walk in an attempt to disperse the crowd with the use of their clubs and their horses' hoofs.

According to relief administrations, this additional revenue added to the city's share of the sales tax will still be insufficient to cover the needs of Chicago's unemployed.

A large demonstration is planned for July 18 in front of the offices of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, and the city hall and local relief stations will be picketed every day according to a decision by the Worker's Alliance.

Paul Porter, labor secretary of the Socialist party, said "The Chicago incident is only one example of the scores of such incidents which will take place in this country. Relief will be cut. The unemployed will starve. Politicians will dilly-dally until the unemployed exert pressure. First clubs will be used against those on relief, but if that fails to halt them, additional funds will be hastily found. Genuine unemployment insurance and necessary public works at union wages is the only solution under our present economic system.

MAINTAINING FAIR WAGES

The Supreme Court decision invalidating the New York Women's minimum wage law—which, in view of legal authorities, invalidates similar laws in other states—will not harm the interests of the thousands of women employed by California Chain Stores' Association.

That is the gist of a statement issued by the California Chain Stores' Association. The Association took a poll of its members, and found that the chains were unanimously opposed to any breakdown of minimum wages, irrespective of the law.

The liberal labor policy followed by the California chains—and by the leading chains throughout the country—establishes an example that deserves widespread praise. As authoritative surveys have shown, the chain stores, when compared with similar businesses, are extremely foresighted in their labor policy. They are as eager as anyone else to eliminate the wage and hour chiselers, who would exploit the worker. They know that no store, which does not pay and treat its employes well, deserves patronage or public support, whether it is independent or chain.

There is no place in America for sweat shops. Fortunately, the far-sighted employer doesn't need a law to force him to pursue a decent labor policy. He is eager to do that, as the voluntary stand taken by California chain stores so definitely indicates.

NYE TO TOUR NOTION FOR PEACE

Washington — Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Munitions Investigation Committee, is going to "stump the country" between July and December to arouse public support of a five-point peace program which he plans to introduce at the next session of Congress.

Speaking in 38 states, Senator Nye will advocate the following proposals: Nationalism of the arms industry; enlargement of the present embargo on the sale of arms to warring nations to cover petroleum products; an embargo on both public and private loans to belligerents; a "cash and carry" plan for the sale of American goods to nations at war; rigid restrictions on Americans traveling in war zones.

The Senator plans to introduce a bill for uniting the war and navy departments into a single department of national defense.

CHRISTIAN YOUTH AT CONFERENCE VOTE SOCIALIST

LAKESIDE, Ohio—The largest vote given any political party was given to the Socialist party in a poll taken of the 500 delegates of over 16 Protestant faiths representing over 5,000,000 young people. The Socialist party received 166 votes to the 62 votes given the Republican party, the 29 votes given the Democratic party, the 3 given the Communist party and the 45 given to a farmer-labor party. Eighty-nine said they were in doubt.

"The present economic order is anti-Christian; a ruthless, competitive, profit system cannot be reconciled with the Kingdom of God as revealed in the life and teachings of Jesus," was the opinion of 432 of the delegates while 9 favored the present system.

LEAGUE PROPOSES USE OF RADIO FOR PEACE

Washington — A suggested treaty to promote international goodwill thru radio broadcasting has been submitted to the Department of State by the League of Nations.

The treaty provides, among other things, for the exchange of information about the cultures of the nations signing it, to the end that such information used by radio stations may lead to better international understanding.

Signatory nations agreed to prevent any broadcast that may incite other peoples to warlike acts. Incorrect statements likely to jeopardize good will are prohibited, and the governments undertake to insure, especially in time of crisis, the accuracy of news broadcasts.

The annual Pennington County Fair will soon be with us. The dates this year are July 28, 29, 30 and 31. It will be bigger and better than ever, according to the fair officials who have done everything possible to secure the best in attractions, etc. Plan your work now so that you can at least spend one day enjoying yourself and meeting old time friends and acquaintances who are most certain to be present at this grand annual get-together.

ABOUT KINGS

To those of his countrymen who have not gone over to the enemy, Haile Selassie may still be known as 'King of Kings'. To his conquerors, however, he is now simply 'Mister Tafari'.

In view of the League's refusal to become embroiled with Mussolini, and its recent decision to abandon sanctions a likelihood that he will ever again rule a kingdom seems remote. He probably has nothing better to look forward to than the prospect of boarding with his wife's relatives the rest of his life.

The king, it seems, has become a two-spot.

* * * *

But the ill luck of one may be the good luck of another. The very same operation which separated Haile Selassie from his throne raised King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, to the status of emperor.

He is now known by the resounding title of "King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia."

* * * *

One may with reason suppose that the diminutive king of Italy is strutting about puffing out his chest and bursting vest buttons in vast self-satisfaction over his new dignity. . .

Which assumption may or may not be correct. For nobody notices the king enough to be able to say, either one way or the other.

* * * *

It is Mussolini, the fellow with the heavy jowls and the jaw sticking out like the small boy trying to look tough, who holds the center of the stage. All eyes are on him.

There are few who notice the little, old man with the grey mustache and the crooked nose, who wears a very tall cap and very large boots.

Across his chest, he wears a row of orders and decorations. At the cinema one evening, your commentator, intrigued by this glittering display asked one who was presumed to be something of an authority on such matters. . .

"What did the king get 'em for? Was it heroic conduct in the face of the enemy? Signal services to the nation? Rescuing drowning children? Or what?"

"Heck, no!' said the well-posted informer, "They're medals he won playing croquet!"

* * * *

If report may be believed, the king has become so unimportant in the scheme of things in Italy that even the government clerks hardly notice him except when he calls for his pay check on Saturday night.

Even in the royal household, he is entrusted only with such chores as throwing out the cat at night and winding the clock.

* * * *

International observers were more or less in accord that Mussolini launched the Ethiopian war in order to save his own tottering regime at home.

If he won, he strengthened his position greatly; if he lost—well, he could always go to London and play polo with ex-king Alfonse, of Spain, or to Doorn, and help ex-kaiser Wilhelm saw wood.

* * * *

But King Victor Emmanuel was in a much more fortunate position. He was one of the few who stood to win, no matter how it turned out.

It is quite possible, that as he followed the fortunes of the war, he said to himself. . .

"If Italy wins, I shall be Emperor of Ethiopia. If it loses, I shall again be king of Italy!"

YELLOW PAINT COVERS G.O.P. SIGN AT NEW ULM

New Ulm, Minn.—A liberal application of yellow paint over a Republican campaign advertisement on New Ulm's main street on Tuesday had political temperatures running a close second to the day's blistering heat.

A 100-foot board fence, surrounding a new $300,000 building project, appeared likely to become a political dividing line between Republican and Democratic factions in the town.

The fence recently was painted with a large, bold sign, urging voters to "Vote American—Landon, Knox and the Republican state ticket."

It also carried the notation: "GOP project No. 1—not a WPA project".

The city council raised objections to the sign. At about 1:30 a. m. today, a crew of workmen obliterated the Republican proclamation with a liberal application of yellow paint.

Republicans were irate.

The following nine Minnesota counties have been designated as "drouth counties" by the department of agriculture at Washington: Big Stone, Douglas, Grant, Pope, Stevens, Swift, Traverse, Wilkin and Yellow Medicine. Government relief will be provided first to counties so designated.

PREDICTS LEMKE AS OUR NEXT U. S. PRESIDENT

Rev. Charles E. Coughlin Saturday while on a speaking tour in Chicago and Milwaukee and also paying St. Paul a visit, predicted that William Lemke, candidate for president of the Union party, would be the elected president of the United States by the house of representatives following the November election.

The election will be tossed into the house of representatives for the second time in the nation's history, he predicted, because neither Roosevelt or Landon will be able to command a majority of votes in the electoral college.

"The people do not vote for president", Rev. Coughlin said. "They vote for presidential electors, and more than 50 per cent of the electors must cast their ballots for one man to make him president. I am confident Lemke, as condidate for the Union party, will have more states friendly to his cause than either the Democrats or Republicans."

Rev. Coughlin also disapproved both the Republican and Democratic platforms as out-of-date and failing to meet the present issues.

OLSON LAUDS SWEDEN'S COOP EFFORTS FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

Condemning the self-styled 100 per cent Americans who disdain any foreign contributions to this country and praising cooperative efforts on the part of the Swedish people in the solution of social and economic security problems, Gov. Floyd B. Olson, last Sunday delivered one of the principal addresses at the Swedish Mid-Summer celebrations at Minnehaha park.

"When one considers what Sweden has been able to accomplish with her limited resources and measures these achievements against the achievements of this country, with its infinitely greater resources, we in America have not very much to boast about," Gov. Olson said. "We have very much to learn in studying how Sweden has been able to benefit its people in a depression-torn world.

"The Practical Way

"We may call what they have done socialism, or cooperation, or anything else, but they are not quite so doctrinaire about it. They don't stop to think in terms of 'isms.' They go about solving public problems in the most practical and thorough way, and as long as it does the job they do not care what name you give it.

"That is why we have breadlines, and millions of people out of work, and many more millions on relief and a large part of the population living on a bare subsistence level—many on the borderline of actual starvation—while the people of Sweden have been spared of these things. The standard of living for the masses of Sweden is greater than it is in the United States, despite all we say about the American standard of living"

Recalls the Apaches

Gov. Olson, who spoke for almost an hour, told of visiting the south and there meeting an old Apache chieftain.

"As I looked upon this chief with his paint and war feathers," the governor said, "I could not help but feel that here indeed was the original 100 per cent American. He was the Simon pure rugged individualist, the perfect symbol of Republican philosophy. The Apaches lived by their bows and arrows; they were killers—hunters, not of the beast but of man. They lived by war and destroyed all humans who crossed their path.

"But there are people in this country who believe in a different philosophy of collective human effort for the common good. The philosophy knows no radical barriers. . . its goal is a world big enough for all to live in and a human society founded on the principle of common good."

Folke Wennerberg of the Swedish legation at Washington addressed the gathering, pointing out the love of his countrymen for peace and industry. He alluded to the efforts of his people in building up while other nations were destroying that which their ancestors built.—Minnesota Leader.

An all-time heat record was recorded in Minneapolis on Tuesday when the thermometer registered 106.6 degrees. Deaths attributed directly to the heat were 42 in that city on that day while in St. Paul the death toll was 43. Many other deaths were recorded throughout the Northwest.

Bond for H. J. Wright, Glyndon, held in the Clay county jail in Moorhead, was fixed at $7,500 Monday by Judge Byron R. Wilson. Unable to post it, he was remanded to await trial on third degree murder charges in connection with the death in an auto accident of two Fargo women, Mrs. A. H. Scott and Mrs. J. E. Veitch.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The 1936 national platforms of the two major parties have been adopted by their respective conventions and they are of a nature that invites comparison.

To the vast audience of liberals that expectantly awaited the Democratic platform, the planks approved at Philadelphia provide considerable satisfaction. It is apparent that the liberal views of President Roosevelt have prevailed to a considerable extent that the Bourbon influence in the national Democratic ranks has been successfully overcome.

Compared to the Republican platform, the Democrats have been admirably specific and stand, as Sen. Barkley averred, on the continuation of the New Deal.

The Republican platform proclaims that the GOP promises to "protect the rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference from any source."

Without interference from any source. "Interference" by the government agencies such as the labor relations board, seeking to enforce labors right to organize and bargain might easily be considered condemned.

The plank hypocritically gives rights to workers, but withdraws government from doing anything to see that those rights are preserved.

The national Democratic platform cites the accomplishment of the Roosevelt administration in writing into the law of the land the right of labor "to collective bargaining and self-organization free from the interference of employers."

The New Deal record has to its credit the Wagner labor relations act and Section 7A of the NRA, regardless of the fact that the latter was ruled "unconstitutional" by the supreme court. The present administration to an encouraging extent has made good and is continuing to make good on its labor plank. The Republican aspirants have nothing to show in the past and promise only vaguely for the future on this issue.—Exchange.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

By Ben C. Haeglund

The Situation in U. S. A.

There's nothing wrong with the Union party except that it is backed by Father Coughlin and the remnants of Huey Long's semi-fascist machine, and that it voices out-and-out fascistic principles. It is regarded by some as the conscious effort of certain schemers to take enough strength away from Roosevelt to elect Landon. Of course there is very little choice among the three, but the re-election of Roosevelt would be the least painful of all. Why must we always have to take our choice of evils?

—O—

The Situation in China

The anti-Japanese movement in China, which originated in Canton and has spread throughout southern China in a vast flood, is given ample support by the Chinese Red Army. Perhaps it is for this reason that Chiang Kai-Shek, the Nanking mouthpiece and butcher de luxe, declared war on the Canton Nationalists. He has long been trying to crush the Red Army while Japanese invasions have long gone unchecked by him. There is a well-founded opinion that Chiang has long ago been bought and paid for by the Japanese invaders. If such is the case, it is easy to see how the Japanese could step in and "restore order," when Chiang has concluded his task. Will the aroused Chinese allow him to do that?

—O—

The Situation in Ohio

Down in Ohio the other day a mill was struck, and the owners brought in hired strike breakers. This was the signal for mill workers in other nearby mills to walk off the job, get their squirrel rifles and surround the struck mill, where they ambushed the thugs and held them helpless during the entire day. Every time a hoodlum reached for his machine-gun the warning crack of a rifle and the spat of a bullet arrested his action. A few were wounded; consequently when night came the strikebreakers cried for quarter.

In the treaty of peace the workers won the right to picket without interference from company gunmen, and soon afterwards the strike was settled peacefully. It is a common procedure for mill owners to use hired gunmen to break strikes, but when the workers themselves become gunmen and outshoot professional murderers with inferior killing equipment the situation is liable to give mill owners a headache.

The Situation in Steel

"Organize Steel!" is the command, the hope, and the spectre, going through the Steel Empire like a prairie fire. Organize Steel! is the battle-cry of the Committee on Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis, invincible fighter.

Lewis sounded the key-note of his campaign to organize steel in an address broadcast from Washington over a national radio network Monday night. It was a virtual declaration of war—peaceful war (if such can be imagined) the aim of which is to organize all steel and iron workers into one big industrial union. The United Mine Workers of America, of which Lewis is president, is an outstanding example of the industrial union, and it is this example that will be followed in the formation of the steel workers union.

The steel barons have smashed every attempt to found a union, since the beginning of the steel industry. crisis was reached in 1919 when the Great Steel Strike occurred. The workers, organized in a huge union by William Z. Foster, struck 100 per cent; but the steel trust imported armies of gunmen, thugs, and agents provocateurs, and after several months of bitter struggle the strike was crushed, and the leaders sought out and exterminated like rats. Out of the wholesale killing of workers, not a single indictment was brought.

But that was in 1919, when the world was torn by a war-hysteria, and war prices and wages were taking a nose-dive. This is 1936, when the world perhaps knows a little more about labor conditions, and wages are low, but climbing slowly. This time a different story may be told.

OLIVER

The 22x36 Oliver Red River Special For Individual Threshing

The 22 x 36 is an ideal machine for individual threshing or for the small threshing ring.

The trouble-free feeder sends the bundles in a steady flow to the Big Cylinder and Man Behind The Gun, where most of the grain is saved in the very first threshing operation. Then the Steel Winged Beater and Beating Shakers team up to get the rest of it out of the straw. The independently driven Grain Pan and End Shake Shoe combine to deliver bright, clean, merchantable grain to the sacks or wagon box.

If you need a thresher see us at once. Let us tell you more about this machine that is backed by almost one hundred years of actual threshing experience.

Current Wit and Humor

CO-OPERATION

A man stood for several minutes watching a brawny truckman tugging at a heavy box almost as wide as the doorway through which he was trying to move it. Presently the onlooker asked: "Like a lift?"

"Thanks, I would," the other replied, and for the next five minutes the two men, on opposite sides of the box, worked, lifted, puffed and wheezed, but the object of their attentions did not move an inch. Finally the helper straightened up and said between puffs: "I don't believe—we can—ever get—it out."

"Get it out?" the truckman roared. "Why, I'm trying to get it in!"—Tit-Bits.

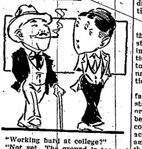
Husband No Bibbler

A proud housewife showed some of her acquaintances over her new home. "Is your husband a bibliomaniac?" asked one visitor when shown into the library, where every book was a leather-bound de luxe.

The hostess stared coldly at her questioner.

"Certainly not," she snapped. "He doesn't bibble a bit. Not that he won't take a drop now and then with his meals, if the rest do. But that's as far as he goes."—London Tit-Bits.

COLLEGIATE



"Working hard at college?"

"Not yet. The ground is too wet and slippery. We begin regular training next week."

The Wrong Sort

Brown arrived at the office on Monday morning with his arm in a bandage and a shield over one eye.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed his friend. "What have you been doing?"

"This is what comes of taking the doctor's advice," Brown replied, with deep feeling.

"Doctor's advice," echoed the other. "But I don't understand."

"Well," Brown explained, "my doctor told me to go for a tramp every day. I came off best the first three days, but the blighter I tackled yesterday was an ex-pugilist."

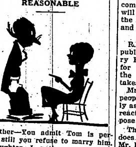
One Advantage

He was proud of the fine sons he possessed, but found their education expensive; and this, with other financial troubles, had put him into a bad temper. But he managed to answer a farmer civilly when asked to admire a fine litter of pigs.

When he was told how expensive it was to keep them he again lost his temper.

"Keep them!" he roared. "Keep them! Be thankful you haven't got to educate them."

REASONABLE



Father—You admit Tom is perfect, still you refuse to marry him.

Daughter—I notice ma has to throw some of your imperfections up to you occasionally in order to get money. What could I do in a case like that?

Correct

A teacher gave her pupils the following sentence, asking them to put it in their own words: "The boy climbed the tree and stole the bird's nest."

The rendering by one boy was as follows: "The kid shinnied up the tree and skun the chipple's bunk."—Chelsea Record.

Extra Time Needed

Teacher—Now, James, if your father can do a nice piece of work in one hour and your mother can do it in one hour, how long will it take them to do it together?

James—It would take three hours—including the time they wasted arguing about it.

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW

By A. L. Harris

Mrs. Edwin L. Lindall, Secretary of the Minnesota Law and Order League, in the latest edition of his Law and Order News, asks why everybody should not be fingerprinted. And he implies that there can be only one reasonable answer........that finger-printing on a wholesale scale would solve all crimes......

It seems strange that Mr. Lindall does not know that the chief beneficiaries of nation-wide finger printing would be the fingerprint experts or gentlemen of the law and order leagues who might there by get on the federal payroll.....

In practice, fingerprints catch only the small fry. Smart criminals do not leave their trade marks behind. Whoever heard of a fraudulent stock salesman being convicted by finger prints; or a salesman of muskrat shares; or a man smart enough to rob a bank from the inside......

No, No, Edwin, the real criminals cannot be caught by such simple measures as you suggest. The public is in greatest danger from men who use their wealth and power to prey upon the people in order that they may swell their money bags. Finger prints is no aid in their apprehension.

Minnesota schools will have several hundred thousand dollars available from Federal funds for vocational education next year under the George-Deen Bill passed by the last session of Congress Funds will be pro-rated to local school districts for the training of boys and girls in various trades and occupations, with particular importance given to agricultural training. Educators of the state will hold a conference at Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis, to discuss plans and programs some time in August.

Word comes from Washington that the original Lindbergh homestead at Melrose is to be included in the National Park Service's nation-wide survey of historic sites to determine which are worthy of national recognition and preservation......

Minnesota is justly proud of its famous flyer, but liberals of this state are also proud of the aviators famous father, Charles A. Lindbergh, who displayed the same fine courage in the face of howling reactionary mobs as his son did against the elements when he flew the Atlantic. However, we don't expect to see the government preserve the yellow paint pot with which the reactionaries smeared the Little Falls Lindbergh home during the war, nor the rails on which they threatened to ride him out of town.

The government will be asked to approve of drouth relief and water conservation projects in the Red River Valley basin costing approximately $10,000,000, as the result of the conference held at the Capitol last week between the planning boards of Minnesota, and North and South Dakota, Charles W. Eliot, executive officer of the National resources committee, and W. W. Horner, federal water consultant......

Plans for the projects have been drawn up. They include certain works to take care of a situation which now threatens the domestic water supply for communities in the district as well as a long-time program to deal with the subject in a permanent way. The federal government will do well to solve the drouth problem in this region for all time. This is the only sensible way of dealing with it.

R. W. Hitchcock, Republican publicist par-excellence, takes Harry H. Peterson, Attorney General for the State of Minnesota, over the coals....and when Hitchcock takes them, they're pretty hot....

Mr. Peterson has served the people as faithfully and competently as Mr. Hitchcock has served the reactionaries—and to a better purpose......

The fact that Mr. Hitchcock does not agree with the rulings of Mr. Peterson is very good evidence that these rulings were in the interests of the public. The fact that the Supreme Court has decided against Mr. Peterson on certain issues is—in view of the decisions of the courts on all questions affecting human welfare—to his credit. The voters of Minnesota will become suspicious on all matters—or when Republican Mouthpiece Hitchcock praises him......

In citing the cases in which Mr. Peterson was reversed, Mr. Hitchcock fails to cite the ones in which he was upheld. There was for instance the mortgage moratorium law upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court, one of the most important pieces of legislation passed in recent years; the State Income Tax law; the Homestead Tax Reduction Law which is today saving hundreds of thousands of dollars for home owners and farmers throughout the state; the victory in the Circuit Court of Appeals against the Banco Corporation when it attempted to restrain state officials from investigating its stock sales and financial manipulations; the development of the rate case against the Tri-State Telephone Company which justifies a twenty-five per cent reduction in telephone tolls for the St Paul area and which will be a yardstick in the fight to reduce rates all over the state.

* * * *

Here is an extract from a speech of Republican State Treasurer, Julius A. Schmahl made out in California many, many miles from home, where he undoubtedly thot he could take a chance on being more truthful in speaking of this particular subject than he could to a local audience......

"Minnesota has a bonded indebtedness of about $120,000,000, but of this amount $41,000,000 is for high ways, and is now being liquidated annually from receipts from auto licenses and gas tax receipts. Sixty three million dollars of the bonded indebtedness is rural credit bonds, and of that indebtedness I anticipate a loss of $21,000,000, which will have to be made good by direct taxation. The other items are certain state activities and can be liquidated at any reasonable time. SO PERFECT IS THE CREDIT OF THE STATE THAT WE ARE OFFERED SIX MONTHS GENERAL REVENUE CERTIFICATE LOANS AT A RATE OF THREE-FIFTHS OF ONE PER CENT"......

Incidentally, the $21,000,000 Rural Credits loss which Mr. Schmahl mentions was the result of administration of the bureau under Republican regime, due to the fact that the Republicans thought more of helping banks unload their worthless paper than they did of aiding the Minnesota farmers. This was unquestionably one of the most outstanding instances of corrupt administration of a law in the history of the state.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Ninth North W. C. T. U. District Convention held at Bemidji, June 16th and 17th in the Methodist church with Mrs. Alice Mae Stuart the District President of Ten Strike presiding was well attended and a most enjoyable and harmonious event. The welcome given by the Hostess Union of which Mrs. J. R. Veloske is president and by the Mayor Mr. Troppman, the Civic and Commerce Association, by the Ministerial group and by the toastmistress Miss Telulah Robinson of the State Teachers College was so genuine and the five point Centenary plan so well presented by guest speakers that all delegates and visitors were more than repaid by their attendance. The pleasure of hearing again our beloved Mrs. Harriet G. Northfield, State Vice President of Minneapolis was expressed by all and her presence there an inspiration.

Two State Directors were present during the convention namely: Mrs Ann E. Head, Bemidji, Director of Institutes, Mrs. Alma Levins, Crookston, Director of International Relations for Peace and for the banquet Mrs. Olive Elliot, St. Paul State Director of Scientific Temperance Instruction.

The Pearl Medal winner Tuesday evening was Miss Elizabeth Jorde, of Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

All officers of the District were re-elected and appointments of District Directors made. Resolutions adopted at the meeting will appear in next week's W. C. T. U. notes.

STARK TRAGEDY STALKS THE FARMS OF THE WEST IN WIDESPREAD DROUGHT

Leafless trees, relentless waves of dust that gradually engulf outbuildings and the very homestead itself, mark one of the nation's worst droughts. It is estimated that from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 persons in nine states are direct sufferers from the record-breaking heat wave that centers over North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming, where temperatures have for nearly two weeks ranged above 100 degrees. Cattle in huge droves are being driven from areas where all grazing has been burned to a crisp, leaving only a surface baked and cracked with the heat.

DISTRICT WINNERS WILL COMPETE AT THE STATE FAIR

Minnesota 4-H Club Girls To Also Compete In County Contests

Sub-district home economics achievement day contests, which began in the central district July 13, will be conducted from now on through Aug. 14 for Minnesota 4H girls in preparation for the wind-up of this year's home economics work at the 1936 Minnesota state fair, according to Miss Amy Wessel, state 4H club agent, University Farm, St. Paul

Each county will send girls to the sub district meets where demonstration teams and room furnishing and thrift exhibitors will compete for honors. District winners will compete for state honors and awards at the Minnesota state fair, September 5 to 12. County winners who will go directly to the fair include those girls who were selected at county achievement days on a county-wide basis, according to projects outlined for leaders this year. When district contests are completed, each of the four Minnesota districts will send four bread teams, three cake demonstrators, four canning teams, one canning individual demonstrator, 14 years old or over, four clothing teams, two room furnishing demonstrators, three meal planning and food preparation demonstrators and one thrift exhibitor to the state fair. Miss Wessel and Miss Mildred Schenck, members of the state extension 4H staff, will judge the district exhibits.

Dates of contests in the central district run from July 13 through July 20 at Foley, Long Prairie, Morris, Madison, Litchfield, Delano and Stillwater. Southern district contests will begin July 21 at Zumbrota in Goodhue county and then will be temporarily halted until July 27 when another will be conducted at Lewiston. Other contests will be held through Aug. 1 at Austin, Mankato, Fairmont, Pipestone and Redwood Falls. In the northeastern district, contests will be conducted from Aug. 3 through Aug. 8 at Brainerd, Grand Marais, Carlton, Grand Rapids and Baudette. Northwest district competitive meetings will be held from Aug. 10 through Aug. 14 at Roseau Crookston, Bemidji, Mahnomen and Fergus Falls

PAGEANT AND POW-WOW TO BE STAGED AT SMILEY

An Indian pageant and pow-wow will be staged at the Smiley Hall Sunday, July 19, under the auspices of the Smiley Community Club. The pageant, arranged and directed by Mrs. H. Holte, state chairman of Indian Welfare, will be a dramatic production in eight acts, with an Indian cast of sixty people, garbed in colorful tribal regalia depicting Indian life in the outdoors, Indian art, music, songs, and dancing.

The pageant will take place in the evening at eight o'clock. The afternoon program will be composed of band music, pow-wow, and singing.

Indians participating will be from Red Lake, Panema, Redby, and White Earth. One of the outstanding performers will be Pete Sitting, Chippewa Indian, and nationally famous dancer from Haskel Institute, Lawrence, Kansas

ATTENDING ENCAMPMENT AT CROSS LAKE

George W. Blake, state organizer for the Farmer Union Activities in Pennington county, left for Cross Lake to attend the Junior Encampment being held there. He will return to this city on July 20, to resume organization work in this county at once in an effort to push the projects to completion as soon as possible.

At present seven locals have been established in Pennington county, with membership ranging from seventy-eight to 165.

WPA CONTINUES ROAD PROJECTS; MINOR CHANGES

Destitute Farmers Are Given Work on Road Projects

WPA projects in the seventh district continued in operation this week under the new program, which in most essentials is unchanged from the procedure followed prior to June 30. Adoption of prevailing rates of wages and the new method of certification for WPA work were announced this week by Victor Christgau in official communications received by Merle Webb, WPA area engineer for Pennington County, thru the Detroit Lakes office of J. B. Kovarik, district director.

Details of the new WPA program were made public on July 1 when Mr. Christgau issued statements to the newspapers and spoke twice over the radio. Emphasized in the administrator's announcements was the fact that the new law providing for the continuation of the work program at prevailing wages, does not change the maximum monthly earnings. In the towns, villages and rural sections of this county, this remains at approximately $44 per month Inasmuch as new regulations retain the same maximum monthly wages, the only effect of the new pay schedule is to reduce slightly the total time that workers will put in each month.

In regard to the modification of the rule on eligibility for WPA work, Mr. Christgau said persons now must be "in need of relief" and that the same agency that certifies people to the relief rolls will give to WPA lists of those who are in need of relief. Previously, only those who had been on relief some time between May 1 and Nov. 1, 1935, were eligible as project workers. Under the revised rules, there will be no such eligibility period.

WPA will continue to operate on a quota basis, Mr. Christgau said, and each district will be given a quota of so many jobs, depending upon the amount of money that is alloted to the state. Where the number who are certified as in need of relief is greater than the quota, then assignments to jobs will be on the basis of those most needy, most efficient and best qualified to work on the projects to be undertaken. The number of WPA jobs available in Minnesota continues at 45,000, the full quota for June.

WPA officials last week put in motion machinery to relieve distress that has followed the drouth in central western Minnesota. Farmers who are destitute as a result of the lack of rain are being given WPA employment on road work, water conservation projects and rural school house construction jobs. Approximately 1,500 were put to work this week, following a meeting held in St. Paul at which Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA administrator, presided. Granted full authority by Mr Hopkins to act in the drouth situation, Mr. Christgau lost no time in getting his program under way. Conferences were held last week in Morris, Detroit Lakes and Crookston to cut red tape and assure immediate and effective action. Allotment of funds and assignment of jobs in connection with the drouth relief are in addition to regular WPA avictities.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

DAMAGE CASE ENDED BY HIGH COURT RULING

Decisions Made In Johnson, Vogel Cases Present Exactly Opposite Verdicts

The following clipping taken from the Crookston Times will be of interest to many of our readers who are familiar with the accident, persons concerned and the various phases of the two court cases as they were fought in the courts; also the findings of the industrial commission, etc.

"The Minnesota supreme court today sustained the decision of the industrial commission that the late Fred W. Johnson, killed in an automobile accident in 1934, was not in the course of his employment as a salesman for Finch-Winslow-Carlisle when the accident occurred. Copies of the decision were received here today.

In so doing the state supreme court presents for all time one of the strangest contradictions known to law, according to local legal authorities. Less than six months ago, acting in an appeal in another suit arising out of the same accident, the supreme court sustained a Polk county district court jury's decision that Mr Johnson had been in the pursuit of his employer's business at the time of the accident.

Two Suits Follow

Two suits arose out of the accident in which two persons, Mr. Johnson and Joseph Vogel of Fergus Falls were killed. Mrs. Rachael Vogel, widow of the latter, brought suit against Finch-Winslow-Carlisle and the American Insurance company on the ground that her husband's death resulted from Johnson's negligence during the course of his employment. The suit was tried in Polk county district court and a jury awarded Mrs. Vogel a $7,500 verdict, the maximum allowed by law. An appeal was taken to the state supreme court and that court upheld the verdict of the district court that Mr. Johnson was in the course of his employment at the time of the accident.

Meanwhile Mrs. Hazel Johnson, widow of Fred Johnson, was bringing suit against her husband's employ and their insurance company under the workmen's compensation law.

Referee's Verdict Reversed

Charles Hatch, referee for the industrial commission, heard the evidence in the case and gave a decision in favor of Mrs. Johnson. The wholesale company and its insurers took an appeal to the industrial commission, which reversed the decision of its referee after reviewing the evidence taken in the hearing here. W. E Rowe, acting as attorney for Mrs. Johnson, then appealed to the state supreme court from the industrial commission's decision, and it is this decision which the state supreme court has upheld.

Commenting upon the decision, and the strange situation which arises from it, Mr. Rowe said today:

"The unfortunate decision reveals a dangerous loophole in the workmen's compensation law. In keeping with its previously asserted practice in such cases, the supreme court in effect clothes the industrial commission with final authority in cases coming before it.

Could Be Either Way

"Here, the supreme court said: "The case is one where the finding of the commission either way on this fact issue would be sufficiently sustained by the evidence." It is thus seen that the injured employe or, in case of his accidental death, his dependents are left to the mercy of a trio whose say-so, withoutt hearing a breath of testimony or observing any witness, but upon a cold typewritten transcript, becomes a closed and final decision. It is unbelievable that such arbitrary authority was ever intended to be conferred upon the commission.

"The supreme court's record in the two cases presents, of course, opposite and wholely inconsistent results: In the Vogel negligence case a jury of twelve found that at the time of the fatal accident Johnson was engaged within the scope of his employment. The referee of the commission who heard and saw the witnesses in the widow's compensation case said there was no 'great discrepancy in the testimony,' and decided that the fatal acident 'arose out of and in the course' of Johnson's employment and awarded compensation. In appeal of the employer, Nash-Finch company, and its insurance company, the industrial commission decided, on a typewritten transcript of the testimony taken before its referee, that the employe, Fred Johsson, was not at the time of the accident, engaged in line of duty, and disallowed compensation. The supreme court said that the commission could have decided, on the evidence, either way; that it, the supreme court, could not make original findings of fact in such cases. Thus the record of the supreme court is made, and, as so made, it presents for all time one of the strangest anomalies, if not one of the most absurd results known to the law

"To say the least, the ligislature should remedy the law so as to prevent the reoccurance of such evil consequences."

THIRD TIME UNLUCKY

For some time complaints had been made that William was not working very hard at school.

At last his father spoke to him and, hoping to cure him of his laziness, promised him a pound note at the end of each term if his report showed that he was really working.

At the end of the first term after the compact had been made, the report said, "Trying," and William received his monetary reward.

The next report said, "Still trying," and once more father paid up.

At the end of the third term, however, the true facts of the case were made clear.

The report was: "Still more trying."

"Around The Town" Revue at the Fair

"Around the Town", the swiftest moving and most refreshingly modern of the new musical revues to play before outdoor audiences this season, is scheduled to appear nightly as the feature grandstand attraction at the Pennington County Fair, according to Robert Lund, secretary of the Fair.

"Around the Town" has much to recommend it to all who like a musical show that sizzles with action. It's chorus is made up of young and pretty girls, trained to a degree of perfection in the most difficult types of dancing. Whether its a tap or eccentric dance, or one that calls for real acrobatic ability, these young women respond with a dash that's a joy to watch.

The ladies in the audience are certain to agree that "Around the Town" has dressed its cast in the height of stage fashion. It is doubtful if any show of this size and character can boast a more alluring eye-full of the costume designer's art.

An 8 piece orchestra, composed of musicians and specialty artists, provide the lilting music for "Around the Town." These boys are not only qualified to play for a musical revue, but they play the kind of music that people like to whistle for days after the fair is over. All have had experience on the stage and radio and have their music libraries filled with teasing tunes During their stay at the Pennington County Fair they'll offer a series of novel specialties that are a rare treat for the most critical show-goer.

STARTS NUDISTS COLONY IN STORE SHOW WINDOW

Park Rapids—It may have just been the familiar smell of sawdust and it certainly was partly due to an over indulgence in spiritous liquors that caused a resident of Ponsford to choose the show window of a Park Rapids butcher shop in which to take off his clothes and go to sleep. Imagine the surprise of Patrolman Jack Smith early on Sunday morning to see lying in the window, clad in nothing but Nature's endowment, a slumbering man! Smith was in a frenzy to get the man's clothes on before the early churchgoers started past, and finally succeeded in taking the still sleepy individual to the place provided for those in his condition. Police had the option of charging him with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, or breaking and entering but chose the former charge and he was fined $27.50 Monday morning, leaving for home an infinitely sadder and soberer man.

Reports state that a group of swindlers, claiming to be eye doctors, are operating thruout the country obtaining in many cases large sums of money from unsuspecting persons, usually elderly persons, whom they believe well-to-do. These swindlers usually call at the home of their intended victims with the claim that they have been sent there to check glasses the victims wear. Minnesota residents are warned to be on the lookout for this class of swindlers and if they make their appearance to notify officials at once.

BROTHERS PASS ON WAY TO VISIT EACH OTHER

Roseau—H. B. Rognlie of Roseau and his brother Fred of Churches Ferry, N. D., have their birthdays the same day, although the former is eight years the senior. They had not seen each other for a long time, and both planned to surprise the other. The Roseau Rognlie started out via car to surprise his brother by a visit to Churches Ferry, and when he got there he found that Fred had left for Roseau with the same idea They had actually passed each other on the road. While they failed to meet each other, each one spent an enjoyable day with the other's family. Next year they will probably make a date with each other.

CORN HAS TASSELS, EARS ON JULY FIRST

New Richland—The corn growing championship has been awarded with little fear of competition to Ed Casper, New Richland farmer, who had a four acre field of flint corn, that broke all records for that part of the country. On July 1 this corn was fully tasseled with well formed ears, and Casper stated that scoffers could come out and have a roasting ear to prove it. The field was planted on April 27 and had nearly a two week's start on other fields in the same community. To beat this on July 1, you must have had your corn in the crib!

FINDS TWO LAMBS IN EWE CUT OPEN FOR FEED

Balaton—To some readers this may sound like a wild story, but you may see proof gamboling about the yard of the G. A. Dennin home nort hof Balaton any day. W. H. Towne, a neighbor, reported to Dennin that two of his ewes had been injured by a dog believed to be Dennin's, and asked for settlement. Dennin paid for the sheep and took one of them nin home north of Balaton any hog feed. He had killed the ewe and was cutting open the carcass when he noticed signs of life within. He proceeded more carefully and soon removed two lambs alive and well. The lambs were fed at first from a spoon, but were soon drinking from a bottle. Now they graze in the yard and they still come to the house regularly for their drink of milk.

FOR WHAT?

E. M. Jackson

This painting showing vividly the futility and the heartbreak of war, was done expressly for the Emergency Peace Campaign, which is now engaged in a two-year nation-wide drive to solidify anti-war sentiment in the United States. The artist, Elbert M. Jackson, donated his services to the campaign.

The picture was selected from a number submitted to the EPC when it asked for designs for a peace poster. It has been exhibited at the Society of Illustrators' Exhibition in Rockefeller Center, New York, and reproduced on thousands of pamphlets.

Among the prominent national figures taking part in the peace campaign is Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, Washington, D. C.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

A pretty girl, Marian; all fluff and gurgle. She and Barry had the table conversation pretty much to themselves. Patricia put in a word occasionally, but she was distressed about her father, and with reason, for the Judge seemed suddenly worn out. Exhilarated by this newest escape, Barry was almost brilliant. They were finishing their coffee, when Marian said, "Do you still play?"

"Bridge or golf?" he asked.

"Silly! The violin, of course! I hope you haven't been flattering yourself that it was you I remember. It wasn't. I didn't even know whether your hair was dark or fair, but I'll never forget the way you played the Liebestod."

"You never told me you played," Pat said.

"Oh, I don't any more. That was a youthful indiscretion."

"Youthful genius, I call it!" Marian persisted. "That night was full of music, Pat. A party at Betty Fletcher's. I came late, as usual, and the lights were very low, and Mr. Ridder was just beginning the Liebestod. Little you knew what an admirer you left in that darkened room."

"Shame on you!" exclaimed Patricia. "You've got to play for me now."

Waterloo.

"I haven't touched a violin since I left college," Barry protested. "I don't even know where the old fiddle is."

"Mine's upstairs," Marian interjected. "I'll bring it down."

And she bounded out of the room.

"I can't play any more," Barry held out lamely, "and I flatly decline to destroy Miss Lorn's illusions, or yours."

"No excuses," Pat said, very definitely. "Come on; we'll go into the drawing room."

As they passed through the old fashioned sliding doors, Marian, instrument in hand, reappeared.

"I'll accompany you," she insisted, "and I've brought the Liebestod."

"That's great," Barry said, "but I warn you—"

Patricia was opening the piano.

"I warn you," Barry said, "I'm going to make the most awful sounds human ears ever heard."

And, with that, he pulled together the double doors.

"Ouch!" he exclaimed.

They all turned to him.

"What's the matter?" Pat asked.

"Nothing serious," Barry replied, calmly. "I've slammed the doors on my fingers."

He held up his right hand.

It was crushed badly.

Everybody was extremely solicitous, and Pat wanted to send for the doctor.

"Certainly," Barry declared. "It's only broken the skin."

"I'll take care of it now," Patricia said, dispatching the butler for witch-hazel and bandages.

"Well, that's the end of the violin playing," Marian remarked.

"I'm afraid so. Wasn't I stupid?"

"Not at all," Patricia answered, manipulating the gauze deftly.

"The Judge wanted to go to bed early, anyway. I wonder whether you'd mind telephoning for Evans?"

"I'll run you home in the roadster," Pat volunteered, touching the bell again.

"It's been a swell evening," Barry insisted, giving Marian his left hand. "Pleasant surprise, meeting you here. This isn't good-by, is it?"

"That's up to you. I'll be around until Monday."

"Good night, Judge, and I hope you feel better tomorrow."

The roadster had been brought to the door, and Patricia climbed into it. "I'll be back soon," she promised.

Five minutes later, the car halted in front of the Ridder house.

"Thanks awfully," Barry said.

"Don't mention it."

There was something very like mockery in her voice.

"And, Mr. Gilbert—"

For an instant, Barry wasn't certain he had heard aright.

"You've got courage," Patricia went on. "I'll say that for you. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Barry floundered helplessly.

"No? Well, maybe I'll tell you sometime."

She laughed.

"Meanwhile"—as he alighted from the car—"I'd watch my step, if I were you."

"I'm all right," Barry rejoined.

"That depends," Patricia said. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think."

She put her foot on the accelerator, and the car moved away.

CHAPTER V

PAT knew of his imposture.

That was clear. And what else?

For hours after her car had left him at the door, Barry sat in the library of the big house where he had no right to be, thinking, thinking. And the more he thought, the more complete was his mystification.

Every word Pat had spoken, every intonation, was impressed on his mind. "And, Mr. Gilbert—" she had said. "You've got courage. And a grand sense of melodrama. I suppose you picked that up in Hollywood."

How did she know?"

Obviously, the crushed finger had not deceived her.

After all, that would have been simple. The vague recollection of his appearance in a picture; an old circular, with his photograph. Not without pride, Barry reflected that he had won mention in advertising before he left Hollywood. What did it matter, anyway? She knew. And she had advised him to watch his step. "You're being a little bit reckless, I think," she had warned.

Was that a warning—or a threat? And why should Pat threaten? The answer to that was apparent. "She doesn't want me to ask questions about her father. But why not? What is she trying to conceal?"

That, too, was easily answered.

Of course, there had been no taxi accident in Times square. It was absurd to suppose that two cabs had mounted the pavement and killed two women almost simultaneously. The Judge's accident had been at Sixteenth street. What was he doing down there—a hundred yards from Mike Kelly's—at two in the morning? The same morning Kelly was murdered? A few hours before the filing of a decision alleged to have been dictated by Kelly.

"None of my business!" Barry snapped at himself. "I'm not a detective." But why should Pat be afraid of investigation?

Why "afraid?" She was worried about her father's condition, and did not want him harassed needlessly. Under the circumstances, of course, she resented Barry's probings. "But, damn it," Barry exclaimed, "she began resenting before I even mentioned her father!"

He made an effort to marshal his facts.

"Three things are clear," he began. "Kelly was expecting some one when Jack left . . . Or was he? Winslow doubted that, too. Anyway, Kelly told Jack someone telephoned. And then Hambidge arrived at Sixteenth street. Hambidge denies that he did so. And then Hambidge's daughter warns me—"

He had begun pacing the floor.

Suppose the Judge had killed Kelly. What did that prove? "I'm assuming that Kelly compelled this decision," Barry reminded himself. "Well, if he did, why should it have been filed after the compulsion was removed? It was filed the next morning. That certainly indicates that the Judge knew nothing about Kelly's death."

Once more Barry heard the hall clock strike three.

"I'm arguing in circles," he thought. "And getting nowhere. That's where I've been getting all week. Gumming things up, too. Tipping off witnesses, and making a complete nuisance of myself. I said three things were clear, and they weren't, but two are. I've landed myself in a mess, and the sooner I get out of it the better for everybody.

"If I clear out, and let things take their course, I might come back, some day, when I've really made good—"

His hand still hurt the next morning, but the resolution to "clear out" remained fixed.

And he was still dreaming.

"Some day, when I've made good—"

Willetts interrupted.

He was serving breakfast, at the moment.

"I was talking to Evans, sir."

"Yes?"

"Telling him what you told me last night, sir—concerning Mrs. Rogers, and the Kelly murder. Evans thinks it's very significant, what you said about Kelly expecting somebody after Rogers left."

"He does, eh?"

"Yes, sir. And he thinks he can find who it was."

Barry opened his egg.

"He'd like to tell you his scheme, sir."

"It's no use," Barry observed, curtly. "I've decided to drop the whole business."

"Yes, sir."

Willetts went on serving, but there was disapproval in his manner. Barry felt it, as he had twice before.

"Any reason why I shouldn't drop it?"

"That's for you to say, sir."

"But you think there is a reason. All right; sit down and tell me about it."

"I couldn't, sir. My position won't permit of my sitting down in the presence of my employer. It isn't done, sir. And your position won't allow of you leaving a woman in the lurch, sir. If you don't mind my saying so, that isn't done, either."

In utter amazement, Barry merely stared at him.

"You see," Willetts continued, quite forgetting himself, "a gentlemen's got certain responsibilities. That's what makes him a gentleman. You said this lady's 'in trouble up to her neck.' It looks to me, as though you were bound to make good, no matter what's happened."

He paused, and then his own impetus carried him on.

"You said, 'I've been a loafer most of my life.' A loafer might 'drop the whole business.' There's no reason he shouldn't. But it looks to me as if a gentleman ought to carry on, sir."

"You're right, Willetts. Tell Evans I'll be glad to see him in the library."

Barry, the "bum," had stepped into a gentleman's shoes, and found that they had to be kept shining.

Now he had an income, and was "in luxury and papa's office." "I won't be there long," Barry thought, "if I defy Pat. Anyway, I'm a gentleman, for the moment, and a gentleman can't 'abandon ladies in distress.'"

Pat was a lady in distress, too, he reflected. "In trouble up to her neck." "The way I went on last night," he ruminated, "anybody'd have thought that I thought the Judge killed Mike. What nonsense. That harmless old chap. If there's any chance of his being involved, why then it's up to me to find who did the trick. I've got two men to get out of difficulties."

Evans found him ready for the "scheme."

"As I get it from Willetts," Evans said, "somebody telephoned Kelly that he was coming right over. What would you do after you'd done that, sir?"

"Well, what would I do?"

"You'd hop in a taxi."

"Probably."

"So we want to round up the taxi-drivers that were in the neighborhood at that time. Luckily, there was an accident, Willetts tells me. My plan is to advertise—like as if we was the relations of the deceased lady. Fifty dollars reward for information leading to spotting the cab that deceased her."

"And then?"

"Then we third-degree everybody that answers the ad. 'Did you see the accident? How did you happen to be there? It might turn the trick."

Evans was full of Barry's own zest for "sleuthing."

It was arranged that the advertisement should instruct applicants to write to box something-or-other at the newspaper.

Evans was enjoying himself thoroughly.

"Reading the newspapers, sir, I ask myself a lot of questions about this here Kelly. Then Chink says he got home around eleven. Willetts says Mrs. Rogers says he left the Cocoanut bar around nine. Where did he go then? His chauffeur would know, wouldn't he? You'd be surprised how chauffeurs loosen up to each other."

"I get you."

"Simple, ain't it? We find out where Kelly garages. Then I drive you in every Sunday, and keep the car in the same place. And I sugar up to the guy that drove Kelly. It mightn't lead to nothing, but then again, sir, it might, sir."

All of Evans' suggestions were followed the next afternoon.

And Monday, by appointment, Barry brought Mrs. Rogers to Winslow.

Harwood certainly had not overstated Peter's skill at cross-examination. Sitting opposite Peggy, the attorney led her gently into reminiscence, from which, again and again, he seized upon a word or a phrase as leading to possible material for the defense.

For the first time, the thing took on pattern. Casually, verifying every statement Jack had made to him. "Tell the story in your own way, Mrs. Rogers . . . Did your husband say anything about getting even when he left you? No. What time was that? What time did he return? Wasn't gone long, was he? Not really long enough for a violent quarrel?"

"I've told you," Peggy declared; "they were drinking together. And then the phone rang—"

"How do you know it rang?"

"Jack heard it. And he heard some one answer it."

"Some one."

"Jack isn't sure whether it was Kelly or the Filipino. They were both in the hall. Anyway, Kelly came back, and said he was expecting somebody."

"Did he say whom?"

"No."

"Did he say whether it was a man or a woman?"

"I don't think so." Peggy paused. "But it might've been a woman."

Peter nodded to Barry.

"Cherchez la femme."

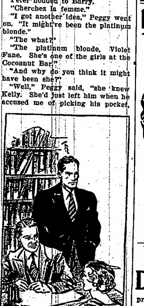
"I got another idea," Peggy went on. "It might've been the platinum blonde."

"The what?"

"The platinum blonde, Violet Fane. She's one of the girls at the Cocoanut Bar."

"And why do you think it might have been she?"

"Well," Peggy said, "she knew Kelly. She'd just left him when he accused me of picking his pocket, and Morano'd been talking to her, just before that. She might've phoned Kelly to get me off."



"And Why Do You Think It Might Have Been She?"

Winslow made a note of this.

"I'll find out," he promised.

The interview lasted nearly two hours, and gave both of the visitors fresh confidence.

"They'll indict Jack," Winslow prophesied, as his callers were going. "Probably today. But don't let that worry you. A grand jury hears only one side. We'll do our talking at the trial."

"When will that be?"

"As soon as possible. We're ready now. They have no case. Just the Filipino's evidence that Jack was there. We admit that. But we deny either a motive or a quarrel."

"He's got brains, all right," Barry told Peggy, in the elevator.

"Yes," Peggy returned, a bit throatily. "He's got brains, and a heart."

BUILDING DAMAGED BY FIRE BEING REPAIRED

Work on the Red River Valley Livestock Association Building which was badly damaged by fire at opening of the Winter Shows last February, is rapidly nearing completion, according to O. M. Kiser, Secretary of the Association. The fire gutted the main livestock barn, thus necessitating the construction of new partitions, floors, roof, windows, and doors. It was also necessary to replace the electrical equipment throughout.

The repair work is being done by Otto Eichof, Contractor, under the supervision of a committee representing the Livestock Association. This committee is composed of J. H. Sargent, Director; P. M. Finkenbinder, member of the Advisory Board, and O. M. Kiser.

Officers of the Red River Valley Livestock Association include Dr. A. A Dowell, President; F. A. Green, Stephen, Vice-President; A. A. Habedank, Ada, Treasurer; O. M. Kiser, Secretary; together with the following Directors: Wm. Ash, St. Vincent; E. E. Carmen, Ada; J. H. Sargent, Crookston; M. E. Dahl, Twin Valley; Paul Engelstad, Crookston; C. C. Chase, Mahnomen; and Herman Strander, of Crookston

STATE TO ELIMINATE CLAY CO. RAIL CROSSING

Bids have been called for July 24 by the Minnesota highway department for construction of an 80 foot beam span underpass of three spans, to eliminate the Northern Pacific railroad grade crossing over Trunk Highway No. 32, three-fourths of a mile west of Manitoba Junction, in Clay county. The job also will include a mile of grading and 40,389 cubic yards of excavation.

BREAKS WINDOW TO GET TERM IN JAIL

Waseca—Stranger Thomas Cody, stranded in Waseca with nothing to eat, adopted the very practical idea of making the county pay for his food and lodging. He walked down the main street and threw a brick through the plate glass window in Charles A. Smith's office next door to the city hall, and then waited for the police to dash out and arrest him. The stranger immediately informed police they must feed him when they put him in jail. When arraigned in court the next day on a disorderly conduct charge, he pleaded not guilty and was remanded to the county jail for further observation. It was thought at the time the man was either mentally deranged or a confirmed criminal. Smith carried insurance on his window and will suffer no financial loss. It was the third time the window has been broken.

SOME SWIMMERS SHOULD NOT GO NEAR THE WATER

Chief Among These are Sufferers from Sinus Trouble or Ear Infections, Doctors Say

St. Paul, Minnesota—There are people who may hang most of their clothes on a hickory limb but, like the girl in the song, must not go near the water.

Members of the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association put people who suffer from sinus trouble or ear infections first on this list.

Even healthy nasal passages are likely to be irritated when water from the lake or swimming pool is forced into them violently as it often is in diving or under water swimming. When the sinuses or passages leading to the ears are already inflamed or diseased, serious damage occurs. Many grave middle ear and mastoid infections are traced each year to unwise swimming and particularly to swimming under water.

People with head colds are particularly warned to stay out of the water until the trouble clears up.

Swimming is a healthful sport according to the physicians, if it is indulged in intelligently and with sensible recognition of the risks involved.

Even expert swimmers should not make long distance swims alone and without knowledge of anyone who could come to their assistance in case of accident. Neither should they dive into unknown waters where unsuspected rocks or timbers might be in their way. In case of illness of any kind all swimmers should be certain, first, that the trouble will not be aggravated by swimming before they go near the water.

INVESTIGATOR HIRED TO CHECK ASSISTANCE CASES

The county board of Pennington County, at its meeting held this week, hired John Lynsky, who has been employed in Cass County, as investigator of old age assistance applications. He will work on the cases of those applicants who are at the present time receiving assistance and will also investigate new applications as they are made.

The budget levied for Pennington County for the year 1936 is $112,000, as compared with the levy of $101,000 for 1935. The increase is due chiefly to the increased amount of the county share of old age assistance.

DECIDE TO HOLD PICNIC ON AUGUST 2

On Thursday, July 9, the Goodridge-Reiner, Highlanding and Star Farmer-Labor clubs held a special joint meeting in the school house of District No. 59 in Star township, for the purpose of deciding whether or not they should have a picnic this year. It was decided that the picnic will be held Sunday, August 2.

Paul Harris of this city, spoke at the meeting. Other numbers on the program were violin and accordian selections by Selmer Ramsey and George Hovet. Lunch was served.

Many Farmers In Pennington Aided

When the Farm Credit Administration was established 3 years ago it began at once to cope with the problem of halting farm foreclosures, and reduced these from the peak of nearly 40 foreclosures a year per 1000 farms to less than half that number by the end of 1935.

This was largely accomplished through the commissioners loans, which are made at 5 per cent and on either first or second mortgages, as compared with land bank loans now made at 4 per cent on first mortgages up to half the value of the farm property. Commissioner's loans in certain cases may be made for as much as 75 per cent of the value of the property mortgaged.

Typical of the increased services to farmers of the whole country in the last 3 years are the figures for Pennington county. On May 1, 1933 there were 52 farmers who had land bank loans in this county compared with 179 who had loans through the land bank at the beginning of this year. The amount of credit outstanding rose from $122,000 to $391,000 during the same period.

This large increase in the amount of loans outstanding has made very little if any increase in the total indebtedness of Pennington county farmers, Nelson said, because about 9 out of every 10 dollars borrowed went to pay off debts that already existed.

Mortgage loans in this country are handled by the local farm loan association, one of more than 5000 that have been organized by groups of farmers during the last 20 years.

Short-term loans for livestock and crop production, purchase of farm supplies and the making of improvements and repairs are handled through the Thief River Falls Production Credit association, which includes Pennington, Red Lake, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, northern half Beltrami counties. Since this association was established in 1934 it has made 434 loans to its members aggregating $153,000.

OLE TORKELSON

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon, July 18, at the Torkelson home in Red Lake county at one o'clock and at the Clear water church at two o'clock, for Ole Torkelson, who died at his home July 13. Reverend Fladmark will officiate at the services. Mr. Torkelson, a pioneer resident of Red Lake county, was born in Sattersdalen, Norway on December 6, 1871, being at the time of his death sixty-four years of age. He came from Norway to the United States at the age of twelve years, making his home for some time at Fisher, Minnesota. He was married at Grand Forks, North Dakota, in 1898, to Margit Karlson, and moved on a homestead near Oklee, where he lived until the time of his death His wife, his sons Nere, Tom, Knute, Bennie, Martin, Carl and Oscar, all of Oklee, Isaac of Fisher, and Asmond of Chinook, Montana, his daughters, Bertha and Margaret of Oklee and Mrs. Steen Bergland of Oklee and his sisters Mrs. K. Norgaard of Erskine and Mrs. Bertha Isaacson of Fisher, are the surviving relatives.

ALFRED ANDERSON

Funeral services will be held on Friday morning in the Young and Larson Funeral Home at Middle River, Reverend Trelstad of Middle River officiating, for Alfred Anderson, who died at Anoka, Minnesota, July 13, 1936, at the age of thirty-nine years. He was born on March 19, 1897 Surviving relatives are his brothers, Arthur and Wayne Anderson of Middle River, his sisters, Mrs. Temet Pikkarainan of Ottertail, Mrs. Oscar Kleemola of McGee, Saskatchewan, Canada, Mrs. Ida Anderson of Fergus Falls, Minnesota, and Mrs. Peter Oftedahl of this city.

EVEN ANDERSON

Even Anderson died July 11 at his home near Rosewood. He was born June 29, 1849, in Hedmarken, Norway, and came to the United States in the spring of 1883, settling at Grand Forks, North Dakota. He was married to Maria Matheson in 1885 in Sanders township, and in the same year moved with his wife to Rosewood, where he lived until five years ago, when he went to live with his stepson, Albert Paulson. He is survived by his sons Emil Anderson and Albert Paulson, both of Rosewood, and six grandchildren; his wife preceded him in death in 1926. Funeral services were held on July 15, at the home in Rosewood and at the Rindahl church at Rosewood. Rev. E. L. Tungseth officiated.

Due to the continued dry weather and lack of moisture, grain prices are again advancing after a setback. All grains advanced from two cents to five cents per bushel during the past two days.

Farm and Implement News

A New Farm Lighting Plant

We have just placed in stock a new "Mercury Marvel" Farm lighting plant that we believe is a big value.

This new plant, including a Lawson four cycle engine and generator, delivers complete at only $69.50

You can use an ordinary starting battery, or we have the regular 120 Ampere Hour batteries which sell for $69.50

This plant has a capacity of 300 watts and strong enough to carry ten to twelve lamps, sufficient for any farm home.

We have a demonstrator set up on our sample floor and we invite your inspection.

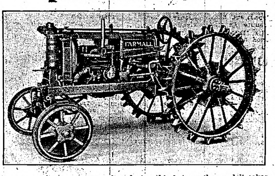
BINDER TWINE

We now have a very substantial supply of twine on hand in McCormick-Deering and Minnesota Prison. All best quality twine and priced right We have always sold the largest volume twine each year and we hope to warrant the continued patronage of our old customers and new customers to be added

Stacker and Barn Hay Carrier Rope

We have a good supply of Minnesota Prison Rope in stock and of best quality in all common sizes. We solicit your rope requirements, and guarantee satisfaction.

Save Your Horses



Many good horses have died during this hot weather and it takes money to replace a good horse. We know that a McCormick-Deering Farmall tractor is the best substitute for farm power. It is the tractor that fits in for all farm jobs as none other will. If it isn't a McCormick-Deering it isn't a Farmall. The "F12" Farmall with a 7 ft. Power mower is the most perfect equipment for cutting hay, and with it goes the Power Sweep Rake and all the other machines for every field job with quick attachable connections and couplings for all. If you are ready for that hay job or harvest, we will be happy to prove to you just what a Farmall will mean to you.

Pennington Co. Fair to Give Away Plymouth

We sold the Plymouth Sedan that is to be given away at the Pennington County Fair the last week of July. WE, will give you your choice of a PLYMOUTH 2 Door Sedan or the INTERNATIONAL "C1" LONG WHEEL BASE PICKUP TRUCK if you are the lucky winner. You may have a good automobile and would rather have this fine truck, and we give you your choice.

Special Truck Bodies

We were fortunate in getting a very good buy on a few new Truck Grain Tanks and Stock Racks that we can offer at less than half price. This is a very fine lot of new clean jobs. If you want a good bargain in used trucks to go with any of these new truck bodies we sure have just that also.

DROUTH CAUSES MODIFICATIONS IN NEW SETUP

Modifications Designed To Preserve all Forage for Livestock Feed

SOIL-CONSERVING ACREAGE URGED

If Unable to Understand How to Get Benefits Inquire of Co. Agent

Modifications of the 1936 Agricultural Conservation Program, to meet the emergency resulting from drought conditions in the North Central or Corn Belt Region, were announced today by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Claude R. Wickard, Acting Director of the North Central Division, pointed out that these modifications are designed to preserve all available forage for livestock feed; to encourage farmers to increase their amount of forage crops for fall and winter feeding, and to provide as large an acreage as possible of soil-conserving crops for 1937.

An additional revision provides for the acceptance of proof of performance other than a good stand of a soil-conserving crop, if the failure to obtain a good stand was caused by conditions beyond the control of the farmer.

These revisions in the provisions of the program will apply to the entire region consisting of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

The substance of the modifications which have been made, and which will become effective immediately throughout the 10 states, is as follows:

1. Good stand of soil-conserving crop on land from which a grain hay or annual legume hay is harvested is classed as soil conserving—Land from which a crop of grain hay or annual legume hay, such as soybeans and field-peas, has been harvested in 1936 will be classified as soil-conserving provided a good stand of a soil conserving crop is growing on this land when performance is checked later in the year. The kind, rate, and time of seeding the soil-conserving crop is growing on this land when performance is checked later in the year. The kind, rate, and time of seeding the soil-conserving crop will be subject to recommendations made by the State Agricultural Conservation Committee.

This provision will not only add to the production of feed and roughage on farms in the Corn Belt this year but by encouraging late summer and early fall seedings of legumes and grasses, it will offer a definite incentive to farmers to take steps this year to provide for pasture and hay crops in 1937 and thereby get back to a more normal acreage of soil-conserving crops.

It is further pointed out that a good stand of legumes and grasses this coming winter and early spring will tend to prevent wind and water erosion on land that otherwise might be void of vegetation because of drought.

2. Proof of performance other than a good stand—Farmers who have seeded soil-conserving crops in accordance with good farming practice but who have lost such crops because of drought, insect infestations, or other conditions beyond their control, may qualify for soil-conserving and soil-building payments on this land. It will be necessary, however, that these farmers provide sufficient evidence that soil-conserving crops were seeded in accordance with good farming practice. Prior to this modification, a good stand of soil-conserving crops constituted the only acceptable proof of performance in the North Central Region.

As noted in modification No. 1, however, a good stand will be the only proof of performance on land from which a crop of grain hay or annual legume hay has been harvested.

TODAY'S TAXOGRAPH

Fifty-two taxes are hidden in every loaf of bread you buy, according to a recent study of the mounting tax burden. The farmer pays 6 taxes; the grain elevator pays 6 taxes; the flour mill pays 4 taxes; the railroad which transports the ingredients pays 11 taxes; the flour trucker pays 7 taxes: the bread wrapper manufacturer pays 7 taxes; the bakery 11 taxes.

Fifty-two taxes in all. Count them.

Lake Development Association Meets

ADEQUATE SUPPLY OF WATER IS CONSIDERED

The committee of the Red Lake River Development Association convened at the Evelyn Hotel in this city Friday evening and discussed ways and means of procuring a federal grant for the development of the Red Lake River into a source of adequate water supply for the cities in this section situated on the banks of the river. The committee delegated E. L. Lium to go to St. Paul and confer with State Safety Commissioner Zimmermann regarding the river development project and plans. Members of the committee are Chairman Morris Bye of this city, E. L. Lium of Grand Forks, Harry Horn of East Grand Forks, and Lee Boyd of Crookston.

A special committee representing the Minnesota State Planning Board made a trip here in June to investigate the Red Lake River Project as well as all other projects having any bearing on the Red River of the North. A report of their findings was prepared and presented to the State Planning boards of Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota, at a meeting held July 8, in St. Paul, which Morris Bye attended as a representative from the Red Lake River Development Association.

The Red Lake River project contemplates the construction of an improved channel in the upper Red Lake River and the regulation of Red Lake so as to provide a water flow to meet the sanitary requirements of the principle cities along the river. In its report the committee urged that a pilot channel be dug in the Red Lake river between the outlet of Red Lake and Highlanding, a distance of forty-four miles, before the winter of 1936. The committee recommended that the remainder of the work be completed during 1937 so that the expenditure of the excavation of the pilot channel would not be lost. The report presented to the State Planning Boards estimates of costs and quantities needed for the completion of the project. The total estimated cost, including improvement of spillway at outlet, excavation of channel, purchase of

Railroad Pensions Become Effective

The plan for a national retirement system for all railroad workers became a reality Monday, July 13, when the United States Treasury deposited in the mails checks made out to the first 18 annuitants to benefit from the new system. The retirement system is one that the Standard Railroad Labor organizations, operating through the Railway Labor Executives association, have been striving to put into operation for several years.

Other checks will be issued to retired railroad workers in all parts of the United States as soon as the board can complete the task of certifying claims to the treasury, it was assured. Some 4,000 railroad workers are immediately eligible for these annuities, and more than 20,000 other railroad workers have made application for these annuities.

Formal announcement of the operation of the system was made by the chairman of the Retirement Board at a press conference in Washington, D. C., on July 11, after the chairman and his associates had conferred with President Roosevelt, the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department, and received their approval to proceed with the payment of pensions without waiting for a final decision by the higher courts.

Governor Olson Shows Steady Improvement

Governor Floyd B. Olson sat up in bed and read as Mayo clinic physicians pronounced his condition satisfactory Wednesday.

The official bulletin issued said: "The patient's condition is satisfactory. He is taking his nourishment well. Nausea continues somewhat. Temperature, pulse and respiration are normal. He is sitting up in bed reading. He plans to sit on the side of his bed this afternoon and up in a chair in a few days".

Mayo physicians plan to administer radium treatments to growths in the upper stomach and esophagus of the Governor as soon as he has regained more of his physical strength. The Governor was operated on last Thursday when a tube was inserted in his small intestine for supplementary feeding.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES FRIDAY AT LONG BEACH

Word was received in this city Saturday of the death of H. P. Sponheim, formerly a resident of this city, who died Friday afternoon at his home in Long Beach, Calif., after suffering a relapse from a week's illness. Mr. Sponheim, who was about eighty years of age at the time of his death, moved to this city from Hatton in about the year 1907, and engaged in the transfer of land. He lived here until about fifteen years ago, when he moved to the West Coast.

Surviving relatives are his wife, his brother Knute, and his children, William Sponheim of this city, Oscar Sponheim of Long Beach, Calif., Mrs. Marie Rud of Portland, N. D., Clara Sponheim of Long Beach, Mrs Hannah Knutson of Portland, Ore.

Martha Anderson Wins Trip to the State Fair

The 4H Club Home Economics Achievement Day for all girls enrolled in the Bread Baking project, and individual demonstrators in the Room Furnishing and Meal Planning Projects was held at the Lincoln High School at Thief River Falls Tuesday.

Martha Anderson of the Silverton Club placed first in bread baking and will receive a trip to the State Fair. Her alternate is Ellen Janda of St. Hilaire who placed a close second.

The following girls will represent Pennington County at the sub district contest at Crookston on August 11th:

Ellen Janda and Vivienne Lindquist, St. Hilaire Club—Bread Team; Marjorie Matheson, Rocksbury Club—Individual Meal Planning Demonstrator; and Isabelle Rosendahl, St. Hilaire Club—Inc. Room Furnishing Demonstrator. Thelma Skaar of the Norden club had the best Room Furnishing exhibit and this exhibit will be sent to the sub-district contest.

Mrs. H. A. Pflughoeft of the Northwest School at Crookston and Miss Evelyn Bierbaum, Marshall County club leader, judged this event.

Old Age Assistance Will Increase County Budget

Anticipated expenditures for Pennington County for the fiscal year beginning July, 1936, will be approximately the same as the expenditures for 1935 except for an increase of $16,640.00 for old age pension assistance, the budget established by the County Board at its meeting last week reveals. With the enactment of old age assistance legislation recently the anticipated expenditure for such assistance was set at $24,000.00 for the coming year as compared with an expenditure of $7,360.00 for 1935. Total expenditures for 1936 are anticipated to be $114,562.50 as compared to $111,442.10 for 1935.

County funds, the actual expenditure for each fund for 1935 and the estimated expenditure for 1936, listed in that order, are as follows: County revenue fund, $36,509.12, $35,000.00; Poor fund, (including mother's pension, hospital, city, village, and town poor aid, and bond and interest), $9,287.71, $9,062.50; Old Age Assistance fund, $7,360.00, $24,000.00; Sanitorium fund, $4,896.25, $6,000.00; road and bridge fund, $44,903.52, $40,500.00; and county bond and interest fund, $8,485.59, none anticipated for 1936.

MAN IS INJURED FATALLY AS HIT BY TRUCK HERE

T. P. Hornseth Is Struck As Driver Is Blinded By Lights

FUNERAL WAS HELD TUESDAY

Accident Is Held As Being Personally Unavoidable

T. P. Hornseth, seventy three years old, of this city, was fatally injured Friday evening when he was struck by a truck driven by George Larson of 808 Atlantic Avenue North. The accident occurred at 9:30 p. m. on Main Avenue at Tenth street. Mr. Larson, in his statement to the police, said that he had just passed a car and consequently did not see Mr. Hornseth, who was walking north on the highway, until the latter was within a few feet of his vehicle. Mr. Hornseth was taken to the St. Luke's hospital by Mr. Larson and died there within a few hours.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran church, Reverend R. M. Fjelstad, pastor of the church officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Thomas Peter Hornseth was born February 14, 1863, in Norway. He came to America in 1866 and lived at Fairfax, Minn. He was married in September, 1890, at Watertown, S. Dak., to Carrie Leeves. Later he and his wife moved to Madison, Minn., and then to Bovey, Minn. He came to this city in 1910 and engaged in the restaurant and confectionary business until 1915 when he retired.

Surviving Mr. Hornseth's death are his sons Tony and Richard of this city, his daughter, Mrs. Henry E. Dostal, of Chisholm, Minn., his brother Peter of this city, his sisters, Mrs. Oscar Williamson of Duluth and Mrs. Frank Doney of Hector, Minn., and eight grandchildren.

While the incident is regrettable it was held unavoidable under the conditions arising.

Local Baseball Team to Play St. Hilaire Sunday

The biggest game in the local baseball league so far this season will be played at the fair grounds here next Sunday afternoon when St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls cross bats for the first time this season. Both teams have won eight games without a defeat this season so they are tied for first place honors. The team that wins will get undisputed title to first place and is likely to become the league champion aggregation when the season ends by the first of September.

The game is expected to be a pitcher's battle, Hellamach twirling for St. Hilaire and Orvalla for Thief River Falls. Both men are in the pink of condition and it will be a merry enjoyment to witness who will be the victor and the vanquished. Fans say it is anybody's game.

The Thief River boys had little difficulty in defeating Goodridge last Sunday, though it took over seven innings to get a "cinch" on the game. Orvalla pitched hitless ball up till the sixth inning when the East-end boys garnered two

F-L CLUB MEETING TO BE HELD FRIDAY EVE., JULY 24

The Thief River Falls Farmer-Labor club will hold their meeting, which was scheduled for last Friday evening and then postponed, at the Sons of Norway hall, Friday evening, July 24 at eight o'clock. At this time a reception will be held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Berve. All club members and their wives and members of all other Farmer-Labor clubs in the county are invited to attend, Herman Kjos, secretary, announced.

The program will include speakers, musical selections, and the serving of refreshments by the ladies of the club.

City School Election Draws Large Vote

At the annual school election for the city school district held Tuesday evening in this city, A. Skarstad and B. O. Norby were re-elected as directors on the school board for another three-year term, with William J. Douville elected director for two years to succeed Mrs. Frances R. Larsen.

Candidates for three-year terms and the votes they received are as follows: Harold W. Hicks, 197; Algot Johnson, 308; B. O. Norby, 427; and A. Skarstad, 503. William Douville, the successful candidate for a two-year term, received 402 votes, and Mrs. Frances Larsen, the only other candidate, received 345 votes.

Mrs. Larsen has been a member of the school board continuously for the past fourteen years. Mr. Norby and A. Skarstad, who were both reelected are at present serving as president and treasurer of the board respectively.

An unusual amount of interest was shown in the election, the total of 757 votes cast this year, exceeding that of any school election for the past ten years.

FIRE DESTROYS BUILDINGS ON FARM NEAR ST. HILAIRE

Fire destroyed the stock barn and chicken house on the Erickson brothers farm near St. Hilaire on Sunday. The family was not at home when the fire was discovered but passersby tried to extinguish it and to remove stock and horses from the barn. A team of horses, five calves, harnesses, a milking machine, and stanchion were lost in the fire.

NYA Office Will Be Opened on Saturday

N. A. Thorson, district supervisor of the National Youth Administration of Detroit Lakes, Minn., was in this city Wednesday making plans to open an area office at Thief River Falls which will be placed in charge of Marvin Benson of this city. This office will supervise the National Youth Activities in Pennington, eastern Marshall, Roseau and Lake of the Woods counties.

Beginning with the pay period which commences Saturday, July 25th, the time reports for all youths in the territory mentioned will be sent to Mr. Benson and not to Detroit Lakes, as has been the practice in the past.

The local area NYA office will be located in the quarters of the National Reemployment office on the basement floor of the City Auditorium, which office is now in charge of E. R. Stanghelle.

Youths who have been employed on NYA projects are being reassigned to new projects under the new set-up, effective July 1st, although the activities engaged in will continue very much as before. Youths in the Thief River Falls area will be assigned to three district-wide projects with the following titles: Rural Youth Recreation, Conservation and Rural Youth Development.

Local youth project workers who were employed on the maintenance of the local skating rink last winter have since been employed under the supervision of Supt. Morris Bye in and about the public school plant. Others who have acted as local co-sponsors for

Conservation Ass'n. To Meet on Monday

The annual meeting of the Northwestern Minnesota Association of Conservation Clubs will be held next Monday evening at Red Lake Falls, states Paul A. Lundgren of our city, who is the secretary.

Mr. Manweiler of the U. S. Forestry service will be the principal speaker. A representative of the State Game and Fish department is also expected to be present and give a talk. The meeting will begin at 8:00 o'clock p. m.

The association was formed a year ago in an effort to coordinate the efforts of the various sportsmen's organizations in the Seventh Conservation district. The organization is governed by a board of directors consisting of one member from each of the seven counties in the district: Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Red Lake and Pennington.

Survey Is Planned For City Sewage Disposal

At a special session of the city council in the council chambers Friday evening, E. L. Lium, city consulting engineer of Grand Forks, was appointed to make a preliminary survey and offer recommendations for the construction of a sewage disposal plant for this city. The council voted to appropriate $198 as this city's share of sending two men to Washington, D. C., in the interest of obtaining prompt action on a Red Lake River Development project.

At the meeting Friday evening, the council also granted Olaf Sorenson a license to sell beer in the cafe which he will open in the quarters formerly occupied by the post office.

Crops and Soils Day Held Mon., July 13

Simon Brieland of Hazel Township Is Elected Director From Pennington County

The annual Crops and Soils Day at the Northwest Experiment Station was held under the auspices of the Red River Valley Crops and Soils association, Monday, July 13. In spite of temperatures over 100 degrees, about 175 farmers and their families attended. At a business meeting of the Crops and Soils association, Melvin Flaskerud of Fosston was elected president to succeed Herman Skyberg, Fisher who had served three years. Theodore Mellum, Ulen, was re-elected vice-president, and S. M. Sivertson, Crookston, and R. S. Dunham, Northwest Station, were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively. Directors from each of the thirteen northwestern counties elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Kittson, Lawrence Ward, St. Vincent; Roseau, Lenus Landby, Swift; Pennington, Simon Briel and, Hazel; Marshall, Alfred Hyldsten, Stephen; Red Lake, Maurice Lillie, Oklee; Clearwater, J. Al. Anderson, Gonvick; W. Polk, Herman Skyberg, Fisher; E. Polk, Wm. H. Moll, McIntosh; Norman, Wm. Frederickson, Perley; Becker, Fordyce Larson, Ulen; Clay, Hans Johnson, Rollag; Wilkin, Wm. Fredericks, Foxhome; West Ottertail, Theo Thompson, Fergus Falls; East Ottertail, W. H. Frey, Perham.

Following an address of welcome by Dr. A. A. Dowell, superintendent of the Northwest School and Station, the men made a tour of the experimental plots and the women were shown the flowers, poultry, and home economics equipment by T. M. McCall, A. M. Pilkey and Betta Bede. On the tour of the plots, horticulture work and potatoes were explained by T. M. McCall. The Agronomy work was presented by R. S. Dunham, Agronomist, and E. R. Clark, pure seed specialist. Dr. F. J. Alway, chief of the division of soils and Dr. J. J. Christensen and Prof. M. Moore of the Plant Pathology division, University Farm, assisted in the discussion, and Prof. Wong, a plant pathologist from China was a distinguished visitor.

Among the agronomy plots, the Former Resident Here Passed Aaway at Warren

Following several months of illness, during which time she was bedridden at her home, Mrs. Mary Windberg, 73 years, long time resident of this city, passed away at her home on 3rd street Monday afternoon, July 13.

Mrs. Mary Windberg, nee Mary Hegland, was born on Oct. 26, 1862 in Fillmore county. In 1887 she was united in marriage to the Rev. K. Windberg, Scandinavian Methodist church pastor. During her married life she lived with her husband who served churches at Thief River Falls, Stephen, Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Grantsburg, Wis., Virginia and Warren. Rev. Windberg was pastor of the Warren church 11 years. Her husband passed away in this city about nine years ago.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon at the Scandinavian M. E. church with Rev. A. M. Trelstad, pastor, officiating. Many friends and relatives were in attendance at the service.—Warren Sheaf.

FOUR BIG DAYS: ENJOYMENT FOR ALL IS ASSURED

Fair Officials Have Been Fortunate In Securing High-Class Attractions

Hennies Bros. Shows Will Be On Midway

"Around the Town" Musical Revue and 8-Piece Orchestra to Entertain

Folks who plan to attend the Pennington County fair, which opens in our city next Tuesday for a four-day duration, are certain to have another entertainment that will prove highly pleasing in every respect. The fair board has been busy for weeks bringing together an array of talent for the public's entertainment, at the same time not forgetting the educational value of such an event.

The most outstanding event before the grandstand will be the musical revue "Around the Town", a stage group made up of dancing girls. This performance will be seen at every evening's program in front of the grandstand.

Another feature, billed only for the first night, is the WLS Barn Dance aggregation, an attraction the fair board was fortunate to obtain while the group is making a trip to the larger cities of the Northwest.

Other features are the horse races and free acts before the grandstand every afternoon with the free acts repeated every evening in conjunction with the musical revue. The Hennies Brothers shows will be on the mid-way with their numerous booths and attractions, such as side shows and twelve riding devices.

While the racing program is subject to some change as this goes to press, the fair visitors can expect a complete set of races equal to any held at a fair of this kind. Some fast horses will be seen in each and every race.

The free acts, presented twice daily, will be given at interludes between the races in the afternoon and between the various parts of the musical revue "Around the Town". These acts are: Eddie Ruton's dogs, showing many new feats of dog-dom, the greatest of which is a leap from a 40 foot pedestal into a big net; a second group is the six skating marvels making solo and group stunts on roller skates, all participants being young acrobatic female marvels. Then there will be the five American Eagles, high-wire and aerial gymnasts one of the performances finding all five actors on the wires at the same time. Cuby and Smith will be seen in some burlesque acrobatic stunts that are astounding in themselves.

Fair visitors should keep in mind that the WLS Barn Dance will be an attraction Tuesday evening only. At this performance Uncle Ezra and his troupe of popular radio entertainers will be seen in song, action and music. There will be the Radtke Sisters, the Hayloft Trio, Tom Owen's Cornhuskers, Red Foley and Eva, and that solo performer, Pat Buttram.

There will be a large assortment of other features, such as a horse shoe pitching contest, the winner to get a free trip to the Minnesota State fair; there will be the amateur entertainers where each performer will be given the opportunity to show his best talent; and there will be the prize bicycle races for all boys between the ages of 12 and 15 years.

Exhibits will be seen in every class usually found at any fair. There will be livestock, poultry, school work, 4H Club work and in the industrial and home economics division.

The fair board is doing everything possible to make this year's fair equal to any ever held here. The officers are: Hans Anton, president; S. E. Hunt, Vice-president; Leon Kalliher, treasurer and Robt. J. Lund, secretary. Other members of the board are: Mike McAndrews, Wm. E. Dahlquist, Roy Lam

WE MAKE OUR DEBUT

Beginning the first of this week the undersigned assumed his duties as editor of this publication. We were unable to come at the time the board of directors wanted us to, so our arrival was somewhat belated. But we note that the paper appeared in good form without delay, the credit for which must go to the able force at the printing office, so the paper is probably none the worse off.

We left the good little city of New Rockford, N. Dak., to look for a wider field at Thief River Falls. Your city has impressed us very much and we see great possibilities here, in fact, the more we see of it the more we like it. We have said that Thief River Falls is the busiest city in the Northwest, and the more we get acquainted with conditions the firmer we believe that is the truth.

We have become acquainted with a number of your residents, and, we hope, within a short time to make the "rounds" of the entire business section so as to enable us to call you by your first name, if you so wish. We marvel at the good spirit shown here, something that should be a valuable asset in making this city, in years to come, the most progressive and the most populous within a hundred miles or more. It takes co-operation among the businessmen to do so, but that spirit, it is apparent, is much in evidence.

And no one need to fear you do not have our sympathy and full cooperation in building for that bigger and better future. Our every effort within our limited means will be bent in that direction and we hope to make the Forum an important instrument thereto as long as we are at its helm.

Much credit is due to those who have made this paper what it is. But the task of making it what it should be is far from completed. Whether we are able to accomplish that or not time only will tell. We shall exert our utmost and we hope for some measure of cooperation which, we know, many are willing to give.

We hope to publish a newspaper that is an asset in every respect. Our editorial policy will be what we term progressive, expecting not to be offensive at any time, but working in harmony so that the city and surrounding territory will reap some benefit therefrom.

Our pages are open to all good reputable advertisers and we expect to make our job printing satisfactory and pleasing at all times. We hope to merit your business by good results.

We always welcome visitors and invite you to come around and get acquainted.

TEACHERS SAY CIVIL LIBERTY IS IN DANGER

Democracy must be preserved at all costs seemed to be the feeling of the majority of the delegates attending the annual convention of the National Educational association in session at Portland, Oregon, last week. The nation's educators are faced by a growing menace of teacher's oath bills and legislation to restrict freedom of discussion in the classrooms.

As an illustration to show to which extent the freedom-curbing reactionaries will go to interfere with teachers' rights, a large photostatic copy of a letter sent to the District of Columbia teachers by Congressman Blanton of Texas was placed on display at the convention. In this letter were questions asking if the teacher believed in God, or in any of the doctrines of communism. Other questions sought to find out if the teacher has ever read any of the writings of Chas. A. Beard, the eminent historian, or Prof. Geo. A. Counts, who has frequently rapped the Hearst inspired oath bill propaganda.

Many speakers at the convention said that the fight against these teachers oath laws is a fight against dictatorship in our country. J. W. Studebaker, federal commissioner of education, ardent foe of these oath bills, said: "It is a part of our duty as a public servant in a democracy to plan careful defenses against the suppression of the rights of the people. Teachers may well take warning from the experience of the adherents to democracy in some countries abroad and realize that the active defense of democratic rights whenever and wherever they are questioned is essential".

While there may be certain rules of which teachers should be considerate, yet the restrictions of the liberty of teaching is an outstanding indication toward dictatorship in this country.

Following a reduction in the interest charged by the Treasury Department on loans to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the latter has reduced its interest rates to banks and receivers thereof from 4 to 3 per cent, with corresponding reductions in other classes of loans to industry.

MORE REVENUE NECESSARY

We may as well face the facts. If we are to have good roads, and if we are to take advantage of the federal aid offered every year it is up to us to raise more funds for highway purposes in the state. Mr. Elsberg will give us a good system of highways if we will provide the funds. The next legislature should set the vehicle tax back where it was before. If we continue borrowing it will be but a few short years when most of our highway revenue will go to pay interest. We should pay as we go, and have some funds left for maintenance of the roads that we do build.—The Cottonwood County Citizen.

OLD PARTIES SILENT ON WAR PERIL

In the clamor over government expenditures there is one item that by tacit consent is never mentioned. That is the item of over one billion dollars for war.

This past session of congress appropriated, almost without debate, over $500,000,000 for the navy and almost $500,000,000 for the army. It provided for all-around increases in both the services and boosted the air force by 2,300 planes. There has been only two larger peacetime appropriations, both the direct and indirect results of the last war. One was for the payment of the bonus, the other for relief.

At Cleveland the Republicans hurled themselves headlong at almost every action of the New Deal. They yelped about the expenditure for relief, they decried the payment of the bonus as submission to "mob rule", they hollered about every other expenditure except the billion-dollar appropriation for war.

At Philadelphia the Democrats have defended every action of theirs. Each expenditure has been justified and re-explained—all except the billion-dollar appropriation for war.

There is yet another item that has received scant attention from the conventions of both Republicans and Democrats. At the opening of this session of congress there was one task ticketed as "the most important job of congress." That was the job of keeping America out of war.

When congress opened, guns were booming in Ethiopia and African natives, willy-nilly, were having Italian civilization shoved down their throats. Great Britain roared and blustered, and Hitler goose stepped his troops into the Rhineland. Europe seemed about to explode and America looked anxiously at her 531 representatives in congress to keep her out of another war.

Since then the natives have swallowed their bitter pill of civilization or have been slain, the roar of Great Britain has stilled to a whisper, and Hitler's troops sit silently in the Rhineland. America's neutrality legislation ran afoul of the oil shippers and the scrap iron shippers and bogged down into a renewal of a "neutrality proclamation by the president at the outbreak of hostilities."

Experts at the state department warn that the war danger in Europe still increases. While the connivings of the statesmen are less spectacular than the marching of troops, they are more dangerous. Europe still hovers on the brink of war. Here a conspiracy of silence cloaks the billion-dollar appropriation for war and the inadequacy (proved by the Nye munitions committee) of America's neutrality legislation.—La Follette's Progressive

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR RAILROADS

"There will never come a time when railroads and their equipment are not necessary to the commerce of the nation", said Alfred E. Smith recently.

The growth of other forms of transport has served to emphasize, rather than dim, the service provided by the railroads. The truck systems perform a valuable service in certain fields, but when it comes to mass hauling, the rails are preeminent. Buses likewise are a transportation asset, but the average traveler has a growing appreciation of the speed, comfort and safety of the railroad train. Air planes have an important place in the transportation scheme—but they certainly do not replace rail service.

It is an interesting fact that we hear less than we did a few years ago to the effect that the railroads are out of date, and are approaching oblivion. The truth is that they were never more essential to the public. And they were never more progressive. The improvement that has been made during the last decade in bettering road beds, adding to the comfort of passenger trains, speeding up both freight and passenger schedules, reducing accidents and damage to freight, and so on, is nothing short of revolutionary.

It is reliably forecast that the railroads will be "fairly prosperous" this year, although the average line is still far from earning a reasonable return on its investment. The sooner the rails attain substantial prosperity, the better for all of us."

OLD GUARD STILL IN THE SADDLE

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, progressive Republican is not permitting himself to be fooled by the claims that the Republican party has passed out from the control of the reactionaries. He attended the Republican national convention and witnessed the nomination of Landon and Knox.

"For more than thirty years", he said "I have fought the special interests and had looked forward to a President who would dedicate himself to breaking the stranglehold of these interests upon the lives of the American people. I believed President Roosevelt was such a man.

"I have never been more convinced of the truth of the conviction that the issue is clearly drawn between the forces of reaction and those of liberal progress than during the "three long days" that I have followed the proceeding at Cleveland", said the veteran Nebraskan senator in a formal statement.

"In the Republican party as now organized and led, the Old Guard is still in the saddle and in my opinion the welfare of the nation and our people demands that the new order be continued. I am confident it will be".

RETRACING OUR FOOTSTEPS

According to the minds of those who are held as authorities on the subject, some of the drained lakes may have to be refilled in order to assure the Northwest more rainfall. Minnesota drained its lakes and lowlands some twenty to thirty years ago and by so doing made available more land for farming. But in so doing diminished the rainfall in the Northwest.

As our system of scarcity caught up with itself and we find we must curtail production in normal production-years the idea presents itself: Shall we refill our lakes and lowlands so the remainder of the Northwest can have sufficient rainfall?

From a general survey it appears that such might be the solution to the problem staring the country in the face. Cities depending upon rivers for their water supply are as much concerned as are the farming sections. Damming the rivers so as to form reservoirs may aid but it is apparent that this is not sufficient so we may have to refill the lakes and lowlands.

REGIMENTATION

One of the many sins of which the Roosevelt administration is allegedly guilty is that of building up a vast "bureaucracy". According to figures presented by administration critics, every month sees a steady increase in the number of federal job-holders, with a proportionate boost in the total of the National pay-roll.

* * * *

And these same critics give the worst possible meaning, of course, to this growth in governmental employment. They quite refuse to accept the explanation that in order to carry out the various emergency measures passed by Congress, an increase in man-power has been unavoidable. They profess to see, instead, a deep-dyed scheme with suspicious, not to say sinister, objectives

* * * *

The charge most frequently heard is that the Party in power has heartlessly used a situation created by human want and suffering, to build up a huge political machine, the purpose of which is to insure the Party's return to office in the coming fall elections.

But another accusation is made, which, however, is merely muttered or whispered about . . . that the true but hidden purpose of the Roosevelt bureaucracy is to accomplish, little by little, through its constantly expanding activities, the regimentation of every phase of our lives.

Then, when the time comes, a single, bold stroke will suffice to bring about a swift transition from our present form of democratic government to a Fascist or Nazi state.

* * * *

Reading the Republican press, or listening to the utterances of the Liberty Leaguers, one sees plainly that Mr. Roosevelt's scheme has already progressed far. At the present rate, it appears inevitable that before long, the 'rugged individualist, whom chubby Herbert is wont to extol, will be extinct.

It is quite possible that in another generation or two, the only 'rugged individualists' extant will be those found stuffed and mounted in the Smithsonian Institution, alongside of other curious animals, brought back from odd corners, here and there about the world, by members of that other Roosevelt family.

* * * *

It is quite likely—in fact, it is probably certain—that the time will ultimately come when we may no longer even blow our own noses without assistance and direction from Washington.

And when that time does come, one may guess that all other phases of our subjection will have been accomplished to a point where Mr. Roosevelt may, with impunity, spring his coup, making himself dictator.

* * * *

Then we shall have to learn to salute in some uncomfortable stiff-armed fashion: and when the dictator and his glittering retinue passes, we shall dutifully bleat . .

"Heil Roosevelt!"

* * * *

There may be some thought, here and there, that one large difficulty in the way of a successful dictatorship in this country lies in the lack of available colors for official shirts. . .

For Italy has already pre-empted the black, German the brown, and Russia the red. And in England there is a Fascist organization which uses the green.

However, the obstacle thus confronting us is only apparent. . .

"We'll wear no shirts at all!"

* * * *

Thus, we shall not only give the world still another example of Yankee resourcefulness and ingenuity; but we shall also conceal the fact that under Roosevelt (if we may believe the dire prophecies of Landon and the other Republican boys) we've reached the point where we haven't a shirt to our backs.

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW

(By A. I. Harris)

The thoroughbred always displays his class when the going becomes toughest. It is that something in the heart which the scientists have as yet been unable to discover. It is more than mere physical and mental equipment. . . .

The thoroughbred on the race track will spot his opponent physical advantage and make him give up. He will discourage his opponent on the wrestling mat when the breathing becomes short and laborious. In the prize ring he will attain victory against superior skill and strength. A "money player" on the baseball diamond is merely evidence of a man's gameness. Only few possess it. . . .

One of the finest tributes ever paid to Governor Olson came the other day from a political writer on one of the conservative papers when he attested to the Governor's gameness and fighting qualities. This, he said, is admired by friend and foe alike. . . .

Governor Olson displayed this quality long before he underwent the surgeon's knife. As prosecutor of Hennepin county he did not hesitate to send a corrupt and powerful group of city politicians to the penitentiary. He brought officers of the Ku Klux Klan into court and successfully prosecuted them at a time when the mere mention of the Klan struck fear to the hearts of public officials. And he defied all the powers and resources of wealth when he, as Governor, ordered out the National Guard, not to shoot down strikers but to protect the rights of the workers seeking to better their economic condition. . . .

There was something that showed the Governor's rare courage—that touch of class—when he went to the operating table the other day smiling and joking. "Be sure you dont' pass out, he told his chauffeur as he was going under the effect of the anesthetic. . . .

It is true the operation was a relatively simple one, but all operations are serious affairs in the mind of the patient. You can't smile just before they are going to cut you open. . . not unless you have the kind of a "ticker" that the skipper, as his friends call him has. . . .

While he was being prepared for the operating table, Governor Olson gave evidence of the great competitor that he is. In longhand, he wrote the following note to the Farmer-Labor party state central committee, which met last Saturday: . . .

"I regret that I cannot be with you physically today, but I am with you in spirit. . . .

"The main things in this campaign are not orations and pamphlets (important as they are) but a common loyalty and a common courage. I know you have those qualities and will inspire others to have them. . . .

"I cannot join you in the campaign for a while but when the battle nears its height, I will be in it. Heed not the voice of gossip, nor let imagination bring fear. I will be physically well in ample time. The doctors have so assured me and the coming struggle is such that I must be well and be in it. The very destiny of our country will be materially affected by the outcome of the national struggle as will that of Minnesota by the State struggle. . . .

"My personal good wishes to each of you". . . .

The purpose of the operation was to insert a feeding tube in the intestine just underneath the stomach in order to give the stomach a complete rest. The physicians give every hope of returning strength, and the Governor's condition is expected to improve immediately.

* * * *

A hint of Republican strategy in the coming campaign was forecast last week in an announcement that "official Representatives of twelve large labor unions" were conducting negotiations with Republican representatives with the idea of holding the Farmer-Labor party. . . .

Of course, that claim is too ridiculous for words. A survey disclosed that not a single labor union sent official or unofficial representatives to discuss anything with the Republicans, and the whole thing is merely a fake in a foolish and childish effort to get labor union votes for the Republicans. . . .

A certain William Dinon, a locomotive engineer and pawn of the railroad interests, is the labor front, and the brains of the thing is a certain St. Paul railroad official. Labor will answer to this fake with organization of a statewide labor union committee to conduct an active and intensive campaign for the Farmer-Labor candidates.

R. W. Hitchcock, Republican master propagandist, gets considerable comfort out of the fact that the Republican primary vote in some counties was greater than the Farmer-Labor vote, and that the total vote received by Martin Nelson, who had no opposition, was greater than that received by Elmer Benson, who was opposed by the redoubtable Magnus Johnson, one of the most efficient vote gatherers in the state. . . .

Let Mr. Hitchcock and the men who pay him his salary get as much enjoyment out of the primaries as they may. However, without wanting to spoil their pleasure, we must remind them that it is the votes in the final that elect. In 1932, the Republican candidate, . . . what was his name? . . . oh, yes, Earle Brown . . . backed by the mighty millions of Hoover's machine, ran almost 100,000 ahead of Olson in the primary—but what a shellacking he took in the final! . . . .

Incidentally, the Farmer-Labor party gained on a percentage basis over 1932, while the Republican vote was a falling off as against that year We have to go back to 1932 for a fair basis of comparison, since in 1934, 100,000 Republicans entered the Democratic ranks in an effort to nominate Schiplin as a fusion candidate against Olson.

* * * *

In the Twin Cities last week, A. Hed-Larson, member of the city council of Stockholm, Sweden, spoke rather alarmingly of war dangers in Europe. . . .

"Something is apt to happen almost any time," Mr. Hed-Larson said, "that will set all terror loose. Fascism has served to intensify nationalistic hatreds and suspicions. Every nation fears and distrust her neighbors. . . .

"There is only one way, in my opinion, that war can be averted . . . and that is through the leftist political movements. Sooner or later, these movements of the left will gain the upperhand. We are hoping and praying that this happens before some irresponsible fascist leader plunges Europe in war."

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

By Ben C. Haglund

History Does Not Repeat

Occasionally history does not repeat. In the past, whenever the world of imperialism found it necessary to burn up its surplus, it resorted to a destructive war, in which millions of men were killed and billions of dollars worth of commodities destroyed. Sardonic newsmen and commentators sometimes refer to the last war as the "first world war". The implication was that we would see a repetition of that madness.

But with the formation of organized opposition to war we have a new factor in world affairs. I do not believe that the people of any country want war. Therefore if they are in control of affairs—really in control—making war is very difficult.

In France, the People's Front continues to new triumphs. Recently the Croix de Feu, La-Rocque's fascist war-making organization, was disbanded—firmly and forcefully. The Spanish People's Government subdued an uprising of fascists (according to recent dispatches) by decisively crushing them. Soviet Russia, the first people's state, continues its peace policy in the face of numerous irritating affairs with the Japanese.

What can be done in these countries can be done here. There are reputed to be a score or more of fascist organizations in the USA—all bent upon making war or terrorizing a certain section of the population. This condition cannot be tolerated in what is known as the "craddle of liberty".

History need not repeat itself in this respect, at least. We do not need war and fascism—then why have them? Combined resistance by the people will prevent their occurrance.

The Hot, Dry Death

In the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming the shriveling hand of Drouth is again mutilating the landscape. It seems to be a conspiracy of nature Old timers who have lived through four or five years of drouth now, in the hope that "next year it will be better" are feeling their faith grow fainter and fainter.

One who has not lived in the "dust bowl", that is the drouth area, cannot imagine what it is like. The skies are clear, the sun beats down relentlessly, day after day and yet the days seem oppressed by clouds—clouds of despair—hopelessness—defeat.

The only bright spot in this picture is government relief. From being the most outstanding individualist of the century, the farmer has become our prize boondoggler—from sheer necessity. He could never get along without the aid of the government now. Without relief or wheat allotment checks his lot would be hopeless.

In this getting paid for doing nothing, certain moralists see the farmer's morale weakening. If this is so, how can one blame him? He is getting a taste of what a certain class of people has enjoyed for a long time—paternalism—and no matter what moralists tell him, paternalism under the conditions is sweet.

It is my opinion that from now on farmers will never be able to get along without their government—the return to old-time individualism will never be made. On account of this, it is necessary that the farmers, as part of a great class, make it THEIR government. So much time is lost when one class in power tries to understand the problems that afflict another class—and fail.

—O—

The Townsend Convention

Dr. Townsend's convention was remarkable for the joining of forces which it represented. Father Coughlin, Huey Long's followers, and the Townsendites joined forces to support Lemke for president on the Union party ticket. If each one of these movements has near the number of followers each claims, the resultant backing of Lemke for president would be tremendous—more than that of any political party now in existence in the United States.

The failure occurs when the economic issues are not clearly understood. No one objects to a $200-a-month pension. But the method of raising it sometimes creates worse conditions than the pension aims to remedy. Under our present setup the pension as outlined would create a business boom of some magnitude, with its resultant profit-making by a certain small group and eventual misery for the great masses.

The Townsendites claim this plan will affect the rich as well as the poor. A transaction tax would undoubtedly wreak havoc on the grain exchange, for example. But would its effect be lasting? There are ways and means of shifting the burden, and the enormously rich are not novices at the art.

We need pension plans, everyone admits. But besides this, we need new rules of the game, which not quite everyone will admit.

H R. 7154-74th CONGRESS GENERALLY KNOWN AS THE TOWNSEND PLAN

Dear Editor:

This bill was introduced in Congress by Congressman McGroarty and is the greatest humanitarian proposal now pending. But now, as always, measures of great benefit to the common people as a whole, this bill has been ridiculed, misrepresented and pronounced unworkable so that people in many cases have an entirely erroneous idea regarding its provisions and objects.

H. R. No. 7154 provides that federal taxes shall be levied and placed into a fund for payment of pensions to people over sixty years old who agree to refrain from gainful occupations and to spend the pension same month as received. Anyone having an income of $2400 or over cannot come in for this pension. The four taxes to be levied are as follows:—On net incomes an amount equal to one tenth of the present income tax; a two per cent tax on transactions; a two per cent tax of gifts exceeding $500, and a two per cent tax on inheritances.

The bill provides that the amount of these four taxes shall be prorated among all eligible applicants for the pension after the necessary expenses of administration have been deducted, except that in cases where the applicant has other income it shall be deducted from this pension and pensions shall not exceed $200 per month.

Anyone having the love of the Truth and square dealing will be unable to find any valid objection to this measure, and should therefore send to his congressman for a copy of H. R. 7154 and study it so as to be able to defend it against this insidious propaganda of ridicule and misrepresentation which is put out by the big, eastern financiers and their hirelings as well as by some careless people who are in the habit of criticizing matters they do not know.

The main objective of the plan is to wipe out the "depression" by furnishing needed purchasing power to keep production up where all middle aged and young workers get employment. The other objective is to provide security for a decent standard of living for those too old to be working.

It will be much more proper to eliminate these old people from industry than to have young people whose character is not yet fully formed, go idle. It is no more than right that people should be taken care of when too old to take care of themselves, and therefore the Townsend organization is planning to put in a constitutional amendment so as to be certain the system of old age annuities will be permanent, and thus make it a citizen's right and not a pauper pension

Take for instance the tax on transactions. Consider the enormous amounts traded on Stock Exchanges, grain exchanges, boards of trade! This tax will either produce an enormous income from these gambling institutions, or it will reduce gambling in food and other necessary commodities!

Think of the enormous pick-up in manufacturing and other productions and distribution when this system gets into actual operation! Why should not all business men, laborers and farmers push along and get the plan into law, instead of letting themselves be fooled by the boondoggling and bamboosling of the Old Parties, and those who want most people to be down in poverty? I see no logical reason. The Union Party, with Lemke for Presidential candidate should get a tremendous big vote this fall, in order to throw the election into congress and thus get some recognition for demands of the common people.

15,000 MINNESOTA CHILDREN TO RECEIVE GOVERNMENT AID

Approximately 15,000 Minnesota children in 6,000 families will receive aid at an annual cost of $1,750,000 under the federal social security act, it was learned when Attorney General Harry H. Peterson approved new rules and regulations set up for the administration by the state board of control last Tuesday.

The dependent children's aid system will be financed through funds drawn from the federal government, the state and the individual Minnesota counties. The government will pay one-third of the total; the state one-twelfth and the counties the balance.

The setup as established by the state board of control must now go to Washington for submission to the federal security board

Procedure approved by the attorney general provides for the appointment by juvenile or probate judges of investigators or local child welfare boards to consider application and make allotments. It is expected the aid will not exceed $20 monthly for the first child and $15 for each additional child in cities and probably $2 to $3 less in the country districts.

In trying to hold the horses, Langness' leg caught in the wheel and he was dragged several hundred feet The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Langness, four brothers and two sisters survive. The funeral was held in Grygla.

FRUIT LIVES LONGER WHEN ITS RESPIRATION IS SLOW

An apple does not die when picked from a tree, but failure to control its respiration shortens its life Fruit growers and handlers slow down the respiration of apples by putting them in cold storage.

Harvested fruits and vegetables—like animals—respire by taking oxygen from the air and giving off carbon dioxide, water, and waste products, and generating heat. Other living processes continuing after harvest change the constituents, flavor, and color.

Too rapid respiration causes the fruits and vegetables to lose their freshness. In cold storage the rate of respiration usually doubles each time the temperature rises 18 degrees F. above the temperatures recommended for keeping them fresh, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Respiration usually affects the flavor of fruits by breaking down and exhausting most of the carbohydrates and acids. When this occurs in an apple, it becomes overripe, mealy, and practically worthless—succumbing to senility if not previously destroyed by fungus rots.

Too much, or too little humidity in cold storage air also affects the quality of fruits and vegetables. Cold storage air with 85 to 88 per cent moisture usually gives best results. This moisture percentage is about the same as that in the tissues of these products. If the relative humidity of the cold storage air falls lower, fruits and vegetables dry out, wilt, and shrivel. If raised above, they tend to mold and are easily damaged by fungus rots. Celery and onions, however, are exceptions to the general rule. Celery requires a higher humidity to keep it from wilting. Onions must be kept drier to prevent them forming roots

A brief program, including a talk by Reverend George Peterson, musical selections by a string band, and expressions of congratulations, was followed by the serving of refreshments by the self-invited guests.

ODEN-OBRESTAD VOWS SPOKEN FRIDAY EVENING

At a seven-thirty o'clock candlelight service, Miss Lois Oden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs A. J. Oden of this city, and Reverend Harold L. Obrestad, son of Mrs. Justine Obrestad of Chicago, spoke their marriage vows in the Trinity Lutheran church in this city Friday evening, July 17. Reverend R. M. Fjelstad, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, read the service.

Immediately after the bride's mother had been ushered in, the bridal procession entered to the strains of the Wedding March, played on the pipe organ by Mrs. Mildred Engen Hamilton. Mrs. Oden wore an afternoon dress of soiree blue sheer trimmed with dubonnet velvet, a corsage of mixed garden flowers, and a dubonnet felt hat. The ushers, the bride's brother Robert Oden and Robert Frissell, were the first of the bridal party to enter. Next in line was the bride's cousin, Miss Olive Olson, maid of honor, who wore a floor-length gown of mussoline de soie, as did the bridesmaid, Miss Linnea Backlund of Northfield, Minn., who was the next to enter Miss Olson's dress was blue and Miss Backlund's blush pink. Each carried a bouquet of delphiniums, gladioli, snap dragons, and larkspurs.

The bride who entered with her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin, fashioned on princess lines, with a slight train, cowl neckline and full sleeves. Over her gown she wore a finger-tip length veil of white net with an attached cap of satin and net. She carried a white Bible with white streamers and a sprig of myrtle.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom who was attended by Clarence Christianson of Chicago, best man, and Sigvald Fauske of Minneapolis. After the vows were exchanged, Robert J. Lund sang "Until" and "Oh Perfect Love".

A reception at which seventy-five guests were present was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The bride and groom left on a trip through the Black Hills, Yellowstone National Park, and Portland, Oregon, before going to Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where they will reside. The bride's travel costume was of navy blue sheer, with which she wore white accessories.

Reverend and Mrs. Obrestad will be at home in Coeur d'Alene after August 2 Reverend Obrestad will assume the pastorate of the Trinity Lutheran church there. The bride was graduated from Lincoln high school with the class of '31 and from St. Olaf College. She taught in the public schools of Pine River, Minnesota.

Out-of-town guests present at the ceremony were John Obrestad Anton Obrestad, Miss Olive Obrestad, Miss Agnes Obrestad, Mrs. Ed Lundquist, Mr. Ralph Schultz, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ellison, all of Chicago; Mrs. H. PICNIC IS PLANNED FOR HIGHLANDING, AUGUST 2

A picnic will be held Sunday, Aug. 2nd, at Highlanding. This was decided at a meeting held recently by the Farmer-Labor clubs of the Star, Highlanding and Goodridge-Reiner vicinities. Details of the picnic are expected to be inserted in next week's paper.

TEMPERATURE ABATES; HARVESTING BEGINS

The temperature for the past five days has been more moderate than was the usual high of the past two weeks or more. The mercury lowered itself over the week end, a shower and hailstorm Sunday evening being a factor in causing the descent. Small showers early Wednesday and this morning aided in the cooling process.

Considerable damage was reported by farmers along a mile-wide swath and about twenty miles in length from Middle River to Thief River Falls Sunday evening at about six o'clock. The more ripened grain fields suffered much damage. However, the greener fields and gardens are expected to recover considerably from the loss inflicted.

Several sections in the Red River Valley reported rainfall and some loss from hail, the most serious report coming from west of Grand Forks. Harvesting is becoming quite general thruout the valley and some sections revealing that the drought and heat spell have not affected the grain crops as much as was expected.

RAMBLIN' RED FOLEY AND EVA WILL BE SEEN AT PENNINGTON CO. FAIR

A romance of the air has developed into one of radio's favorite duets. Red and Eva Foley met at Station WLS and their friendship blossomed into love. Red was playing the guitar with the Cumberland Ridge Runners and singing old-time mountain ballads in his rich baritone voice. He had only been away from his home in the Kentucky mountains a year and Chicago still seemed like a big and unfriendly city to him.

Eva was the baby of the Three Overstake Sisters, who as the "Three Little Maids", were one of the most popular acts on WLS. Eva took an interest in the lanky, red-headed mountaineer and they soon found they had much in common, chief of which was their love of old familiar songs and American folk music

Eva's parents thought their "baby" was too young to marry, so Red and Eva eloped and were married in Waukegan, August 9th, 1933.

Ever since their marriage, Eva and Red have sung together at home for their own amusement. For the first time this season they are appearing as a duet and this romantic couple is one of the hits of the WLS barn dance show, to be featured at the Pennington Co. fair, Tuesday evening.

Farm Bases Will Be Sent To Producers Soon

The bases on farm signed up under the Soil Conservation program are expected to be sent to the producers in Pennington County in the near future, states R. M. Douglass, Pennington county agent.

When the producers are notified of the bases, they should check to see if they are in line for their maximum payment this year. The base figure will be given on the notification of the base for the farm and in order to obtain the maximum payment, a 15 per cent reduction from this base is necessary. It will be necessary to adjust all of these bases by the committeemen so that some of them may be smaller than the 1935 acres. In that case if the maximum payment is desired it will be necessary to have a stand of legumes on this land representing the 15 per cent reduction.

[illegible] soon a series of meetings [illegible] held in the county explaining these new provisions and to go over the new method of payment which has been made more liberal because of the drouth.

Anyone intending to apply for a grant should be sure to attend these meetings to get the information first hand, Mr Douglass said.

Women's Project Work Ends For This Year

This month completes the Woman's Project work in Home Management. Four monthly meetings have been held under the leadership of Miss Charlotte Kirchner of University Farm, St. Paul.

Suggestions have been given to the 300 women enrolled on arranging work centers to make the kitchen convenient so as to save steps. Plans for kitchen cupboards and cabinets were discussed with reference to the supplies and equipment placed there.

Equipment for the kitchen was the theme of the second lesson. Healthful working heights, posture and other features such as color schemes were discussed

Special work was given on available types of cleaning and laundering equipment. Cleaning supplies and methods of cleaning and laundering of household material was studied.

Storage spaces all over the house was the final topic taken up at meetings held at Thief River Falls on Monday, Goodridge Tuesday and St. Hilaire on Wednesday. A great deal of interest was shown by the women enrolled in this project. Plans are being made for a continuation of the project next spring.

CUBY & SMITH WILL FEATURE BURLESQUE ACROBATICS AT ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR

"Very funny They had the audience holding their sides with laughter", was the comment of a Seattle newspaper critic when he reviewed the act of Cuby & Smith, coming to the Pennington County fair, to be seen twice daily before the grandstand.

Cuby & Smith's strong forte is burlesquing acrobatic acts, and they do it with such artistry that they seem never to have to exert themselves to "bring down the house" with riotous laughter. It is difficult at times to understand how these comics untangle themselves from the pretzel-shaped contortions they get into.

Cuby & Smith have appeared with a number of leading musical comedies and in vaudeville for several years and are making their first appearance at Western fairs this season. They never overdo any of their stunts, remaining on the stage only long enough to go through their set routines.

There's something ridiculously amusing to watch a person whose awkward mistakes place him in a series of perilous positions but when there are two people in the same predicament, it's just twice as funny. How these two boys emerge from some of the mix-ups and hard falls in their act without broken bones, is something to wonder at.

Mrs. Abbie Wassgren, Miss Ruth and Miss Helen Wassgren left on Monday morning for Leaf Lake, near Henning, Minn., for a two weeks vacation.

—O—

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Engelstad, Cleo Engelstad, and Donny Engelstad, returned on Monday from a week's trip to Duluth and along the North Shore Drive.

—O—

A guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eide is Mrs. Fred Faust of Minneapolis Mrs. Faust arrived Friday morning and will leave for Minneapolis on Friday of this week.

—O—

Hon. M. A. Brattland, district judge, his wife and daughter Lois returned Sunday evening from a week end visit with friends at Ada. The Brattland family is planning an extensive auto trip to the East during the month of August.

—O—

R. D V. Carr and A. P. McInstry, both of Middle River, were business callers in Thief River Falls. Mr. Carr is a retired newspaperman and the Forum acknowledges a pleasant call. Mr. McInstry is the educational advisor at the CCC camp at Middle River.

—O—

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Haas and son LaVern of Fort Worth, Texas, arrived in this city on Monday of last week to visit at the home of Mrs. Haas' parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Vistaunet. Mr. Haas left Thursday for Fort Worth, while Mrs. Haas and LeVern remained for an indefinite visit.

—O—

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed O'Hara on Tuesday and Wednesday were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ranum, and their daughter Betty Lou of Warren. Mr. and Mrs. Ranum and Betty Lou left Wednesday for Red Lake where they will vacation until Sunday.

—O—

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Norlander and daughter June of St. Paul, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Norlander of Canton, Miss., arrived here last week to visit with the Misses Lois and Dorothy Norlander, and also with other relatives and friends. They will return to their respective homes next Monday.

—O—

Mr. and Mrs. Ed O'Hara, accompanied by their grandson Dickie, left Friday for Minneapolis. Dickie remained in Minneapolis to visit over the week end at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs Peter Olson. Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara went on to Rochester, Minn., to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Margaret Mulroy. They returned to this city on Sunday, accompanied by Dickie and also Donna O'Hara, who has been visiting for the past month at the Peter Olson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nelson and family of Grygla visited in this city Sunday.

Geo. W. Blake returned Tuesday from Cross Lake, after attending the Farm Union Junior camp held there last week. Mr. Blake reports that a large number attended the camp.

A. L. Anderson, who for the past eleven months has been manager of the Palm Garden Cafe in this city, announced this week that he has resigned his position. His resignation becomes effective on July 25. Mr. Anderson plans to vacation for a while before leaving for the Twin Cities to be engaged in cafe management there.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Schultz and daughters Ardith and Delores returned from their vacation. They visited with relatives in Miles City, Montana; Kiona, Benton City, Prosser, and Seattle, Washington; also in VanCouver, British, Columbia, Canada. On their return trip they visited with Mr. Schultz's sister in Expanse, Sask., Can., and returned via Winnipeg.

Out-of-town relatives who were called to this city by the serious illness of T. P. Anderson are Mr. Anderson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Falk and children of New Rockford, North Dakota, his daughter, Mrs. Adolph Fitz, and his son Forrest Anderson both of Grand Rapids, Minn., his nephew Omer Anderson of Washington, D. Lewis Hurls Defiance at Big Steel Bosses

(LaFollette's Progressive)

Calling upon America's 30 million industrial workers to organize in their battle against an economic dictatorship focusing its efforts upon retaining the old system of finance capitalism and pledging them the aid of the 12 national and international unions composing the Committee for Industrial Organization, John L. Lewis, chairman of the C. I. O., hurled back into the face of the American Iron and Steel Institute the gauntlet flung at the feet of labor.

In a radio address, broadcast over a nationwide chain, Lewis, head of the group of 12 unions conducting an organizing drive in the $5,000,000,000 steel industry and its compatriot, the automobile industry, made the official reply to the announcement of the steel institute that it would use "every force at its command" to resist the organization drive.

Speaks for Labor

Declaring that he spoke for those who have been denied by industry and finance the privilege of collective bargaining and "collective participation in the arbitrary fixation of their economic status", Lewis declared, "He is either madman or a fool who believes that this river of human sentiment, flowing as it does from the hearts of these 30 millions, can be damned or impounded by the erection of arbitrary barriers of restraint. Such barriers, whether they be instrumental of corporate control, financial intrigue or judicial interdict, will burst asunder and inevitably destroy the pernicious forces which attempt to create them."

Terming the issue one of "whether the conditions of the working population of this country shall have a voice in determining their destiny or whether they shall serve as indentured servants for a financial and economic dictatorship which would shamelessly exploit our natural resources and debase the soul and destroy the pride of our free people." Lewis called upon workers to organize.

"I call upon the workers in the iron and steel industry who are listening to me tonight to throw off their shackles of servitude and join the union of their industry," he declared. "I call upon the workers in the textile, lumber, rubber, automotive, and other unorganized industries to join with their comrades in the steel industry and forge for themselves the modern instruments of labor wherewith to demand and secure participation in the increased wealth and increased productive efficiency of modern industrial America.

"The more than a million members of the 12 great national and international unions associated with the C. I. O. will counsel you and aid you in your individual and collective efforts to establish yourselves as free men and women in every social, economic, and political sense. I unhesitatingly place the value represented by 30,000,000 human beings engaged in industry and their 60,000,000 dependents as being above and superior in every moral consideration to the five billions of inanimate dollars represented by the resources of the American Iron and Steel Institute, or to the additional billions of inanimate dollars that perforce may be allied with the empire of steel in the impending struggle which the institute, in the brutality of its arrogance, seeks to make inevitable."

A Declaration of War

Lewis declared that the announcement of the steel industry amounts "to a declaration of industrial and civil war" and that it contravenes the law. "I wish to solemnly warn those who represent the steel industry that their unlawful, ruthless tactics of former years will not be tolerated by our committee. This organization drive in the steel industry will be conducted in full, open gaze of the public.

"We shall hold to accountability those who are really responsible—banker, directors and officials of the steel corporations—those who really formulate policies and methods, from J. P Morgan and Co., which controls the U. S. Steel Corp., down through other bankers, directors and officials of less powerful, but important, steel corporations, to the lowest member of hierarchy."

He explained in general terms the operation of company unions, of which the steel industry boasts, the use of spies and company thugs and gangsters, and showed that while millions had been made in steel its workers, compared to workers in coal and other heavy industries, were greatly underpaid.

Two fundamental motives were advanced by the president of the United Mine Workers for the drive in steel. One was "to be of service to all those who work either by head or hand in industry". The other was "to protect the members of our own organization. We know that as long as millions of other industrial workers are without economic and political freedom, a condition exists which is a menace to our freedom."

RIVAL LABOR LEADERS PREPARE FOR TITANIC STRUGGLE

Charging "insurrection," William Green (left), President of the American Federation of Labor, has ordered John L. Lewis (right), President of the United Mine Workers, to stand trial with eleven other insurgent labor leaders on August 3rd. As leader of the newly formed Committee for Industrial Organization, Lewis seeks to organize the Steel industry in defiance of the A. F. of L.

Caterpillar Horde Is Leaving State

Northern and northeastern Minnesota is beginning to recover from one of the worst caterpillar plagues of recent years.

Officials of the state division of forestry who recently returned from an inspection trip through the infested area said that the caterpillars were rapidly disappearing and would last only a few days longer.

The insects, known as the forest tentless caterpillars, covered a large portion of the extreme northern part of the state, extending roughly from the Itasca Park region eastward to Cook county and north into Canada.

The amount of damage done by the caterpillars is difficult to estimate because many trees will withstand two successive caterpillar invasions without apparent injury. However, some of the affected forest regions in Minnesota are experiencing their third successive caterpillar plague and may suffer considerable damage.

It is believed caterpillars appear in very large numbers about every ten years. Trees may be saved by spraying with arsenate of lead, but this method is impractical over large areas.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Evans' advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is indicted.

And Barry was off on a quest of his own. "If that was a woman," he decided, "we needn't bother any more about the Judge. And if I can catch that Filipino napping—"

Winslow had warned him against "tipping our hand." "All right," Barry thought; "I'll be careful this time."

The "cagey Oriental" answered his ring.

Barry's last visit had been with Tim Laugherty. Charlie—and Mrs. Kelly, for that matter—had assumed that he was another detective. The Filipino was plainly startled.

"Nobody is home," he said conclusively.

"You're home, aren't you? And you're the fellow I want to ask a few questions."

"I don't know nothing," the butler insisted.

"You know who telephoned Kelly the night of the murder."

Charlie's putty face turned two shades lighter.

"I thought so," Barry said. "And, if you don't want to go straight to jail, you'd better tell me about it."

"You mean the lady that telephoned?"

"That's who I mean. Who was she?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't she give any name? Or leave any message?"

"No, sir."

"Came around here though, afterward, didn't she?"

"No, sir."

"Somebody did," Barry persisted; "after young Rogers went?"

"I don't know."

"You didn't let anyone in?"

"No, sir."

"Did Kelly let her in?"

"I don't know."

"But he knew she was coming?"

"I don't know."

"You're lying!" Barry exclaimed. "You told Kelly."

"No, sir," the butler replied, very positively. "When the lady phoned, Mr. Kelly—he wasn't home yet."

"What do you mean, he wasn't home—at midnight?"

"The lady didn't phone at midnight," Charlie said, obviously bewildered. "It was eight o'clock when the lady phoned."

"But you told him that?"

"No," the Filipino answered. "I didn't tell nobody nothing."

"Who did telephone around midnight?"

"I don't know. Mr. Kelly answered that time."

"But you were in the hall?"

"Yes, sir."

"Kelly was sore at you. Why?"

The Filipino went pale. Only for an instant, however. Then he smiled. "Mr. Kelly not sore," he said. "Him very jolly that night."

"All right," Barry observed. No "tipping our hand" this time. "All right, and thanks." His tone was that of a man completely satisfied.

Late that afternoon, Barry took Peg and the boy driving in the park.

Barry's heart had gone out to Peggy and to her boy. A chorine with the domestic virtues of a clergyman's wife—that's what Peg was. "I'd like to give Pat a squint at the under dog she thinks she despises so," he thought.

The next morning there were two responses to the advertisement suggested by Evans. Barry wrote asking both applicants for the reward to call at his rooms. On the way to The Globe, he dropped in on Tim Laugherty.

Tim had been assigned to a new case now, and regarded the Kelly matter as a closed incident. Barry's zeal amused him. "What're you talking about?" he inquired with mock seriousness.

Barry reported his interview with the Oriental.

Tim grinned. "We knew all about that ten days ago!"

He produced his records.

"There was a call at 8:16. That came from a hotel in the Forties—an actorine named Betty Barclay. Then there was three calls from Kelly's—at 8:22, 8:27 and 9:41. That first number's the house of a lawyer named Hood. Next comes the Yale club. And the third a flat in Riverside drive."

"Whose?"

"I don't know."

"What about the call that came in while Rogers was there?"

"Boloney."

"You mean there wasn't any such call?"

"Not on my records. Of course, it might've been sent from a nickel-in-the-slot booth. You can't trace them things. Listen, pal, you're on a wild-goose chase. This Rogers lad done it."

CHAPTER VI

BARRY proceeded to The Globe, quite expecting to find his dismissal there.

"I'm going to draw down fifty bucks," he thought, "and what have I done for it?"

But Ernie Harwood had caught the contagion for "sleuthing."

"The other papers have practically dropped it," he said. "Okay. We'll go on working quietly, and some day we'll turn up the story. It's good any time. And I'm dead sure now the cops have got the wrong party. What're you doing?"

Barry told him.

"Let's see those phone numbers."

Standing over him, Barry pointed out that somebody had made two calls from Kelly's within eleven minutes after the receipt of the message from Betty Barclay. Harwood saw nothing remarkable about that. "But," Barry persisted, "who was 'somebody?' Kelly didn't get home till 11, the Filipino says. Mrs. Kelly was in Harlem. Who called the Yale Club, and the flat on Riverside drive?"

Harwood sent for a newspaper file.

"I thought so," he observed, his finger on one of its pages. "Betty Barclay's the dame Mrs. Kelly named when she was going to divorce Kelly."

Barry whistled.

"That might explain Mrs. Kelly's calling a lawyer named Hood."

The city editor glanced back at the file.

"Especially since he was her lawyer. Gimme that big red book."

Barry obeyed.

"Hood. Graduated from Yale. He wasn't at home, so they tried to get him at his club. Law firm, Hood & Loring. Gimme the telephone book. Just a hunch, but—Okay. The Riverside number's the home of Horace Loring. Somebody wanted legal advice that night, and wanted it bad."

"Who?"

"Use your imagination."

"Mrs. Kelly."

"Sure. She took the call from Betty Barclay—"

"She didn't. The butler took it."

"All right. Then he gave it to her, and she went wild. You want to know why the Oriental's 'cagey.' Well, that's why. He's trying to shield Mrs. Kelly. What you've got to do now, is to check up on that alibi."

They discussed ways and means. Also, they discussed Barry's other activities. Barry showed Ernie his advertisement, and the two responses. Harwood was skeptical.

"We might get the number of the taxi that killed the woman. What then? That was two hours after the murder. And, if you have the good fortune to get the taxi—the one that brought the midnight caller to Kelly's, if there was a midnight caller—how's the driver going to know who his fare was? No, son; that's beet-tops!"

Barry defended himself.

"You never can tell what you're going to get till you go after it."

Harwood was searching for that inevitable pipe.

"You're enthusiastic," he commented, "and that's something. Now, beat it."

He smiled, almost as warmly and kindly as Winslow had done.

"You've got a nose for news," he went on. "When I hired you, I said you'd get a raise if you were worth it, and fired if you weren't. Well, I think you're worth a hundred a week."

"That's swell of you," Barry glowed, "but I don't see what I've done—"

Wednesday brought the desired letter from Bad Nauheim, and three more from gentlemen who hoped to receive the fifty-dollar reward. With these, as with their predecessors, Barry made appointments beginning at four o'clock Thursday. Mrs. Ridder's envelope contained a check drawn to her order by "the old man," and endorsed simply "Eleanor Ridder." "She's a good business woman," Barry said to himself, ironically.

It hadn't occurred to her to doubt the sender of that cablegram, or what he meant to do with the money. "Winslow'll take it," Barry told Peggy, "and take his retainer out of it. Then he can give up his check for the rest. Winslow's name will be on this check when it's returned to the old man, and, of course, that's all right."

"What'll we do with Winslow's check?"

"Start a bank account in your name. Then I'll go to you when we need funds, and tell you what for. Give this letter to Jack, and tell him it ought to make him ashamed of himself."

It almost did. Even more than the communication Barry had shown him, this answered Jack's question as to whether his mother cared. "I'm so glad you've got work," she had written, "and so glad you're taking an interest in that boy. It shows I've always been right about you. And it will help you, too. We can't help others without helping ourselves — making character."

The real Jack Ridder answered that letter without prompting, and the "fake" Jack Ridder posted the answer.

At three Thursday afternoon, he was in his rooms, preparing to quiz the reward-seekers. Barry had reason to know the ways of imposters. The first caller was just that.

The second applicant was waiting by now — a lunch-counter clerk who'd run out of his place "to see what the excitement was about," but hadn't seen much. On his heels, came an exceptionally interesting Jehu. He was an M. D., he told Barry, "but business is bad, so I'm out to make a little."

"A little business?" Barry asked.

"Well, I haven't hit anyone yet."

He was thirty-five, neatly dressed, and wore glasses, and his English was pure and undefiled. Moreover, he had a scientific instinct for observation. "I saw the taxi," he said, "and the woman step off the curb. I knew the cab would hit her, and it did."

"Get the number?"

"Of course," the visitor answered. "Took it down as the runaway crossed in front of me."

He produced a prescription pad. "026017."

Barry wrote it in the note-book to which he had transferred the number of Kelly's lost latch-key.

"How did you happen to be in lower Fifth avenue at that hour?" he asked.

"I went down—some time before—with a very singular person."

"Why do you say he was singular?"

"He acted strangely. At least, I thought so at the time. I picked him up in a tobacconist's shop a few minutes before twelve o'clock. 'Where do you want to go?' I asked him.

"'To a drug store,' he answered. 'There's one in the Flatiron building, at Broadway and Twenty-third street. Take me there.'

"It seemed a long way to go for a drug store, but I supposed he knew someone, or wanted a special prescription. Anyway, it was none of my business, and I took him. He gave me a fifty-cent tip, and went into the Broadway entrance. Five minutes later, while I was wondering where to go next, I saw him walk out of the door that opened on Fifth avenue. I started back uptown.

"About half past one, I picked up a couple that wanted to go to the Brevoort, on Eighth street. I took 'em, and was making for Times square again when the traffic lights stopped me at Sixteenth. Then I saw the woman and the cab. The whole thing was over in a minute. The taxi struck her, went right up on the pavement, smashed a lamp-post, and kept going. But I got the number."

"Then, of course, I jumped out of my cab and went to the woman. She was beyond help, though. And, by this time, a policeman had turned up, and I decided to move on." He smiled. "A taxi-driver learns to avoid the constabulary."

"So you didn't give the cop that license number?"

"What for? The woman was dead, and arresting some poor, scared taxi-man wasn't going to do her any good. I started back to my cab, and whom should I bump into but the chap I'd driven to the drug store. He was coming out of Sixteenth street, so lost in himself that he hadn't even noticed the crowd. 'Hello,' I said. 'We seem to be meeting a lot tonight.'

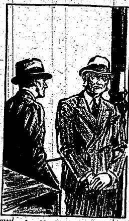
"'Who are you?' he asked, curtly.

"'I'm the taxi-driver who took you to a drug store on Twenty-third street a couple of hours ago.'

"'I never saw you before in my life. You've made a mistake,' he said. 'I live in this street, and I've been home all evening. You never drove me anywhere.'

"'Have it your own way,' I said, and climbed into my buggy.

"I wasn't mistaken, and neither was he. He was in kind of a daze until he recognized me, and then he got almost hysterical. You'd've thought I'd accused him of murder."



"Who Are You?" He Asked Curtly.

The doctor rose from his chair.

"Maybe I'm doing that," he added. "There was a murder that night, you know; in that street. But, of course, you know. Your ad didn't fool me."

"Then why did you answer it?"

"Well, my conscience has been hurting me a little." He smiled again. "That's my number, and my name and address, if you want me."

"There's your fifty dollars."

"Thanks."

"I wish you could tell me more about your singular fare."

"I wish so, too, but I can't. I'd know him if I saw him again, but I'm not likely to see him."

"Would you mind leaving me a receipt for that money?" Barry asked.

"Certainly not."

"I like to have vouchers for what I pay out."

The doctor nodded, and went to the desk.

Barry was halted by an exclamation.

"What is it?" he asked.

The doctor turned to him.

"That's the man I saw in Sixteenth street," he said. "Believe it or not, that's the man."

In his hand was Barry's newspaper, with the picture of Judge Hambidge.

"I must see Pat at once," Barry thought.

What was he going to say to her? Six days before, she had given him a pretty plain warning to keep out of this. Barry no longer had any doubt of that. He had decided to do so, and then Willetts had reminded him that gentlemen didn't "abandon ladies in distress." Well, what was a gentleman to do now?

"Damn it," he raged; "I can't blame her for wanting to protect her own father! And it doesn't make the least difference, anyway. I'd go on loving her if she'd committed the murder!"

Once more, he asked himself what right he had to assume that either Pat or the Judge had anything to do with that murder. Pacing the floor, he reviewed all his evidence again, and reached a conclusion as to what it indicated. That brought him back to the idea of himself as Pat's ally. "If I can make her see that," he said. "She's got to come clean, though. And she will. When I can tell her about Peggy, and make her understand that the truth will clear that boy. And then we can get together to clear the Judge. There might have been a whole lot of reasons—decent ones—for his going to Kelly's that night."

DEER WITH COW'S TAIL IS A FACT—NOT A TALL TALE

Pillager—If someone told a story of a deer with a cow's tail you might think it a "tall tale". But several substantial citizens have reported seeing a wild deer with such a tail a few miles west of Pillager. The animal is quite an oddity, and several have gotten quite close to the curious animal.

WOMAN'S BLOOMERS ARE INSUFFICIENT DRESS

Littlefork— Heat or no heat, no nudists will be tolerated in Littlefork, says Policeman Koester, as he warned one person, clad only in a pair of women's bloomers, that he would have to wear more clothes on the public streets or go to jail. The order was complied with. "It's not that I care," said the policeman, "but I don't think the village council will stand for it." And to make matters worse, several persons have been seen wandering around the streets recently clad in only a night shirt.

LONG PARTED BROTHERS ALLOWED BRIEF VISIT

International Falls— Brothers who had not met for 35 years were rejoined last week, but only for a short time and with considerable restrictions Both unnaturalized citizens, one a resident of Canada and the other of United States, they could not visit one another in the other's home, but were permitted by immigration officials to meet and talk together for two hours in the middle of the bridge which joins the two countries at International Falls. Ely Popovich has a large farm at Drumheller, Alberta, and Michael, his brother, has a fine farm near Superior, Wis. They both left their home in Jugo-Slavia 35 years ago, and altho they had corresponded as the years passed they had never seen each other. Both now plan to take out citizenship papers in their respective countries so they can visit each other and see each other's families.

youths at Thief River Falls are Mrs. Verna Purcell, WPA county recreational superintendent and County Supt. Matheson.

Hereafter the district wide projects will be sponsored by the National Youth Administration, but the youths will continue to work under the joint supervision of Mr. Benson and local volunteer supervisors and co-sponsors The youths eligible must be between the ages of 18 and 25 years and must come from families certified to the WPA.

Mr. Benson, who will open his office Saturday July 25th, in Mr. Stanghelle's office, was born and raised in this city, having graduated from the local high school and during recent years has attended the University of Minnesota.

Besides providing work projects for youths, out of school, between the ages of 18 and 25, the National Youth Administration provides school aid for high school and college students who would not be able to attend school without such aid. Needy students between the ages of 16 and 25 may apply to the heads of the institutions they wish to attend for this school aid. As the number of students who may be aided in any institution and the amount of funds that may be expended are somewhat restricted and based on the total enrollment of the institution, only the most needy will be given the school aid.

Drouth Causes Modifications

ings—Land which has been devoted to a soil-conserving use may be used after this date for the planting of an emergency forage crop for harvest in 1936 without changing the classification of such land. Land upon which emergency forage crops are to be planted, however, will not be classified as soil-conserving if there is a good stand of a soil-conserving crop on such land. Emergency forage crops include the sorghums, sudan grass, soybeans, millets and other similar forage crops.

This modification is designed to enable farmers who have lost soil-conserving crops because of abnormal weather conditions or insect infestations to plant emergency crops on such land without the loss of soil-conserving payments. It will be beneficial particularly in areas where new seedings of legumes and grasses have been entirely wiped out by drought and high temperatures.

"These modifications," Mr. Wickard said, "are consistent with the general objectives of the 1936 Agricultural Conservation Program which are to bring about the planting of increased acreages of soil-conserving crops, such as legumes, grasses and pastures, and to provide sufficient food and feed crops to meet National needs.

"The measures that have been approved today," he emphasized, "are indicative that the 1936 program is sufficiently flexible to offer farmers and consumers alike effective assistance against the ravages of drought."

Farmers who do not understand how they may get in line for benefits under the three provisions should contact their county committees in order to learn how to properly perform their farm operations.

Crops and Soils Day

greatest interest centered in the comprehensive trials of sweet clover as a soil improvement crop. Prof Dunham explained that this investigation was begun in 1931 with a preliminary study of the effect of methods of sowing on the yield and root and top development of sweet clover and has been greatly enlarged in its scope since that time. The plots this year show the marked effects of complete and partial fallow in a year of deficient moisture. Wheat, oats, barley and flax following a season of complete fallow are in best condition at this time and where following sweet clover that was plowed under in June last year an dfallowed subsequently they look almost as good. These crops following two years of wheat look worst. Corn has not conserved moisture or controlled weeds as well as the complete fallow or the partial fallow following sweet clover plowed under.

Trials of various crops showed best stands of sweet clover, alfalfa, brome, and meadow fescue. Poor stands of crested wheat, slender wheat, red top, and timothy resulted from sowings in 1935. Perennial rye grass and orchard grass winter killed almost completely. As an average of 7 years, 1.89 tons of hay from soybeans has been harvested.

The crop has frequently been frosted before ready for hay and is a poor weed fighter even when cultivated. Of the annual forage crops the large yield of digestible nutrients per acre was furnished last year by sorghum, the next by Siberian millet and the least by soybeans. Oats have proved the most dependable and yielded 2 tons to the acre in 1935.

In the varietal trials the remarkable behavior of Thatcher in this year of drought and heat was of general comment. Likewise with considerable loose smut present, Thatcher at the station has none. Mindum durum is also withstanding the extreme heat A small increase field of Thatcher free from bearded heads and of Mindum free from bread wheat and barley were of interest to pure seed growers. Also the new South Dakota hull-less oat looks very promising because of its yield, its freedom from smut, and its hulless character.

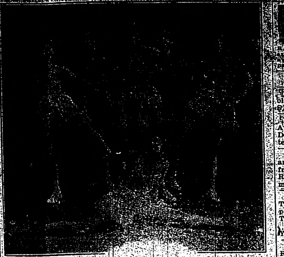
This project was adopted by the State Planning boards of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, and was submitted to the Works Progress administration in the fall of 1935. It has been approved and recommended, subject to review by the Department of Interior.

Arrangements are now being made by the Red Lake River Development association to send a delegation to Washington, D. C. to get immediate action on the project.

ADVERTISE IN THE FORUM FOR RESULTS



There is not another act in all of the show business that does the things on roller skates that the Six Skating Marvels do. These young women are not only graceful and costume their act colorfully, but they show an utter disregard for danger in their work and thrill all that see them.

These Skating Marvels are certain to be one of the outstanding features of both afternoon and night shows before the grandstand at the Fair. A special skating floor, designed especially for this act, is carried by the girls.

The act runs the gamut of hair-raising stunts; from snappy solo tricks to big stunts in which the whole group take part. At times certain of the girls are swung about so rapidly that the eye must be quick to follow the position of the body.

One of the tricks is called the "Skyride", and it is a real thriller. Five of the girls lock hands, with the other girl lying on them in a horizontal pose. They star spinning, and when they get at top speed, the girl in the center is held by just one foot and spun with such speed her body appears to form a perfect circle.

The Six Marvels were kept in training many months to perfect their present routines. All are experts on the rollers as well as on ice skates, but only the former are used during their summer appearances.

hits, which, together with two errors, gave them two tallies. They gathered two more in the last of the ninth on three hits, a hit batsman and a passed ball.

Thief River Falls was held in check by Merhar's good pitching for seven innings, the local boys getting only three runs on four hits thus far. But the pitcher weakend in the eighth and, before the melee was over in that inning, Thief River Falls had added nine more scores on as many hits and four misplays.

As the fair is on here next week the local boys will play out of town for a mid-week game, possibly at Roseau.

Crookston Juniors To Play Here Tonight

The Crookston Junior Legion baseball team, winners of the sub-district title at the play-off at East Grand Forks Monday will play the local Juniors in a game here this evening which will close competition for the locals for this season. A good game is expected as the two teams clashed in a close battle for the sub-district title. While it may be considered a practice game for the visitors, the battle is a return game, played as a postponed event from earlier in the season.

The Thief River Falls Juniors won third place at the sub-district playoff Monday, losing the final game to Crookston by a score of 3 to 2 and winning from Winger 8 to 7 in the consolation. The first game was a heart-breaker for the local boys as Sahl twirled air-tight ball, allowing no one to reach first base until the sixth inning when a couple of hits and a misplay gave Crookston two runs. It was a pitcher's battle thruout, Crookston getting five hits and the locals three.

While the consolation game with Winger was also a close one, the lead Thief River Falls maintained over Winger was never in danger, the local boys leading thruout. Hellquist twirled a good game for Thief River Falls. East Grand Forks defeated Winger in an earlier game to enter the final game against Crookston which the East Siders lost by the score of 3 to 2. By virtue of its victory Crookston plays in the district tournament at [illegible] this week end.

STATE PLANNING BOARD TO SPEED RED LAKE PLAN

Many Projects Included In Red River Valley Improvement

Red Lake River Plan To Cost Over $400,000

Abundance of Water for Man and Animals Is Assured by Group

Plenty of water for human and animal needs is assured throughout a tri-state area of 35,520 square miles if recommendations of the Joint Committee on the water plan for the Red River of the North are adopted by the federal government.

The joint committee is composed of the chairmen and federal consultants of the state planning boards of Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota.

Additional water plan surveys for other basins within Minnesota are now in progress and by September 1, Minnesota State Planning Board recommendations will have been made for the entire state, is the report.

Engineering projects called for in the Inter-state committee recommendations, one of which includes the Red Lake river, will control surplus waters in time of flood, distribute them as needed during the drouth, improve lakes, enhance recreational facilities, create artificial reservoirs for the conservation of wild life and make possible improved and increased operation of hydro-electric plants. Among the recommendations prepared by the committee and now in Washington for action through the National Resources Committee are the following:

The Red Lake river project recommended for completion during 1937, at a cost of $437,200 is urged as an immediate necessity. The report states that there has been no summer flow in Red Lake river for the past three years. Serious epidemics in all towns on the river are charged directly to inadequate water supply.

Among large cities to be benefited by the Red Lake river project are Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Crookston, Grand Forks and East Grand Forks.

Additional water flow for Red river would be assured from Baldhill reservoir on the Sheyenne river in Barnes county, North Dakota, a few miles north of Valley City. Cities and towns on the Sheyenne river would benefit from construction of a dam to impound 176,000 acre feet of water at an estimated cost of $782,700.

City Council Allows 3 Building Permits

The city council convened in the council chambers Friday evening to take up such routine matters as granting of building permits and licenses, and to further discuss questions already brought before the council at previous meetings.

Fred Forsberg was granted a permit to erect a seed cleaning plant near the Soo Line railway at an estimated cost of $3,000. The application of the Thief River Seed House to erect a warehouse near the Soo Line tracks at an estimated cost of $1000 was also granted. The Minnesota state Highway department's application for the erection of a maintenance garage on Lots 1 to 19 of Block 40 at an estimated cost of $3500 was granted.

The council granted the transfer of a beer license from Ed Geving to Margaret Lein. H. J. Olson was granted a license to operate a taxi subject to approval and filing of public liability insurance.

The application of C. J. Lundgren to move a garage from the Roy Lambert property to a location within the fire zone was rejected as being contrary to ordinance provisions.

The proposed ordinance for new light and power rates was given

FAMED QUARTET WILL SING HERE

St. Olaf College Male Singers Will Appear In Program Wednesday, Aug. 5th

The St. Olaf college male quartette, recognized as being at the present time the foremost college quartette in the United States, will appear in this city in a concert at the Trinity Lutheran church next Wednesday evening, August 5, at 8:15 o'clock. The group, which is composed of voices selected from the internationally famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir, is under the supervision of Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, one of America's most widely recognized musicians and choir leaders

The program for next Wednesday evening's concert will include a group of hymns chosen to coincide with Dr. Christiansen's program for better church music; negro spirituals; four well known Scandinavian classics; and a group of songs from various nations.

The quartet is on its second mid-western tour at present. Its engagements include concerts in the largest metropolitan churches, feature work with municipal bands, and guest artist programs with the leading radio stations in four states.

Admission to the concert Wednesday evening will be free. A silver offering will be received at that time, which will go towards the support of the quartette.

ANNUAL GAME MEETING HELD MONDAY NIGHT

Big Gathering Is Present at Dist. Convention at Red Lake Falls

At the annual meting of the Northwestern Minnesota Association of Conservation Clubs held on Monday evening at Red Lake Falls, with the Red Lake Falls Sportsman's club as hosts, officers and directors for the coming year were elected and reports as to game conditions were made by each of the directors representing their respective counties. One hundred and sixty representatives were in attendance at the meeting, representing eight sportsman's organizations from Marshall county, three from Polk county, two from Red Lake county, two from Pennington county, one from Kittson county, two from Roseau county, and one from Lake of the Woods county.

The organization is governed by a board of directors consisting of one director from each county within the Seventh Conservation district of the State of Minnesota. The following directors were elected for next year: Charles Fredricks, Bronson, Kittson county; Emil Malowitz, Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county; Oscar N. Holm, East Grand Forks, Polk county; Harold Olson, Thief River Falls, Pennington; Arnold Hildahl, Greenbush, Roseau; W. F. Zauche, Baudette, Lake of the Woods; and H. O. Hanson, Holt, Marshall county.

Officers elected were Dr. H. N. Leitch of Warroad, president; W. H. Quist of this city, vice-president; and A. A. Trost of Warren, secretary-treasurer. The organization provides that no officer can be elected to succeed himself for any office in the organization. Mr. Trost, who succeeded Paul Lundgren of this city as secretary-treasurer, served as president of the organization last year.

The reports on game conditions revealed that in general upland

Saturday's Rainfall Ends Our Hotspell

A shower of rain Saturday evening, furnishing a precipitation of about an inch, served to cool the temperature for this vicinity since. The thermometer came down into the fifties the past several nights, then hovering up around the seventies during the daytime.

Saturday's rainfall came too late to be of much material help to farm crops, most of these being too far advanced at this time. However, pastures and lawns were much refreshed.

According to reports, little rain fell in the western part of the county while the eastern part received a rainfall of nearly two inches. The shower travelled a southerly direction.

Steps Are Taken to Put Lemke's Name On Ballot After Sunday's Meeting

Steps to put petitions into circulation to place Wm. Lemke on the ballot for the presidency with the Union party label were begun the first of this week at St. Paul. The lining up of presidential electors and securing the names of 2,000 signers is now reported to be in progress. Later an office will be established in the state and a state committee appointed to direct the Union party's campaign, and to make endorsement of favorable candidates for congress and for the senate from Minnesota.

This was the next step after Wm Lemke and Father Coughlin held a big rally at Hankinson, N. D., Sunday, a meeting intended to be the main meeting for the three states of Minnesota and North and South Dakota. A meeting is planned for some center point in our state on Sept. 20th. Approximately $15,000 people attended the Hankinson meeting.

Mr. Lemke and Father Coughlin spoke at some length. Lemke stated he did not care whether his votes for the presidency were taken from Landon or Roosevelt, because he is going to win. Father Coughlin said, "If something is not done for the farmer, he will be forced to repudiate his debts and those who engendered the debts."

Lemke, assailing the financial interests in much the same terms as Father Coughlin, said he would favor issuance of $5,000,000,000 in government notes, to take up tax-exempt bonds and eliminate big interest payments. His farm refinancing bill calls for issuance of notes to make loans at low rates.

"Some tell me", said Lemke, "I am going to take more votes from Roosevelt than Landon. I don't care who is the hindermost. I am going to win.

"You no longer have representative government in the United States. Congress no longer writes the laws. They are written by bureaucrats. The first thing to do is to fire the brain trust. I serve notice now they had better

Tennis Tournaments Will Be Held Soon

The fifth annual Men's Tennis tournament is expected to start next Sunday on the Lincoln High School concrete courts. First round matches are to be played by Sunday night.

Outstanding favorites this year are: Lincoln Arnold, a finalist the last two years and winner of the title last year; Bill Korstad, a fine player and captain of next year's Macalester College tennis team; Marvin Benson, winner of the title in 1933 and 1934 but defeated by Arnold in the finals last year; Lloyd Aanstad, a much improved player over last year. Aanstad is given an even chance of getting into the finals this year and is considered the darkhorse of this year's tennis event. John Biederman, a semi-finalist last year, Gordon Overland and Dick Thronson are expected to go far and may reach the final round. Other leading players such as Carl Lee and Art Nelson have not played tennis this summer and it is not known whether or not they will enter this year.

Players desiring to enter the tournament should immediately get in touch with Marvin Benson, local manager of the NYA office here, which is located in the basement of the City Auditorium. You are also free to call Phone No. 365W for details.

Plans are under way for holding the first women's tennis tournament ever held in this city. This tournament would take place after the men's tournament. Benson and Harriet Helquist are in charge of this event. Girls interested in entering should get in touch with either Mr. Benson and Miss Helquist.

County's 4-H Club Days Have Been Scheduled

The 4-H Canning Achievement Day will be held at Thief River Falls, Friday, August 7. All 4-H members enrolled in canning are requested to take part in either an individual oral or team demonstration, states R. M. Douglass, county agent.

The following will be chosen to go to the sub-district contest at Crookston, August 11: 1 canning team if 15 are enrolled; 1 canning individual demonstrator, 14 years of age or over. The champion canning exhibit and champion canning individual demonstrator will be selected to go to the State Fair.

All records are due at this time. Will all girls planning on giving demonstrations, please see Miss Solie immediately, Mr. Douglass asks.

THIEF RIVER IS LEAGUE LEADER

St. Hilaire Is Defeated In Interesting Game Here Sunday

It was all Thief River Falls at the ball game last Sunday when the scoring aspect of the great American pastime is considered. The local boys took the St. Hilaire boys into camp by a score of 7 to 0 in a game here that was a great deal more interesting than the score indicates.

It was really a pitcher's battle and Orvalla, the twirler for the Thief River boys, emerged the winner. Hallamack, the pitcher for the Saints, held the local boys hitless for three innings, only one man getting to first, that a base on balls. But Hallamack weakened in the fourth and before the inning was over five tallies had crossed the plate.

It happened this way: After Jaranson was out on a grounder to the pitcher, Lee singled to center; he advanced to second as Battelson reached first on a bunt and Blair threw wide to first. Lee scored and Battelson reached third on a hit by Grothe, who in turn stole second. Ekeren singled, scoring Battelson and Grothe. Robinson singled to score Ekeren, as he and Bakke advanced, the latter stopping at third. Bakke scored after Orvalla sent a deep fly to left field, caught by Almquist who failed to catch Bakke as he raced for home as the ball was caught. Eide struck out for the third man.

CLUB AWARDS ANNOUNCED BY COUNTY AGENT

Dorothy Noper Will be "Miss Pennington" at Coming State Fair

The Pennington County 4-H Clothing and Cake-Baking Achievement Day was held Thursday at the Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls at which 34 4-H club girls from all parts of the county took part in the style review and 70 4-H girls exhibited their clothing made in their 4-H club project.

Miss Dorothy Noper, 16 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Noper of Thief River Falls, was chosen style queen to represent this County as "Miss Pennington" at the State Fair. Miss Noper wore a blue figured dress with contrasting trimming of navy blue. She also wore a 3-4 length navy blue princess cut coat. Her accessories, purse, hat and shoes, were of navy blue. Dorothy has been a 4-H member for four years. This is her third year in a class in Clothing. Miss Anna Hanson of Rocksbury and Miss Wanda Hanson of Norden were chosen as the queen's alternates.

Miss Marion Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Green of Thief River Falls, was chosen as the champion clothing exhibitor. Marion is a member of the Rocksbury 4-H club and has been a member for two years. Miss Green's exhibit included a medium blue taffeta dress with a blue figured 3-4 length coat. Her accessories, hat, gloves and shoes, were in white.

Miss Bernice Halvorson, 14 years of age and a member of the Steiner 4-H Club, was chosen as alternate.

Miss Esther Hetland of the Rocksbury 4-H club was judged the champion individual cake baker. She has been 4-H member for five years. This is her fourth year in cake-baking. Esther will compete at the sub-district contest at Crookston, August 11.

Oen's Anniversary Sale To Close On Saturday

Oen's Department store, one of the city's oldest and most prominent business institutions, opened its 47th anniversary sale Friday, amidst values galore in bargains in every department. The event will come to an end Saturday evening this week.

Mr. Oen opened his store here in 1889 and has gradually built up his business so that it is one of the largest in the northwestern part of the state. His many customers cannot afford to pass up the many bargains he is offering the public at this time.

CLARA BJOLAND IS LAID TO REST

Death Occurs at Crookston on Friday; Was Missionary To China for 15 Years

Miss Clara Bjoland of this city, who for fifteen years was actively engaged in missionary work in India, died Friday, July 24, 1936 in a Crookston hospital. She had been ill for some time.

Miss Bjoland was born on January 29, 1886, at Climax, Minn. She attended a business college in Crookston and was employed in this city for a number of years as a stenographer and bookkeeper. At the age of twenty-eight years she enrolled in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and after completing the curriculum there, she studied at the Missionary Training school in Nyack, New York. In 1916 she sailed for India to enter her missionary work in which she was actively engaged in for fifteen years. She served also as secretary of the Missionary Alliance for a number of years. Failing health prevented her from terminating her last furlough and returning to her work two years ago.

Funeral rites were conducted on Tuesday afternoon at the Norwegian Evangelical church in this city, Reverend E. L. Tungseth and Rev. J. O. Jacobson officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Miss Bjoland is survived by her mother, Mrs. Ingeborg Bjoland of this city, her sisters, Mrs. Betsy Mjoen of Fargo, N. D., and Mrs. Sara Knutson of Goodridge, and her brothers, Gunder Bjoland of Climax, and Charles Bjoland of Fargo, N. D. Her father and three brothers preceded her in death.

Landon Opens Presidential Campaign; G O P Leaders Are Not Optimistic

Alf. M. Landon, the Republican nominee for the presidency, opened his campaign Thursday night in a rally at Topeka, Kansas. Landon was roundly applauded by the crowd of nearly 100,000 Republicans gathered from every state in the union.

He pledged himself "to restore an efficient as well as constitutional government, unshackle the initiative and spirit of the American people and stop the fumbling with recovery". He seriously and solemnly read without gesture or hardly a nod his speech of 4,000 words, failing to some extent, to inspire his listeners as have the later Republican presidential candidates.

A political commentator reports: G. O. P. higher-ups at Washington seriously question the wisdom of Alf Landon's strategy as revealed in conferences at Topeka since he delivered his acceptance speech. Unless he changes his tune and tieups, they predict that he will not attract "border line voters" in sufficient numbers to win.

Their theory is that Mr. Landon starts with the 15,000,000 died-in-the-wool conservatives who voted for Herbert Hoover. To defeat President Roosevelt, he needs to corral 3,000,000-plus from the ranks of moderates and liberals alienated by New Deal excesses rather than its general philosophy. So far there is no indication that this floating vote will warm to the Kansas Governor on the basis of what he has said or done since his nomination.

For the present these voters seem to be withholding judgment on the Republican nominee. They realize that he could not detail his program in a single speech. But unless he rings the bell in their hearts with his next few speeches, they may conclude that FDR—with all his faults—is the better bet. Like a spinster, Mr. Landon has got to make a fast start.

LIVESTOCK AND P'LTRY ENTRIES ARE BEST EVER

Splendid Attractions Are Given at Two Performances Every Day

Poor Weather Exhibits Affected Some Exhibits

35th Yearly Event Will Come to a Close on Friday Evening

The 1936 Pennington County fair is on in full force and from indications will be as successful as any held here in former years. The crowds Tuesday evening and yesterday reached good sized proportions and today's and tomorrow's crowds are anticipated to be still larger.

Tuesday was devoted mainly towards the entry of exhibits and properly placing them. The livestock and poultry entries are excellent, surpassing those of former years. Entries in grain, vegetables and flowers are not as good as formerly, a thing that cannot be looked for under the adverse conditions of the farming sections this year. The home economics, school and 4-H club exhibits compare favorably to those of former years.

Tuesday evening's program was mainly devoted to the WLS Barn Dance troupe. The many numbers were well presented and rousingly applauded. The entertainment lasted for about two hours, and many of the characters are familiar to local people as they are heard over the WLS radio station in Chicago at intervals.

Wednesday afternoon's program consisted of horse races and the regular free grandstand attractions.

The following are the winners of the principal horse races held at the fair yesterday:

The free acts, presented twice daily are given at interludes between the races in the afternoon and between the various parts of the musical revue "Around the Town". These acts are: Eddie Ruton's dogs, showing many new feats of dog-dom, the greatest of which is a leap from a 40 foot pedestal into a big net; a second group is the six skating marvels making

Sorenson's Cafe Is Open For Business

A temporary opening of the new Sorenson's Cafe was made Wednesday and a large crowd was served meals at the new spacious place in the Citizen's State Bank building which quarters were formerly occupied by the local post office.

Olaf H. Sorenson leased the place two weeks ago and immediately got busy to equip a first class restaurant. As it takes considerable time to obtain permanent equipment, Mr. Sorenson got out to equip the place in a semi-permanent fashion, also placing his order for a permanent cafe equipment which is expected to arrive here in about two weeks. This will include booths for the west side and marble and enameled counters and tables. The culinary equipment will also be of the very latest.

Mr. Sorenson is a well-known resident of our city, having resided here for the past twenty-five years and for the past several years in partnership in managing the well-known Soo Cafe.

Mr. Sorenson expects to have the new equipment fully installed in about three weeks when he wants our readers to look for details of the grand opening.

LANDON'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

The speech of acceptance given by Alf M. Landon Thursday was what many expected it to be. Mr. Landon dealt in generalities and left the real issues either to be disclosed later or not at all.

In general, the speech was mildly liberal, with parts as conservative as the Hoover policies of earlier days. It is apparent that Landon adheres to the Republican policies of the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations so, if he is elected, we may look for rugged individualism as being the guiding star.

The theme of his speech seems to be contained in the following sentences: "The law of this world is that man shall eat bread by the sweat of his brow. The whole American people want to work at full time and at full pay."

Anyone who knows the Republican party knows that this has not been the law of the three administrations that ended in 1932. The American people worked good and hard and there was plenty of sweating. But at the same time the people got less and less of bread. It ended up in the fact that when the people got less and less for what they did the less they could buy, so the entire system ended up in the panic which reached its worst in 1932. The full time at full pay was a non-entity—yes a mockery—with the conservative Republicans. They believed in grabbing as much as they could and the rest who couldn't do any of the grabbing became helpless.

It was the policy of "laissez-faire", or rugged individualism where every man is for himself and the devil take the hindmost. And that seems to be Landon's idea in general. He is side-stepping the main issues by making indefinite phrases which discloses the fact that he is not the strong man needed to administer the government in our tried and turbulent country.

The Scripps-Howard newspapers have cited the Republican nominee on how sincere he is in word and action. They take his instance of how he implicitly favors civil service reform, deplores the present spoils system, yet in his own state he has carried on the very system he condemns, The Scripps-Howard papers stated:

We were pleased to hail as progressive statesmanship Gov. Landon's wire to the Republican convention saying he proposed to extend the merit system in the federal government to include "every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretary and the entire postoffice department". Here, we thought, is a candidate for president who believes as we do.

So it is quite a let-down for us to read in the Baltimore Sun (no defender of the New Deal), a dispatch written from Topeka by Paul W. Ward, Washington correspondent. Here are a few excerpts from Mr. Ward's article:

"Research showed that his (Gov. Landon's) own state has no civil service system at all, although, according to state officials, a law providing for one has been on the Kansas statute books since before the war. No governor has ever seen fit to appropriate sufficient funds to put the law into operation. Once $800 was appropriated to pay the salary of a clerk. That was before Landon.

"Under Gov. Landon there has been no appropriation at all and the civil service law remains inoperative. There are no competitive examinations for state jobs. Department heads fix the salaries of their subordinates. Judging by appearances, there is more superfluous help—relatively—in the state house here than in any of the New Deal agencies in Washington. In nearly two weeks of traveling from one office to another in the Kansas capitol, no persons were encountered who seemed to be working, outside of the governor's suite of offices.

"All posts appear to be filled on a patronage basis. Leaders in both the Republican and Democratic camps said there is a "general house-cleaning" whenever there is a change of administrations.

"When a Democrat, Ed Powers, who was elected state auditor, died last September, Landon appointed a Republican, George Robb, to the post, and Powers' appointees were at once replaced by Republican jobholders."

The governor might do well to remember that reform, like charity, begins at home.

WALLACE RAPS INDIVIDUALISM

If democracy is to be saved from Communist or Fascist dictatorship, according to Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, free competition must be abandoned in this country in favor of "cooperatives of consumers, of producers and ultimately of industries."

In an article entitled "The Search for an American Way", appearing in the current Scribner's Magazine, Secretary Wallace writes further that the Supreme Court in the AAA decision "chose to interpret the Constitution in the light of a handicraft age."

"The doctrine of states' rights," he writes, "now invoked by the Supreme Court, was a barrier to progress even in 1787, and was the cause of a terrible conflict in 1861. Today the states mark no economic boundaries that make sense, and they provide only limited instruments for action to meet modern problems.

"Long ago the great corporations managed to break down states' rights when they interfered with corporate expansion. Today it is clear that states' rights are being invoked not for the rights which they defend, but for privileges they protect.

"They are being invoked by groups which have already obtained centralizing powers under government but which, by this means, seek to prevent extension of centralizing power to other groups such as farmers and labor.

"Only the large corporations, the Republican party, New England, the Liberty League and most of the newspapers of the country are apparently for states' rights today.

"The dominant political idea of the future will probably have to do with the discovery of more adequate methods of obtaining unity in diversity. The totalitarian or corporate state represents the ultimate in unity but it also represents the loss of democratic privileges which we hold so dear."

DISQUALIFYING A CHAMPION

Eleanor Holm Jarrett, American champion lady swimmer, has been disqualified as an entrant in the Olympics from the United States because of misconduct or failure to observe training rules. She was a sure winner and for that reason it will cost Uncle Sam's team many points in carrying off the Olympic championship.

Because of her ability Mrs. Jarrett dared the Olympics training committee to disqualify her. She had the idea that because she was such an outstanding swimmer no one would oust her. But the committee in charge took the proper action. A group of athletes must observe certain rules. Whether it is a prominent star or anyone else who fails to live up to the regulations it is for the good of sports and athletics in general to enforce the rules.

Therefore, if anyone goes into athletics for personal gains and not for the good of the whole, let him or her be alone and unattached. For that reason we commend the action of the athletic committee in disqualifying the lady swimmer.

ASK FOR RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

Application for projects for rural electrification should be made in communities in Minnesota where the field is favorable for such. The Rural Electrification administration is glad to consider such and will do everything possible to bring such projects about.

Electricity is the field for a greater future development. There are many conveniences that should now be had in the ordinary home, especially a farm home, which are not enjoyed because of lack of proper associations or connections with others in the community. The government will assist when it is found advisable so applications for such projects are in order.

BOLIVIA PROPOSES TO NATIONALIZE ALL KINDS OF INDUSTRY

The military government of President Toro announced it approved in principle a proposal to organize industrial employers and employees into obligatory syndicates.

The measure is considered one of the most sweeping labor statutes ever proposed in any South American country.

It would bring employers and employees in all branches of commerce, mining, finance and other occupations into two great syndicalist federations.

Meetings of the two federations at least every two years in separate congresses would be followed by a joint session Congress which would have wide powers to debate and resolve questions of production, hours and wages.

The Government already has put into effect decrees proclaiming obligatory labor for all able-bodied citizens and ordering salary increases of as much as 100 per cent on the basis of 1930-32 price levels to compensate workers for the losses suffered by the devaluation of the national currency.

"BILL" LEMKE'S CHANCES

"Bill" Lemke's Union party seems to have had an auspicious meeting at its opening rally at Hankinson, N. D., Sunday. Father Coughlin was there as were 15,000 interested listeners. A lot of claims and assertions were made as regarding the Union party's purported strength and the chances of Lemke to become president of the United States.

While we don't want to belittle the efforts of Wm. Lemke, as he has done much for the downtrodden, yet, we fail to see that there is any reason for him or Father Coughlin to make the fantastic assertions they are making, such as Lemke being the next president of the United States, throwing the presidential election into the House of Representatives, or carrying a number of states in the electoral college.

Knowing "Bill" Lemke as we do, we cannot see the least of a chance for him even to carry his own state of North Dakota. This writer has been a resident of North Dakota for the past dozen years, and, while we know the people of the state will re-elect Mr. Lemke to the office of congressman, yet, it will not support him for president.

He has advocated progressive legislation at all times and credit must be due him for his efforts for such as the farm mortgage moratorium and the farm refinance bill. Both of them carried the Frazier-Lemke name and the two law-makers involved have certainly made publicity out of these proposals, so much that the people of North Dakota are tired of hearing about them any more. Both proposals have been held impossible of enactment, yet, Mr. Lemke and Senator Frazier have held them out as near realities. It was good campaign material for the gentlemen.

There are a good many instances where we can point out that Lemke has been in politics because of Lemke, and he has abandoned principles because of it. Therefore, when progressive factions refuse to endorse his candidacy there is a great deal of reason why this is not forthcoming. Their opinion, we believe, is the same as ours, ie, Wm. Lemke is qualified to be a congressman, but not the president.

Final figures just released by the Commerce Department at Washington place the 1935 national income at $52,595,000,000. This compares with the peak of $81,034,000,000 in 1929, and a low of $39,595,000,000 in 1932. The increase over 1934 was four and a half billions, and workers' pay rose 7 per cent. Of all income, 67 per cent went to labor.

Railroad Pension Plan Explained in Full

A national retirement system for all railroad workers—the kind of system for which the Standard Railroad Labor Organizations, operating through the Railway Labor Executives' Association, have been consistently struggling for years—is actually functioning.

On Monday, July 13—a date destined to become historic in the annals of railroad labor—the United States Treasury deposited in the mails checks for varying amounts made out to the first 18 annuitants to benefit from the new system.

The U. S. Railroad Retirement Board promises that other checks will flow into all parts of the country as rapidly as the board can complete the task of certifying claims to the Treasury.

This announcement, of vital interest to more than 1,250,000 railroad workers in the United States was made by Murray W. Latimer, chairman of the Retirement Board at a press conference in the spacious quarters of the board in the Masonic Temple at 10th and U Streets, N. W., in Washington, on Saturday afternoon, July 11. Seated beside Chairman Latimer were the other members of the board—Lee M. Eddy, representing railroad workers and James A. Dailey, representing the carriers.

Correspondents of all the press associations and big dailies, together with a sprinkling of representatives of the Standard Railroad Labor Organizations and employes of the board, made up the audience.

Before Chairman Latimer presented his formal statement, he and his associates had conferred with President Roosevelt and representatives of the Department of Justice and of the Treasury Department. All the responsible leaders of the administration gave their approval to the board's decision to proceed with the payment of pensions without waiting for a final decision by the higher courts on the validity of the Pension Act and of the Tax Act.

Government Is Confident

An appeal will be taken from Justice Bailey's decision, but the legal advisers of the administration are evidently confident that the Pension Act will be sustained and that they have at least a fair chance to save the Tax Act. However, should the Tax Act be held defective, the Congress which meets in January will be asked to enact a substitute Tax Act which will meet the objections of the court.

The story of just what the Railroad Retirement Board has done, and how it expects to proceed in the future, is best told in the following formal statement which Chairman Latimer handed to the newspaper men with the understanding that it would not be published before Monday morning, July 13:

"For the first time in America a governmental system of old-age retirement annuities (for other than governmental employes) begins to function today—July 13—in the payment of annuities, when the United States Treasury, on certification of the Railroad Retirement Board, places the first checks for 18 recipients of such annuities in the mails.

4,000 Immediately Eligible, 20,000 Other Applicants

"These checks to retired railroad workers represent, according to Murray W. Latimer, chairman of the Railroad Retirement Board, the first of a series of monthly payments to which, under the Railroad Retirement Act, the recipients will be entitled as long as they live. Some 4,000 railroad workers are immediately eligible for such annuities; more than 20,000 other railroad workers have made application for these annuities.

"The Railroad Retirement Board is proceeding at top speed to secure the data necessary to certify to the United State Treasury annuity payments for all railroad workers who are eligible.

"'The payments which are being made today have great historical significance not only to railroad workers but to workers of all sorts in America,' declared Mr. Latimer, who, in addition to serving as chairman of the Railroad Retirement Board, is director of the Social Security Board's Bureau of Federal Old Age Benefits, 'because they forecast what is in store for 26,000,000 to 30,000,000 American working men and women for whom somewhat similar annuities begin to accrue on January 1, 1937, under the Social Security Act.'

"Railroad retirement benefits are payable—as a matter of right and without relation to the financial position of the recipient—to railroad workers who on reaching the age 65 retire from employment, or who retire after having been employed for 30 years or more on a railroad and having attained the age of 50, or who have been retired by a railroad carrier for incapacity after 30 years of service.

Based on Service and Wages

"The annuities paid today are based primarily on past service and wages. The one and one-quarter million railroad workers now in service also have rights to receive annuities upon qualifying as above indicated and by continued service most of them are adding to the amounts which they will receive upon retirement.

"Mr. Latimer pointed out that while the United States District Court for the District of Columbia held the Railroad Tax Act invalid, it expressly declined to declare the Railroad Retirement Act unconstitutional. An appeal will probably be taken from this decision."

After reading the statement, the newspaper men began firing all kinds of questions at Mr. Latimer. It was evident that many of them were not familiar with the long struggle for railroad retirement legislation and Mr. Latimer proceeded, patiently and courteously, to clarify details.

If Act Is Held Invalid

"What will happen to these railroad workers who are to be paid pensions in case the higher courts invalidate the pension law?" asked one newspaper man.

"They are out of railroad service now and have no income. So this pension will be of great material benefit to them. If the court invalidates the law, they will not be in any worse position than they are at the present time," Latimer replied.

"The railroads are making arrangements to furnish the board service records in order to complete information needed to pay other claims. The board is to pay for this information. The amount to be paid and the details regarding how a basis of payment shall be reached, have not yet been worked out. This will be done shortly".

Those Now Pensioned

"What will happen to workers receiving the government pension who are now on the pension rolls of some railroad company," asked another reporter.

"That is a matter which is solely up to the railroad company," replied Mr. Latimer. "The fact that a railroad worker is already receiving a pension from a railroad

PLATFORMS

Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, has long been known for his staunch and sturdy Republicanism . . . so long, in fact, that he has come to be looked upon as more or less hidebound in his political ideas, or if not precisely hidebound, then at least a trifle musclebound.

* * *

But it begins to look as if, maybe, this is an erroneous impression. Certainly, it doesn't check with his action the other day in taking the G. O. P. out behind the woodshed and laying on the old razor strap.

Listen to what he says about the doctrines set out and defended in the platform the Republicans adopted at Cleveland while he himself was over in Europe. . .

"Were they ever put into practice, they could only lead to new distress and suffering on the part of the American people and to world wars from which no nation would be able to hold itself aloof."

* * * *

Nor is this all. He finds so many other things wrong with it that he frowns heavily on just about everything in it except the punctuation marks.

One gathers, in short, that if it were left to him, he would promptly declare the whole thing unconstitutional and start all over again.

The G. O. P. appears to have gone "Gee!" where "Nick would have had them go "Haw!"

* * * *

Whatever may have been the real purpose of the Professor's tirade, most of us see nothing more in it than evidence that, contrary to common belief, he can take his Republicanism or leave it alone. . .

For we voters have long since passed the point where we even bother to read Republican platforms. But if we should ever be reduced to the point where our reading matter consisted only of the 'funnies' anyway, we'll take 'Popeye, the Sailorman', every time!

Popeye, at least, is what he is; while the Republican platform usually is what it ain't!

* * * *

And if we should ever read the thing, we certainly wouldn't begin with that adopted at Cleveland. Instead, we'd go back to those on which the Republicans successfully waged their campaigns of 1908, 1920, 1924 and 1928, after which we'd check back to see how well those promises had been kept.

* * * *

Then, perhaps, we'd read the 1936 platform. But by that time we wouldn't worry over anything it contained. . . even if it declared for a shortened season on radio crooners and limited the day's bag to one crooner. . .

We'd know, well enough, that it wouldn't be kept anyway!

* * * *

Only once in the country's recent history, as far as your commentator knows, has an administration made a serious and sincere attempt to keep its campaign promises. . .

That was during the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration.

* * * *

Unusual conditions encountered by that administration made certain readjustments necessary. But if these at times resulted in what may at times have seemed like technical violations of the covenant, no one may honestly say that its spirit was not meticulously observed.

That the voters, by and large, will approve of these technical breaches is indicated by Roosevelt's popularity in the various newspaper polls.

The voters are more reasonable —and sensible—than the politicians. They seem to figure that its a poor stick of a general who does not change—or is unable to change—his plans when the battle takes an unexpected turn.

* * * *

However, the Republicans, if elected, will hardly be held to the same strict accountability for their campaign promises as they now attempt to hold the Democrats. . .

Anyway, they shouldn't be!

For the Republican platform never has been looked upon as any thing but campaign bait. . .

And after the fish has been safely hooked anyway, what difference does it make to him what sort of worm he was caught with!

"They Hate Roosevelt"

Magazines and newspapers occasionally tell of the hatred the American "aristocracy" has for Franklin D. Roosevelt. A typical example: Julian T. Bishop of Carthage, North Carolina, is a breeder of fancy quail and hunting dogs, and comes from a royal line of stock brokers. His bid for notoriety is based on the fact that he stated publicly that if Roosevelt is reelected this fall he will move to Canada, as he does not want to go through four more years of misery.

Bishop sets the pace for modern tories. It takes one back to the days of '76 when all rich liberty-haters left the colonies for Canada. Many of them lived to see the entire British empire liberalized. All of them hated the founding fathers, who were the progressives of that day.

One writer claims that the very personal hatred many American tories have for F. D. Roosevelt arises not so much from the fact that he has stepped on their toes, but because he as an aristocrat himself should do so. As a matter of fact, Roosevelt's policies have swung far to the right within the last few months. He has made more and more concessions to the liberty-hating Liberty League crowd, and his entire role has been clarified as an attempt to preserve the system, to guard the interests of those very people who revile him. Helping the masses has been only secondary or incidental.

It must be admitted that things could be a whole lot worse. For instance, Gov. Alf Landon's Kansas relief policy might be spread over the entire U. S. A. and his horse-and-buggy methods become a standard for American retrogression. Landon's Liberty League and Hearst connections make him an actual menace to the U. S. A. right now.

The reason they hate Roosevelt is because he refuses to accede to fascistic ideas just yet. Landon is a forerunner of fascism. It is for this reason that, as the choice seems to be between Roosevelt and Landon, I would unhesitatingly choose Roosevelt every time.

AAA Inconsistencies

Now and then enemies of the New Deal drag out the ghosts of AAA misadministrations. One of these draggers-outers is Senator Vandenburg of Michigan, who made a bid for the Republican nomination for president. He cited in a speech that one man received $219,825 from the AAA for not raising 14,587 hogs on 445 acres of land: another received $168,000 for not planting 7,000 acres of cotton; and a third got $78,638 for not growing wheat.

Of course no mention was made of the tens of thousands of farmers who received small benefits which sometimes meant the difference between keeping on farming or quitting. The law under which the payments were made states that producers should be paid according to the number of pounds of bushels withheld from production—so naturally big producers would receive more, even though in most cases they would not need it.

No doubt the AAA did many foolish things, but compared with the idiocies of the profit system (which is the real cause of the trouble), it is sane. The ultra reactionaries would take away the AAA and leave the farmers to the tender mercies of capitalist competition.

Thinking It Through

When it is remembered that 1936 production will almost reach the 1929 level in many things (steel for example) and that there are, at a conservative estimate, twelve million unemployed, compared with three million in 1929, one can see what we are up against. Technological improvement has gone ahead amazingly in all lines, so that now mankind can produce more with less labor than at any previous period in history. Yet the man who runs the machines works just as hard and gets paid no more; in addition he has displaced perhaps ten or more men, thus further constricting the market. How can it be said that any system which throws an increasing portion of its people out of work, is a going concern?

will in no way affect his eligibility for the Federal pension.

"I understand the Pennsylvania Railroad has informed its pensioners that if they receive a government pension they must refund to the Pennsylvania the amount that the railroad pays them. For instance, if they receive $50 from the railroad and the government pension is $100, they must refund $50. Thus they will remain on the pension rolls of the Pennsylvania Railroad regardless of what becomes of the government pension system."

Remain on the Job

While no definite statement was made on the subject, Mr. Latimer inferred that it was the recommendation of the Railroad Retirement Board that railroad workers who are still in the service should not quit their jobs until a final decision on the Railroad Retirement Act is handed down by the Supreme Court.

Leaders of the railroad labor organizations take the same position. A final decision cannot be secured from the Supreme Court before some time next winter. The government attorneys contemplate taking their first appeal to the Court of Appeals. They will, of course, urge the court to sustain both the Pension Act and the Tax Act.

Needy Come First

Whatever the decision of the Court of Appeals may be, the losing side will almost certainly take the case to the Supreme Court. All this will consume time.

ICKES LAUDS N .W. WATER AID PROJECT

A $10,000,000 water conservation program in the valley of the Red river of the North, submitted to President Roosevelt by the planning boards of Minnesota and North and South Dakota, was made public last week by Secretary Ickes.

The proposal called for construction of small dams, restoration of lake levels, improvement of channels, flood control, reduction of stream pollution and improvement of farm and city water supplies.

Ickes described the program as the "first proposal of a practical nature for the execution of a water resource plan as a major corrective for serious drouth conditions". It was worked out by a tri-state committee in cooperation with technicians of the national resources committee, of which Ickes is the chairman.

Ickes said the states "had indicated a willingness" to help pay for the work and were setting up an organization to operate and to maintain "existing and contemplated works under a unified plan of water management."

The tri-state committee recommended starting immediately on the following projects:

Construction of dams on the Ottertail and Pelican rivers, $244,000.

Completion of survey of Sheyenne river, Baldhill reservoir project, $5,000.

Completion of survey of Pembina river, Walhalla reservoir project, $5,000.

Completion of survey of Goose river, Steele county reservoir project, $5,000.

Seek Survey's Completion

Completion of survey of Dakota Wild Rice river floodway to Sheyenne river, $5,000.

Completion of survey of Sheyenne river, diversion ditch to Dakota Wild Rice river, $5,000.

Completion of survey of Park river, levee and straightening of channel, $5,000.

Channel improvement of Red, Sheyenne and Ottertail rivers, $355,000.

Reservoir for flood control and game refugees on Lake Traverse-Bois Des Sioux project, $900,000.

Ask Dams on Red

Roseau river project. Blooming Valley reservoir and Two Rivers auxiliary channel, $1,301,000.

Dams for water conservation and recreation throughout the Red river basin, $436,400.

Municipal water supply and the treatment projects, $2,358,600.

Sewerage projects, $2,546,000.

The committee reported studies were being hurriedly made on the following projects:

Sheyenne river, Baldhill reservoir project, $777,700.

Pembina river, Walhalla reservoir project, $395,000.

Goose river, Steel county reservoir project, $195,000.

Sheyenne river, diversion ditch to Dakota Wild Rice river, $95,000.

Park river, levee and straightening of channel, $45,000.

PHEASANT DISTRIBUTION WILL BEGIN THIS WEEK

Distribution of six-week old pheasants raised at the Madelia Game Farm will begin this week, according to Frank Blair, superintendent of game propagation.

The first truck load of about 800 birds will be distributed in Hubbard, Becker, Polk, Red Lake, Marshall, and Pennington counties.

Next week stocking will begin in Cass, Itasca, Crow Wing, Aitkin, Carlton, St. Louis, Todd, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Kasabec, and Pine counties.

Mr. Blair said hatching had been satisfactory despite the hot weather. There are apparently more pheasants than ever before in the central western counties of the state. Mr. Blair attributes the increase largely to improved winter feeding methods.

BOYS GET 13,500 VOLT SHOCK, LUCKY TO LIVE

Hallock—A narrow escape from death by electrocution was experienced by John and Lawrence Docken, farm boys residing near Hallock. Playing with an old automobile chain directly under an interstate power line. They tossed it into the air, where it became entangled with the high line and hung suspended just out of reach. Not thinking of the electricity, and wishing to recover the chain, one of the boys climbed upon the other's shoulders to reach it. Being grounded, the full force of the charge got them as they touched the chain, and 13,500 volts of electricity went through their bodies from one to the other. One lost consciousness and was revived with a pail of cold water. The youngster that had touched the chain got his hand burned severely, while the other had two holes burned in his back where his brother's legs gripped him. His feet were also scorched to the bone. Aside from considerable pain due to the burns, both boys seem to be all right. The fact that the ground was too dry to give a complete ground saved their lives, as that charge is sufficient to cause instant death.

"THE LESSER OF TWO EVILS"

This phrase is about the only argument I have heard from individual voters who dare not vote for the Union Party because some of them say it might help Roosevelt, and others say it might help Landon. After scores of years at administration of our government by one or the other of the two Old Parties, we find ourselves worse off, economically than ever before and yet these people are going to endorse these parties by splitting their votes between them!

Did you ever see cowardice win a fight? No, it has not, and it certainly will not this year either, because so far as "driving the money-changers out of the temple, there is positively no difference between the Democratic party and the Republican so far as their leadership is concerned. Neither one of them says a word against our insane Federal Reserve system, and so long as Congress refuses to do their duty to "coin money and regulate the value thereof," it sure is foolish to look for lasting business and economic recovery, because whoever controls the medium of exchange (money and credit) controls business and also economic conditions when natural conditions are normal.

The big idea of the international bankers is to create a national debt (Government tax-free interest-bearing bonds) so great as to permanently make usury slaves of the tax-payers. Roosevelt was given power by Congress over 3 years ago to issue three thousand million dollars of legal tender money to take up bond issues becoming due or callable. He has not yet printed a single dollar, but has issued billions of tax-free interest-bearing bonds, and, under the Federal Reserve Banking system, this privately owned system can get back money equal to the face value of their bonds any time they ask for it, and still get interest on, and repayment of their bonds!

This system was inaugurated in 1913 and started actual operations in 1914, and the first big steal they perpetrated was to inflate currency first to drive prices way up so as to get people to create debts on this inflated basis, and then in 1920, under a Democratic administration, they "deflated" credit and wiped out thousands of farm-owners, businessmen, banks and manufacturers, and after March 4, 1921, the Republican administration kept up the deflation nearly 9 months, until poverty, idleness, crime and starvation was stalking abroad in the country, and, taken as a whole, this present is the same depression that started in 1920, not 1929. That was only a secondary panic.

Let us all get down to common sense and support Lemke—the Union party, and show these "money-changers in the temple" that we are wise to their legalized stealing.

U Farm Bulletins

Two practical guide books for growers of small fruits have just been revised and republished by the agricultural extension division of the University of Minnesota. One is special bulletin 79, "Bush Fruit Growing in Minnesota"; the other, Special Bulletin 72, "Strawberry Growing in Minnesota." Both are written by Franc P. Daniels of the University Farm staff in horticulture.

Special Bulletin 79 discusses the production of raspberries, blackberries, currants and gooseberries, covering such points as recommended varieties, location and soil requirements, methods of planting, cultivation, winter protection, pruning and harvesting, and control of insects and diseases.

Special Bulletin 72 presents quite thoroughly the information needed for success with strawberries. It lists and describes the better varieties of June bearing and everbearing types, discusses soil preparation, planting and the training, culture and care of old and new plantings, winter protection, harvesting, and control of common strawberry insects and diseases.

Anyone interested may obtain copies of these bulletins without charge from a county agent, high school agriculture teacher, or the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

DROUTH AREA DESIGNATION SOUGHT IN MARSHALL CO.

The Marshall county board of commissioners recently made resolutions seeking to have that county designated as a drouth area. The long hot and dry weather ruined from 50 per cent to a total loss on most crops. The commissioners also voted $2,000 for services of a county agent in Marshall county for the coming year.

The resolution adopted reads:

WHEREAS, Crops in Marshall County have suffered from the continuous drouth and the excessive heat to such an extent that the western and central part of the county has sustained a seventy-five percent loss, and the eastern part of the county a fifty per cent loss, and if the drouth and heat continue the county will have practically a total crop failure, and,

WHEREAS, Many farmers are now plowing under their crops because they have been destroyed by drouth and heat, and,

WHEREAS, the hay crops are very poor by reason of the drouth and excessive heat, and the pastures are depleted;

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of County commissioners of Marshall County Minnesota that said Marshall County be placed in the drouth area by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and that said county be so listed with other government agencies authorized to give relief to drouth stricken farmers

Commissioner Arthur Anderson seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

AN UNEASY SEAT

BEGIN ACTION TO SAVE CROPS FOR SPRING SEED

Early action on the problem of saving seed for the 1937 crops is planned by the Agricultural college extension service.

Efforts will be made to encourage farmers who succeeded in producing grain of suitable quality for seed this season to conserve such supplies for planting purposes next spring. It is feared a serious shortage of suitable seed may prevail unless a large proportion of the 1936 crop can be conserved for seed. A conference on the seed situation for the purpose of developing a program for conserving all available supplies was held in Minneapolis July 20. Representatives from North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota were present.

DROUTH CONFERENCE SET FOR SEPTEMBER

At the suggestion of President Roosevelt, a conference was called Friday on up-stream engineering to discuss long-range drouth relief planning through "little water" control.

Morris L. Cooke, chairman of the president's Great Plains drouth area committee, said the conference, to be held in Washington, D. C., September 23 and 24, was intended in part to bring together information on rainfall and run-off collected by the committee as well as its recommendations.

Mr. Roosevelt, in asking the committee to report to him during a personal inspection of the arid northwest late in August, stressed his desire for permanent control of natural water supplies at their source, or "up-stream".

"Since our committee's study in the field will correlate all the latest data on rainfall and run-off", Cooke said, "it will be very important material for upstream engineering discussions. The president had in mind the pointing up of a new water conservation policy in drouth areas when he called the conference."

During the day the agriculture department drouth committee, keeping a close watch on the spread of the parched areas, added 55 more counties in four states to the emergency drouth list, including 27 counties in Kansas which became an officially designated drouth state for the first time.

The other counties added included six in Georgia, twenty in Missouri and two in South Dakota.

Attorney General Harry H. Peterson, speaking before a mass meeting of relief clients on the Capitol steps last Saturday, declared that while other states have liberal relief rules, Minnesota, because of decisions of the State Supreme Court, must treat all relief clients as paupers. He characterized the language of an early decision in which the court declared "that in the midst of such a great public calamity, a person who is within one degree of being a pauper and in imminent danger of becoming such, may, for the purpose of preventing him from becoming such, be given aid by the state or municipality without violating the Constitution," as narrow and heartless. At the same time he attacked the recent legislature for its pinch-penny policy in refusing aid to needy citizens.

ESTHER LUNSETTER AND ARTHUR T. NELSON WED

Miss Esther G. Lunsetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lunsetter of Gatzke, became the bride of Arthur T. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Nelson of Maple Lake, at a service read by the Rev. S. T. Anderson at the Landstad Lutheran church of Gatzke, Thursday, July 23, at 12:30 p. m.

Preceeding the ceremony there was a short program of organ music by Olaf A. Anderson. The Gatzke Lutheran choir and Olaf A. Anderson furnished music during the ceremony. Miss Bernice Aune was the bridesmaid and her dress was of blue organdy trimmed in yellow. She carried pink roses. The maid of honor, Miss Anna Loven, wore a dress of yellow chiffon with blue accessories and carried yellow roses. The bride wore a white lace dress with a finger tip length veil and carried white roses. Harold and Elmer Nelson, the groom's brothers, were his attendants. The church was beautifully decorated and the sanctuary was outlined with ferns.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the bride's home. A table was set for fourteen at which were seated the bride and groom and their attendants, the parents of the couple, Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Anderson and son, Olaf. About one hundred guests were served in buffet style.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson left on a short trip to the West and on their return will make their home in Kenyon, Minn. Mrs. Knutson is a graduate of the Concordia College at Moorhead. Preceeding her marriage she taught in the Alvarado and Kenyon high schools and during the past year was a member of the high school staff at Juneau, Alaska. The groom is a graduate of the St. Cloud Teachers college, and during the past six years has taught in the Kenyon public schools where he has also been engaged for next year.

CLAUSEN-HILL VOWS SPOKEN AT GRYGLA

Miss Mary Clausen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Clausen of Grygla, and Arden Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hill of Alvarado, were married late Sunday afternoon, July 26, with Reverend S. T. Anderson of Grygla presiding at the service. The ceremony took place on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ankle-length gown of white silk net over a pink satin slip. Rhinestone buckles were fastened at the neck and on the belt of her gown. The bride's bouquet was of pink gladiolas and lavender asters, tied with pink streamers. The bride's attendant was Miss Lila Clausen, who wore an ankle length gown of white taffeta trimmed with a blue sash and a cluster of pink and blue flowers at the throat. Her corsage matched the bride's bouquet. The groomsman was the groom's brother, Maurice Hill. Mendelsohn's Wedding March was played for the entrance of the bridal procession by Olaf Anderson, who also sang a solo.

Following the ceremony, a two-course wedding dinner was served to the bridal party, relatives, and friends. A decorated three-tier wedding cake was the center piece of the main table, at which were seated the bride and groom and other members of the bridal party.

The bride and groom left immediately for Bemidji and other points. The bride's travel costume was a navy blue one with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Hill will be at home at 647 North Snelling Avenue, Apartment 105, in St. Paul. The groom is employed with the Western Supply Company.

Mrs. Hill is a graduate of the Warren high school and the Warren teachers training department. She has taught for the past six years in schools near Argyle and Warren.

CLEARWATER LADIES AID

The Clearwater Ladies Aid will meet in the church on Wednesday afternoon, August 5, at two-thirty o'clock. Mrs. Chris Haugen and Mrs. Vernon McMahon are on the program committee.

GEORGE DUIS

George Duis, who died at his home in Numedahl township on July 21 at eight a. m., was born on January 14, 1881 in Melford, Ill. He is survived by his brothers, Carson of Melford Ill., and Carl of Rosewood; and his sisters, Mrs. Tedje Langlett of Canistata, South Dakota, Mrs. Grace Heyen of Fulden, Minn., and Mrs. Christian Lehmann of Melford, Ill. His parents, one brother, and two sisters preceded him in death. Funeral services were held on July 24 at the Larson chapel and at the Ringdahl church near Rosewood. Interment was made in the Rindahl church cemetery. Reverend E. L. Tungseth officiated at the services.

FOR OUT-OF-TOWN VISITORS

Out-of-town visitors in this city were entertained at several recent social affairs.

On Saturday afternoon, the Mesdames M. L. Finkenbinder of Honolulu, Hawaii, M. S. Knutson of Ellendale, Minn., and A. W. TO INVESTIGATE DROUTH CONDITIONS IN VALLEY

Assurance that drouth conditions in Red River valley counties will be investigated was given Congressman R. T. Buckler in a telegram received from J. W. Tapp of Washington, D. C., chairman of the drouth committee. Congressman Buckler had wired Tapp, and several other governmental authorities to urge that Marshall, Kittson, Norman, Clay, Becker, Ottertail and Polk counties be placed in the emergency drouth area. In his reply Tapp says, "have asked department representatives in Minnesota to make survey of counties listed by you to determine number of farmers affected and nature of assistance needed."

DROUTH AID BOOST SEEN BY TUGWELL

R. G. Tugwell, federal resettlement administrator, describing the Northwest drouth "in some respects worse than 1934," last week said 97,000 families or one-half the farm population of four states will require some form of federal aid.

Returned from a swing through the heart of the Dakotas-Montana-Wyoming dry sector, Tugwell asserted "we have no way to estimate" how much the federal aid will be.

"In some respects the situation is worse than 1934," said Tugwell, referring to the devastating drouth of that year. In some respects it is better, but the water table is lower, the fields are comparatively bare over much of the region and the grass is thinner.

"The better half is shown in the rapidity with which cattle were evacuated from the area and the system by which foundation herds were retained. This side of the picture is better than two years ago."

40,000 In Dakotas

"North and South Dakota will have 40,000 farm families each dependent upon some form of federal assistance," the administrator continued. "Wyoming will have 5,000 and Montana 12,000." He said this constitutes more than half of the rural population of these states. Sixty per cent received some form of federal aid last year, he said.

"There is no way of estimating the total crop loss," Tugwell continued. "The Resettlement administration is working in close harmony with the Works Progress administration over the area and certifying cases to their lists as rapidly as possible.

Confers on Relief

A gigantic trough of drouth across the prairies was described by Tugwell. The heart is located along the North and South Dakota boundary. Thence west to Montana and southwest to Wyoming. Crop conditions show improvement east of the Dakotas, the administrator added, and forage and feed conditions are somewhat better over scattered northern and southern portions of the region.

Tugwell conferred with Minnesota WPA and resettlement officials on the Minnesota situation after voicing his views on the condition of western Minnesota counties, several of which are included in the emergency drouth area. These are Wilkin, one-half of Otter Tail, Traverse, Big Stone, Grant, Douglas, Stevens, Pope and one-half of Swift.

Valley Best Area

Red river valley farmers are better off, the resettlement chief said. The crop over most of the area is very light but is worth harvesting, and in a few spotted districts a good yield is in prospect.

Eight Minnesota counties have been placed in the "secondary" drouth area to receive a form of federal assistance less complete than those in the emergency category. These are Kittson, the eastern one-half of Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Norman, one-half of Clay and Becker.

Tugwell said the resettlement administration neither intends to move nor is moving farmers from the drouth stricken region. He parried comment on a future land use policy for the arid sector with "that is a problem outside of our domain."

Grants Are Listed

"The resettlement administration has $85,000 000 available for family aid purposes," he continued. "The average monthly relief per family is $17.50. If we knew the exact number of families to be affected and the length of the relief assistance we could definitely estimate the federal expenditure."

Allocations made for grants to be used exclusively for human sub sistence through the resettlement administration include:

Minnesota $75,000; North Dakota $450,000; South Dakota $475,000; Montana $90,000; Wyoming $58,000; Nebraska $132,500; and Kansas $155,000.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Evans' advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is indicted.

Evans phoned at ten.

"I've been having dinner with Kelly's chauffeur. His name's Nolan." Evans said, "and he don't talk much. We got pretty thick tonight, though."

"Suppose we start for home at nine in the morning," Barry said.

He was hungry, and tired of thinking, so he had a snack at the corner.

Precisely at nine the next morning, he called Pat and told her he was coming. "Something important's happened," he said.

"Why not lunch with us?" Pat suggested.

"We're lucky if we get out by two," Barry told her. "And anyway, I want to see you alone."

"I'll expect you at two," she said.

Evans was waiting, and full of his evening with Nolan. "I didn't dare ask a question," Evans reported. "He's the suspicious kind. I think he drinks, though, and a fellow that drinks is bound to loosen up some day."

"Buy him all he can hold," Barry counseled.

Conversation lapsed after that. Evans' passenger was rehearsing his part of the coming interview. "I'll bet she knows now what it's about," he speculated.

And she did.

"Come in," Pat invited, leading the way to the drawing room.

Pat indicated a chair. "Sit there," she bade him. "It's awfully warm—for June."

"Pat—" he began, still standing. "I've stumbled on something."

"So I gathered," she observed. "And I assume that it has to do with your pet murder."

"It has to do with your father." She smiled.

"I suppose you've discovered that he killed Kelly."

"I've discovered that he called on Kelly that night."

"Wonderful!" Pat mocked. "Who told you that?"

"The taxi-man who drove him downtown."

Barry related his adventure with the errant medico.

Pat listened almost indifferently.

"It was sheer chance," Barry concluded. "I hadn't any idea of implicating your father. But now he is implicated. You must see that."

"I don't — unless you insist on dragging him into it."

"I insist on nothing, Pat—except clearing an innocent man."

"At the expense of one equally innocent?"

"What does your father stand to lose by telling the truth? We know now that Kelly was alive when Rogers left the house. I'm just as sure that he was alive when the Judge left. But he must have been killed soon afterward. We've got to find out who killed him."

"Why?"

"Because now we've two men to clear."

"If my father saw Kelly after the boy left—"

"That clears Rogers."

"And puts it up to my father."

"Your father didn't kill Kelly," Barry said. "I know that, and I know why he went to that house."

"Really?"

"He went to protest against filing that Jefferson street decision."

"And then filed it."

"He had to. The pressure was too strong for him. He'd been struggling against it for weeks. In politics, even honest men have to listen to reason sometimes. Your father had to."

"How interesting!"

"In spite of the hullabaloo, he wrote the decision. And, that day, came the bitterest onslaught of all. The Globe had a direct accusation. Your father was frantic. Just before midnight, he telephoned Kelly from the tobacconist's shop, and went straight to Sixteenth street.

"He told Kelly this verdict would ruin him. Might ruin everybody. For more than an hour, he pleaded and argued. No use. Kelly was adamant. Your father gave up at two o'clock, left Kelly—alive—and filed his decision next morning, before anyone knew that Kelly was no longer alive. That's the truth, isn't it?"

"So plausible that telling it publicly would probably end my father's career."

"And so?"

"And so I think we'd better forget it."

"You mean that, to continue your father's career, you'd let this boy go to the gallows?"

"Of course, I don't."

She turned to him, the hardness gone out of her voice.

"There's no chance of that, and you know it."

"There's always a chance."

"We'll face that when we come to it."

"We've got to face it now, Pat."

"Why?" she pleaded. And then, passionately: "What right have you to demand that we do anything? You don't even know this boy."

"I do."

"Since last—"

"And you know him. He's the real John Clarke Ridder."

That gave her pause.

"Whoever he is, he's got a wife and a baby. I can't risk his life to save you, or myself."

"If he's convicted—" Pat began.

"I won't have him go through that. If the Judge doesn't tell the truth now, I will."

Pat's mouth became a straight, hard line.

"And who'll believe you?" she asked.

"I can prove—"

"Who'll take the word of a bribed taxi-driver and a branded adventurer?"

"Listen, Pat—"

"You listen. I've warned you to stop prying into our affairs. You went right on. And now you—the scum of the earth—"

She was losing her head.

"Now you come into my house with a story villifying my father and threaten to tell it if we don't. My reply to that is: Go ahead! And, an hour after you do, you'll be arrested for robbing the mails!"

They stood facing each other.

"That letter you opened before Willetts—the letter with the hundred dollar bill—that wasn't addressed to Barry Gilbert, was it?"

"No."

Pat crossed the room.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but you asked for it."

"I did, but I can't take your answer. I can't because—God help me, Pat—I'm in love with you."

She gave no sign of hearing.

"I'm an adventurer," he went on, "and you're a lady. The realest I ever met. That's why you can't do this."

No answer.

"I couldn't," Barry continued, "and I'm a fake gentleman. I wanted to. I wanted to drop the whole business. I told Willetts that after you'd warned me last Friday. And Willetts said, 'That isn't done. A gentleman's got certain responsibilities.' He has. That's a tradition stronger than we are."

Pat turned, at last.

"This is funny," she said. "You—"

"It is funny," he cut her short. "I'd like to behave like a loafer, and I can't. I'm willing to go to jail to save this boy—and I'm the scum of the earth. You're a lady. How about you?"

"If it were only me—" she broke.

"Your father's a gentleman. How about him?"

Before she could reply, the double doors opened.

Judge Hambidge was standing there—erect and soldier-like.

"Mr. Gilbert's right, Pat," he said. "I release you from your promise to me. I can't go through with it. I'm too tired, and full of self-loathing."

He turned squarely to Barry.

"You're right about everything. About my going to Kelly that night, and the reason I went. He let me in himself. We quarreled violently. So violently that he took a revolver out of his desk drawer and kept it in his hand. Then I walked out of the house. But you were wrong about just one thing, Mr. Gilbert. I left the house at two o'clock, but, when I left it, Kelly wasn't alive."

CHAPTER VII

THEY were a curiously inert little group for a minute or two after the revelation.

It was like a play, Barry thought; curtain down on a climax, and the actors relaxing until it should rise again for the next scene.

After a time, Barry crossed the room to the pair.

Pat turned on him.

"Well, now you know," she said. "You know about us, but remember we know about you, too."

She was herself again; hard and defiant.

Ignoring her, for the moment, Barry asked the Judge, "Do you want to tell me what happened?"

"I wrote my opinion in the Jefferson street proceedings, and then, again as you say, I couldn't go through with it. I'd never done a crooked thing in my life. I don't know how I ever made that speech at the Astor. The instant it was finished, I telephoned Kelly. 'You'd better come down and talk it over,' he said.

"Of course, it would have been fatal for anyone to learn of that meeting. That's why I got out of the taxi at Twenty-third street. As I told you, Kelly admitted me himself. He was drunk, and in a bad temper. 'What's the matter with you?' he asked, when we'd gone into the drawing room. 'White-livered? Here; take a drink, and forget it.'

"There was a bottle on the table, and two glasses. Both of 'em had been used, but he half-filled them, and gave me one. I needed it, but I can't drink Scotch—never could. I told Kelly so, and he blazed out at me. 'You're too good to drink with me—is that it?'

"'No,' I answered: 'that's not it. But I can't hand down that decision. I simply can't, Mr. Kelly. It's rotten, and everyone knows it. I've got the cursed thing in my pocket, and—'

"'And I've got something in my pocket,' he shouted—"

"Father!" Pat intervened.

"For over an hour, I pleaded and argued. And Kelly kept drinking, and getting uglier. He was a big man, with a bull neck, and huge hands. At last, he said, 'Shut your damned mouth, and get out of here!'

"I said, 'I'm not going.'

"'No?' he sneered, and got up from his chair. He stumbled across the room to a great, old-fashioned desk, and got a revolver. 'Now, beat it,' he yelled, 'and damned quick!'

"'All right,' I said, 'but I won't file that decision.'

"I walked into the hall, and Kelly stood, leaning against the door, with the pistol in his hand, so furious that I half expected him to shoot before I could get my hat. 'You think you can scare me,' he shouted. 'You and The Globe. You think you got something on me. Witnesses. Squealers. Well, I know how to take care of them, by God! Beat it! And, if that decision ain't filed by noon, today, I'll—'"

Again, Pat said, "Father!"

"I know," Hambidge interrupted himself.

Pat's admonition had come just in time, Barry thought. The Judge had risen, tense, and so excited that he seemed on the verge of collapse.

"And that was that," Barry calmed him.

"Not quite," Judge Hambidge continued, but in a lower tone. "When I got to the bottom of the steps—the stone steps, I mean—I stood thinking. If I left that way, there was no telling what Kelly might do. 'I've got to go through,' I thought. 'It's ruin either way, but, if I obey orders, ruin only for me. I'd better give in.' I couldn't make up my mind, though. I kept looking back, half decided. And, suddenly, a queer thing happened. The front door swung open."

The Judge mopped his hands again.

"I'd shut it carefully," he resumed, "but there it was, wide, almost like an invitation. I walked into the hall. The glass doors to the drawing room were closed, but I could see the light through them. When I put my hand on the knob, the lights went out. I turned the knob, and pushed, but the door wouldn't open. Not latched—it was as if some on was holding it. 'Kelly,' I thought. 'He won't let me in. I've got to act quick now.' Almost in a daze, I wandered up to the avenue. At nine o'clock, I gave the decision to my clerk, and told him to file it immediately. A few hours later, I learned that Kelly was dead. The papers said his body was found stretched across that door to the hall. I knew then it was there when I left the house, and that was why I couldn't open the door."

Pat said, "Are you satisfied?"

"Are you?" Barry asked. "Or would you rather that I tried to find who killed Kelly?"

"What does it matter—" Pat began, hotly.

"It think Mr. Gilbert's answered that question," the Judge interrupted. "We've got to clear young Ridder. At any cost, Pat, we've got to clear him."

"Mr. Gilbert's our friend," her father went on. "He says so, and I believe him."

"What do you want to know, Mr. Gilbert?"

"How long did you stand at the foot of the steps before that door swung open?"

"Five minutes. Maybe, a little more."

"Do you think some one opened it? Some one who, then, went in to Kelly?"

"You mean, the murderer?"

Barry nodded.

"No. That's the last thing he would have done. The door probably didn't latch when I closed it."

"While you were in the house, did you see anyone but Kelly?"

"No. We were shut in together."

"Did you hear anyone?"

"Since you mention it, once I did think a heard the front door close. I may have imagined it, but now I remember Kelly asked, 'Who's that in the hall?' It was about half an hour after we went into the drawing room, and I looked out, but there wasn't anyone."

"He—or she—may have gone into the dining room," Barry said. "Whoever killed Kelly came out of the dining room; I'm certain of that."

"Why?"

"Because the drink Kelly offered you was Scotch whisky. Was there anything else in the room?"

"If there had been, I'd've asked for it."

"Exactly. And the weapon that crushed Kelly's skull was a cut-glass decanter containing rye whisky.

"In the five minutes you were standing on the pavement," Barry reasoned, "some one came out of that dining room with that decanter, and struck Kelly. There was no time for a quarrel. That man—or that woman—knew what he—or she—was going to do."

"Why do you say 'she'?" Pat asked. "This wasn't a woman's crime."

"It's not a criminal's crime, either," Barry answered. "A criminal would have brought the weapon, and it wouldn't've been a cut-glass decanter. A criminal might have worn gloves, to prevent leaving finger-prints. But, since this wasn't a criminal, the fact that there were no finger-prints suggests that the murderer just happened to be wearing gloves."

"It's Not a Criminal's Crime, Either," Barry Answered.

POLO PLAYED UNDER SHADOW OF SKYSCRAPERS

United States Army officers stationed at Fort Jay, Governor's Island, New York Harbor, put up a swift game of polo with the lofty skyline of lower Manhattan as a background.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

RESOLUTIONS

We the members of the Ninth District North, Minnesota Woman's Christian Temperance Union, assembled in Convention do resolve:

First—That we re-establish our faith in God, and we consecrate our lives to the ideals as exemplified in the life of Christ.

Second—That we assist in the spiritual awakening of our churches, to the end that their influences for good be more potent.

Resolved: that we support all efforts to awaken our citizens to the need of legislation which will guard our communities against forces which will lure our children into paths of vice and delinquency—That we arouse the people against the danger of open drinking places.

Resolved: That we support all efforts to enforce laws against gambling which are now in force, especially those offering lures to the children; that we cooperate in opposing legalization of lotteries, race track betting, etc.; that we support any movement, whether new or now in progress, for cleaner motion pictures; that we awaken the people to the danger in the efforts being made to reinstate the red light districts, and join with all groups in opposing any re legalization of this segregated vice district

We urge an intensive study of the scientific facts about beverage alcohol and its use, and a thorough knowledge of available material for teaching these facts to groups of various ages; that all may know "What Alcohol Is" and "What Alcohol Does", and be prepared not only to tell others in an effective manner, but also be able to inspire accurate, tactful and interesting presentation of these facts by others through religious, health, educational, social, and civic agencies.

Resolved further:

That we pledge ourselves to work unceasingly for peace, that we continue to urge the entry of the United States into the World Court, and to support a world league through which nations may settle their problems by pacific means—that by letters or cards we inform our representatives in Congress that we expect their support for disarmament of the nation.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. Hanson (Anderson) Warren
Mrs. I. W. Kinder, Crookston
Mrs. J. R. Veloske, Bemidji

FARMER-LABOR CLUB HONORS MR. AND MRS. BERVE

A group of nearly two hundred people gathered at the Sons of Norway hall Friday to honor Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Berve in a post-nuptial celebatrion. The event was sponsored by the local Farmer-Labor club.

Paul Harris acted as chairman of a speaking program which included talks by Judge Brattland, B. G. Bjornaraa and Atty. H. O. Chommie, a few remarks by J. H. Ulvan and a humorous reading by Mrs. M. A. Brattland.

An elaborate easy chair was presented the honored couple, following which Mrs. Berve and our county attorney responded with appropriate remarks.

A repast was then served by the Women's Farmer-Labor club of which Mrs. Thora Nelson is the chairman.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF RED LAKE FALLS DIES

Mrs. J. E. Savard, 61 years old, resident of the Red Lake Falls vicinity for many years died in a hospital at Grand Forks, Wednesday, last week, where she had been a patient four days.

Born in St. David, Maine, July 19, 1875, Mrs. Savard came with her parents to Louisville, in Red Lake county, in 1888. She was married there in 1901 and has since lived in Red Lake Falls and the vicinity.

She is survived by her husband, three sons, Lorenza of Red Lake Falls, Allarie of Erskine, and Rayone of Fosston, two daughters, Mrs. Clarence Capistran of Crookston and Mrs. Chester Nelson of Red Lake Falls, three sisters, Mrs. Arthur Huto of Debdin, Sask., Mrs. P. 4H CLUB LIVESTOCK AWARDS ANNOUNCED

Five Pennington County 4-H club members who have participated in the raising of livestock and poultry in connection with their club work have won the coveted opportunity of exhibiting their stock at the State Fair to be held in St. Paul in September.

In the dairy calf division, Raymond Oen of Rocksbury club and Myrtle Fimrite of Highlanding club were selected; in the purebred beef heifer class, Glen Haugen of River Falls club was chosen; in the poultry division, Donald Johnson of River Falls was selected; and in the purebred lamb division Elmer Nelson of Mavie was chosen. Helen Hardisty's lamb was judged as the best in the purebred lamb division, but as the age requirement is set at twelve years of age and over, Elmer Nelson, whose lamb ranked second highest, won the trip. Helen Hardisty, a member of the Smiley club, is only ten years of age.

JUNIOR LEGION TEAM DEFEATS CROOKSTON 5-3

The local Junior Legion baseball team won a 5 to 3 game from the Crookston Legion team Thursday evening last week. Sahl held the visitors well in hand though Crookston threatened seriously toward the close of the game.

The Juniors will play Argyle in a game tentatively set for Saturday evening. Coach Lee expects to have a free exhibition between two younger teams, aged from 10 to 12 years, in a game at the East Side park Monday evening.

Mrs. Martha Doyle and daughter Clara and Mr. and Mrs. Corbet, all of LeRoy, N. D., arrived Wednesday to attend the fair. While in the city they were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Aalbu. They left for LeRoy on Thursday morning.

MIDDLE RIVER

Middle River Sportsmen Organize

The Middle River Sportsmen Conservation club was organized at an enthusiastic meeting held in the Woodman hall last Friday evening. The officials of the club are: Frank Green, president; Henry Young, vice president; Harold Johnson, secretary-treasurer; Oscar Schenkey, John Isaacson and Thomas Maijala, directors.

County attorney Trost and a Mr. Wittensten of Warren, and H. J. Olson of Viking were present. Mr. Trost is president of the county organization of sportsmen and gave a very interesting talk on the general plan and purport of the organization and the desirability of a local organization here. The Middle River is the eighth local organization to be effected in the county, and Marshall is one of seven northwestern counties that are organized into the N. W. Minnesota Association of Conservation clubs. The Middle River branch was reorganized just in time to entitle it to a representation at the district meeting at Red Lake Falls on Monday evening. The following named Middle Riverites attended: Frank Green, Henry Remillard and Bob Forder.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Swanson and two children of Jamestown, were guests at the L. H. Olson home over Sunday. Mrs. Swanson is a sister of Mrs. Olson.

Miss Gladys Carrier who was taken to the hospital in Greenbush on Thursday of last week is reported to be considerably improved.

Miss Clara Carrier left on Wednesday of last week in company with her cousins from Crookston on a motor trip to California.

A letter received by Mrs. Carr from Mr. and Mrs. Harold Murphy of Nashua, Mont., announces that they are the parents of a baby boy born July 23, all interested parties doing well.

The Women's club held a special meeting at Mrs. Wright's Monday afternoon and definitely arranged their program for the ensuing club year.

Messrs. Christy and Healy of Red Lake Falls with their families came up to visit the Longleys Sunday, but finding the Longley family was away from home, their visit was only a call.

The Middle River and CCC second teams play a game here this Tuesday evening. As this copy is mailed Tuesday we can not give any report of the game.

Albert Zedlik is tearing off the old shed roof that covered the back part of his business house, and raising that section of roof, rebuilding it to correspond with the front section.

John Nystul, who about twenty years ago was superintendent of the Middle River schools, is manager of the Lemke presidential campaign with headquarters in Chicago.

Some fifteen or more cars of boosters for the Pennington Co. Fair took possession of our main street for a brief period on Thursday of last week.

A. W. Peterson and family visited at Einar Loven's in Gatzke on last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Longley and family spent Sunday at Lake of the Woods.

The heavy rain which was so welcome here and in most of the surrounding territory was accompanied in some small areas by destructive hail. Harry Cook reports the total loss of his garden and small grain crop. Ed Edlund also reports a total destruction of his crop and says he picked up hail stones as large as hen eggs which came down with such driving force as to make holes in the ground two inches deep. Albin Anderson and Geo. Gusa south of town and Thomas Braaten north of town all report losses.

Alton Carlson, who with his mother and his relatives of Holt, is having a six-weeks outing at the Bemidji lakes, was at home for a few hours Monday having driven up with his cousin Reuben, of Holt.

There was quite a family reunion at the M. S. Nordine home Sunday. The guests were: Swan Nordin, father of M. S. and A. W. Nordine and family, all of Karlstad, Mrs. Eddie Peterson, sister of Mrs. Nirdine with her daughter Mary Ann, Theo. Anderson, Miss Mabel Anderson, sister of Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Miss Helen Halquist of Duluth, a niece of the deceased Emil Halquist, a former business man here, all from Lancaster. The party had a picnic dinner in the park and on their departure for home Clifford Johnson went with the Lancaster crowd to that town where he has a job for some time to come. Miss Halquist will remain here for some time.

ST. HILAIRE

Mr. and Mrs. Vernar Nelson and daughter Clarine of Warren accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Schantzen and son of Minneapolis, and Mr. Mike Fricker from here, returned here Tuesday after having visited at Golden, Colorado, with Mr. and Mrs. Nels Nelson and family and with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Peterson at Larmie, Wyoming for the past three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Burkee and daughter Buryl of Moorhead motored here Sunday to visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Olson and other relatives.

The Norwegian Lutheran Sunday School held their annual picnic at the tourist park Sunday. Prof. Jordahl of Fertile spoke at an open air service at 11 o'clock. A picnic dinner was served at noon. A short program by the Sunday school was given in the afternoon. A very pleasant time was spent by the large number present.

Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Dahle and family leave this week for a two weeks vacation to Sauk Lake near Sauk Centre to their summer cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gunstad motored to Maple Lake Tuesday evening and visited at the home of Mrs. Gunstad's mother, Mrs. A. L. Patterson. They returned Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Tuveson and daughter Kathrine and Miss Esther Anderson of Chicago, and Mrs. T. Swenson of Minneapolis, left Monday for their respective homes after having visited here at the home of Mrs. Lena Hallstrom since last Thursday.

Ruth Espelund of Moscow, Idaho, has been visiting at the John Maakrud home. She is well known here, having lived here for many years in her childhood.

Miss Margaret Dahle, who is taking up the nursing profession at Minneapolis is home to spend a couple of weeks at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. M. L. Dahle.

Mrs. Pete Burkee of Moorhead accompanied by Valerie Olson of here who has been sick for several months left Sunday evening for Minneapolis where the latter will enter the University hospital for treatment. Her many friends are hoping for her speedy recovery.

Miss Marveatte Phippin has been visiting for the past week at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Just. She left for her home at St. Paul the last of the week.

Miss Lisa Henrickson was honor guest at a birthday party last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. E. Burkee. A pleasant afternoon was spent and a delicious lunch was served. Miss Henrickson was given a purse of money. Those present were Mesdames M. L. Dahle, Geo. Bakke, Knute Kolstad, B. E. Burkee and S. M. Olness.

Miss Marie Skattum entertained a number of her friends last Monday afternoon at her home. The guests included Echo Norman, Vivian Lindquist and Joyce Roese of Hazel.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Peterson of Sioux Falls, S. D., came Tuesday to visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Peterson and with other relatives. They returned home the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Schantzen and son left for their home at Minneapolis Monday morning after visiting here at the home of her father M. Fricker and in the western states of Colorado and Wyoming for the past five weeks.

The Community Ladies Aid and Women's Club gave a joint farewell party for Mrs. Raymond Young, who is leaving here to make her home at Red Lake Falls. It was given at the M. E. church Monday evening. A social evening of contests were enjoyed. A beautiful lace tablecloth was given to Mrs. Young by the group as a token of remembrance of the occasion. A delicious lunch was served at the close of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hamery of Mentor visited Saturday at the Martin Gulseth home.

Mrs. Jens Almquist entertained a few friends and relatives Thursday afternoon in honor of her nephew Clinton Benson's birthday anniversary of East Grand Forks, who is visiting at her home. The out-of-town guests present were: Mrs. Esther Benson, Mrs. M. Brink, Laura Almquist and Mrs. Clarence Carlson, all of East Grand Forks, and Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Johnson and family of Hazel.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Halmberg and son Nels of Thief River Falls visited Sunday at the Marlin Gulseth home.

Calls It Sham Battle

Father Coughlin said Democrats and Republicans are engaged in a "sham battle, a battle between the right wing and the left wing of the same bird of prey, the international banker."

"Go back," said Father Coughlin, " and tell your friends that if either is installed in the White House there will be no election in 1940. Fascism will be here and Communism will be making a bid for power."

"Money," said the priest, "is nothing. You cannot eat it. You cannot wear it. It is not wealth. It is only a receipt for wealth. The present conception of money is a pagan one which makes the people starve in the midst of plenty."

Lemke said he is a candidate "because there is no other candidate for the common people. Reactionary Democrats and reactionary Republicans belong to the same breed of cats; in fact they are the same cat. I am going to bring the Presidency of the American people back to the American people where it belongs.".

Coughlin called Roosevelt "a genial, a promising young man," and Landon as "a lovely gentleman." He said the recent trip into the northwest of R. G. Tugwell was "an attempt to buy your loyalty for the New Deal with its Frankfurters and its Wallaces and its brain trusters."

Annual Game Meeting Is Held Monday Night

birds are scarce this season, but that ducks are more plentiful this year than they have been at any time within the last three years. Deer are also plentiful. The association passed a resolution requesting a closed season this year on all upland birds. Another resolution was passed asking for a thirty-day duck season to begin Oct. 1, 1936, and continue to October 30, 1936. A resolution requesting a change in the law to permit an annual fiveday deer season in place of the bi-enniel ten-day season now permitted. The resolution also requested that the 1936 season be reduced to five days, the season to open November 18, 1936.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Congressman R. T. Buckler of Crookston; A. C. Hanson, director of game and fish and Jack Manweiler of the United States forestry service, who is now stationed in the upper Red Lake Game refuge. Mr. Manweiler showed two reels of film of pictures taken of game in the upper Red Lake game refuge. The Red Lake Falls club served lunch.

solo and group stunts on roller skates, all participants being young acrobatic female marvels. Then there will be the five American Eagles, high-wire and aerial gymnasts one of the performances finding all five actors on the wires at the same time. Cuby and Smith will be seen in some burlesque acrobatic stunts that are astounding in themselves.

This afternoon (Thursday) there will be added attractions in a pig race and a boys' bicycle race. On Friday afternoon the merchants' prize, a new Plymouth automobile, will be given away. Announcement will be made of the winner of the horseshoe pitching contest and an amateur contest will also be an added attraction the same evening.

The fair comes to a close as Friday evening's program is concluded.

SHE HAS CONVINCED HERSELF

Miss Francis Pavlovic, New York, N. Y., writes: "I am recommending Kuriko to all my friends, because I have convinced myself that it is a very good medicine. I used to suffer from stomach distress and headaches, but since I take Kuriko, I feel perfectly well". Many thousands have had the same experience. Kuriko is a time-proven herb remedy. It tones the stomach, regulates the bowels, increases the urinary flow, eliminates injurious waste matter from the system and helps nature to restore the buoyancy of good health. Kuriko is not found in drug stores; it can only be obtained from authorized local agents. For information write to Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons Company, 2501, Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Adv.

State Planning Board Speeds Red Lake Plan

The Ottertail and Pelican rivers project which would provide storage in lakes of the Ottertail basin. The resulting water supply would be adequate for cities and towns on the Ottertail and upper Red river, among which are Fergus Falls, Breckenridge, and Wahpeton.

To complete this project $244,000 would be devoted to construction of Class "A" dams and $85,000 to complete channel clearage between Ottertail Lake and Breckenridge. A minimum water flow of 100 cubic feet per second would then be assured.

Between Breckenridge and Fargo, the Red River channel would be improved at an estimated cost of $200,000 to carry at least 100 cubic feet of water per second.

If the recommendations are concurred in, $900,000 will be spent for the building of a dam and reservoir on what is designated as the Lake Traverse-Bois des Sioux river project. This has been recommended by U. S. Army engineers as a federal undertaking.

The Roseau river project studied by American and Canadian Army Engineers for the International Boundary Commission is recommended at a cost of $1,301,000. It will allow diversion of water to the Red River through the north branch of the Two rivers in Kittson county and provide a reservoir of 3,780 acres as a wild fowl refuge and a maximum area of 19,000 acres for storing flood waters.

The foregoing are some of the major or Class "A" projects. Among others are survey projects for the dam and reservoir sites on the Pembina river at Walhalla, on the Goose river in Steele county and the survey project for the Sheyenne-Dakota Wild Rice floodway.

Installation of sewage treatment plants of required standards for all cities and towns on rivers in the Red river basin is urged as an immediate necessity.

Those are some of the projects in the complete report. It is the result of an exhaustive technical study covering six months and was unanimously adopted by the joint conference earlier this month at St. Paul of the State Planning Boards of Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota.

Thief River Falls Is Ball League Leader

This affair dampened the spirit of the visitors. The main effort from then on was to keep the locals from getting any more rallies like this; as the hope seemed faint to overtake them. Lee scored again in the fifth and still another in the eighth, making the final count 7 to 0.

Due to the heavy rain late Saturday night the diamond was heavy. But there were some brilliant plays pulled off and few errors. Eide robbed the Saints of two hits by running back and spearing what would usually have been hits. E. Hallamack at third for the Saints similarly snared two hot drives that seemed headed for safe-hit territory.

Orvalla allowed the Saints only six hits and Hallamack let the local boys down with only seven bingles. Orvalla struck out a dozen batsmen, while Hallamack was credited with five.

Local fans feel a great deal of satisfaction because of Sunday's victory. At the opening of the season it seemed to be quite a hopeless task to put a winning team in the field. But Sunday's victory over St. Hilaire supplies them that feeling of having been amply repaid for their efforts.

The same teams will battle in another game at St. Hilaire next Sunday when the league title will again be at stake. The best the Saints can obtain is a tie for first place, as Thief River Falls can lose Sunday's game and still tie for the title of the ball league. Should the Saints lose, the Thieves have sole title to the championship.

The fast East Grand Forks team is expected to play Thief River Falls here sometime next week. You are asked to look for posters later for the exact date. The visiting team rates second in the Red River Valley league and recently defeated such fast teams as Oslo and Gary.

FARM BUREAU AND 4-H CLUBS PICNIC SUNDAY

Event Will Be Held at Smiley Hall Picnic Grounds

Day Full of Activities Has Been Arranged

Prizes Will Be Awarded at Program; Free Coffee To Be Served

The Annual Farm Bureau and 4-H Club picnics have been combined into one event this year and will be held at the Smiley Hall picnic grounds next Sunday, August 9th. A full day of activities has been arranged by the various committees in charge, states R. M. Douglass, county agent.

At eleven o'clock there will be a kittenball game and horseshoes available for anyone who wants to play. Picnic lunch at noon and free coffee will be furnished. The entertainment program will start at 1:30 with the St. Hilaire 4-H Club band, musical numbers by the Norden 4-H Club Trio, the Hazel 4-H Club Trio and LeRoy Rupprecht. Mr. Frank W. White, the president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation will talk on a very interesting subject.

Following the program there will be races of all kinds for boys and girls. A second kittenball game between two different teams than those who played in the morning will be played at the same time. Following this the winner of the forenoon and afternoon kittenball games will play for the championship. Prizes will be awarded to all competing.

The new bridge over the river at the Smiley hall has been completed and anyone living on the north side of the river can get to the hall that way.

The following committees have been working on the arrangements for this annual event and much of the success will be due to their efforts:

Advertising: Henry Oen and W. E. Dahlquist.

Lunch: C. H. Toomey, H. C. Woolson, Wm. Yenke, Clara Olson and Mrs. John Burtness.

Grounds: Anton Johnson, N. P. Schalz, Wm. Vaughan, Ole Nesland, and G. A. Kompen.

Program: S. E. Hunt, Owen Weckwerth, Jim McCrum, Verna Becker, L. A. Nelson, Mrs. Lee Beebe, P. H. Wright, Anton Jensen, Frank Hardisty, Mrs. V. C. Noper, Mrs. Carl Prestby, Thea Saugen, and Mrs. V. G. Brink.

A very complete schedule of events has been planned by these committees and they are looking for a large attendance. Let's all help make this picnic a huge success by going to the Smiley picnic grounds next Sunday, August 9th.

Pennington County Gets Big School Aid Check

The fifth distribution of income tax school aid by the state was received this week by Mr. Gullingsrud, treasurer of Pennington. It was contained in a check of $11,623.50, apportioned to this county on the basis of $6.50 for every school pupil between the ages of 8 to 16 years, Pennington county having 1,890. Another check is expected later in the year as more income tax is received.

Special school aid accruing from state income tax payments this year undoubtedly will permit allotments averaging $9.50 a pupil, according to George E. Wallace state tax commissioner. This will be the highest average on record, he said.

The tax commission already has released $2,502,348 in special school aid, which is an average of $6.15 per pupil, but it is anticipated that further receipts, by the end of the year, will permit the $9.50 average. The average last year was $7.50.

Since the law was inaugurated by the Farmer-Labor administration in 1934, Mr. Wallace said, collections have totaled $7,724,712. The total for 1934 was $1,194,767; 1935, $2,923,450, and thus far in 1936, $3,597,495. Taxes delinquent for previous years also are being collected.

More Racquet Tourneys Have Been Arranged

The City Women's Tennis Tournament is expected to get under way immediately following the Men's tournament this week. Any girl who wants to enter should get in touch with either Harriet Helquist or Marvin Benson at the city auditorium building.

A Junior Men's Tennis Tournament will be held after the completion of the Women's tournament. Any boy who is still in high school or who has not yet reached the age of 18 is eligible to enter and should leave his name with Mr. Benson.

The local tennis team plans to play several out-of-town matches during this month. The racquet wielders will go to Bemidji a week from next Sunday and Crookston the Sunday following to play a return match, the locals having defeated them once already this summer on the local courts. Matches may also be booked with Warren and Red Lake Falls.

SCHOOL BOARD IS ORGANIZED

Two Vacancies on Teaching Staff Filled; Norby Re-Elected President, Woolhouse, Secretary

The city school board met in the directors' room in the Lincoln building Monday evening for the purpose of organizing for the coming year. B. O. Norby, who was reelected as a member of the board at the recent school election, was again named president of the board. Dr. A. M. Smith was named vice-president to succeed Ralph W. Woolhouse, who was elected secretary. Alfred Skarstad was elected treasurer to fill the position formerly held by Mrs. Frances Larson, defeated in this year's school election. Mr. Skarstad formerly was secretary of the school board.

The board fixed as the regular time and place for school board meetings, the second Monday of each month at 7:30 in the directors' room in the Lincoln building. The amount of the treasurer's bond was fixed at five thousand dollars.

Two vacancies in the city public school teaching staff were filled. The board of education elected B. W. Gabrielsen of Chicago as the boys' physical education instructor to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Donald Chalmers. Mr. Gabrielsen, who for the past two years has been coach and physical education instructor in the Wheaton high school, is a graduate of Gustavus Adolphus college at St. Peter, Minn. At college he played on the football, baseball and track teams, was a member of the Northwest championship gymnastic team and championship swimming team.

Miss Theone Folkedahl of this city was elected by the board of education to the position of second grade teacher in the Knox school, a position held for the past few years by Miss Ellen Brooks, who resigned last spring. Miss Folkedahl graduated from Lincoln high school with the class of '32 and from the local teachers training department with the class of '33. She taught school for two years, and last spring completed a course at the Mankato State Teachers college.

Cooking School Will Be Held Here August 13th

The ladies of Thief River Falls and vicinity will have the opportunity next Thursday, August 13, to attend another excellent Cooking School which will be held in the basement at St. Bernard's Catholic church, beginning at two o'clock. Miss Helen A. Orth, a noted home economics specialist from St. Paul, will be in charge.

There will be demonstrations of the usual brands of foods found in the ordinary home, demonstrations that show how tasty delicious varieties of food can be easily prepared for the regular dinner. It will be an opportunity that will be welcomed by every prudent housewife in the city and the surrounding territory.

Many valuable prizes will be awarded following the demonstration.

The school is sponsored by the Skelgas Company dealing locally thru the Red Lake Fuel & Ice company, A. B. McLaughlin proprietor, who has handled the Skelgas products here for the past several years.

J. BORRY DIES SUDDENLY AT COTTAGE HOME

Death Comes Unexpectedly Saturday After a Long Illness

Was Prominent Local Citizen for Forty Years

Body Will Rest at Greenwood Cemetery After Cremation

Jacob Borry, one of the very esteemable citizens of our city, died suddenly Saturday forenoon at his summer home on Lake Plantagenet, ten miles southwest of Bemidji. Mr. Borry, who had suffered from hardening of the arteries for a considerable time, suffered a sudden attack as he and his wife were out wandering in the woods near the cottage. He was taken immediately to the cottage where he was given his usual medicine, but he failed to revive and passed away within ten minutes. The body was brought here by a local undertaker the same day.

Jacob Borry was born August 8, 1861 in Stavanger, Norway. He came to the United States in 1882, residing first in New York. Later he lived in Kansas City, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Grand Forks, N. Dak. He was married in Minneapolis on Sept. 26, 1891, to Miss Fina Dreyer. Mr. Borry, with his family, moved to this city in 1896, where he spent the remaining forty years of his life. He was a member of the Northern Lodge No. 236 A. F. and A. M. and Northern Chapter No. 82 R. A. M.; also of Snorre Lodge No. 70, Sons of Norway.

The deceased was a leading resident of Thief River Falls. He was alert to civic and economic affairs and a progressive in every sense of the word. Since he retired from active work he devoted a great deal of time at reading the works of his favorite writers.

No funeral services were held in this city. The body lay in state at the Erickson & Lund Funeral home Monday, and was taken to Minneapolis Monday night where last rites were conducted Tuesday afternoon and the remains were cremated. An escort of forty persons, members of the Masonic and Sons of Norway lodges, conducted the body from the funeral home to the Soo depot Monday evening.

The remains will be shipped here from the Minneapolis mortuary and will lie at rest at the Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Borry is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fina Borry, and his two sons, Alf and Vincent, all of this city.

Out-Door Circus Is Sponsored by WPA

An outdoor circus was staged in the Tindolph park last Friday afternoon as part of the playground activities sponsored by the WPA recreation project. Bernus Larson, the ringmaster, dressed in top hat, slacks, and gold braid trimmed blouse, introduced the various acts. Children dressed in costumes portrayed different wild animals such as bears, tigers, etc. As part of the entertainment the stories of "Little Black Sambo", and "Goldie-Locks" were dramatized. Kenton Mullen and Robert Leischman, as clowns, provided a touch of comedy for the entertainment of the audience which numbered about 100 persons.

The regular weekly amateur hour which was scheduled to take place on Friday of this week, has been postponed until next Tuesday, August 4th, states Mrs. Verna Becker Purcell, who is in charge of playground activities. The Fair program this week was responsible for the change in the dates.

East Forks Team To Play Here Tonight

A fast ball game is expected at the local fair grounds this evening, Thursday, when East Grand Forks comes here for a twilight game, the encounter being called to start at six o'clock.

It will be a real test for Thief River as the Forkers are tied with the fast Oslo team for top honors in the R. R. V. league. The veteran Leonard Shore is doing the mound duty for the visitors and he has been plenty tough this year. It is expected that Orvalla will be in good shape too so a pitcher's battle may be the result.

Business places are being asked to close at 5:30 so that the clerks and other office help may be let off to attend the game.

City Tennis Tourney Reaches Semi-Finals

Lincoln Arnold, Marvin Benson, Bill Korstad, and Gordon Overland Will Play for the Title

The semi-finals of the city tennis tournament will be played tonight on the Lincoln High School courts. Lincoln Arnold meets Bill Korstad at 5 o'clock and Benson plays Overland at 7 o'clock. The championship match will be played tomorrow night at 6 o'clock.

The Arnold-Korstad match is expected to be a bitter struggle with the outcome a toss-up. It will probably be the most interesting match of the day because Arnold is the defending champion and Korstad is given an even chance of dethroning him. Regardless of who wins in the semi-finals, the finals Friday night is expected to be a real battle.

The first round results were: Arnold defeated Bob Bredeson; Benson won from S. Liebermann; Overland took A. Shanahan; Abby Jaransen beat J. Biedermann; Bud Nelson was victor over C. Lee; V. Jung, D. Thronson, and B. Korstad won by defaults from L. Aalstad; G. Christie, and A. Nelson respectively.

Quarter-finals scores were: Arnold winning over Jaransen by a score 6-1, 2-6, 6-1; Korstad over Thronson, 6-1, 6-4; Overland over Jung, 6-4, 6-3; and Benson over Nelson.

4H Canning Achievement Day to be Held Friday

The 4-H Canning Achievement Day will be held at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls Friday of this week, beginning at 9 o'clock A. M. The Champion Canning Demonstrator and Exhibit will be sent to the State Fair.

The following girls have signed up to take part in the oral demonstrations: Marjorie Matheson, of Rocksbury club; Mary Jane Johnson, Hazel; Junice Rahum, Silverton; Esther Hetland, Rocksbury; and Ruby Werner, Steiner.

Team Demonstration: Iris Ayers, Norden club, and Minnie Joyce Norden.

Any girls who have not signed up should come up to Lincoln high school Friday morning, says Miss Thelma Solle, who is in charge of the demonstration work.

One Canning team and one individual demonstrator (14 years or over) will be selected to go to the Sub-district contest at Crookston, Tuesday, August 11th.

A special jelly contest will be held on this day also. Any 4-H Canning Club member may exhibit two glasses of jelly. Prizes will be awarded to the winners.

All Canning Club members may compete in a special exhibit of canned products with six jars.

THIEF RIVER IS LEAGUE LEADER

Local Ball Players Defeat St. Hilaire In 6 to 4 Game On Latter's Diamond Sunday

Thief River Falls will be the undisputed winner of the baseball league title according to indications at this time. The local boys took St. Hilaire into camp Sunday which removes the chief contender with Thief River from the field. The Saints now have two defeats, which, with the end of the season near at hand, gives the local boys a strong lead for the title, Thief River Falls having won ten in a row, and suffering no defeats.

It took a young chap to show his grit and ability last Sunday to put the game on ice with the St. Hilaire boys. Orvalla, the regular pitcher for the local team, was laid up with a sore shoulder, so Young Sahl, the ace twirler for the Junior Legion team, had to be called on. And he came through in fine shape.

DuChamp failed to find home plate as manager Lee called on him first to assume Orvalla's job. But after passing three men Lee called in Sahl who did as well as anyone could have done. Two of these men on bases scored before Sahl ended the inning, but from

1936 FAIR ENDS IN GLORY; CREDIT DUE TO OFFICERS

Scene Shifts to Debris and Smoke; Grounds Appear Vacant

Big Crowds Assured Financial Success

Winners of Exhibits to be published in a Later Issue of Paper

The annual fair is at an end and only debris and smoldering fires can be seen on the grounds outside of the stands and exhibit buildings. The entire view of the grounds present an austere picture compared to the activities, equipment and crowds seen there last week.

But everything is all right. The fair ended in a glorious conclusion, financially and otherwise, and people are looking for another great fair to be held next year. Robert Lund, the secretary of the fair association and his assistants deserve much credit for the manner the event was staged.

The winners of the general exhibits and the 4-H Club prizes will be published later as the list gets a final check-over by the officials.

Winners of the special events before the grandstand are as follows:

Pig race: Raca Woolson, $5; Madeline Gunderson, $4; Elizabeth Jorde, $3; Florence Fontaine, $2; and Bertha Moren, Helen Anderson, Pearl LaCoe and Isabel Rosendahl each received $1.

Amateur contest: Ruby and Ruth Angell, Smiley, Song and Uke, $3; Jewell Helen Warner, city, tap dance, $3; LeRoy Rupprecht, city, guitar yodel, $3; Verna Olson, city, song, $3; Herben and Luella Eliason, Erie, song and guitar, $2; Earl and Harold Kelly, city, violin duet, $2; Delores Ricker, Morris, Minn., tap dance, $2; Bernus Larson, city, song, $2; Jean Pahlen and Eileen Peterson, Plummer, tap dance, $1; and Anna Knutson, Goodridge song, $1.

The exhibition staged at the fair by the local Women's Drum and Bugle corps was of special note to all. Mrs. Wright led her group of 29 women thru a set of drills that drew an immense applause.

The ladies are preparing their final drills for the state convention and on Friday of next week will have a public drill on the grounds east of the high school building. Look for further details next week.

Gambler At Fair Is Nabbed; Fined $50.00

John Rosen, touring with the carnival which appeared in this city during fair week, was fined $50.00 by our Municipal Judge, Lincoln Arnold, for operating a gambling device on the mid-way. There were few other violations of the city laws during the fair aside from five or six cases of drunkeness.

Since the fair three local men were arrested and brought into municipal court for traffic law violations. One paid a $5 fine for speeding along Third Street in the city, another paid a fine of $15 for careless driving, and driving without a driver's license cost another $10.

Minnesota Crops Top Those of Year 1934

Minnesota production estimates for nine principal crops were well ahead of the 1934 drouth year on July 1, Paul H. Kirk, federal statistician for the state reported on Tuesday but subsequent damage accruing from the heat wave will not be measurable until the first of next month.

Kirk's estimate, based on crop conditions of July 1, was 334,542,000 bushels. This compares with the 1935 final production of 452,350,000 bushels for 1934.

"There could be a crop loss from July 1 to harvest due to weather of 1,826,000 acres and 110,192,000 bushels before the 1934 low production is reached," Kirk said in the current issue of the Minnesota crop reporter.

Minnesota corn crop on July 1 was 78 per cent of normal with a forecast of 144,570,000 bushels, with a forecast 144,570,000 bushels, with spring wheat 54 per cent of normal.

Floyd Olson Plans For Early Campaign

Governor Floyd B. Olson, under treatment at a Rochester hospital informed the people of the state Wednesday he expects to start his campaign for the senate in September. The governor said:

"I expect to start active campaigning sometime September on neutrality, social security and agricultural program based on abundance and other issues."

"I will make a definite statement with reference to presidential situation in the near future. I know that the political situation is a mess. Why should I jump into the mess?

Governor Floyd B. Olson."

He had been asked whether he would support William Lemke of North Dakota or Roosevelt for president and whether he still planned to make the supreme court and proposed constitutional amendments for its reform major issues of his campaign.

CARE URGED IN FARM SOIL PLAN

Farmers Should Obtain Witnesses If Altering Conservation Provisions Before Regular Order

Progress has been slow in developing the Soil Conservation program, due to the drouth situation which has made necessary some modification, states R. M. Douglass county agent. All farmers in Pennington County have been notified as to what these modifications are that might effect their farm.

Many farmers are requesting that their farms be measured and compliance checked before they start their plowing operation. This is impossible to do at this time. Measurement will not be taken until after permission is given from the state committee. Anyone who wishes to plow fields that were seeded to a soil conserving crop, but because of hot dry weather the stand has all died out, should have the field inspected by a committeeman or two neighbors before he plows the field. The committeeman will sign a statement that the field was seeded but a stand was not obtained.

Any farmer that does not understand some part of the program should immediately contact a committeeman or the County Agent's office before he does anything that might disqualify him for his payment.

New Forest Fires Rage Along Border

Fires flamed a new threat to Minnesota forests Wednesday as a Canadian blaze jumped the border near North Lake Portage and destroyed a state warehouse. The blaze had crackled over 400 to 500 acres of slash and virgin timber early today, the state department of forestry reported, as the Superior national forest staff rushed men and equipment to the scene.

Ranger Patty Bayle of the Grand Marais state forestry station directed a small crew of fire fighters between Little Gunflint and Little North Lake, where the blaze was centered.

Several serious fires in the northern part of the state were reported under control after much damage was done to forests and some personal property during the first of the week.

Warnings that berry pickers and campers be very careful with fire have been repeatedly sent out by the forestry commissioner.

The northern fire situation grew critical, A. F. Oppel, deputy state forester said, "if we don't get rain soon I don't know what will happen."

The Rose lake fire to the east of the Lake Portage conflagration, also a Canadian-started blaze, added to the drain on fire fighters and equipment.

Deep in the Lake Kabetogama region of the forest, Oppel reported an isolated blaze raced thru dense timber on Kabetogama peninsula. The region was described as virtually inaccessible.

Simultaneously berry pickers started several smaller fires that added to the tension. Numerous of these blazes were reported by the forestry department in state and federal areas.

W. W. PRICHARD LEAVES ON TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Official Will Confer With President on Red Lake Water Project

Four Others Make Trip Seeking Federal Aid

Crookston and Grand Forks Also Vitally Concerned In The Plan

A delegation representing the Red Lake River Development association left Monday night for Washington, D. C., to seek approval of the Red Lake River Development project. The delegation consists of Mayor W. W. Prichard of this city, Clifford Bouvette of Hallock, Henry Holt of Grand Forks, N D., E. V. Willard, state commissioner of conservation, and L. P. Zimmerman, state relief director.

The delegation will arrive today in Washington, where arrangements have been made for a conference with President Roosevelt on the project, which includes the improvement of the Red Lake river so as to directly affect the water supply of Thief River Falls, as explained in these pages last week.

The primary purpose of the trip is to obtain presidential preference for the proposed clearing of the Red Lake river channel to increase flowage from Red Lake and provide an adequate water supply for Greater Grand Forks, Crookston, Thief River Falls and other cities.

Members of the Minnesota delegation will attempt to show that the present situation includes a health menace to cities along the river whose supplies have dwindled rapidly in the past few weeks.

An allotment of $10,000 was voted Tuesday by the state executive council to permit starting of the work immediately, and assurance of $25,000 additional state relief funds was given in the event an anticipated federal grant of $717,000 is made for the WPA project.

Director Zimmerman reported the water supply at Thief River Falls is so inadequate that drinking water must be shipped in and that water used for other purposes contains sewage and is a serious health menace. He declared there is only a 30-day supply of water there and that would be exhausted by a serious fire.

Water supplies at Grand Forks and Crookston also were reported very low because of the continued drouth. At Grand Forks the water reservoir was dwindling rapidly and additional water will be needed in the near future, according to state officials who have cooperated in the effort to get increased water supplies as quickly as possible.

Purchase of Savings Bond Increases 32 Pct.

A gain of nearly 32 percent in the purchase of U. S. savings bonds at the Thief River Falls post office in July this year over the same month last year is reported by Postmaster Anderson. The sales value of bonds purchased in July 1935 was $8,212.50, and of July 1936 $10,875.00.

These U. S. savings bonds may be purchased at all first and second class and some lower class postoffices. A report as of July 10th states that over 1,700,000 bonds in various denominations ranging from $25 up to $1,000 had been issued since March 1935, when the bond was first issued. The bonds mature every ten years.

Postmaster Anderson reports that bonds with a total sales value of $106,537.50 has been issued at the local postoffice since March 1st, 1935, up to August 1st, this year. The figures for the various months are:

1935
Mar.	$6,112.50	Dec	1,893.75
Apr.	14,550.00		1936
May	15,262.50	Jan	$1,868.75
June	3,206.25	Feb	5,362.50
July	8,212.50	Mar	6,487.50
Aug	5,475.00	Apr	4,593.75
Sept	3,506.25	May	5,935.00
Oct	4,162.50	June	2,493.75
Nov	6,787.50	July	10,875.00

April and May 1935 were the high months for the purchases here, and Mr. Anderson states that the $100 bond denomination is the most popular.

THE YOUNGQUIST OR AMENDMENT NO. 2

This proposed amendment to the constitution will be submitted to the voters in the next general election, having for its purpose the amendment to Article 9, Section 1, of the constitution of the State of Minnesota, and containing the following provisions:

"Provided further, that after January 1, 1937, no tax shall be imposed on any real or tangible personal property for any state purpose, except that authorized by Section 16, of Article 9, of this Constitution, and/or for the payment of indebtedness of the state, incurred prior to January 1, 1937; but this provision shall not limit, but the state shall have, the right to impose taxes on royalties, occupations, sales, receipts, incomes, inheritances, gifts, privileges, franchises, or licenses, or upon property on the basis of gross earnings or tonnage, or upon intangibles of every kind."

The substance of this amendment is the elimination of the state property tax levy, except the one mill road and bridge tax and such levies as may be necessary "for payment of the indebtedness of the state, incurred prior to January 1, 1937."

If adopted without substituting other sources of income, such an amendment would curtail a great many public services, most important of which are the school aids. It would reduce the revenue fund from which appropriations are made for state departmental purposes by more than twenty-five per cent.

It would eliminate entirely the one mill state school tax which yields about $1,400,000 annually, or $3.50 per eligible pupil, and would also reduce by probably more than a quarter the $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 annually appropriated for supplemental school aid, thus making it necessary for local school units to increase their property levies far in excess of what they are now to even partially offset their reduced incomes from the state.

It is possible, also, that the present revenues from income taxes which are now assigned to the schools, might be diverted to other purposes at least in part, causing further reductions in school aids.

During the past few years, the state has appropriated relief aids sorely needed by local units from the revenue fund, which aids would also have to be drastically reduced or eliminated were this amendment to pass.

Its adoption would save owners of iron ore who are relatively few, somewhat more than $3,000,000 annually.

Absentee property owners would be partially exempt from contributing to the support of state activities because they are non-resident, if this amendment should be adopted.

If the state is to continue all of its present services, then other revenues in the form of greatly increased taxes and sales taxes would have to be imposed.

Such taxes would have to be paid by home owners and farmers in greater amounts than the reduction of their property levies for state purposes, resulting from the adoption of this amendment.

It would very likely prove the means of forcing a sales tax upon a people opposed to it, were it adopted.

A sales tax would hamper Minnesota commerce and affect the low income groups more than the high income groups. Its purpose would be to increase the burden upon the poor and lighten the burden of those best able to pay.

LEMKE WANTS DICTATORSHIP

Without realizing probably what he is implying in some of his statements, Wm. Lemke, the Union Party candidate for president, is laying himself open to serious arguments these days. In his speech at Hankinson, N. D., recently, Mr. Lemke explained why he is a candidate for congress at the same time he is a candidate for president. He said, "In the morning I'll work with my friend Usher L. Burdick in congress and write laws and then in the afternoon I'll sign them so you will be sure to get them."

What else can that mean than dictatorship? Italy has its Mussolini and Germany its Hitler, both make the laws and also enforce them, the very things Lemke is saying he is going to do. President Roosevelt has been accused of being a dictator because of the vast powers congress has granted him. But that does not mean anything of what powers Mr. Lemke is going to exercise if elected to both offices. Mr. Lemke is a candidate for re-election as congressman from North Dakota, and the attorney-general of the state seems to have so little backbone he will permit him to be a candidate for both. If Mr. Lemke is going to exercise the powers he claims he will, no house of representatives will dare to unseat him as congressman.

Moreover, Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the radio priest and Mr. Lemke's main spokesman, has explained his position on everything in general except the dictatorships of Mussolini and Hitler. Does he too favor a dictatorship like Mr. Lemke favors?

No one seriously entertains the idea that Wm. Lemke will be named president of the United States this year. But at the same time when we consider not only his main supporter, Father Coughlin, but others, as Gerald K. Smith, the successor of the late Huey Long, the Louisiana dictator, we cannot fail but think that the Union Party candidate is the tool of a group of men who want to seize the reins under fascism.

FORECASTING THE ELECTION

An important phase of every Presidential campaign is the number and variety of efforts to forecast the result of the election. Ever since politics began to be our greatest national sport the taking of "straw" votes before election day has been one of the most exciting elements of the game.

This year every known means is being used in the effort to determine in advance whether Mr. Roosevelt will be reelected. Taking "straw ballots" on the railroad trains is one of the old familiar devices, more often indulged in for pure amusement than for any real value in predicting the outcome. One method which has proved surprisingly accurate in some recent campaigns is that of sending scouts to the motion picture theatres to record the applause or lack of it when pictures of the candidates are thrown on the screen.

The most reliable forecasts of recent years, however, have been those based on actual polls of large numbers of voters conducted by newspapers and magazines. The surprising accuracy of the polls conducted by the "Literary Digest" is well known. We understand that the Digest will send out twenty million "straw ballots" this year. A newcomer in the field, The American Institute of Public Opinion operating through a syndicate of daily newspapers, will test out its "cross-section" or "sampling" method for the first time in a Presidential election.

So far as the rural and small-town vote goes, however, none of these has reflected the future more accurately in the past than the poll conducted by the weekly newspapers of the nation in cooperation with Publishers Autocaster Service. This poll, which registers the Presidential preference of hundreds of thousands of voters in every part of the country, is now being taken. With it and the rest of the polls already referred to, it may easily be possible to foretell by mid-September whether the White House will have a new tenant in 1937, or renew the present lease.

LIBERTY LEAGUE SOLICITS FARMERS

The Forum editor is in receipt of a circular letter sent us by a farmer friend who received the same from the American Liberty league. Our friend said he believed the letter must have been sent him by mistake as he was no friend of the Liberty League and as he is truthful and honest as most farmers are we believe him, a fact substantiated when he offered us all the circulars and the letter inclosed from the Liberty League headquarters.

The letter urged him to join the league as a contributing member and thus aid in furthering the principles of the organization. Those principles, a circular stated, were contained in the "doctrine expressed by George Washington in his farewell address". George Washington, we all know, was the richest man in the country during his time.

And that is just what the Liberty League represents, ie., the richest men of our time. Their spokesmen speak in glowing terms and high sounding phrases of freedom of the American citizen, states' rights, human rights, etc., all beautiful enough for anyone to listen to but which constitutes a system of rugged individualism, a system that protects property rights more than anything else and which brought about the catastrophe of 1929 and the reign of Herbert Hoover.

This letter was sent to a farmer who has been drought stricken for several years, a farmer who lost most of his property during the Hoover days when he had to sell his wheat for thirty cents per bushel or thereabouts. Under the AAA this farmer received as much money from his wheat allotment as the actual price paid for wheat under the system of rugged individualism which the Liberty League supports.

The league officials may think that farmers are "rubes" as some papers want to picture them, but we know differently. The cost of sending out such circular letters is going to be greater than the contributions the farmers will remit to the cause of the Liberty League.

IN GOD'S IMAGE

Less than 20 years from the war that was to end war, the British government has asked for $4,500,000 with which to issue a poison gas mask free to every man, woman and child in the country.

A factory is to be set up and, as soon as completed, the masks will be distributed. To prevent loss, destruction or deterioration through careless handling, they are to be kept at convenient central points, readily available, however, upon signal.

Meanwhile everybody is to be instructed in their use.

What a commentary on the present state of international diplomacy! The world peace machinery, purchased at the price of 37,000,000 casualties in the last war, has been scrapped. Peoples are snarling at each other like savages ready to spring.

Only, more's the pity and the irony of it, being "civilized", they will not fight each other like savages. Instead, they are planning to poison one another, whole nations at a time—not just soldiers, but the aged, the newly born, the cripples, the sick, the little boys and girls, indiscriminately.

Such is the true, the ghastly implication of the news from Britain. And it should cause us all—made, so they say, in God's image—to hang our heads in shame.—The Pittsburgh (Pa.) Press.

FATHER COUGHLIN HITS HOOVER'S ADMINISTRATION

Father Charles E. Coughlin, addressing an open-air rally in Massachussetts, declared Saturday if Herbert Hoover had been re-elected and if Governor Alf Landon should "take up where Hoover left off, there would be nothing left for America but bloody revolution." "If (President) Roosevelt had not spent money in alleviating the poverty and misery of the people there would have been bloodshed in the streets as in Spain today," he declared.

RAPS LIBERTY LEAGUE

Assailing the "rugged individualism of the Liberty leaguers and big financial houses" who have "largely brought this country to the pass it is in", Senator W. J. Bulow of South Dakota, told members of the South Dakota Federation of Labor in convention here Saturday that "whatever future America has is dependent on the triumph of human rights over property rights."

AGAIN THE WAR DEBTS!

The Treasury and State Departments in Washington blinked their eyes unbelievingly and pinched themselves to make certain they were awake when the Greek government, last February, hinted that it might resume payments on its defaulted debt to Uncle Sam.

* * * *

And they blinked their eyes still more when, right on top of that, came the surprising speech by M. Herriot in the French Chamber of Deputies, urging France to reconsider her attitude on her war debts to the United States. Said M. Herriot:

"For my part, I believe all obligations, whether profitable or not should be paid when due. I ask you whether this is a principle which can no longer be defended in the French Chamber."

He demanded to know from the Chamber whether France advocated keeping contracts only when they turned out in her favor.

* * * *

Just what brought about this startling change of front, nobody in the United States was able to explain satisfactorily. There were mny guesses, however.

Those who had made it a practice of eating extensively in Greek restaurants, for example, laid Greece's changed attitude to diet. They maintained that "rozzbiff" and "strumberry pie", to say nothing of "Scups Scoffee", if constantly indulged in, would inevitably lead to all sorts of recklessness.

"Eat it often enough," said they, "and eventually it might even unbalance one to the point where he goes out and assaults a hen roost!"

* * * *

France has been somewhat more cautious in its promises than Greece. Hence, the Americans were not reduced to quite the same need of finding motives for its sudden righteousness. . .

For France didn't promise to resume payments. It merely suggested, guardedly, that the door was slightly open to 'conversations' to consider the matter.

* * * *

. . . Which really was more than might at first glance appear. For the French are delightful conversationalists. . .

There was 'Madamoiselle from Armentieres', for instance, and her "Oo! la! la!" Who doesn't remember Madamoiselle!

We may, it is true, get nothing more out of the conversations than some more "Oo! la! la!" But even that will be a distinct help. It will at least be a whole lot better than to have France continue thumbing her nose at us.

* * * *

American newspaper men had an entirely different explanation to offer for the advances our two debtor nations thus made to us; and it didn't tally at all with what we more trusting souls had figured out. . .

But then, newspaper men are a suspicious lot anyway. Most of them wear belt and suspenders at the same time. They won't even trust their own pants without a double hitch.

* * * *

There's the League of Nations, said the newspaper men. As now constituted, it has no more teeth than a hen, and has proved itself to be nothing more than a debating society. But if the boys over in Europe can hornswoggle Uncle Sam into joining, things will be different.

Uncle Sam, however, seems to figure that a League which is made up largely of dead-beats isn't the sort of company he cares to go into partnership with. . .

That, at least, is the way the European nations have it doped out. They think that Uncle might look more kindly on their suggestion of joining the League if they paid up . . . or pretended to.

In fact, they are probably thinking in secret that it would not even be necessary to pay. If the debts could be re-arranged, say, to permit them to be paid in future installments, nothing would be in default and the annoying Johnson Act might not apply. . .

An installment or two, paid on the nail, might convince Uncle that it would be perfectly safe to let them have another few billions.

* * * *

All of them need money badly. For wars cost money. And to judge by the way they're making faces at each other, they're all set for war.

But Uncle is the only one of the lot with a bank account which isn't overdrawn. And by keeping the purse strings tight, he keeps the world peaceful. They'd like to fight, but can't. Uncle won't let them have the money.

* * * *

The European nations remind us of the Irish barber. It was back in the days when England and Ireland were clawing at each other. .

Said the barber, as he scraped away at the customer in the chair: "Yes Sor! We've got 30,000 brave men, all ready to rise and schtrike for Ould Oireland!"

"Then why don't you strike?" the customer wanted to know.

"Faith! how can we! The blamed constabulary won't let us!"

CAPITOL NEWS REVIEW

By A. I. Harris

The problems which the people face today are too real and the economic suffering of the people too intense to permit of any deceit or political trickery by parties seeking to win favor at the hands of the electorate.....

If a political party has a program it seeks to put into effect but conceals the nature of that program from the people, it is guilty of something more than mere political sharp playing......

The Republican platform of Minnesota expresses itself in favor of the Youngquist Amendment, known as Amendment No. 2. This Amendment would abolish the state real estate tax levy. But not even the Republicans claim that it will not be necessary to enact some other tax to make up for this loss in revenue. It is quite generally known by those who are familiar with the situation that the Republicans propose to slip over a sales tax, which in effect is a tax on poverty. For political reasons they have refused to tell the people exactly what tax they propose to substitute for the state real estate tax......

In an effort to smoke the Republicans out on their secret tax program, and to force clear cut issues for the coming campaign, Senator Elmer A. Benson, Farmer-Labor candidate for Governor, last week issued a challenge to his Republican opponent, Martin A. Nelson, to let the people know the secret tax program of his party. "Do you believe that the citizens and taxpayers of Minnesota are entitled to know what the secret Republican tax program is?" Senator Benson asked Mr. Nelson......

Continued silence of Mr. Nelson's part, the Senator charges, makes him equally guilty with his party of perpetrating a fraud......

Senator Benson's open challenge should be welcomed by the citizens of Minnesota who want to go to the polls with a full and complete understanding of the issues and principles involved in this campaign. They will not be satisfied with smoke-screen issues manufactured by the reactionaries such as their fake claims of Farmer-Labor extravagance. Neither will they be satisfied with manufactured red scares and meaningless invectives.

The Republicans must make their stand known on every important question effecting the welfare of the people. Their past attitude towards these questions and problems will be made known for them. If their known position means repudiation at the hands of the voters, then at least they can be consoled with the thought that they at least have openly and truly championed the cause of reaction—but that their cause was not a popular one.

—O—

Now that the State Executive Council has authorized the sale of bonds to match Minnesota's allotment of Federal highway aid, the State Highway Department is moving rapidly to get the new program underway......

First contracts under the new Federal Aid will be let within a few weeks. As much as possible of the work will be contracted at once so that projects can be started before fall. Several stretches of concrete paving will be in the first group of contracts and will be completed this season if possible. The Federal aid now available amounts to $3,400,000. About $4,000,000 of state funds must be used with this.

Indicating an increase in employment in Minnesota during the month of May as against April of this year, the monthly employment bulletin issued by the Minnesota State Employment Service says: "Statistics compiled from comparable reports of employment and earning for the month of May, 1936 received from 1,379 firms doing business in Minnesota, show an increase in the number of persons employed from a total of 130,488 in April to 135,693 in May, indicating an increase of 4.0 per cent in the total employment in the state. The total weekly earnings of the employes of these firms increased from $3,153,003 in April to $3,313,476 in May, indicating an increase of 5.1 per cent in total weekly earnings to the employes in the state."

Governor Olson has shown steady progress in convalescing from a recent operation at Rochester, his physicians say. If this condition continues, he will be discharged from the hospital in the near future and he will return to his summer cottage at Gull Lake for a further rest. In the meantime, the Governor has been in a very cheerful frame of mind, keeping up with current events through the daily papers and magazines, and mapping out plans for his campaign for the United States Senate this fall.

R. W. Hitchcock, Republican publicist, seems to think that somebody's tongue slipped when the phrase "Cooperative Commonwealth" was used in an introductory speech for Senator Elmer A. Benson, who is the Farmer-Labor candidate for Governor. It is possible that Mr. Hitchcock's pen—or rather typewriter— slipped when he mentioned that fact, because it is quite plain that he disclosed his own opposition to cooperative movements?......

Mr. Hitchcock is undoubtedly aware of the fact that the chief exponents of the cooperative movement in Europe are Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland—the countries which, by the way, remain virtually unscarred by the depression which swept, and is still sweeping, the capitalistic world. He undoubtedly must know, if he is informed on current international events, that Finland is the only country in Europe that is paying promptly its war debt to the United States. It has never missed an installment and never asked for a moratorium which the other debtors—capitalistic debtors—have asked......

All of which goes to show that when the Republicans profess to support farmers' and other cooperative movements, they are attempting a fast one. But they are not fooling as many people as they think; they are fooling only themselves.

King Ed, a Human Being

King Edward VIII of England has turned out real well, despite his royal bringing-up. After the launching of the floating palace, the "Queen Mary" at Glasgow last spring, he went among the tenement houses, shaking hands with the paupers and investigating conditions at first hand. The appalling sights prompted him to say to one of his escorting officials: "How do you reconcile a world that has produced his mighty ship (the "Queen Mary") with these slums?"

Furthermore, at the military review in Hyde Park, where an attempt was made on his life, he asserted, "With all my heart I hope and pray that never again will our age and generation be called on to face such stern and terrible days (as the World War)."

King Ed sees things as they are, and has the power to do something about them. What he could do would be to lead an immense popular movement for the abolition of the things which strike him with horror. But such a course would horrify all existing nobility and would give them increased cause for assassination. So what is a poor king to do?

Self-Criticism a Virtue

Very few people could not better themselves with a little judicious self-criticism. It is a virtue attained by only a handful. Many of us are too critical, but the predominant fault of the American is his gullibility and unfounded enthusiasm for one thing and another.

I am thinking now of the Townsend plan for lifting ourselves out of the depression. The plan, as I see it is this: we shall pay $200 a month or less to people over 60; and this money is to be raised by a transaction tax. No one objects to a pension, but I object to such a tax. It is not shifting the burden—unless shifting from one shoulder to the other may be called that. A sales tax for such a purpose would make the people continue to pay for the follies and waste of a system which created and still creates billionnaires.

This point is always ignored or talked around by all Townsendites: If much money is raised in a multiplicity of transactions it only means that the ultimate consumer pays—and pays plenty.

Nationalization of Munitions

The Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation, in convention at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, recently pledged itself to a platform which included nationalization of munitions "so that none may profit from human slaughter". Good! But it is a well-known fact that everyone makes money in time of war (except maybe the buck soldiers—unless they get prepaid bonuses) so that to prevent war profits, ALL industry should be taken over. This is known as "going the whole hog or none".

Of course, even nationalizing munitions would be a man's-size task. Look at John L. Lewis and his associates. They are trying to organize the workers in the steel industry, which is only part of our munitions industry. If the steel barons object to having their workers in unions, what would they say if a decree were passed taking their industry away from them? Then think of the duPont interests, who recently used up a lot of their own explosives trying to convince their workers that picketing was not the thing to do on "company property".

I am not poking fun at the Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation. Far from it. I would like to see the munitions nationalized. But on the other hand, I see very little hope for its accomplishment without a United Front. All radicals and liberals taken together make a small enough group to cope with organized greed; and when certain small men within these advanced groups indulge in splitting tactics, the whole movement is made weaker.

A golden opportunity was lost this spring, when quite a United Front sentiment was rampant. Next time let us hope we will not be so backward in taking advantage of such a sentiment.

The Nation-Wide Straw Vote

Early prediction that the 1936 Presidential election would be keenly contested has become a fact.

Hardly had the newspaper ink dried on Gov. Landon's speech than party cannonading on major political fronts boomed in earnest. The campaign is now in full swing, weeks ahead of previous national election-year drives for votes.

Every means of learning voting sentiment will be employed because that is the wish and the demand of our government-minded citizens and voters of today. This is so because voters have come to know through experience that exceedingly accurate forecasts of nation election results can be had through straw-vote balloting, in different sections of the country, and of different groups of voters.

The Small Town Vote

This year, as always, one of the most important groups of voters are those residing in small towns and rural America. Up until 1924 there was no single source of obtaining an extensive and accurate straw-vote of this group. That year, however, weekly newspapers throughout the country joined hands and inaugurated the first nation-wide Presidential vote in small towns and rural communities.

In 1928 and again in 1932 the leading weekly newspapers co-operated to make their nation-wide Presidential straw vote more extensive in numbers of ballots cast and from all states. Thus more accurate forecasts of the November election results were obtained. They proved to be forecasts that were accurate in final results and came within five per cent of correctly forecasting actual returns in the November election.

Questions in the average voter's mind today are: "Who will small-town and rural America help elect to the Presidency in November—Roosevelt, Landon, Lemke, Colvin, Thomas or Browder? In what proportions will these candidates win votes?"

Nation-Wide Straw Vote

That is what we are going to try to find out and we are giving you a chance to help us.

In cooperation with hundreds of weekly newspapers all over the United States we are giving our readers an opportunity to record their individual preference for President. These straw votes will first show how sentiment is going in and around Thief River Falls. Then they will be forwarded to our national newspaper headquarters in New York, for national tabulation.

Week by week throughout the balloting the national tabulation will be returned here in exclusive stories to this newspaper so we may know who small-town and rural America voters in other states are favoring for President in November.

A Forum straw-vote ballot in this nation-wide vote for President is printed in this issue. Clip it out, vote for the candidate of your choice and mail or brinz the ballot to this newspaper office.

Your vote, as sent in to the Forum will be tabulated and the local results of voting published each week. The vote in the national balloting, as compiled by returns from other weekly newspapers will also be published in these columns week by week as scon as they are available.

Straw Vote Ballot

The two major party candidates' names, Roosevelt and Landon, are given top position on our straw vote ballot inasmuch as one of these major party candidates is generally expected to be returned the winner in the November election. The names of the other officially nominated candidates for the Presidency are listed below with no thought of advantage in ballot position to any of them.

Let us all join hands in this nation-wide vote. Let us help express the political sentiment at this time of the voters in and around Thief River Falls.

You are under no obligation in casting a ballot in this straw-vote test. You do not have to sign your name. Simply write in the name of the town and state where you will vote in November so that accurate national tabulation can be made.

Remember, your favorite candidate is depending upon you to help show his strength. Clip the ballot now. Vote as you choose, then mail or bring your ballot to this newspaper.

STRAW VOTE BALLOT

Nation-Wide Vote for PRESIDENT

THIS Straw-Vote is being conducted by co-operating weekly newspapers located in states throughout the nation to show pre-election sentiment of small town and rural America in their choice for President for the next four years.

TO VOTE:

Group or club voting is NOT allowed. . . . Only single individual votes will be counted.

A voter need not sign his or her name, but to assist in national tabulation please fill in name of town and state, below.

Vote for one only of these candidates

☐ ROOSEVELT (Democratic)

☐ LANDON (Republican)

☐ LEMKE (Union)

☐ THOMAS (Socialist)

☐ COLVIN (Prohibition)

☐ BROWDER (Communist)

A VOICE OF THE WEST

Gilbert A. Brattland

The three primal necessities of existence are food, clothing and shelter. At first each family provided these by their own ingenuity and industry. Some one developed proficiency in the hand industries and began trading with others. Specialized home industry began, which developed into the factory system. Sales developed trade. Trade required financing and therefore the growth of banking and financing systems. Step by step the industrial system under which we live grew up. Gradually the factories and financing institutions were compelled to move to the more centrally located trade centers. It is only natural that they should go East where there were contacts with distributing systems, financing institutions and the foreign trade. The East gradually became the source of credit, money, services and manufactured or processed goods. The flow of money and credit from the Central West, which produced almost, or nearly so, only raw products, began.

To buy such goods or services required the exchange medium of money. To get such money, the Central West had to pledge its resources or sell its raw products to the East. As pay for such raw products, the producers got a cash price set by the demands of the East which had the power to set or regulate that price. When such raw products are processed or manufactured, the sale price is then made up of the cost of the raw product, expense of handling, processing or manufacturing, transportation, financing costs, insurance, commissions, profits, etc. At that point such processed or manufactured goods go into the sales channels on its way West with the added costs West of commissions, transportation, insurance, profits, etc., of all the mediums which handle it until it reaches the consumer. When the raw products producer in the West buys that product, he pays for it what he got originally, all the costs of processing or manufacturing, all the commissions and profits and all the carrying costs added from the time it left his hands to the moment he buys it.

It stands to reason therefore that with his raw product price he cannot buy back all the goods which have been made from his products. He would not have money to do so. Therefore he buys back less. To the extent that he gets less profit as a producer, the less he must buy. If he produces at a loss, first he must use up his reserves in cash, when that is gone he begins to use his credit and finally when that is to the limit he pledges his property. If he then fails to pay his pledges or interest on them, he forfeits his properties and even the title has gone East.

In past years, more favorable exchange conditions permitted the farmers to accumulate reserves in cash, credit and property. As this slipping process started he dragged on his cash, then his credit, then his titles and now in many instances they have become stripped of them all. Now the Central West has reached an accelerated seepage of titles to the East the last tangible possession of the farmers. Not the physical properties but the titles to them.

The East long ago woke up to the fact that they had become the credit carriers and that they have assumed the burden of non-surplus producing industries. No one will care to finance a deficit producing business long. They knew that they had to shift the burden. They do not want to also assume the handling of the properties which they have taken on defaulted loans. No individual or corporation is willing to take these burdens over from loaded corporations. They do not dare to liquidate their assets. Therefore they use influence and pressure on the only remaining credit resource able to handle it and that is State or the National Government. This phase is now going on and the Government is taking over the burden which amounts to the same thing as shifting the load back upon the people themselves. Note the vast assumptions of credit financing by governmental set ups.

When such an exchange has taken place, holders of bonds will bring pressure for the scaling down of such assumed burdens either by compromises of inflation as the borrowers will find themselves unable to pay. Otherwise also such bonds issues may go in default. With cheaper money, the debtors can pay off their indebtedness at huge discounts. They can repossess their properties at deflated values and then the country is ready for another cycle. In such an event we shall go through a very imaginative prosperity of rising values. We shall again sow the set up for another depression.

It is readily proven that the only sources of raw wealth are, the sunshine, the air, the water and the earth. The Central West has been depleted of all its other reserves in cash, credit and titles to property. The Central West cannot retrieve any of them if they must continue to produce raw wealth at a loss. They would be very much in the same position as the frog in the fable. He fell in a well. In trying to get out, he jumped up three feet and slipped back four. Query: "how long would it take him to reach the top of the well?" The poor frog would be just where the Central West farmer is today—he would stay at the bottom because he could not fall deeper than that. If he were blindly optimistic, he could continue the process of jumping the rest of his days without reasoning out the results of the process. If a miner could sell his raw gold at a profit and could sell enough, he would become wealthy and would not suffer want. However, if that miner had to produce gold at a loss, he would find himself in the condition of the farmers today.

Until and when the farmer gets a profit on his raw products over and above the cost of production, there can be no return to prosperity in the Central West or anywhere else. They have listened to the "Sireen Song" of producing two blades of grass where only one grew before without reasoning out that under the present sales exchange, the more they produce the more they have slipped. A fair profit price for the raw product producer, a fair wage to the worker and a fair exchange for such services in manufactured or processed goods, will again send the throb of industry pulsating through the flabby veins of our failing industrial system. If our system cannot answer this problem, then what?

To re-establish agriculture on a safe basis, it needs a temporary abeyance of collection of all debts due from them, refinancing at a very low rate of interest, readjustment of the rates of taxation which bears heavily on them, and a set price system on their products so as to insure them a profit basis of operation so that they can pay such debts. Farmers as a class are not willing defaulters. They pay their debts as a rule. Any statement to the contrary is far from the truth. If industry will not sell them processed and manufactured goods at a fair exchange, then a price setting system on the goods which farmers and workers buy.

Many object that the setting of a price is either impractical or vicious. On what goods, as a general rule, is not the price set on except that which the farmer sells. Why this discrimination? Therefore business must have found the practice sound. If sound in good business, it certainly should apply also to the farmer. If a code is good for the business interests, why would it not be good for the farmer? If a code can be made by the business men for themselves, then why has not the same privilege been extended to the farmer to build up a code for themselves? So far only one of restriction of production has been applied to them leaving them to the mercy of competition as to the sales price. You cannot set the price on all the products which the farmer can produce but you can set the price on that percentage of such commodities consumed in this country. You can also then allot to the farmers their percentage of such sales. This applies particularly to staple non-perishable products. Buyers of such commodities are licensed to handle only set price goods. Sales, otherwise, are not permitted on the domestic market.

MERCHANTS TO FIGHT SALES TAX

Joining hands in a state-wide organization for an anti-sales tax campaign were representatives of the retail druggists, meat dealers, food dealers, grocers, light grocers and confectioners, and tobacco dealers.

The support of other groups is to be enlisted including other merchant groups, such as hardware men, clothiers, jewelers, and so forth, and also such consumer groups as housewives, teachers, organized labor, farmers, and professional classes.

The organization adopted the name of the Consumers and Merchants Anti-Sales Tax League. The League will be a successor to the Minnesota Merchants Association, Inc., which carried on the fight against the sales tax before the last two regular sessions of the Legislature under the leadership of its president, John W. Dargravel, now national secretary of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

State officers of the Consumers and Merchants Anti-Sales Tax League chosen at the meeting are: president, William C. Kregel, St. Paul; secretary, Max Hoppenrath, Minneapolis.

The sole purpose of the organization, according to President Kregel, will be to organize the merchants and consumers in every community in Minnesota to prevent the imposition upon them of a state sales tax.

"We firmly believe", Mr. Kregel said, "that the establishment of a sales tax system in Minnesota will work a distinct hardship not only on every merchant in the state, but upon every consumer, every housewife, and for that matter, every man, woman, and child, whose circumstances force him to be interested in either the sale or purchase of the necessities of life.

"No one will deny that the sales tax is a nuisance tax, but the underlying principle of the sales tax is much more vicious than that. Establishment of a sales tax would transfer the tax burden from those who are least able to pay. It has been thoroughly repudiated and has aroused the bitter antagonism of the people in many states which have tried it. In New Jersey within 130 days after the sales tax law became effective, the voters of that state turned out of office nearly every legislator who had voted for the bill. Our organization intends to keep the New Jersey experiment before the eyes of the voters.

Electrically Run Dairy Farm In Virginia Thrills Visitors

Oh what fun to live on the J. M. Hughes's farm!, says a news commentator.

You don't even have to swat flies there; they are electrocuted by charged wires sent through copper screens.

An electric current is sent thru a single wire fence to keep the bull and other livestock in bounds. If the livestock feel frisky, they get a nip of electricity.

There are electric pumps, electric lights, an electric stove—dozens of gadgets. In fact, everything is done by electricity.

The farm of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes has been picked as the model exhibit for the visitors to the World Power Conference, who will gather from all over the earth at Washington this fall. The farm is the Rosedale Dairy Farm, of Fairfax County, Va., 22 miles from Washington.

Secretary Ickes started the whole thing by throwing a switch.

Everything that the magic of electricity can do on a farm will be done. The Hughes have two sons Darr and Randolph, and they all live there together, along with two daughters-in-law, Peggy Hughes a granddaughter. Electricity will run their farm for them. You even touch buttons to milk the 70 cows.

All Forces Join

The REA has joined with the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association, the Virginia Public Service Company and the exhibits committee of the Thirty-third World Power Conference to make the 212-acre Rosedale Farm one of the most extraordinary farms in the world.

"It will be kept open for exhibition all through September, for the 3000 power delegates.

The main part of the present farmhouse was built 200 years ago, before Ben Franklin first took up kite-flying as a serious occupation. It was used for a while by General Lee as Civil War headquarters. Neither the general nor Ben Franklin could have guessed what was ahead for it today.

There is, of course, an electric refrigerator, dishwasher and food-mixer. These things hardly count. You have to have them these days on a farm, and the Hughes are a little blase in the matter.

There is a vacuum cleaner or two, and a couple of clocks just thrown in, to show the city folk that farmers can have everything that you get in the metropolis. Washing machine, radio, flatiron, lamps?—why, of course. Tut, tut! Everybody has them.

There is a gathering pride, however, in the electric hairdryers and the sun ray lamps. There is an element of novelty about them—on most farms.

Automatic Cooking

Also the 110-volt alternating current pump, that pumps water for the house, dairy, milk and poultry houses is plebian, but something very good of its kind. However, Mrs. Hughes prefers the electric water softener which comes in the kitchen. That really is nice.

As for the electric range, that, in the opinion of Mrs. Hughes, is something really to talk about. There are electric ranges and electric ranges. This particular one says R. E. A., "Is of the type that can be set to turn on and off automatically, so that Mrs. Hughes may put dinner in the oven early in the day and go to town or attend to other duties. At the proper time the heat turns on. When the food is cooked, the current is turned off, and dinner is hot and ready to serve when the family returns."

You put the beans in, in other words, and out they pop, all nicely cooked, when the time comes; that is, if they still eat beans on the farm.

Daylight for the Cows

But it's the cows that get most of the benefits of electricity. Electricity is nice enough for humans, but it's perfectly swell for cows.

Everybody knows that no self-respecting cow likes to go to bed in the dark, or be milked in the twilight, for that matter, so daylight streams down from the ceiling from big lights. Water under electric pressure keeps the barn clean, too.

What ladylike cow wants to be plagued by flies? Charged copper screens take care of that problem. The interfering June bug that buzzes around the lights had better keep away from the mesh of electric wires around the lamps, or he will keel over, too.

The cows are milked by electricity. Human hands don't touch the lactic fluid. The cows are cooled by electric fans, drink electrically cooled water flowing from individual fountains. Even the hay they eat is hoisted by portable five horsepower motors.

In fact, most of the old farm chores are done by electricity. The hired hand doesn't answer a dinner bell; he comes in to grub to the sound of an electric siren.

The forefingers of the farm hands probably grow calloused after a while—punching electric buttons so much.

BECKER COUNTY FARMERS PROTEST WAYS OF WPA

Robt. Miller, president of the State Cooperative Union, an organization of farmers, who is here transacting business for his organization, is in receipt of a communication from the Cooperative Union of Becker County which states that the group there this week passed a set of resolutions urging a change in the present program of the WPA.

The resolution urged that farmers be paid at least $25.00 per week in relief labor; that farmers be allowed to do advance work so they do not have to work when the coldest of winter is on, and lastly, that WPA projects should envolve farm-to-market roads rather than projects on golf courses, skating rinks, or swimming pools.

The resolutions were dispatched to President Roosevelt, Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, and Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator.

THORESON-KOERCHER VOWS SPOKEN IN THIS CITY TUES.

The marriage of Miss Hazel Thoreson of Goodridge and Gordon Koercher of Jackson, Minn., was solemnized before an altar of palms, ferns, and candelabra, at a beautiful double ring ceremony in the Trinity Lutheran church on Tuesday. Reverend R. M. Fjelstad pastor of the Trinity church, read the service.

A program of organ music played by Miss Ruth Fjelstad, preceded the ceremony. Also included on the program of nuptial music were two solos "At Dawning" and "Holy Spirit, Breath of Love", sung by Miss Arnhild Fjelstad.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of white china silk and old lace. Princess lines patterned the dress. A train falling in folds from the waistline extended beyond the hem-line of the floor-length gown. Over her gown, the bride wore a train-length tulle veil with an attached cap caught at each side with traditional orange blossoms. She carried an all white bouquet of gladiolus. Miss Thoreson's attendant was her cousin, Miss Esther Bennes of this city, who wore a gown of peach organdy and taffeta, and green sandals. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses. Howard Koercher of Cavalier, N. Dak., was his brother's best man.

A reception at which thirty-five guests were present was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony, after which the bride and groom left on a trip to points in Canada and North Dakota. The conclusion of their trip will bring them to Jackson, Minn., where they will reside. For traveling, the bride wore a navy blue suit and smoke gray accessories.

Mrs. Koercher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Thoreson of Goodridge, and is a graduate of Moorhead State Teachers' college. Mr. Koercher is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Koercher of Cavalier, N. Dak., and attended North Dakota State college where he was a member of Kappa Sigma Chi fraternity. He is employed with the Gamble store in Jackson, Minn.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Next National Meetings

As the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the United States will entertain the World's W.C.T.U. convention next year in Washington, D. C., there will be no National convention in 1937, but the working program will be taken under consideration in special sessions of the National executive committee after the close of the World's meeting.

National President, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, as vice president of the World's organization, will be of course, not only official hostesses but also will have an official part in the World's proceedings.

The next National convention will be held in San Francisco in 1938 in acceptance of the hearty welcome brought by the California, North, president, Mrs. Louis Taft, who came to Tulsa laden with cordial letters and invitations from the mayor of San Francisco, the Chamber of Commerce and many other officials and organizations.—The Union Signal.

AUXILIARY NOTES

Auxiliary meeting this Thursday evening, August 6. Be there! This will be the last regular meeting with our present officers, as the new officers will be installed right after the State Convention.

Miss Belle Hermanson, president-elect, submitted her resignation at the last meeting, as she expects to be employed out of town this coming year. Our Unit accepted her resignation with regrets. A new president will be elected at the meeting Thursday.

Mrs. M. R. Levorson gave a very fine report of the District Convention at Fergus Falls which she attended as a delegate from our Unit. The Memorial Services were especially impressive this year.

Delegates to the State Convention are: Mrs. George Biddick, Mrs. L. V. Johnson, Mrs. Thora H. Nelson, Mrs. A. M. Campbell. Two of these will represent our Unit at Brainerd, August 16-19.

Read your "Legionnaire" for detailed plans of the State Convention.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Evans' advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is indicted.

CHAPTER VI.—Barry learns Mrs. Kelly had been told of a phone call to Kelly from one Betty Barclay, named in her divorce proceedings against Kelly, and had gone wild. The Duke receives the $2,000 from his "mother." A taxi driver answers the ad. He identifies a singular passenger he had had on the night of the murder as Hambidge. Barry tells Pat what he has discovered. The judge had seen Kelly after Rogers had been there. Barry insists the judge tell the truth to free Rogers, or he will. Pat threatens to expose him as a thief. Barry tells Pat he loves her. The judge admits quarreling with Kelly and that Kelly was dead when he left.

"And?" Pat inquired, tensely.

"And men don't often wear gloves on a warm night. Women do. It was a warm night."

"It was very warm," the Judge said.

"You are a shrewd young man," the girl gibed at him. "But your assumptions are ridiculous. Gloves! Anyone might have worn 'em. Anyone might remember the risk of leaving finger-prints, and wipe them off a bottle with a handkerchief. Anyone might've come in through an unlatched door—any time after my father left."

"But," Barry objected, "Kelly was dead then."

"How do you know that? How do we know my father wasn't right when he thought Kelly was keeping him out? All your conjectures lead nowhere, Mr. Gilbert. The only discovery you've made is that father saw Kelly after young Ridder did. And, as I told you, that's merely implicating one innocent man instead of another."

"And you—"

"Naturally, it's the second innocent man I care about. Especially since his innocence—of murder—wouldn't keep your disclosures from disgracing him."

Her voice broke.

"Ridder'll be free in a few weeks," she pled. "Wait, Mr. Gilbert. You don't know how many innocent people you may drag into this."

Barry hesitated.

He now remembered that he had told Pat he loved her. "It didn't get me anywhere," Barry thought. "It never will. I'm not even sure that she heard me, but I'm glad I spoke, all the same."

Aloud, he said, "I'll wait, Pat."

She glanced at him gratefully.

"Not until the trial, though," he warned her. "I won't take that chance. I won't let this girl, Peggy, go on suffering until then. But now I believe I know who murdered Kelly. Someone who came into the house while your father was there. Someone so full of the thought of it that she bungled the new lock on the front door."

"You think—" Hambidge began.

"I think that's why it blew open. And I think, too, that revealing your visit—now—would be merely 'tipping our hand.' The person I suspect has already covered her tracks pretty well."

"Then," Pat said almost incredulously—"Then you're not going to repeat this story?"

"Not even to Winslow. He hasn't much more faith in my 'sleuthing' than you have. We'll leave him to work out Ridder's defense. For the present let's agree on an armistice. Mutual silence. If the time arrives when I feel I must speak, I'll come to you first. Is that fair?"

"Quite."

From the very beginning, Barry had suspected Mrs. Kelly. "She sued for divorce recently, and withdrew the case," Peter Winslow had told him. "Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?" Barry did, and one discovery after another confirmed the idea. "But," as Barry had reminded his city editor, "Mrs. Kelly was in Harlem. She went to a dance."

"Ever hear of faking an alibi?" Harwood had asked, advising a "check up."

That sounded promising until, as the first move in his investigation, Barry dug up The Herald Tribune of "the morning after the body was found." Mrs. Kelly had told him that paper contained a full record of her social activities, and it did. "At the time of the murder, Mrs. Kelly, who sued for divorce recently, and withdrew the case, was awarding prizes at a fancy dress ball of the Crosstown Chowder and Outing club in Harlem Gardens. This was at midnight, and the other judges were . . ."

"Kelly wasn't killed at midnight," Barry realized. "He wasn't killed until two hours after midnight. If Mrs. Kelly got through with her prizes—"

"Well," Barry exulted, climbing into the subway. What next? Say nothing, and saw wood—that's what."

Monday morning Barry dropped in on Peter Winslow. Obviously, he was doing a great deal. "Got the defense all planned," he declared, showing Barry a thick sheaf of memoranda. "Loose-leaf" memoranda it was, in the most literal sense—scrawled on waste paper and the backs of envelopes. Order may be Nature's first law, but it wasn't this lawyer's.

"No, I'm not neat," Peter smiled, intercepting Barry's glance. "Except personally, and that is Julie's achievement. Julie's Mrs. Winslow, of course, and she buys all my clothes. Lays 'em out for me, too—even the boutonniere. I often ask her if she wants me to look like a gigolo. Don't worry about this stuff, though,"—indicating the sheaf of memoranda. "Miss Clark'll have that straight by night."

Miss Clark was his secretary.

"Women keep you in order," he went on smiling; "that's about the only thing I have against 'em."

"There's nothing to this case," he continued. "It'll come to trial in a few weeks now, and be over in a few hours. Want to hear what I'm going to ask that Filipino?"

Listening, Barry felt again that his own activities had been merely foolish. A dozen questions disposed of all the evidence the butler had given so far, and made it apparent that what he actually knew of young Ridder's visit was actually nothing. "You heard a quarrel? A violent quarrel? And you were alarmed? That's why you came upstairs? Rogers left then? And the lights were still burning in the front room. If you were alarmed, why didn't you knock at the door to make sure your master was all right? Not so very much alarmed, were you? In fact, you weren't alarmed at all until you saw what had happened." This was the beginning of an inquiry that twisted about, doubled on itself, and was likely to leave any jury on earth uncertain to convict anyone of a capital offense. "Particularly anyone with a wife and child," Peter said.

"Peggy was in here Friday," he added. "She looks as though she'd been dragged through a knot hole. I wanted her to come to us for the week-end, but we're in town most of the time I'm going to talk to the Hambidges about having her out there."

"That would be great," Barry kindled. "They'd be company for each other. It wouldn't do Pat a bit of harm to learn how the other half lives."

"Right!" Peter exclaimed heartily. "I'll call Pat today."

In spite of himself, as he was leaving, Barry mentioned his Harlem theory.

Peter listened intently.

"Well," he said, "you are a Hawkshaw."

"You'd be surprised if I landed Mrs. Kelly, wouldn't you?"

"No," Peter replied, smiling again, "but I'd be terribly surprised if you didn't begin suspecting some one else ten minutes afterward."

CHAPTER VII

THE more Barry thought of it, the more certain he became that the Judge's story, and the revelations in Harlem, removed the only reason for questioning Harwood's hypothesis. When the divorce action was filed, Kelly had promised not to see Betty Barclay again. That promise had induced the withdrawal of the petition. And then Betty Barclay had phoned, while Kelly was out, and just as Mrs. Kelly was going. In Harwood's own words, Mrs. Kelly "went wild." Failing to get legal counsel, she taxied to Harlem, and there she got "madder and madder." Just after midnight, she drove home, and found Kelly alone—drunk, and with the accumulated wrath engendered by two trying interviews. There were words, and a handy decanter.

The design begun being almost too nearly perfect.

He found Peggy doing some mending in her dingy room. She had lost flesh, and seemed to be always staring at nothing. "It's Jacky," she confided in Barry. "I'm worried about him."

The youngster looked pale and ill.

"Look here, Peg; will you have lunch with me tomorrow at the Astor? I want you to meet somebody."

"Miss Hambidge?"

"Yes."

"She'd turn up her nose at me like an elephant reaching for peanuts."

"I don't think so. Anyway, I want you to know each other."

The appointment was made, at la t—one o'clock—and Barry called Pat.

"Well, the trail's hot, all right."

"Tell me about it."

"I don't dare over the wire. You know; operators. Come in and lunch with me?"

"When?"

"Tomorrow at one."

Pat was eagerly anxious to hear his news, and there was no other way. But, if Pat's nose remained static when she learned she was to encounter Peggy, her mouth straightened. "Why? What have I in common with this girl?"

"Well," Barry answered, flatly, "you're keeping her husband in prison."

Pat flushed.

"You owe her something for that, don't you think? What're you being so high hat about? This girl's Mrs. John Clarke Ridder, Jr., you know."

"I'm not being high hat. Only, naturally, just now, I don't feel much like meeting strangers. Especially strangers with whom I have no community of interest."

Lunching together, however, it soon became evident that there was a "community of interest." Pat warmed to this painted chorus girl, fearful for her husband exactly as Pat was fearful for her father. Both heard Barry's account of his discoveries with regard to Mrs. Kelly.

"It seems pretty conclusive," Pat said.

"I never thought of that dame—I mean, woman," Peg added. "Would that get Jack off quick?"

Barry explained his understanding that, if there were definite proof of another person's having committed a crime, anyone in custody was released immediately. "The district attorney moves for a dismissal of the indictment, I believe," he told them.

"Gee!" Peggy said, with the tears in her eyes.

Pat was no fool, and she found herself respecting and liking this "night club hoofer." She was Mrs. Ridder, after all. Whoever the girl might have been, it was the tears beginning to dissolve the beads that stirred Pat. She had never seen anyone cry that way before—cry with her lips twisted into a smile.

"You've certainly stuck to your husband," Pat observed.

"Why not? When you really love anybody, you don't care what they do, or have done, or what they are. It's what they are to you that counts. You're not thinking what you're going to get, but what you're going to give. That is, the right kind of girl is."

"Gosh, she's trying to help me with Pat," Barry thought.

The upshot was that Pat took Peg and the youngster to Southampton the next morning. "Peter suggested it," she told Barry. "And, of course, you're right—I do owe them something."

It wasn't the debt that did it, Barry realized. It was Jacky. Peg wanted Patricia to see him, and the house was so near. There really wasn't any good excuse for not going. So, for the first time in her life, Pat sniffed fried fish in an entrance hall, and tripped on worn stair carpets, and found herself stifling in a back room without air or sunshine. She'd known people lived like that, of course, but, somehow, she'd never thought much about it. She found herself thinking now. "If I had to spend one night in this place— That's what's the matter with the boy."

It was arranged that Evans was to drive them out, and come back for Barry on Thursday.

When Barry left Pat at her hotel, she said, "You seem to be everybody's friend, Mr. Gilbert. It's a little hard to understand, considering—"

"Considering that I'm an adventurer and an imposter?"

"Yes."

"Yes," Barry repeated, "but that's how you learn what friendship means."

That night, Barry went to the Cocoanut Bar.

"I mustn't overlook anything," he reflected.

There wasn't much to overlook in the Cocoanut Bar. Not in the way of clothing, at all events. The lobby was full of men, more or less surreptitiously glancing at framed photographs of girls whose costumes might almost have been packed in a vanity case. Inside was a square dancing floor with tables about it, like the seats about a prize ring. Above, there was a balcony with more tables, except at one spot, occupied by offices.

There were three shows a night, the amateur Hawkshaw discovered from his menu—at seven, eleven, and one.

It wasn't hard to get acquainted with any of the girls. One had only to look prosperous, and incline his head an inch or two in the direction of a vacant chair. "We're not supposed to do this," Violet Fane informed Barry, "but Luis's got a swell stand-in."

Barry had his expense account and his ingratiating grin, and used both to the limit. It wasn't long before the blonde was telling the story of her life. "I bin with Luis ever since I was a kid," she bragged. "He's a swell guy. You oughta know him. I'll give you a tumble after the next show."

Luis was most affable. A sentimentalist, but a business man, with a keen eye to spenders, and a withering contempt for tightwads.

A flashy young fellow, Morano was, who wore sporty clothes, and much jewelry. Slim and dapper, his shining ebon hair was slicked back from his forehead. He had a long, thin nose, and straight, thin lips, and a slight but rather curious impediment in his speech. His voice could be very soft at times.

"Tender hearted, Luis is," Miss Fane declared later. "I've seen him cry when somebody sang about mother or the kid or sumpin'. That loved-her-and-lost-her stuff, specially. He was married onct."

"Didn't it take?"

"Sure, it took. That's why he cries. The Jane died, or sumpin'. Know what Luis did—when he got the coin, I mean? Bought the house they used to live in, and went on livin' there—alone, with a couple of servants."

"Gee!"

"Ain't that romantic? I'll say so! He's still got the servants, too. They all moved to a farm, somewhere in Jersey, a couple'a years ago. Would you believe it—he drives out every morning, after the last show. Nuts about horses, Luis is. Not to bet on. Just likes 'em."

"Learned about horses in Fauquier county," Luis said, returning at that instant. "I lived there 'til I was nineteen, and that's all they know. Go on, Vi; you'll be late."

"I never was late for a show yet," she retorted. "Nor out of one. Not in all the years I've worked for you."

"That's straight," Morano admitted, as she was leaving. "Never bin out of a show in her life. She's a swell girl, Vi."

There wasn't much to be got at the Cocoanut Bar; not that Violet and Morano weren't willing to talk. Morano's romance had left him a gentle melancholy—or, perhaps, he was only worried about business. But, if he had anything to conceal, it certainly seemed to have no relation to Kelly. On that subject everything was open and above board.

National Student Federation, American Student Union, and the American Youth Congress.....

Three principal themes have been selected for discussion. They are: organization of peace, economic and social organization of the world; and moral, religious, philosophical and other bases of peace. Although adult leaders of world affairs will address the group, these young people from all over the world will endeavor to work out their own problems and solutions. There is no dispute that the youth have been most neglected of all classes during the present capitalistic depression, and it is time that they assert themselves and find out whether they have or have not a place in society.

—O—

A very interesting hearing was held before the Minneapolis Board of Education last week. The hearing was on complaint of a group of liberal women who protested the organization at West High School, Minneapolis, of the so-called Student Patriot League. The League, it appears, was formed not only with the acquiescence but also the sponsorship of the president of the school.....

We must look beyond the mere announced purposes of this organization to realize its real objectives. It is purely a fascistic invasion of our public schools and its program dove-tails perfectly with the program of those who are directing fascist movements in America......

Like the fascists of other countries, the fascists of America have gone in to win over youth, thru uniforms, drills, patriotic phrases, and glittering words. Behind these is the black shadow of reaction which seeks to destroy every vestige of American democracy. Our super-patriots were alert in demanding the discharge of teachers and principals who were suspected of Communistic leanings. What will these super-patriots do now when teachers and principals openly sponsor an organization which drags in the dust every noble tradition of our country?

CARD OF THANKS

We hereby wish to express our sincere appreciation to the many friends who showed their kindness during the illness and passing of our daughter and sister Clara. To the Reverends Jacobson and Tungseth, the ladies who furnished the music, and all others who assisted in the funeral services, we extend grateful thanks.

ELECTRIFICATION PROJECT WILL BE DEDICATED AUG. 7

Dedication of Minnesota's first co-operative rural electric line will be made at Litchfield, Meeker county, on Aug. 7, with Morris L. Cooke, national REA administrator, and E. A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau, taking part in the ceremonies.

The Meeker county co-operative organized by the Meeker County Farm Bureau, was the first in Minnesota to receive REA approval and a loan from Washington. Many other county setups, organized through the activities of County Farm Bureaus, are near the final stage of organization, says J. S. Jones, secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

Plans for the Meeker ceremonies were made on Friday of last week in the office of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, with Ralph Wayne, Meeker county agent, representing the local organization.

Mr. Cooke's trip to Meeker county will be his first official appearance in Minnesota. His attendance at the Minnesota ceremonies is a mark of appreciation for the part the Farm Bureau has played in the REA program, Bureau officers assert. The American Farm Bureau is credited by Mr. Cooke as being to a large extent responsible for the Rural Electrification act, while State and County Farm Bureau organizations have taken the lead in promoting the co-operative organizations through which electric service will be brought to thousands of farm homes throughout the state, Mr. Jones declares.

Many REA officers and Farm Bureau officials from other counties will attend the Meeker celebration, as will officers of the State Department of Agriculture and the extension department of the college of agriculture who have taken leading part in putting the REA program in Minnesota.

Thief River Falls Is Baseball League Leader

then on until the eighth the Saints failed to cross home plate. In the eighth, however, on a couple of hits and an error, St. Hilaire tallied two more scores, but by that time the Thief River boys had had a couple of more runs to spare.

Young Sahl, who is not as yet seventeen years of age, won much admiration, even from his opponents, for the able twirling he did. He bore down heavily in the first four or five innings to obtain many strikeouts but he was then advised to go easier so as not to get overworked. He struck out thirteen and allowed only six hits.

Thief River Falls had another big inning in Sunday's game which gave the boys a commanding lead the same as in the game played a week earlier. The four scores tallied in this frame resulted from the following: Eide tripled and scored as Jaranson hit a double into centerfield; Lee singled, scoring Jaranson; Ekeren raeched first on a fielder's choice play, Lee being safe at second; Lee and Ekeren scored on Robinson's triple, Robinson being out trying to stretch the triple into a homer.

Thief River had scored a run in the second inning when Ekeren doubled and crossed the home plate when Robinson followed him with another double.

The sixth and last score for Thief River Falls came in the sixth inning when Sahl hit safely, advanced to second on an error and scored on a hit by Lee.

Hallamak, the ace twirler for the Saints, was not in his usual form. He was touched for thirteen hits and succeeded in fanning only three. His support was a little erratic at times.

Garnes comes here for a game with Thief River next Sunday. Manager Lee will stage a five-inning game between two boys teams, the boys ranging from 9 to 12 year of age. Fans who have seen them play say they can put on a fine show.

PENNINGTON GETS $13,125 IN 1936 GAS TAX REFUND

Mr. Gulllingsrud, the Pennington County auditor, received a check of $13,125.00 this week from the state treasurer, said check being from the gas tax fund for the first half of 1936 and goes exclusively to county aid roads. Another check of a similar amount will be forthcoming at the end of the year, states Mr. Gullingsrud.

TOWNSEND CLUBS TO GATHER AT AKELY AUG. 16

Word has been received by the chairman, Mr. Dudley of the County Townsend Clubs that there will be a big picnic at Akely, Minn., on Sunday, August 16th. Representatives and members from all districts in northern Minnesota will be there. It will be one of the largest meetings staged by the Townsend Clubs in this section of the state.

TELEPHONE FIRM MAY REDUCE PRICE OF LONG DISTANCE CALLS

An application to place in effect on September 1, proposed reductions in long distance telephone charges on all calls over distances of more than 234 miles, has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission at Washington it is announced by A. J. Rau, manager for the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company office here.

The proposed reductions apply to charges for both station-to-station calls, when the calling person asks to talk with anyone available at the telephone called, and to person-to-person calls, when he asks to talk with a specified person.

For example, under the new rates a three-minute station-to-station call of 300 miles would be $1.25 on week days instead of $1.40 as at present. The rate after 7 P. M. on Sunday for such a call would be 75 cents instead of 80 cents. A three-minute station-to-station call of 3,000 miles would be $3.25 instead of $3.75 on week days and $1.85 instead of $2.00 after 7 P. M. and on Sunday.

4-H ACHIEVEMENT DAY AT CROOKSTON, AUG. 11

The Sub-district Home Economic Achievement Day will be held at Crookston, August 11th, states Miss Thelma Solie who has charge of the work in Pennington county. The following girls from Pennington county will take part:

Esther Hetland, Rocksbury, Individual Oral Cake; Isabelle Rosenlahl, St. Hilaire, Room Furnishing Demonstrator; Anna and Florence Hanson, Rocksbury, Clothing Team; Wilma Ruppreclit and Joyce Meyer, Steiner, Clothing Team; Marjorie Matheson, Rocksbury, Meal Planning and Food Preparation, and Thelma Skaar, Norden club, Room Furnishing exhibit.

At this Achievement Day four counties will compete for State Fair trips.

WEST ROCKSBURY CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

A large gathering attended the meeting of the West Rocksbury local of the Cooperative Union activities held in the Aubol school house Thursday evening, July 23. Present officers of the organization were reelected by a unanimous vote to serve for a term of six months. The time for regular meetings of the local was set for the second Thursday of each month at 8:00 p. m., and it was further stipulated that the next meeting would be held in the Aubol school. A committee, consisting of the Mesdames Roy Randorf, Gust Wilken and Henry Wilken, was appointed to have charge of the serving of refreshments at the next meeting. It was moved that a nominal charge of ten cents per person be made for the lunches served at the meetings.

The program of entertainment which followed the business session included vocal and instrumental numbers by Ferdinand and Martin Wilken, Rubert Wolfgram, and Walter Wilken after which Mr. Blake, state organizer, addressed the group.

The meeting of the West Rocksbury local which was originally scheduled for August 13, will be postponed until August 20. As the Junior camp is being held August 12th to 16th this would make it difficult to secure speakers and home talent entertainment during that time.

HAVE SNOWBALL FIGHT WITH TEMPERATURE 108

Granite Falls—With the thermometer outside the George Mooney gravel pit recording 108 degrees in the shade, down in the pit where the temperature was at least 120 the drivers of the Hallet gravel trucks waged a merry snowball fight the afternoon of July 14 at Granite Falls. A liar, did you say? Read on. The steam shovel was scooping up gravel for the shouldering of highway 212. Suddenly the shovel's dipper came up half full of snow. A little careful maneuvering on the part of the operator uncovered a fine large snowbank—evidently a remainder from last winter and which has been preserved by a landslide that covered it with eight feet of gravel. For an hour or more the truck drivers were riding their vehicles with clumps of snow atop their heads, while every little while one of the perspiring men would take a headlong dive into the rapidly disappearing white bank. Several of the men, it is rumored, refused to engage in the snowball fight, fearing that the snow might melt in the air, become boiling water in the terrific heat and scald them.

TURKISH REPRESENTATIVE INSPECTS PAVING WORK

Detroit Lakes—Seeking to learn the most modern methods of road construction, a representative of the Turkish government—Mr. Zeki by name—inspected the paving operation on highway No. 59 at Callaway near Detroit Lakes last week. A student of engineering at the University of Minnesota, the visitor explained that the Turkish government has $40,000,000 to spend on road improvements and is anxious that the money be spent to the best advantage. Zeki remarked that while attending school in this country he was considered as being in the service of Turkey. After four or five years in the United States he will go back to his native land with seniority rights in government employment proportionate to the number of years he has spent in college here.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

Mrs. Anna Billy, Monessen, Pa., writes: "I was very much worn down from lack of appetite and sleepless nights. Then a neighbor told me of your medicine Kuriko, and after taking two bottles, my condition has improved considerably." Dr. Peter's Kuriko is a time-proven family medicine, compounded from herbs, seeds, and roots of recognized medicinal value. It tones the stomach, regulates the bowels, increases the urinary flow and removes the unhealthy waste matter from the system. Thus it has a beneficial effect upon the general state of health. It is not sold in drug stores but can only be obtained from authorized local agents. For information write to Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons Company, 2501 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. —Adv.

NATION COOLER BUT CROPS STILL SUFFER

One hundred degree heat was missing from weather bureau charts for the North Central states but fair skies continued the damage to crops this week.

Cooler for at least another day but without much rain was the general forecast for the territory. Local showers for parts of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, South Dakota and Nebraska promised further relief.

The more comfortable weathet was ushered in by widespread rains which brought up as much as two inches of moisture to Kansas and swept sizzling temperatures from Ohio.

Irreparable damage to corn and other crops was only mitigated not halted by moderated weather, Chicago statisticians reported.

SOIL CONSERVATION MODIFIED FURTHER IN DROUTH REGION

Further modification of the Government's western soil-conservation program, to encourage emergency plantings of forage crops and conserve available forage as an offset against feed losses in drought states, was announced by the AAA, Friday.

Previous modifications applied to specified counties in North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming. They provided that farmers could plant emergency forage crops for hay without affecting their eligibility to participate in the conservation program.

The new modifications applied to these three states and also to Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

They provide that crop land may be used for production of emergency forage crops (such as Sudan grasses, spring grains, sorghums, or millets) for hay or pasture without affecting prior classification of this land under the program.

The modifications further provide that farmers who have planted soil-conserving crops with a nurse crop for hay if they have a good stand of the soil-conserving crop, without affecting the ineligibility for payments.

STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

A day or two before the last School Election, I published and caused to be circulated a circular signed by me making certain charges against the members of the School Board; since my own election as a member of the Board, I have met with the said School Board and have had a chance to go into the facts more thoroughly.

I find that the Meeting which I referred to was not a meeting of the School Board but a meeting of a certain Committee of the Board, that the books at that time were not available and I did have an opportunity to get the information I wanted from them later.

I am particularly anxious to correct the statement made by me that the Public Examiner "Found in the neighborhood of $1100.00 which was returned to District No. 18". I am informed by the Board Members that the records and correspondence of the Board show that this item had already been discovered by the then members of the School Board before the Public Examiners were called in and that steps had been taken to recover this amount and that it was called to the attention of the Examiners by the Board Members themselves.

I make this statement in order to dispel any inference that may have been drawn form the Circular which I published that there was any dishonesty in the affairs of the School District.

I want to be fair and wish to make PUBLIC RETRACTION and APOLOGY for any statements made intimating that such was the case.

AMATEUR PILOT AND PASSENGER ARE KILLED

Alf. E. Thompson, aged 28, cashier of a bank at Lakota, N. D., was killed early Sunday, as the plane he piloted crashed near that city. Mallory Watson, a young man, 18 years, was also killed. Mr. Thompson was a student pilot, having done some flying with his own plane for the past three years. He had no license to carry passengers.

It is believed that the motor stalled while the plane was about 200 feet above ground which prevented a proper landing.

BULLETIN PUBLISHED ON FARMERS UNION ACTIVITIES

The Norden Local Union has at present a total membership of seventy-one and has made an application for a charter. At the first meeting they elected the following officers for a six months period: Gordon Olson, Chairman; Eldrid Ayres, Vice-Chairman; Norman Voldness, Secy-Treas.; Ires Ayres, Junior Leader and Chester Olson, repotrer. They hold their meeting on the fourth Wednesday of each month.

Andrew Trovatton, Gilbert A. Brattland and George W. Blake, the Farmers Union State organizer, will be the principal speakers at the Grygla Farmers Union Local meeting being held on Friday, August 7th, in the Martin Sandmark school.

FEED SHORTAGE CREATES CRISIS IN U.S. OUTLOOK

Federal Crop Report of Aug. 1 Shows Reductions From July 1st

Minnesota Condition Is Most Favorable

Drouth May Reduce This Year's Crop Down To That of 1934

Because there is a shortage of corn and other feed crops there is expected to be a crisis in the livestock industry in the country during the next twelve months. Corn is the shortest crop this year of any corn crop of the past fifty years. Much livestock will have to be marketed soon so there is a likelihood prices will be low now and very high later.

Although Minnesota's crops have been hard hit by drouth, they have fared better than most in states which have been seriously affected by the heat and lack of rain of the last six weeks. Minnesota's crop prospects are exceeded only by Wisconsin's.

With the exception of pastures and potatoes, Minnesota's crop prospects were better as of August 1, according to the federal crop report made public late Monday than they were on the corresponding date in 1934.

The indicated yield of 32 crops considered in the Mississippi valley shows Minnesota's prospects 63 per cent, compared with 74 per cent in Wisconsin, 46 per cent in Montana, 40 per cent in North Dakota and 31 per cent in South Dakota.

Based on August 1 conditions, the prospective 1936 corn harvest was estimated at 1,439,135,00 bushels by the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture. The July 1 estimate—before the drouth took its heaviest toll—was 2,244,834,000 bushels. The 1935 production was 2,291,629,000.

See Grain Shortage

"Irrespective of weather conditions during the remainder of the season," the board reported, "there will be a shortage of grain that will necessitate rather heavy marketings of grain-consuming livestock and a reduction in the grain ration of livestock wintered.

"The shortage of feed grains will necesitate extensive readjustments of livestock numbers and of feeding practices. The greatest shortage of feed grains will be in corn, the total supply of which will be less than in 1934, and the greatest readjustments in numbers of livestock will be in hogs, which are almost dependent upon corn supplies."

Spring Wheat Is Off

The crop board forecast total wheat production at 632,745,000 bushels, compared with 623,444,000 bushels harvested last year. Spring wheat was estimated at 113,648,000 bushels against 126,314,000 held

PICNIC IS HELD IN CALIFORNIA

Former Thief River Falls People Gather at Pasadena to Renew Old Acquaintances

The following is an account of an event that was received last week which will be of interest to many Forum readers. The account written by H. F. Mussey, secretary of the group, was received too late to be inserted in last week's issue. The article:

Put two and two together and you always get four. Put a bunch of home town folks together and you always get a real old time.

And so the Thief River Falls Society of Southern California put two and two together at Brookside Park in Pasadena on July 12, and had one swell picnic and reunion.

The meeting date came "sorta" quick but it was all because a former Thief River girl who had heard of our annual get-to-gether meets came all the way from Palm Beach in Florida, to attend this years festival. Who? Well, no one else but Esther Stebbins, lifelike and natural, and she gets the 1936 palm for having travelled the farthest to be on time. She didn't get much chance to hold hands "like she used to", but she hasn't lost much technique.

In 1935 we let the whispering waves of the Pacific speed us on our homeward way. In 1936 we slipped from the shadows of the Sierra Madre mountains and wended our way homeward "with a song in our hearts" for the folks we'd left behind two, three, five, ten, yes, twenty years ago.

Farmer-Labor Party Plans 3-Day Festival

An elaborate program for the Farmer-Labor Progressive festival to be conducted September 4, 5 and 6 at Maple Hill farm, Lake Independence, 40 miles northwest of Minneapolis, was completed Saturday by the sponsors. John Bosch, national president of the Farm Holiday association, and Sander Genis, labor leader, are chairman and secretary of the Minnesota Conference for Progressive Social Legislation in charge of the affair.

Mornings will be devoted to forums and afternoons to general sessions. Bosch will preside at the Friday session with Smith W. Brookhart, former Iowa senator, as speaker. Congressional candidates will speak in the evening. Genis will preside Saturday, with Heywood Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild as speaker.

Farmer-Labor candidates for state office will be on the program. The Sunday afternoon session, with Harold Peterson presiding, includes speeches by Governor Floyd B. Olson and Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin congressman.

The morning forums and their leaders will be:

Farm problems—John Bosch.

Rural Electrification—Mrs. Marion Le Sueur, Minneapolis.

Education—John G. Rockwell, state commissioner of education.

War Crisis—Waldo McNutt, national organizer of the League Against War and Fascism.

Taxation—William A. Anderson, attorney examiner for the state tax commission.

Social legislation—Howard Y. Williams, national organizer of the Farmer-Labor Political Federation.

SERIOUS FIRES RAGE IN VIRGIN FOREST REGIONS

Thousands of Acres Are Aflame as Hundreds Combat Fire

Many Persons Arrested For Starting Fires

Flames Near Kabetogama Furnish Smoke for Local Haziness

The skies around Thief River Falls, as well as other communities in northern Minnesota, have been hazy with smoke for over a week due to intense forest fires in vast areas to the northeast. Peet bogs are smoldering in areas nearer to aid in increasing the haziness.

The forest fire furnishing the main source of the smoke here is burning in the stretch northeast of Red Lake and south of Lake Kabetogama, the most serious fire being near the latter lake where several thousand acres burned on Tuesday and Wednesday. Men were drafted into service in hundreds to stop the destruction of the finest of the state's remaining virgin forest.

George Conzet, state forest ranger, lays the blame for several fires to berry-pickers and others who fail to put out their camp fires. However, several persons have been arrested for starting fires so they might obtain work.

About 6,000 acres was laid waste in the vicinity of Tom lake, in the Superior forest Wednesday and hundreds of CCC boys and WPA workers were being dispatched to the scene.

At International Falls, 35 miles north of Kabetogama lake, hundreds of men were being drafted to join 1,000 fire fighters at the scene of the newest blaze.

St. Hilaire Makes Plans For Community Hall

Plans for the building of a new community hall at St. Hilaire under the Works Progress Administration program were discussed at a meeting held Wednesday evening of last week in the Olson & Bilden hall at St. Hilaire. District WPA Supervisor Korwick of Detroit Lakes and District Engineer Wells of Crookston were present to aid in formulating plans to put the project through. It is planned that other meetings will be held so the building may be realized for certain.

Good Crowd Attends Farm Bureau Picnic

The annual picnic of the Pennington county Farm Bureau drew a good-sized crowd and an entertaining event was held altogether. The event was held Sunday at the Smiley picnic grounds, more than one thousand people being present, many of whom spent the entire day there.

L. A. Nelson, the president of the county unit, presided as the program was rendered. Frank W. White, of Marshall, Minn., president of the state farm bureau federation, spoke on the proposed Youngquist amendment, speaking in favor of its adoption. Marius Waldal, state representative, also spoke, telling people to keep abreast the tax situation and he stated that later he will be pleased to get requests for talks on the matter as he is preparing a discourse on the subject.

The program was rendered as scheduled. The St. Hilaire 4-H band presented several selections during the afternoon, the Norden 4-H girls trio sang several numbers, as did the Hazel 4-H club trio, and LeRoy Rupprecht, the youthful yodeller, rendered several songs with guitar accompaniment.

There was a complete sports program run off, consisting of races for boys and girls and a kittenball tournament held. Wyandotte emerged the winner in this latter event. Wyandotte defeated Northfield in the opening game 6-5; Smiley defeated Rocksbury 8 to 7 in the second game and Wyandotte defeated Smiley 16 to 5 in the final game.

GARNES LOSES; FORKS WINS 9-2

Thief River Falls Wins Sunday's Game 16 to 2; East Siders Prove Powerful Thursday

The Thief River Falls baseball team continued its march for the past week toward the undisputed title of the Northern Minnie league when the Garnes team was defeated Sunday by the score of 16 to 2 in a game here.

The Thief River boys were "heavy on the stick" and blasted out seventeen bingles off the delivery of Lund and Hervey, the pitchers for the visitors. Ekeren, Jaranson and Grothe were the stickers. Three runs were tallied in the first inning, two in the third, four in the fourth, five in the sixth, and two in the seventh. The big portion of them were earned runs, made thru consistent hitting.

Robinson did the twirling for the local boys for the first six innings. He was relieved by Olson, who pitched in the seventh and

C. C. TALBOTT TO SPEAK AT LOCAL F. U. CONVENTION

North Dakota President Is Outstanding Lecturer; Is Noted Leader

County Meeting Will Be Held Last Week of Aug.

Set-up for Pennington Is Expected; 600 Memberships Are Claimed

C. C. Talbott, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, will be the main speaker at the Pennington county convention, which will be held during the last week of this month. The date may be announced next week as Mr. Talbott has been given the privilege to set his own date. When the county organizer, George Blake, got in touch with Mr. Talbott the latter could not promise any definite time as he had several matters of importance to arrange beforehand. But he did assure Mr. Blake it will be between August 24 and 31.

Mr. Talbott is a very able speaker, few in the northwest being as forceful and eloquent. Pennington county people cannot afford to miss the opportunity of hearing him. He has been engaged for many years in promoting work that aids farmers and they owe much to him for such as the AAA plan, rural rehabilitation, etc.

Pennington county has no regular set-up as yet, though Mr. Blake reports that about six-hundred of our farmers belong to the organization. It is expected that the officers will be chosen at the coming county convention.

Young Newfolden Man Killed by Lightning

Kenneth Bjornsrud, a young man of 25 years of age, was reported killed by lightning late Friday when his body was found near a tractor which he was driving for his brother-in-law west of Newfolden.

His body was found at about 7:30 that evening after he failed to appear at the farm home for supper. It is believed that he had been struck by a flash of lightning about two hours earlier and that death was instantaneous.

He owned and lived on a farm in Spruce Valley township, Marshall county, southwest of Middle River.

Public Invited to Attend Drum Corps Parade

The Thief River Falls Legion Auxiliary Drum corps and the Municipal Band will appear in a joint program on the high school football field Friday evening at 7:15, according to a late announcement.

The drum corps will appear in uniform and present the complete maneuvers they have prepared for the State Legion Convention to be held at Brainerd, August 16th, 17th and 18th.

At this exhibition the corps will undergo the regular inspection and judging for drilling and playing as practiced in state competition.

This program is free to the public and it is hoped a large audience will be present.

NEW NYA SETUP IS ANNOUNCED

Marvin Benson, Local Young Man, Will Have Charge of Four Northern Counties

A reorganization of the National Youth Administration of the seventh WPA district, with regard to supervision and time-reporting, has been effected by N. A. Thorson, District Supervisor. The district has been divided into six areas with each in charge of a project supervisor.

In charge of Pennington, eastern Marshall, Roseau and Lake of the Woods Counties will be Marvin Benson, Thief River Falls.

Local co-sponsors and timekeepers have been arranged for in communities where projects are located, and they will assist the area supervisors in checking on the youths working in their vicinity.

Under the new setup, there will be seven district projects, which will include four city projects at Bemidji, Crookston, Moorhead and Fergus Falls, as well as three district-wide projects. The latter projects will provide work for youths in conservation, recreation and rural youth development. The hours of work will be 44 hours per month and the wage scale will be slightly higher than prior to July 1st.

Youths from families certified to the Works Progress Administration, and between the ages of 18 and 25 years, are eligible to work on the youth project, providing they are out of school. The high school and college student aid will be continued again this season and applies to youths from 16 to 25 years. Application for such aid should be made through the heads of the institutions to which the youth wishes to attend. It is granted to young people who cannot attend school without financial assistance.

City School Board Meets; State Aid Is Received

The board of education of School District No. 18 at its monthly meeting Monday evening appointed standing committees for the coming year, accepted the resignation of another member of the grade school faculty, voted to accept an application to fill the vacancy and awarded the contract for school printing for the year.

The board voted to accept the resignation of Miss Harriet Lamson from the position as first grade teacher in the Knox school. In her resignation Miss Lamson did not disclose any definite plans for the coming year. To fill the vacancy created by Miss Lamson's resignation, the school board elected Miss Merle L. Bryant of Tenstrike. Miss Bryant, who is a graduate of Bemidji State Teachers' college, taught for the past two years at Bass Lake.

The following were appointed to serve on the various committees for the coming year: finance, Dr. A. M. Smith, chairman, Alfred Skarstad, and E. M. Bennes; maintenance, Ralph Woolhouse, chairman, William Donville and Dr. Smith; instruction, Mr. Skarstad chairman, Mr. Bennes, and B. O. Norby.

The Thief River Falls Times was designated as the official newspaper of District No. 18 for the year on their low bid of fifteen cents per folio for the first insertion and ten cents per folio for subsequent insertions.

FEDERAL FUNDS WILL BE GOTTEN FOR PROPOSAL

Mayor Prichard Sends Telegram of Meeting With Roosevelt

Work Will Begin Very Soon, Report States

Five Delegates Meet With Executive and Aids, Tuesday Afternoon

A telegram was received here early Wednesday from Mayor Prichard in Washington stating that President Roosevelt has approved the Red Lake River channel project. The federal government will finance the undertaking and work will start very soon. Mr. Prichard is expected home in a few days.

Starts Ball Rolling

Mr. Zimmerman said the president agreed to "start the ball rolling" by communicating with all federal agencies concerned, an Associated Press dispatch said. The cost of the project, which involves clearing the channel of the river, has been estimated at $750,000.

Represented as willing to "move heaven and earth" to see the project brought to completion, the president got in touch with Major General Markham, chief of the army engineers, in the first step to cut red tape.

Faced Water Famine

Zimmerman said the president showed "great interest" in the proposal and expressed the hope he might be able to visit the Red Lake river later this month for a first hand picture of conditions. The president will leave Washington August 25 on his projected tour of the northwest drouth area, he announced Tuesday.

The delegation told the president the cities of Crookston, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls in Minnesota as well as East Grand Forks and Grand Forks would face a water famine in 60 days unless the project were started immediately. The cities obtain their water from the river.

Zimmerman said he understood the work would be under direction of the army engineering corps with labor provided by the works progress administration.

Meanwhile, the geological sur-

Two Local Men Elected As State Elks Officers

Two local men, Oscar C. Paulson and J. O. Yotter, were elected to offices with the Minnesota State division of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks Saturday at the final business session closing the three-day annual convention at Minneapolis.

Mr. Paulson was elected treasurer of the organization and Mr. Yotter was designated as north district deputy. Leonard Erikksen of Fergus Falls was elected president of the organization.

Other officers named were: Leo Cronin, Rochester, 1st vice-pres.; Ray Carlson, Eveleth, 2nd vice-pres.; Charles Kiesner, Owatonna, 3rd vice-pres.; and Benjamin Lien, Fergus Falls, secretary.

International Falls was named the 1937 convention city. The organization adopted a resolution to indorse a state-wide campaign of Americanization, to be conducted though the twenty-three Minnesota lodges. James G. McFarland, Watertown, S. D., past grand exalted ruler, will present a silver trophy to the lodge which distinguishes itself over a period of a year in this campaign of Americanization.

THIEF RIVER FALLS WOMEN'S DRUM CORPS

The Thief River Falls Womens' drum corps, pictured above, will leave Saturday morning for the State Legion convention at Brainerd where it will compete for state honors in Class B. The corps was re-organized last spring to full strength, 29 pieces in all, with Mrs. Emmet Wright as major. It has made much progress since and expects to compete in Class A next year. Mrs. Wright's corps at Crookston won the honor for several years in succession. The personnel: Top row—Martha Holmgren, Dorothy Erickson, Belle Hermanson, Ruth Twete, Juaneta Lynde; second row—Inga Eide, Eva Robarge, Martha Narverud, Irma Berg; third row—Myrtle McCain, Violet Midderigh, Alvina Wiltront, Laura Johnson, Ruth Bessler; fourth row—Anna Bergstrom, Billie Long, Gertrude Cerny, Lillian Ovigan, Enga Lindberg; fifth row—Jennie Peterson, Hannah Launa, Marie Cardin, Nora Nesse, Lila Hanson; sixth row—Marie Thill, Ida Fossum, Jeanette Wright, Dorothy Hoel, Miss Lee.

Put two and two together and you always get four. Put a bunch of home town folks together and you always get a real old time.

And so the Thief River Falls Society of Southern California put two and two together at Brookside Park in Pasadena on July 12, and had one swell picnic and reunion.

The meeting date came "sorta" quick but it was all because a former Thief River girl who had heard of our annual get-to-gether meets came all the way from Palm Beach in Florida, to attend this years festival. Who? Well, no one else but Esther Stebbins, lifelike and natural, and she gets the 1936 palm for having travelled the farthest to be on time. She didn't get much chance to hold hands "like she used to", but she hasn't lost much technique.

In 1935 we let the whispering waves of the Pacific speed us on our homeward way. In 1936 we slipped from the shadows of the Sierra Madre mountains and wended our way homeward "with a song in our hearts" for the folks we'd left behind two, three, five, ten, yes, twenty years ago.

Farmer-Labor Party Plans 3-Day Festival

An elaborate program for the Farmer-Labor Progressive festival to be conducted September 4, 5 and 6 at Maple Hill farm, Lake Independence, 40 miles northwest of Minneapolis, was completed Saturday by the sponsors. John Bosch, national president of the Farm Holiday association, and Sander Genis, labor leader, are chairman and secretary of the Minnesota Conference for Progressive Social Legislation in charge of the affair.

Mornings will be devoted to forums and afternoons to general sessions. Bosch will preside at the Friday session with Smith W. Brookhart, former Iowa senator, as speaker. Congressional candidates will speak in the evening. Genis will preside Saturday, with Heywood Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild as speaker.

Farmer-Labor candidates for state office will be on the program. The Sunday afternoon session, with Harold Peterson presiding, includes speeches by Governor Floyd B. Olson and Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin congressman.

The morning forums and their leaders will be:

Farm problems—John Bosch.

Rural Electrification—Mrs. Marion Le Sueur, Minneapolis.

Education—John G. Rockwell, state commissioner of education.

War Crisis—Waldo McNutt, national organizer of the League Against War and Fascism.

Taxation—William A. Anderson, attorney examiner for the state tax commission.

Social legislation—Howard Y. Williams, national organizer of the Farmer-Labor Political Federation.

SERIOUS FIRES RAGE IN VIRGIN FOREST REGIONS

Thousands of Acres Are Aflame as Hundreds Combat Fire

Many Persons Arrested For Starting Fires

Flames Near Kabetogama Furnish Smoke for Local Haziness

The skies around Thief River Falls, as well as other communities in northern Minnesota, have been hazy with smoke for over a week due to intense forest fires in vast areas to the northeast. Peet bogs are smoldering in areas nearer to aid in increasing the haziness.

The forest fire furnishing the main source of the smoke here is burning in the stretch northeast of Red Lake and south of Lake Kabetogama, the most serious fire being near the latter lake where several thousand acres burned on Tuesday and Wednesday. Men were drafted into service in hundreds to stop the destruction of the finest of the state's remaining virgin forest.

George Conzet, state forest ranger, lays the blame for several fires to berry-pickers and others who fail to put out their camp fires. However, several persons have been arrested for starting fires so they might obtain work.

About 6,000 acres was laid waste in the vicinity of Tom lake, in the Superior forest Wednesday and hundreds of CCC boys and WPA workers were being dispatched to the scene.

At International Falls, 35 miles north of Kabetogama lake, hundreds of men were being drafted to join 1,000 fire fighters at the scene of the newest blaze.

St. Hilaire Makes Plans For Community Hall

Plans for the building of a new community hall at St. Hilaire under the Works Progress Administration program were discussed at a meeting held Wednesday evening of last week in the Olson & Bilden hall at St. Hilaire. District WPA Supervisor Korwick of Detroit Lakes and District Engineer Wells of Crookston were present to aid in formulating plans to put the project through. It is planned that other meetings will be held so the building may be realized for certain.

Good Crowd Attends Farm Bureau Picnic

The annual picnic of the Pennington county Farm Bureau drew a good-sized crowd and an entertaining event was held altogether. The event was held Sunday at the Smiley picnic grounds, more than one thousand people being present, many of whom spent the entire day there.

L. A. Nelson, the president of the county unit, presided as the program was rendered. Frank W. White, of Marshall, Minn., president of the state farm bureau federation, spoke on the proposed Youngquist amendment, speaking in favor of its adoption. Marius Waldal, state representative, also spoke, telling people to keep abreast the tax situation and he stated that later he will be pleased to get requests for talks on the matter as he is preparing a discourse on the subject.

The program was rendered as scheduled. The St. Hilaire 4-H band presented several selections during the afternoon; the Norden 4-H girls trio sang several numbers, as did the Hazel 4-H club trio, and LeRoy Rupprecht, the youthful yodeller, rendered several songs with guitar accompaniment.

There was a complete sports program run off, consisting of races for boys and girls and a kittenball tournament held. Wyandotte emerged the winner in this latter event. Wyandotte defeated Northfield in the opening game 6-5; Smiley defeated Rocksbury 8 to 7 in the second game and Wyandotte defeated Smiley 6 to 5 in the final game.

GARNES LOSES; FORKS WINS 9-2

Thief River Falls Wins Sunday's Game 16 to 2; East Siders Prove Powerful Thursday

The Thief River Falls baseball team continued its march for the past week toward the undisputed title of the Northern Minnie league when the Garnes team was defeated Sunday by the score of 16 to 2 in a game here.

The Thief River boys were "heavy on the stick" and blasted out seventeen bingles off the delivery of Lund and Hervey, the pitchers for the visitors. Ekeren, Jaranson and Grothe were the stickers. Three runs were tallied in the first inning, two in the third, four in the fourth, five in the sixth, and two in the seventh. The big portion of them were earned runs, made thru consistent hitting.

Robinson did the twirling for the local boys for the first six innings. He was relieved by Olson, who pitched in the seventh and

C.C. TALBOTT TO SPEAK AT LOCAL F.U. CONVENTION

North Dakota President Is Outstanding Lecturer; Is Noter Leader

County Meeting Will Be Held Last Week of Aug.

Set-up for Pennington Is Expected; 600 Memberships Are Claimed

C. C. Talbott, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, will be the main speaker at the Pennington county convention, which will be held during the last week of this month. The date may be announced next week as Mr. Talbott has been given the privilege to set his own date. When the county organizer, George Blake, got in touch with Mr. Talbott the latter could not promise any definite time as he had several matters of importance to arrange beforehand. But he did assure Mr. Blake it will be between August 24 and 31.

Mr. Talbott is a very able speaker, few in the northwest being as forceful and eloquent. Pennington county people cannot afford to miss the opportunity of hearing him. He has been engaged for many years in promoting work that aids farmers and they owe much to him for such as the AAA plan, rural rehabilitation, etc.

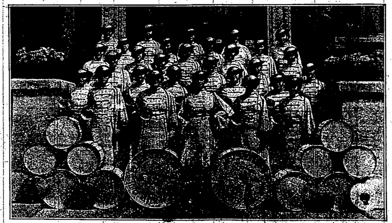
Pennington county has no regular set-up as yet, though Mr. Blake reports that about six-hundred of our farmers belong to the organization. It is expected that the officers will be chosen at the coming county convention.

Young Newfolden Man Killed by Lightning

Kenneth Bjornsrud, a young man of 25 years of age, was reported killed by lightning late Friday when his body was found near a tractor which he was driving for his brother-in-law west of Newfolden.

His body was found at about 7:30 that evening after he failed to appear at the farm home for supper. It is believed that he had been struck by a flash of lightning about two hours earlier and that death was instantaneous.

He owned and lived on a farm in Spruce Valley township, Marshall county, southwest of Middle River.



THIEF RIVER FALLS WOMEN'S DRUM CORPS

The Thief River Falls Womens' drum corps, pictured above, will leave Saturday morning for the State Legion convention at Brainerd where it will compete for state honors in Class B. The corps was re-organized last spring to full strength, 29 pieces in all, with Mrs. Emmet Wright as major. It has made much progress since and expects to compete in Class A next year. Mrs. Wright's corps at Crookston won the honor for several years in succession. The personnel: Top row—Martha Holmgren, Dorothy Erickson, Belle Hermanson, Ruth Twete, Juaneta Lynde; second row—Inga Eide, Eva Robarge, Martha Narverud, Irma Berg; third row—Myrtle McCain, Violet Midderigh, Alvina Wiltrout, Laura Johnson, Ruth Bessler; fourth row—Anna Bergstrom, Billie Long, Gertrude Cerny, Lillian Ovland, Enga Lindberg; fifth row—Jennie Peterson, Hannah Launa, Marie Caldis, Nora Nesse, Lila Hanson; sixth row—Marie Thill, Ida Fossum, Jeanette Wright Dorothy Hoel, Mick Lee.

Public Invited to Attend Drum Corps Parade

The Thief River Falls Legion Auxiliary Drum corps and the Municipal Band will appear in a joint program on the high school football field Friday evening at 7:15, according to a late announcement.

The drum corps will appear in uniform and present the complete maneuvers they have prepared for the State Legion Convention to be held at Brainerd, August 16th, 17th and 18th.

At this exhibition the corps will undergo the regular inspection and judging for drilling and playing as practiced in state competition.

This program is free to the public and it is hoped a large audience will be present.

NEW NYA SETUP IS ANNOUNCED

Marvin Benson, Local Young Man, Will Have Charge of Four Northern Counties

A reorganization of the National Youth Administration of the seventh WPA district, with regard to supervision and time-reporting, has been effected by N. A. Thorson, District Supervisor. The district has been divided into six areas with each in charge of a project supervisor.

In charge of Pennington, eastern Marshall, Roseau and Lake of the Woods Counties will be Marvin Benson, Thief River Falls.

Local co-sponsors and timekeepers have been arranged for in communities where projects are located, and they will assist the area supervisors in checking on the youths working in their vicinity.

Under the new setup, there will be seven district projects, which will include four city projects at Bemidji, Crookston, Moorhead and Fergus Falls, as well as three district-wide projects. The latter projects will provide work for youths in conservation, recreation and rural youth development. The hours of work will be 44 hours per month and the wage scale will be slightly higher than prior to July 1st.

Youths from families certified to the Works Progress Administration, and between the ages of 18 and 25 years, are eligible to work on the youth project, providing they are out of school. The high school and college student aid will be continued again this season and applies to youths from 16 to 25 years. Application for such aid should be made through the heads of the institutions to which the youth wishes to attend. It is granted to young people who cannot attend school without financial assistance.

City School Board Meets; State Aid Is Received

The board of education of School District No. 18 at its monthly meeting Monday evening appointed standing committees for the coming year, accepted the resignation of another member of the grade school faculty, voted to accept an application to fill the vacancy and awarded the contract for school printing for the year.

The board voted to accept the resignation of Miss Harriet Lamson from the position as first grade teacher in the Knox school. In her resignation, Miss Lamson did not disclose any definite plans for the coming year. To fill the vacancy created by Miss Lamson's resignation, the school board elected Miss Merle L. Bryant of Tenstrike. Miss Bryant, who is a graduate of Bemidji State Teachers' college, taught for the past two years at Bass Lake.

The following were appointed to serve on the various committees for the coming year: finance, Dr. A. M. Smith, chairman, Alfred Skarstad, and E. M. Bennes; maintenance, Ralph Woolhouse, chairman, William Douville and Dr. Smith; instruction, Mr. Skarstad, chairman, Mr. Bennes, and B. O. Norby.

The Thief River Falls Times was designated as the official newspaper of District No. 18 for the year on their low bid of fifteen cents per folio for the first insertion and ten cents per folio for subsequent insertions.

FEDERAL FUNDS WILL BE GOTTEN FOR PROPOSAL

Mayor Prichard Sends Telegram of Meeting With Roosevelt

Work Will Begin Very Soon, Report States

Five Delegates Meet With Executive and Aids, Tuesday Afternoon

A telegram was received here early Wednesday from Mayor Prichard in Washington stating that President Roosevelt has approved the Red Lake River channel project. The federal government will finance the undertaking and work will start very soon. Mr. Prichard is expected home in a few days.

Starts Ball Rolling

Mr. Zimmerman said the president agreed to "start the ball rolling" by communicating with all federal agencies concerned, an Associated Press dispatch said. The cost of the project, which involves clearing the channel of the river, has been estimated at $750,000.

Represented as willing to "move heaven and earth" to see the project brought to completion, the president got in touch with Major General Markham, chief of the army engineers, in the first step to cut red tape.

Faced Water Famine

Zimmerman said the president showed "great interest" in the proposal and expressed the hope he might be able to visit the Red Lake river later this month for a first hand picture of conditions. The president will leave Washington August 25 on his projected tour of the northwest drouth area, he announced Tuesday.

The delegation told the president the cities of Crookston, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls in Minnesota as well as East Grand Forks and Grand Forks would face a water famine in 60 days unless the project were started immediately. The cities obtain their water from the river.

Zimmerman said he understood the work would be under direction of the army engineering corps with labor provided by the works progress administration.

Meanwhile, the geological sur-

Two Local Men Elected As State Elks Officers

Two local men, Oscar C. Paulson and J. O. Yotter, were elected to offices with the Minnesota State division of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks Saturday at the final business session closing the three-day annual convention at Minneapolis.

Mr. Paulson was elected treasurer of the organization and Mr. Yotter was designated as north district deputy. Leonard Erikksen of Fergus Falls was elected president of the organization.

Other officers named were: Leo Cronin, Rochester, 1st vice-pres.; Ray Carlson, Eveleth, 2nd vice-pres.; Charles Kiesner, Owatonna, 3rd vice-pres.; and Benjamin Lien, Fergus Falls, secretary.

International Falls was named the 1937 convention city. The organization adopted a resolution to indorse a state-wide campaign of Americanization, to be conducted though the twenty-three Minnesota lodges. James G. McFarland, Watertown, S. D., past grand exalted ruler, will present a silver trophy to the lodge which distinguishes itself over a period of a year in this campaign of Americanization.

CALLING MR. WHITE'S ARGUMENT

We believe we are not the only persons who would like to ask Frank W. White a few questions in regard to his speech on Amendment No. 2 at the Farm Bureau picnic Sunday. Mr. White, the Farm Bureau state president, spoke in favor of the adoption of the amendment. Readers of the editorial page of the Forum will remember that we are very much opposed to it, as we explained last week.

Mr. White was a member of two very important committees in the legislature last winter. If the state tax on real estate was not necessary, as he said last Sunday, why did Mr. White and his committees levy the tax?

The state law or constitution does not require that the state tax be levied if not needed. But funds were needed so the tax was levied. Which bears up our contention that, with conditions being as they are, we need to levy taxes on real estate as well as other forms of property. The time may come when we do not need to levy such a tax. Then we will simply not levy any tax and we don't need any amendment to tell us so. Until that time let us not limit ourselves. We expect to keep our minds straight as yet for a while so we don't need a "straight-jacket".

NEW CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Anyone who has studied in detail the early history of our country, especially that period after the Revolutionary War when the form of our government was taking shape, cannot but have it recur to him that this is a time fully ripe for another constitutional convention, a time when the fundamentals of our idea of government should be re-asserted and embodied in a modern, up-to-date document.

Those who study the period after the struggle for independence, covering the period of about 1780 to 1790, and reviewing it with an impartial point of view, will agree that the constitutional convention that resulted from the meeting of representative persons at Annapolis, was a gathering of persons of much property who felt that their estates were not adequately protected by the government as established by the Articles of Confederation.

It is true that the form of government set up by the Articles in 1783 had a great many shortcomings, such as the lack of power to collect taxes, enforce its laws, etc., so that a stronger form of government was necessary, but at the same time when we study the ideas of the men who went to attend the convention, their property holdings, and the main trend of events at the sessions of the convention, we cannot fail but be impressed with the idea that these members of the convention were there to establish a government to potect their property rights against what was termed "tyranny of democracy". The work of the sessions was mostly done by seventeen men, all men of much means. And the chairman of the convention was none other than George Washington, the wealthiest man in the country. These men asserted they were "tired of this talk about personal done for the protection of property. liberty" and held that it was time something be

The ratification of the constitution was done in such a manner that the people as a whole didn't know exactly what was contained in the document and few realized what it actually meant to establish. A great many who were of age couldn't vote on the delegates to the state conventions because there were property qualifications to be met in several states. If you didn't have enough property you couldn't vote. In many of the speeches at the Philadelphia convention it was clearly stated that those with property must be protected against the big majority and for that reason a democratic government was ridiculed on many occasions.

While it cannot be denied that property rights should be duly considered and given some form of protection, it must be maintained that the time is past when property rights need the protection that was necessary in the colonial times. The constitution furnished the protection and served its purpose very well.

But we are not living in colonial times any longer. Property rights need not be protected from the "tyranny of democracy" as formerly. In fact, the tables have been turned to such an extent that democracy needs to be protected from the "tyranny of property rights". Special privilege has been protected so long that it entirely controls the government. It is time to curb the opposite of what was looked upon as dangerous one-hundred-fifty years ago.

For that reason, why cannot another convention to draw up a new constitution be held? We need not proceed in any manner different from that used in the days after the revolution or 1787. Let the Nation's outstanding leaders, not representing property but the majority of people meet at a stated point and draw up a constitution that protects human rights, or what is for the common good, instead of property rights. Let them draw up a document that protects from the present-day "tyranny of property" and submit it to conventions of elected delegates in each state for ratification. After a certain number, ie. thirty-six states, have ratified the new document, let the president, congress and the supreme court abdicate and the new form of government established accordingly.

If that be treason, how about the constitutional convention of 1787?

THE SOVIET MAKES CHANGE

Regardless of what a person may think of Russia and its government of today is should be enlightening to all, and encouraging as well, to read in the New York Times monthly magazine, "Current History", for August the following report:

The Soviet Government, generally branded as one of the ranking tyrannies, took a long step towards its avowed objective of a democratic socialist state.

The highlight of the new constitution is the provision for a House of Representatives, to be elected by a secret ballot, the franchise extending to all citizens, male and female, over 18 years of age. A second chamber, the House of Nationalities, is to be chosen by the Provincial Councils. The two Houses jointly are to elect the Council of Commissars, the Presidium (31 members) and the President. Judges are to be popularly elected and, together with police officials, are to be responsible to an Attorney General appointed by the House.

Although this projected political organization is similar to the British and the American models, only its operation will reveal the extent to which Russia has been democratized. There will be only one party and no opposition in the American sense; "constructive criticism" is to fulfill that function. Nevertheless, the mere act of voting insures at least a modicum of free speech and free discussion, and the airing which the new proposals have been given in the press and the Communist organizations indicate a genuine desire to propogate these principles.

It is apparent that the Soviets, confident in the belief that the national house is securely in order, feel that the time has come to loosen the restrictions on political liberty. And the announcement of the new constitution was nicely timed to woo the friendship of the democratic powers.

AN OLD GUARD SLANDER

Minnesota has always prided itself upon the character of its people. The sturdy Germans who came in the wake of Carl Schurz and the other liberals who fled the homeland after the revolution of '48, the industrious Scandinavians who settled our plains in post-Civil War days, the quick and imaginative Irish who built Southern Minnesota, to say nothing of the later Finns, Italians, Bohemians and all others who contributed to make Minnesota a great state, have always been a source of pride. We did not care what country a man came from or who his ancestors were so long as he was a man and acted like a man.

And we got along. Minnesota, thanks to the quality of its people, became one of the great states in the nation.

But apparently we have been living in a fool's paradise. Our people, who have done so much in so short a time, were from the first inferior to those in other states, particularly Kansas, if we are to believe the Emporia editor, William Allen White, one of the leading spokesmen for the Republican party in the present campaign.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post for July 18, on "Landon: I Knew Him When," Mr. White points out on page 7 that the people who settled Kansas were largely of New England stock. He goes on to say "Kansas has had practically none of the European settlers from Germany and Northern Europe to color the blood stream of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas and Nebraska. What barrier stopped them? Think back 55 years when the flood of Scandinavians and Teutons was spreading over the Middle West. It was then that Kansas adopted prohibition. Fancy a German coming to a state which denied him his beer, or a Swede or a Norwegian or a Dane settling where he could not have his liquor."

Since when, we wonder, have settlers from Germany and Northern Europe colored the blood stream of any state!

Scandinavians and Germans chose Minnesota in preference to Kansas because they knew good land when they saw it. That they came to Minnesota and adjoining states because they could drink beer and hard liquor is as slanderous a statement as has ever been made against a great people. It is on a par with the war-time statement of Theodore Christianson, now candidate for United States Senate that he could not pass through German New Ulm "without wearing a gas mask."

John D. M. Hamilton, the national Republican campaign chief, has given the Democratic national chairman, James A. Farley, an ultimatum that he is ready to make this a "dirty campaign." It is evident that he has already started, even to the extent of slandering some of the finest stock that has ever set foot on American shores.—Minnesota Leader.

IS SILENT ON WORLD PEACE

The acceptance speech delivered by Governor Landon, the Republican presidential nominee, revealed little in the way of any positive program to keep the country out of war. He accepted the 1936 platform of the Republican Party and declared that he would guide his course by that program.

The Borah-dictated foreign policy plank in the Republican platform offers little hope of any positive, constructive policy for the conduct of American foreign relations. The Republican platform has a negative viewpoint and emphasizes isolation from any program of international cooperation.

Governor Landon took pains to recite the past record of the Republican Party in the promotion of justice and peace but unfortunately, in so doing, he omitted acceptance of the World Court which, until the present campaign, had received the continuous endorsement of the Republican Party since 1899. The Governor threw no new light on the question of neutrality, armaments limitation, munitions control or war profits.

While friends of the Republican nominee concede the lack of any clear-cut policy at present, they express a hope that in future speeches he may block out a program which would be more acceptable to the liberal and peace groups in the country. Undoubtedly, at the present time, the Democratic Party program has a distinct advantage for those who are interested in a constructive peace program.

The Washington Commentator

E. C. Stengelsen

BALLYHOO

Reading the Republican press, and listening to the Party's publicity experts, one might be quite justified in believing Alf M. Landon to be E. Pluribus Unum himself.

They've built him up to a figure of such heroic stature that we're almost ready to believe he wears the same size pants as Paul Bunyan.

If he goes to Washington as the president, we confidently expect he'll perch his hat on the flagpole atop the Capitol building, and scratch his back against the top of the Washington monument.

* * * *

A year ago, nobody had heard of Alf M. Landon—except the Kansas voters. Today, he's the 'Topeka Coolidge' and the Party's presidential nominee.

And it was all done by ballyhoo.

* * * *

One remembers that back about a year or so ago, the Republican chieftains were worrying where they'd get a stooge to send into the ring against Franklin D. Roosevelt. While they knew that their man would be hit with everything, including the ring posts and the water bucket, and that he'd be put so soundly to sleep that they'd have to count him out with an adding machine, yet a candidate they had to have . . .

What, indeed, is a party without a candidate!

* * * *

And then, suddenly, their wandering gaze fell on Landon. If he hadn't sneezed at that particular moment, they might not have noticed him at all.

For a long while they considered. While he was an obviously colorless personality, at least his record seemed to be clear. Like the three monkeys, he had heard no evil, seen no evil, spoken no evil.

Of course, among themselves they probably admitted that his record was lacking in accomplishment. But that was a minor matter and didn't worry them. They'd soon fix that! Publicity would take care of it!

And then the ballyhoo began.

* * * *

Kansas had a constitutional provision prohibiting the state from incurring bonded debts. Consequently, it had nothing but current liabilities. And these it was getting in hand through such doubtful economies as slashing teachers' salaries.

Feeding the unemployed hadn't cost them anything much. The federal government had relieved them of 70 per cent of it.

It was a made-to-order situation, and they pounced on it. Landon was given credit for this financial miracle. They made him out a wizard and dubbed him 'the budget-balancing governor'.

* * * *

Thus they made him acceptable to the Liberty League and its sympathizers. For when 'money' is mentioned to those lads, they immediately become sharp-faced and eager; but talk of 'humanity', and at once they 'no spikka da English'.

But it was also necessary to present some phases of Landon which might be calculated to appeal to the millions who are unimportant all the year around except on election day. . .

So, in the same breath that they sneered at The aristocrat from Hyde Park', they began building up Landon as a man of simple tastes and homely virtues . . . a 'man of the peepul'.

They haven't quite reached the point yet where they have him going around snapping his galluses, chewing a straw and saying "By Heck!" but they probably will.

* * * *

There is one small, sour note in the Republican music which they are not quite able to drown out. Landon is an oil man. And the Republicans are touchy on the subject of oil.

But they do the best they can by stressing that he's only a small independent operator . . . a tiny, tiny, wee operator, in fact. It is even possible that he sells only in pint lots.

It isn't hard to imagine him saying sternly to the fellow who drives up and tries to wheedle him out of another pint for the old flivver.

"Not another drop! You've had enough!"

Capitol News Review

(By A. L. Harris)

The independent merchant in Minnesota is beginning to fight back. They formed a Consumers and Merchants Anti-Sales Tax League at a meeting in St. Paul on August 6. William C. Kregel, president of the St. Paul Retail Druggists Association, is president; Max Hoppenrath, a Minneapolis tobacco dealer, is secretary; and E. F. Jannssen, president of the St. Paul Retail Meat Dealers Association, is vice chairman.

The sole purpose of the organization, according to Mr. Kregel, will be to organize the merchants and consumers in Minnesota to fight a sales tax.

"We firmly believe," Mr. Kregel said, "that the establishment of a sales tax system in Minnesota will work a distinct hardship not only on every merchant in the state, but upon every consumer, every housewife, and for that matter, every man, woman and child whose circumstances force him to be interested in either the sale or purchase of the necessities of life."

Charles F. Liscomb of Duluth, chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance Agents of America, took R. W. Hitchcock, Republican propagandist from Minnesota to task for inaccuracy and unfairness in his criticisms of the State Insurance Department.

In an address at Radium Springs, Ga., Mr. Liscomb defended the questionnaire sent out by the Insurance Department to all agents recently. Mr. Hitchcock declared that the State Association of Insurance Agents had cooperated in the preparation of the questionnaire and had deemed it essential and worthy. The purpose of the questionnaire was to determine an applicant's fitness for an agent's license......

"To the very considerable annoyance of our insurance department and the disgust of the ethical agents in our state, a political columnist (Hitchcock) for a party other than the one now in power published very generally a sarcastic review most unfair and reeking with political bias," he said....

Mr. Liscomb then went on to point out the inadequacy of the funds which the state insurance department receives. He called attention to the fact that while the insurance department in Minnesota took in a total in receipts and license fees of $1,871,829 for the general revenue fund of the state, it received only $36,700 for its total budget, or 2 per cent, which is one of the lowest insurance department budgets in the entire country.

The dispite over the teaching of controversial subjects in schools goes on. At first the conservatives objected to teaching social science or economics in high schools because they were "dangerous". Lately the reactionaries have learned that these subjects are not dangerous, provided that they are taught in a "satisfactory" manner.......

Minneapolis had quite a stir-up recently over the discovery of a students' so-called Patriotic League at West High School. The League, sponsored by reactionary groups, endeavored to dictate what should and should not be taught in class rooms. To date the question in Minneapolis has remained unsettled, but, whatever the outcome, we can be sure that controversial subjects will be taught in our schools......

Harold Peterson, state chairman of the Junior Farmer Labor Association, will leave August 15 to attend the International Youth Conference to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, August 31 to September 7. The International Youth Conference, the first in the history of the world, will consider the problems of youth, particularly as they relate to war and peace.

Many persons throughout the state are wondering just how long some of the conservative dailies in the state are going to continue their tactics of soft-pedalling drouth news. There is certainly nothing to be gained by ignoring a catastrophe with such far-reaching consequences......

Reliable reports compiled by field agents and released weekly by L. P. Zimmerman, state emergency relief administrator, plainly show that the situation in many Minnesota counties is already literally hopeless, yet many of our most influential newspapers ignore these reports. It is a sad commentary on Minnesota juornalism that facts of such vital importance in the lives of many thousands of our citizens do not find a more prominent place in the news. It is certain that we cannot meet the drouth problem by ignoring it.....

A delegation from Red River Valley cities left by airplane last week for Washington to appeal directly to President Roosevelt for drouth relief. Accompanying the delegation were Conservation Commissioner E. V. Willard, and L. P. Zimmerman, state emergency relief director......

The delegation was prepared to outline to President Roosevelt the serousness of the drouth in the Red River Valley. Thief River Falls, Crookston, Grand Forks and Red Lake Falls are reported to have only 30 days' water supply left. The representatives of the area planned to ask the president to cut red tape to make available a $717,000 allotment for water conservation work.

A report of the Division of Women and Children, Minnesota Industrial Commission, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, indicates that in their efforts to secure compliance with various labor laws relating to employed women and minors, it was necessary to prosecute in criminal action in 26 cases. Of these prosecutions, 12 related to excessive hours of employment. In some cases the hours reported reached as high as 90 in one week. Illegal employment of minors in night clubs resulted in 9 prosecutions. Each case resulted in a conviction.

The first REA rural electrification project in Minnesota is under way in Meeker county. Launched by the Meeker County Cooperative Electrical Association, the project will ultimately have 420 miles of electric lines, serving 1600 rural homes. The Meeker County project will get its first power from the city of Litchfield......

This project will provide employment for several men at present and will provide cheap electric power to the farmers benefiting. The federal and state governments are cooperating in the project.

"Down the Blue Danube"

"Down the Blue Danube to the Ukraine" seems to be Hitler's latest song. His recent maneuvers in Austria, which are a direct right-about-face to his previous tactics, seem to show that he is courting favor there. It can mean but one thing—Hitler wants to use Austria in his expansion eastward.

By his occupation of the Rhineland, Hitler sought to check France, in the event he should declare war on Russia (which would almost be necessary if he wanted the Ukraine). The game is as plain as day.

Interest Centers on Spain

No matter what Hitler or Mussolini does, the world will continue to watch Spain with increasing interest. Many consider Spain to be the danger point now. Events near Gibralter promised to start another war,even yet the situation holds terrifying possibilities.

The cheering feature of the whole thing is the solidarity displayed by the Spanish people. They have put down their petty differences and united to fight the common enemy—the fascists. It is rumored that Rome is attempting to make a religious fight of it. The plain truth is that the workers and peasants of Spain are revolting against their oppressors—the landlords and profiteers.

There is every chance that Spain will erect a strong people's government, modeled on that set up in France. With a continued united front and the determination to defend that front with bloodshed if necessary, Spain will arise as a factor in European affairs once more. That is why European diplomats are watching her experience with bated breath.

The Decay of Craft Unionism

Now that bigshot William Green has given Lewis an ultimatum to abandon his campaign to organize the steel workers, or suffer ostracism, the issue between trade unionism and industrial unionism is more timely than ever.

Green stands for an outmoded form of organization, to say the least. In the days when craft or trade unions were formed, the craftsmen lovingly went through the various processes of his work with the spirit of an artist who was creating something. At the end of the day he frequently did not have much to show for his work, but what he did have was real handicraft.

Then the industrial revolution came. Automatic machines displaced men by the score—by the hundreds—by the thousands. The more displacement there was, the less a workman could stand around and admire his work, putting on those finishing touches that added to its appearance, durability, and value. The machine was supposed to do all this—the man was supposed to tend the machine.

William Z. Foster tells of "Micromotion Study" made by General Electric, a plan which measures a worker's speed to the two-thousandth of a minute. Here's a sample study of a man putting studs into a plate and swaging them. Time is in minutes:

".0155 Gets plate and carries it to meet stud.

".0650 Holds plate while right hand screws in stud.

".0280 Places the assembly in die.

".0120 Trips the press.

".0335 Removes finished piece and drops it in box at left.

"Entire Job completed 154-1000th of a minute, but the speed-up experts found that the man's right hand was idle 755-1000ths of a minute, while the left hand was doing the above, so they 're-educated' the worker in the use of his hands so he could screw a stud onto a plate, while his left hand was busy on the above motions."

Thus it is shown that man has become only a cog in an industry, and that as a craftsman he is no more. What would you call a cog in a machine? And if one were able to classify a worker thus, how would you achieve much bargaining power if, every time a craft decided to strike, the bosses would introduce a new machine that would again break up the craft lines?

The implication is obvious. Craft unionism is out-of-date, a horse-and-buggy method of coping with the situation. Industrial unionism—where all the workers in a factory, or in a string of factories, are united into one fighting unit. That is John L. Lewis' stand, and it is safe to say that he will go down fighting in defense of that plan.

Green may oust the industrial unionists, but by doing so he will sign the death warrant for his craft unions. The reason is obvious—all the vitality of the labor movement is centered in industrial unionism; Green's outfit will die of inanition.

Straws Tell Which Way Wind Blows

Which of the candidates will get the highly important small-town and rural vote? Which candidates dates will get these votes in the majority of states throughout the nation?

These are questions, the answers to which will no doubt play an important part in the final national returns next November. Upon the choice of the small-town and rural America voters may rest the balance of power to swing the election for the successful candidate.

Reports from throughout the country indicate that voters everywhere are manifesting exceptionally keen interest in the political campaign now well under way. All signs point to a closely contested election.

It is therefore of especial interest at this time that the publishers of weekly newspapers throughout the country have launched a nation wide presidential straw vote, to learn "which way the wind is blowing" with the small town and rural American voters.

In Nation Wide Poll

The Forum has joined in with these weekly newspapers and will conduct the vote in this territory. A straw vote ballot is published in this issue. It may be voted by any legal voter. You do not have to sign your name. It is important, however, that you sign the name of the town and state from which you expect to cast your vote at the November election, so that the national tabulation of your vote will be accurately recorded.

Publishers Autocaster Service of New York, producers of a service for weekly newspapers, is to serve in the capacity of national headquarters for this nation wide vote. Your local vote will be first recorded here in Thief River Falls then the ballot sent on to New York for national tabulation.

Our Votes Are Important

Our local, county and state returns in this straw vote will be of particular interest to voters everywhere, just as returns from other states will be of interest to the voters here. It is only thru combined efforts of hundreds of weekly newspapers that such a record of sentiment in the small towns and rural America can be obtained.

It is therefore important that you decide now to cast your straw vote in this balloting, so that your fellow voters for your favorite candidate in other states will know what may be expected from Minnesota.

Of first interest, of course, will be the returns shown in our choices right here. Decide now to cast your vote. Clip out the ballot, vote it, write in the name of the town and state, then mail or bring it to the Forum.

Returns Each Week

Returns in the local voting will be published in these columns each week as the voting progresses. National returns will also be published as soon as they are available, first releases of which should be forthcoming weekly within the next ten days or two weeks.

Let's get the ball rolling here by clipping out the ballot below, voting it and sending it in to this office at once.

Which of the Presidential candidates is going to get an early lead in the first votes cast here in Thief River Falls.

POSTCARD MAILED AFTER 27 YEARS

While looking over an abandoned lumber camp, Bill Strom of Spooner found a postcard dated 1909, which had been mailed from Swift to Cavalier, North Dakota. For 27 years the postcard had lain in the camp, forgotten after its journey had just started. This week the card is arriving at its destination, bringing back memories to the receiver.

STRAW VOTE BALLOT

Nation-Wide Vote for PRESIDENT

THIS Straw-Vote is being conducted by co-operating weekly newspapers located in states throughout the nation to show pre-election sentiment of small town and rural America in their choice for President for the next four years.

TO VOTE:

Mark a cross X in the square before the name of the candidate you prefer.

Group or club voting is NOT allowed. . . . Only single individual votes will be counted.

A voter need not sign his or her name, but to assist in national tabulation please fill in name of town and state, below.

Vote for one only of these candidates

☐ ROOSEVELT (Democratic)

☐ LANDON (Republican)

☐ LEMKE (Union)

☐ THOMAS (Socialist)

☐ COLVIN (Prohibition)

☐ BROWDER (Communist)

Lemke Predicts House Will Elect Next President

Father Coughlin contends the new Union party will win enough electoral votes to prevent either President Roosevelt or Governor Landon from getting the required majority, and will elect enough members of the house to give the presidency to its candidate, Rep. William Lemke.

Under the constitution, the election devolves upon the house if no candidate receives a majority of all the electoral votes, which is 266. Three times in the past congress has taken a hand in choosing a president.

Neither Democratic nor Republican leaders have conceded electoral votes to the Union party.

The constitution provides that, when a presidential election is thrown into the house, the vote be taken by states, each state having one vote. How a state votes is determined by a majority of representatives.

While congress has ironed out difficulties in three presidential elections, there has been only one election in which the same conditions prevailed as those outlined by Father Coughlin.

That was in 1824 when none of the four candidates had a majority of the electoral votes. When congress canvassed the returns it was found that Andrew Jackson had 99 votes, John Quincy Adams, 84, William H. Crawford 41 and Henry Clay 37. A total of 131 was needed for election.

The house then proceeded to choose the new president from the three candidates receiving the largest vote. The vote was Adams, 13 states; Jackson, seven, and Crawford, four.

John C. Calhoun had been elected vice president with 182 electoral votes.

The house had been called upon once before to determine the outcome of an election. This was in 1800 when the constitution provided that the candidate having the largest vote should be president and the one with the second largest should be vice president.

When the votes were canvassed it was found that Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr each had 73 votes, which was a majority. The question was to determine which candidate should be president.

After 36 ballots had been cast on six separate days, Jefferson was elected. Representatives of 10 of the 16 states voted for him. Of the other six, four voted for Burr and two did not vote.

The twelfth amendment was adopted in 1801 providing that the voters elect the vice president as such instead of giving the office to a runner up in the presidential election.

In 1876 congress was again called upon to determine who was elected president. In this instance, however, both houses acted and not the house of representatives alone as in the earlier cases.

The electoral votes of four states Louisiana, Florida, South Carolina and Oregon, were claimed both by Rutherford B. Hayes and Samuel J. Tilden. Without these states neither candidate had a majority. Tilden had 184, which was three less than the number needed, and Hayes had 166.

Congress decided to set up an electoral commission to determine who should get the votes from the four disputed states. The commission was to be made up of five senators, five representatives and five justices of the supreme court.

The ten members of congress were equally divided as to party, five Republicans and five Democrats. Four justices, two Republicans and two Democrats, were named and asked to choose the fifth. The man they chose was a Republican, giving the commission eight Republicans and seven Democrats.

Voting separately on the four states, the commission by an eight to seven vote, decided each should go to Hayes. This gave him the election.

In 1837, when Martin Van Buren was elected president, none of the candidates for vice president had a majority. The two leading candidates were Richard M. Johnson and Francis Granger. The question went before the senate, as the constitution stipulates, and Johnson was elected 33 to 16.

LINDBERGH IN GERMANY

The aviator on his arrival at Berlin to inspect the Reich's developments in aviation.

POISONED LIVESTOCK FOOD IN DROUTH AREA

A warning that drouth converts certain green vegetation into poison deadly to animals was issued Friday by the department of agriculture.

Experts said that livestock in drouth areas must be kept out of the drouth-resisting green fields of sudan grass, cane or any kind of grain sorghum.

In ordinary years these green crops are safe for pasture but when their growth is stunted by dry weather, deadly doses of acids—hydrocyanic or prussic—result.

It was explained that when the drouth interferes with the growth of these plants a chemical reaction results. Two harmless substances, a glucoside and an enzyme, react to form the poison.

These same crops are safe for feeding when they have been cut and cured, experts said.

Green tops of potatoes, green and sprouting potatoes, green tomato vines and some other plants also are likely to be poisonous, it was said.

The experts pointed out that even in years of normal rainfall the stockmen whose herds graze unfenced ranges of the west lose from 3 to 5 per cent of their animals from plant poisoning.

In drouth years, they said all animals are ravenous for green feed of any kind and often eat large quantities of poisonous plants even though many are unpalatable.

At a quiet service read by Reverend E. W. Bauman of Mavie Sunday, Miss Clarisse Travillion, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Wilson of this city, and Carl Kollitz of Minneapolis were married. They were attended by Miss Gertrude Bakke of this city and John Linneman of Brainerd, Minn. A reception for the bride and groom was held in the Log Cabin Tavern of the Palm Garden Cafe immediately following the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Kollitz left on a motor trip through Northern Minnesota. They will reside in this city.

GLADYS NORBY AND THOMAS SCANLON WED IN ST. PAUL

Miss Gladys Norby and Thomas Scanlon, both of this city, were married in St. Paul at a late afternoon ceremony Saturday, August 8. The vows were spoken at the parsonage of a St. Paul Lutheran parish, Reverend Borg of St. Paul reading the service. After spending the week end in the Twin Cities, Mr. and Mrs. Scanlon returned to this city, where they will reside. Both are employed with the Jung's Bakery here.

FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Grace Sandum, whose marriage to W. B. Kost of Brainerd will be an event of this month, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at the Severn Brandon home in this city. Hostesses were Miss Verna Brandon, Miss Martha Ristau, and Mrs. Stuart McLeod. The evening was spent in informal fashion, games were played and recipes were written and presented to the bride-to-be. A two-course luncheon was served to the guests seated at a long dining table in a room festooned with pink and white streamers. The pink and white color scheme was further carried out in the various table decorations. A miniature bride and groom place card designated each guests place at the table. Following the luncheon, the various shower gifts were presented to Miss Sandum. Present were the Misses Grace Sandum, honor guest, Ruth Bredeson, Helen Wassgren Adeline Lindberg, Theone Falkedahl, Margaret Dillion, Fern Barnett, Bernice Berge, Margaret Stadum, Helene Ristau, Lillian Erickson, Monica Weiner, Ruth Sandum, and Lorraine Rayson of St. Paul; and the Mesdames Gilbert Sandum, Gust Ristau, and Severn Brandon.

TWO BANKRUPT PARTIES

The managers of both the Democratic and Republican parties so far seem to be admitting there is no real difference between them, so they keep up a discussion about characteristics of their candidates. Landon is such a wonderfully "practical" and "plain" citizen, and the World's Champion Budget Balancer. Roosevelt has such a wonderful "big heart", and such unlimited "courage".

Landon may be a very plain, democratic personality, and willing and able to balance budgets at the cost of starvation for the poor, but when he talks "gold standard" he shows that he is a couple of thousand of years behind times in his money theory.

Roosevelt did not show a big heart when he demanded Congress pass "the Economy Act" for his "Economy League" about the first thing, thus cutting pensions of ex-service men in two and robbing them of hospitalization. Hoover with his gassing of the Bonus Army had but very little on Roosevelt so far as his love for the veterans is concerned.

Let us show these old parties that they cannot forever fool us by voting for the Union Party. Lemke talks principles.

FOR BERENICE LOFTNESS

Miss Berenice Loftness, a bride-to-be of this month, was feted at a shower Wednesday evening at the home of her parents. Hostesses were Mrs. Theodore Hornseth and Miss Palma Hornseth. The guest list included the following names: the Misses Berenice Loftness, guest of honor, Thora Skomdahl, Emma Skomdahl, Alice Jorde, Edna Jorde, Alice Austinson, Ella Jorde, Elvina Loftness, Palma Hornseth, Berenice Knutson, Rosine Dahlen, Viola Loftness, Elizabeth Dahlen, Selma Knutson, Norma Torgerson, Nordling, and Evelyn Helgenset; and the Mesdames Carl Olson, Paul Olstad, Harry Knutson, Halvor Halvorson, Sannes, Carl Jorde, Edwin Olson, Hayes, Andrew Jorde, Albert Olson, Austinson, Theodore Hornseth, Martin Eells, H. S. Dahlen, Russell Mahoney, Hattie Torgerson, Henry Kausagen, G. Knutson and Earnest Ballingrude. The evening was spent informally and refreshments were served. Gifts were presented to the honor guest by those present.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Relatives and friends of Miss Elvina Loftness entertained for her at her home Sunday evening, the affair being in the nature of a surprise birthday party. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Franson and daughter Maxine of Karlstad, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hornseth and daughter Beverly Ann, Miss Palma Hornseth, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Eells, Mrs. J. H. Sannes, Miss Selma Knutson, Miss Berenice Knutson, Hilmer and Gilfred Sannes.

27 HOME LOANS MADE IN COUNTY SINCE 1933

Residents of Pennington County received a total of $83,919 from the Home Owner's Loan Corporation during the three year period of refinancing operations which terminated June 13, 1936, according to the fisal figures furnished by Anna Dickie Olesen, State Director for the National Emergency Council. This sum represented 27 individual loans.

A total of 21,032 distressed home owners in Minnesota were extended aid in the sum of $47,975,319. Of this money it is estimated that $3,891,000 went toward the payment of taxes and assessmests, the estimated average of tax assessment payment per loan in Minnesota being $185.00.

According to the 1930 United States Census reports there were 227,336 of owned non-farm homes in Minnesota. The Home Owners' Loan Corporation refinanced mortgages on 9.3 per cent of this number.

The total number of loans made in all states, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and Alaska was 1,021,817, involving the sum of $3,092,870,784, making the average loan $3,027.

More than 98 per cent of all money involved went for the refinancing of distressed homes by means of long-term replacement mortgages which are to be authorized fully over the term of the loan in small monthly payments. The ballance of the money advanced went for the restoration and conditioning of properties.

It is estimated that $228,453,000 of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation advances went to the tax offices of the nation, with the national average tax payment per loan being $224.

COUNTY REAPS $38,655 FROM NEW DEAL PLAN

Pennington County has received $38,655.14 in Rental and Benefit payments in the three years since the creation of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, covering the period May 12, 1933 through May 31, 1936, according to information received by Anna Dickie Olesen, State Director of the National Emergency Council.

Rental and Benefit payments in Pennington County for the wheat program totaled $27,272.61; corn-hog $11,382.53.

Rental and Benefit payments in Minnesota amounted to $35,824,698.13 for the three year period. $3,007,594,13 of this amount was paid during the first five months of 1936.

Wheat Rental and Benefit payments made aggregated $5,373,134.68; tobacco $95,382.37; corn-hog $29,361,482.78; sugar $994,698.30.

City School Board Meets; State Aid Is Received

The present janitors of the various school buildings were reappointed to serve for another year. The following bus drivers were appointed: Alfred Poppenhagen, routes two and three; J. H. Sande, route four; Neary Louze, route five. No bus driver was appointed for route one.

Mr. Fossum's bid for installation of the hot water tank in the Lincoln building and a hot water tank and hot water piping in Northrop building was accepted. The Union State Bank and the Northern State Bank were designated as depositories.

Of local interest is the announcement received by the board Monday evening that $48 per month of federal funds has been allotted to the school district to aid needy high school pupils. To be eligible students must be between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five years, preference is given to students from relief families. Application for aid should be made to the superintendent of schools on regular forms provided by NYA. Applications will be forwarded to the National Youth Administration office for approval. Each student may earn a maximum of six dollars per month on work assignments, such as assisting school nurse with the health records, taking care of laboratory and gymnasium equipment, etc., at the rate of thirty cents per hour.

Announcement was also made at the meeting Monday evening that the county treasurer, Mr. Gullingsrud, has received a check for the amount of Pennington County's share of the July distributios of the 1935 income returns. The amount received was $5719.50, it being allotted at the rate of $6.15 per pupil of compulsory school age the number of pupils between the ages of eight and sixteen years in this district totalling 930. The amount received this year was considerably more than that of previous years. In 1934 the amount received from this source was $2187.50 and in 1935 $4485.00.

The law provides that the money received from income tax returns be used to pay off school indebtedness outstanding on January 1, 1933, and incurred since that date, or it should be used to cover current expenses.

MIDDLE RIVER

John J. Ascila, of Duluth is here attending to the rebuilding of the sidewalk in front of his business house which houses the Carlson store and the postoffice.

Friday evening's storm was alarmingly close to being a cyclone in Middle River. Five window panes were smashed in the West Hotel, three of them in the enclosed lower porch windows and two in the upstairs windows, which let in some rain in the sleeping rooms. Luckily, Mr. Rostad had just finished up the reshingling of the roof else the whole upper floor would have been badly flooded.

The six foot board wall which extends from the rear of the hotel to the alley was laid flat and the roof of Mr. Rostad's small cowbarn was carried about 100 feet and deposited in the garden. Many farmers in this section report minor damages. The historic spruce grove at the A. B. Isaacson farm, three miles up the ridge, was badly damaged. Several of the large trees were torn out by the roots and laid across the road, thus blocking traffic at that point for the time being.

Middle River lost another ball game Sunday, Gatzke winning 7 to 5. It was another case like that of the previous game, the locals playing with less than half their regular lineup.

Harold Johnson and family Sundayed at Detroit Lakes.

Another bunch of sheep were shipped in here from North Dakoto Friday and driven east of town for pasturage. This makes 5,000 head that have been brought to Middle River for pasturage.

The repainting of the fronts of the hotel, the Carlson and AscIala buildings, and Rem's Place have brightened up the appearance of the business street.

Rev. A. J. Stortroen and family of Mahnomen, and Mrs. Boe, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. A. O. Buringsrud of Thief River Falls, were the guests of Miss Marie Phillipson on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Nordine were hastily summoned Friday morning to the bedside of the dying mother of Mrs. Nordine at Lancaster. However, they were unable to reach her before she passed away at 6:30 A. M. She was 66 years old and had been in very poor health for a long time. The funeral took place Sunday, interment at Lancaster.

Mrs. Wright has been visiting with the Hans Olson family at Viking since the first of last week.

Ed Henning had to be taken out of the ball game Sunday in the second inning on account of receiving a painful spike wound in his leg below the knee. He is still using two crutches to get around while a substitute driver has been provided for his oil truck.

Johnnie Waltonen is another ball player that was incapacitated for playing in last Sunday's game. He received a bad burn last week from attempting to stamp out a lighted match burning on top of some gasoline in a shallow pan in Shenkey's road camp. His pants leg caught fire and before the blaze was smothered out his leg was severely burned.

The village dads have installed slow up signs on the various street crossings.

Mr. and Mrs. Westberg will move to their new home at Eyota next Thursday.

Mrs. Risberg's oldest son whose home is in Thief River Falls, is visiting at the Risberg dining car here this week.

Married—Stella Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook, of Middle River to Theo T. Boese, of St. Cloud. The wedding took place at the Lutheran parsonage at Middle River, Rev. Trelstad officiating. The attendants were Miss Vera Cook, sister of the bride and Harry Heinz. The newlyweds left immediately for St. Cloud, where the groom operates a farm.

Mrs. Harry Heinz and children and Elvera Radke of St. Cloud, Doris Harleman of Crookston and Mrs. Gunderson of Crookston were out of town guests at the shower given Miss Stella Cook on Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Philip Anderson has been visiting Middle River friends for several days while Mr. Anderson is employed in this territory on a land checking up job for the Rural Credit Department.

Reports coming from extreme eastern Marshall and western Beltrami counties are to the effect that there are hundreds of acres of good grain yields on the burnout of that section. And, the best of it is, the farmers were at no expense of seeding as the crops are volunteer from the uncut crops of last year.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook was the scene of a very pleasant gathering on Thursday afternoon of last week when some sixty friends and neighbors honored Miss Stella Cook with a surprise shower in honor of her approaching marriage with Theo. T. Boese, of St. Cloud. The diversion of the ladies were quilting and informal visiting. A delicious luncheon was served in picnic style. Miss Cook, the bride-to-be, was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Olson Brothers report the threshing of a large field of volunteer rye which while not a big crop, turned out very satisfactory for this year. They also report having threshed some oats that yielded 35 bushels per acre, altho the oat crop taken all together is very poor.

Shortage of Corn and Feed May Bring Crisis

With oats forecast at about 772,000,000 bushels, barley at 145,000,000 and grain sorghums at 81,000,000—all very light crops—total production of the four feed grains, including corn, was expected to total about 58,000,000 tons. This would be about eight per cent more than the final harvest of 1934, but about 31 per cent less than in any other recent year.

Coincident with publication of the crop report, drouth relief officials added 30 more counties in seven states to the emergency drouth territory, bringing the national total to date to 920 counties in 22 states.

Commenting on Monday's crop report, G. A. Collier, government feed expert, said it showed prospective 1936 corn supplies at about a "stand-off" with those of 1934 when this country imported approximately 40,000,000 bushels.

"It should not be necessary," he said, "to import more corn than we did the season following the 1934 drouth because of a more favorable ration between feed units and livestock numbers."

See U. S. Seed Aid

Members of the AAA drouth cattle committee said it was not likely that the corn forecast would lead to increased government cattle purchases.

They added, however, it probably would revive plans for government aid in providing seed corn.

Durum wheat production is indicated as 9,031,000 bushels, compared with 9,610,000 a month ago, and 22,957,000 produced last year.

All other spring wheat is indicated as 104,617,000 bushels, compared with 116,704,000 a month ago, and 136,284,000 produced last year.

The oats crop is indicated as 771,703,000 bushels, compared with 805,420,000 a month ago and 1,196,668,000 produced last year.

Harvest Time!

The Scriptures say:
"Whatever a Man Soweth, that Shall He Also Reap."

THIS is true in more than one respect. It not only pertains to the harvest in the fields, but also to the mind and even the body.

If you have always taken proper care of your body, you will reap a rich harvest in good health. If you have good health, preserve it; if you have partially lost it, regain it.

To assist nature in her corrective work, one should make the proper use of a good, reliable, and effective family medicine. DR. PETER'S KURIKO.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Evans' advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is indicted.

CHAPTER VI.—Barry learns Mrs. Kelly had been told of a phone call to Kelly from one Betty Barclay, named in her divorce proceedings against Kelly, and had gone wild. The Duke receives the $2,000 from his "mother." A taxi driver answers the ad. He identifies a singular passenger he had had on the night of the murder as Hambidge. Barry tells Pat what he has discovered. The judge had seen Kelly after Rogers had been there. Barry insists the judge tell the truth to free Rogers, or he will. Pat threatens to expose him as a thief. Barry tells Pat he loves her. The judge admits quarreling with Kelly and that Kelly was dead when he left.

CHAPTER VII.—Judge Hambidge further reveals that Kelly threatened him with something he had in his pocket, and ordered him from the house when Hambidge refused to favor Kelly in the suit. Before the judge left, some one struck down Kelly. Barry suspects Mrs. Kelly.

"Just a gorilla," Morano said of the Big Boss, the next night, when Barry returned to the Cocoanut Bar.

"Oh, Mike was a' right," Miss Fane protested.

"Sure!" her employer agreed. "He wouldn't do nothing worse than steal pennies from a dead baby. Pal of Vi's though," Luis added, winking at Barry.

"Yeh," Violet declared, dryly; "until that Barclay dame came along."

"He was in here that evening, wasn't he?" Barry asked.

"Yeh. Just a few hours before they croaked him."

"He had a girl pinched, or something?"

"Yeh," Morano repeated. "Nice kid, too. Took her around to the station in them things."

"I don't blame the Jane's husband for getting sore," Morano continued, "though bumping a guy off for that's going a little too far."

"Kelly was soused," Miss Fane said.

"Yeh. Plenty. And he thought the kid was pickin' his pocket. Nothin' to it."

"Wasting my time," Barry told Harwood, the next morning, in the city editor's busy office at The Globe. "My time, and nearly a hundred dollars of the paper's money. Winslow had it straight. The Fane girl was strutting her stuff from one o'clock until long after the murder."

"Well, it's good to be sure."

"Yes, and I'm mighty sure now. Every step I've taken since our last meeting leads right up to Mrs. Kelly."

Harwood looked at him quizzically.

"Step No. 1?" he asked.

"My advertisement offering a reward for the number of the cab that killed that artist's wife."

"You don't mean that you got it?"

Triumphantly, Barry opened his note book.

"There it is," he said. "O26017. The figures under it are the number of the driver who gave me the information."

Ernie Copied Both Numbers.

Ernie copied both numbers.

"Swell work," he commented. "Anything else?"

"Lots. This fellow had a passenger who got out at Twenty-third street around midnight. When the woman was killed—two hours later—the driver bumped into him again in Sixteenth street, very much rattled, and looking as though he'd committed a murder."

"Any description?"

"Rather a vague one. That doesn't matter. I'm sure, in my own mind, that this passenger was the caller Kelly expected, and that he wasn't the murderer. I'm equally sure that he knew murder had been committed."

"Lets call it a mere supposition. In that case, Kelly was killed around two o'clock. At two o'clock, Mrs. Kelly wasn't in Harlem."

"How do you know that?"

Barry's answer was a full report of his adventures of Saturday. "Without Step No. 1, Step No. 2 means nothing. In other words, if Kelly'd been killed at midnight—which is the theory every one's worked on—Mrs. Kelly's alibi would have been holeproof."

Harwood joined his finger-tips in an almost prayerful gesture. "I wish we could find the guy who looked 'as though he'd committed a murder.'"

Barry made no reply.

"That's always the trouble," the city editor went on. "What kind of a skate is this Luis Morano? Tough?"

"On the contrary. Cries over a mammy song."

"There's a heap of 'em do," Harwood philosophized.

"He's a Southerner, with a soft voice, and a funny impediment in his speech?"

"That so?" Harwood inquired. "Where is this Cocoanut Bar?"

Barry told him, and promptly returned to Mrs. Kelly. "How the deuce are we going to prove what she did after she got home?"

"That's up to you," Ernie said. "I'm off on a new tack now." His eyes twinkled. "One that would go a long way toward establishing your theory of coincidence. Gosh, I'd give my new uppers to break this story within the next week or two."

Thursday evening, Barry spent in his room, mostly thinking. He had telephoned Pat twice since their luncheon together, and found her enthusiastic over her guests. "There's nothing wrong with the boy," she declared; "nothing that a few weeks out here won't cure. He's on the beach now, with his mother."

Judge Hambidge had taken to the little fellow at once. Almost like having a grandchild. It kept his mind off his worries. And no one could see Peggy, being brave, but always staring at nothing, always thinking of what might happen, without pity that warmed into affection. "She's really an awfully good sort," Pat said, from Southampton. "I like her a lot. When are you coming out?"

"Tomorrow, I hope."

"Well, we'll expect you for dinner."

That breach was healed, all right. Pat had called him "the scum of the earth." In the same hour, he remembered again, he had told her he loved her. As to that, she still maintained silence. "That's the kindest thing she could do," Barry thought. "A Judge's daughter, and I—"

Barry had learned not to think of the future. "Nor heed the rumble of a distant drum," as his own father had put it. Just for now, it was pleasant to be somebody who knew Pat—and he wanted to take that awful look out of the other girl's eyes. "That oughtn't to be hard now," Barry thought. "If I could get that Filipino to talk. He knows when Mrs. Kelly came home, and he's probably got a darned good idea what she did afterward. If we could get to that Oriental—"

At which point, Evans came, and he had been drinking.

"Sorry, sir," he apologized, taking the nearest chair. Evans had none of Willetts' compunctions. "Sorry, sir, but I've been having dinner with Kelly's chauffeur."

"Liquid nourishment?"

"Yes, sir," Evans admitted, sheepishly. "But that was the only chance I had with that Irishman."

"Well?"

"Well, I drove Miss Hambidge, and Mrs. Rogers, and the boy to Southampton, like you said. And I started back today. It was nearly eight when I made the garage, and I was good and hungry.

"There's a decent cafe a few yards away. Nolan—that's Kelly's chauffeur—was sitting at a table, with a load he ought to've gone twice for."

Evans smiled.

"Ed had a grouch on women in general. And he was chowed plenty. I hadn't been with him long when he opened up on Mrs. Kelly. There's something queer between her and this Filipino, he says."

"Charlie?"

"That isn't his name, but let it go at that. And, when Ed said 'queer,' he didn't mean anything wrong. Just some kind of an understanding. Mrs. Kelly's been giving the Chink coin and jewelry, regular. Charlie showed him some of it, Ed says.

"Well, the night of the murder Noland drives Kelly to the Cocoanut Bar. And home—at nine o'clock. When he gets out at his house, Kelly says, 'Put the car in the garage. Mrs. Kelly's gone up to Harlem, and I won't need you 'til tomorrow morning.'

"Ed obeys orders. He goes back to Kelly's, and sits in the kitchen. This Chink is in the butler's pantry getting a tray ready. And, while the two of 'em are down there, the damnedest row starts upstairs—"

"Rogers and Kelly."

"No. This was around nine o'clock. Mrs. Kelly. She was laying Mike out so you could have heard it a block. Well, this goes on for ten or fifteen minutes, and then the bell from the parlor rings. Charlie starts upstairs with the tray. He gets up two steps, when Kelly appears at the head of the flight. 'Come up here, you lousy spy. Come up here while I tell you where you get off!'

"Charley sets down the tray, and goes. Nolan follows into the pantry, and has a stiff drink. Then he sits down again, and listens to Kelly laying out the Chink."

"Could he hear anything? Words, I mean?"

"No. Just Kelly's voice. Mrs. Kelly was out of it. She'd gone to her room, Nolan thinks. But Kelly made noise enough for two. And, after another ten minutes or so, Charlie comes back.

"'I'm fired,' Charlie says—in the Chink lingo. 'I got to get out. That blankety-blank told me to go quick, or he'd kill me.'

"'Are you going?' Nolan asks.

"'Sure,' the Chink says. 'I got to get my money first. He chased me out of the room when I asked for it, but I'm going back,' the Chink says.

"Nolan then took the cook to a movie, and when they got back, everything's quiet. It's after midnight, because these two walked home. Kelly's upstairs, talking to somebody, and the Chink's in his room, packing and muttering to himself something frightful. So Nolan says good night to the cook, who goes into her room, and then Nolan slips into the pantry, and takes another shot of that hootch."

"What hootch?"

"The rye whiskey I was telling you about."

Barry sprang from his chair.

"The rye whiskey?"

"Sure. And it was in a cut-glass decanter."

"Are you certain?"

"Nolan is. And he's just as certain that it was still in the pantry when the guy upstairs left."

"Why?"

"Because he heard the front door close ten seconds before he went out the back way."

"Gosh!" Barry exclaimed. "That puts it up to Mrs. Kelly all right."

Evans shook his head, drunkenly.

"Mrs. Kelly wasn't home," he said. "She went to her sister's after the high-jinks in Harlem, and Nolan got her there the next morning, before they called the police. There were only three people in that house after the guy went who was visiting Kelly—Kelly himself, cook, and a mighty mad Chinaman."

"Filipino."

"Whatever he was, he was mad, and the decanter that killed Kelly was downstairs with him until just about the time Kelly was killed."

"Thanks," Barry nodded. "I think we've got something."

"Oh, I forgot to give you this. It came—to Southampton—just as I was leaving," said Evans.

"This" was a cablegram. Alone, in the smoke-filled room, Barry opened it. Nine words. "Father and I sailing for home Sunday. Love. Mother."

For an instant, he stood, frozen, the wire in his hand.

Directly before him, an evening newspaper lay open on the table.

"'Out-going passenger and mail ships,'" he read. "'Sailing tomorrow—Steamship Oranje Nassau. For Port-au-Prince, La Guayra, Curacoa, Maracaibo, Carupano, and Pampatar.' I'm on my way to one of 'em tomorrow!"

CHAPTER IX

BARRY'S panic was short-lived. Between him and the sailing list had come a vision of Peggy, with beaded lashes screening eyes forever staring at nothing.

"I can't do it," he said to himself. "I can't run away and leave that girl in the lurch. Nor Pat either. I've tackled this job, and I've got to go through with it.

"Anyway, it begins to look as though the end were in sight. If Ridder sails Sunday—"

He went back to the shipping news.

"If Ridder sails Sunday, that's the Bremen and she's due here the following Saturday. That gives us eight days. I'd better see Winslow."

He called Peter next morning, but the attorney was out in the country. "Left last night," his secretary reported, "and won't be back until Monday."

Barry had a dinner engagement at Southampton. "We'll start things humming on Monday," Barry told himself. "I've got my house to put in order, too. Ridder's house, that is."

Evans telephoned around ten, and before noon they were on their way to Southampton. "My last week-end with Pat," he was thinking. "Where'll I be next Saturday? Out of luck, and out of a job. In jail, maybe, and in the newspapers. That's my finish with—everybody."

There was a new atmosphere at the Hambidge's. Pat had been right in telling Jacky that he'd "cheer my father up a lot." "They're building a railway on the beach," she laughed, when the boy—sunburned, and active—joined them before dinner.

"You must go to bed now," Pat bade him, "if we're to take our ride in the morning. We have a canter every day before breakfast," she added to Barry, ringing for a maid to take charge of the youngster. "I discovered the dearest little pony in the village, and the man brings it over at nine o'clock, with another horse for me. Jacky's getting to be a regular Buffalo Bill."

The strained expression of a week ago was beginning to disappear from the face of Judge Hambidge. But the greatest difference was in the boy's mother. Naturally imitative, as Barry had remarked, she had been quick to observe and emulate Pat's moderation with make-up. Her speech, too, had lost all but an occasional inadvertent reference to "guys" and "dames." She had stopped staring into space. "What's the news about Jack?" she asked, quite calmly.

"Free next week," Barry declared ringingly.

At the dinner table, in spite of herself, Peg caught some of the contagion of Barry's new confidence. Nolan's story sounded like the solution of everything, they agreed. "We've got to get Jack out before Saturday," Barry said. "His father'll be home then."

Both women looked up at him.

"What'll happen to you?" Peggy asked.

"The main question," Barry urged, "is what's going to happen to Peg. And Jack. And Jacky."

"We'll meet that when it comes," Peggy returned, steadily. "But now I'm worried about you."

She excused herself early, with the plain purpose of leaving Barry with Pat. But the Judge stayed on. His legally trained mind had been busy with the Nolan disclosures.

"If Mrs. Kelly slept at her sister's, why didn't she say so to you? It would've been her best alibi."

"Yes, but it would have involved admitting that she'd had a run-in with Kelly."

was revealed last week. Federal Agent Clinton Stein made public a statement of Alvin Karpis in regard to the kidnaping in St. Paul of William Hamm, Jr. He expressed surprise at the small amount of ransom demanded and stated that the kidnapers were not very particular in regard to their victim. Any rich, prominent man in St. Paul would have done.....

"There was something fishy about it from the first," he said, and he attributed a political motive to the snatching. At the time of the kidnaping William Mahoney, Farmer Laborite, was mayor of St. Paul. The reactionary elements were doing everything in their power to discredit Mahoney and coincidently the state Farmer Labor administration......

"Is it possible," the Minnesota Leader asks, "that the Karpis-Barker gang was imported to do not only a lucrative job for themselves but also a political job? Karpis, in effect, says he suspects as much. It sounds somewhat fantastic, to be sure, but in the political world truth is often teranger than fiction."

DIFFERENT

"Don't you believe that you are the only girl I have ever loved?"

"Yes, I have heard that you were rather eccentric."

F. U. MEETINGS ARRANGED; GRYGLA ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS

Farmers Union Cooperative Activities are holding their meetings in the following places in the coming week: Hazel Local Union the 13th of August at the Hazel School House at 8:30 in the evening and the Star Highlanding Cooperative Union holds their meeting August 13th in the Hofman School at 8:30. On August 18th the Grygla Local Union will hold their regular meeting in the Sandmark school at 8:30 in the evening. The Aubul Cooperative Union will hold their meeting on the 20th of August at the Aubul school at 8:30.

On Friday, August 7th, The Farmers Cooperative Union Activities of Grygla held a special meeting at which they discussed business of importance in regard to Soil Conservation and the Farmers Union Junior Camp to be held at Cross Lake from the 12th to the 16th of August. Speakers were Verner Nelson of Roseau, Minn., Tom O'Leary of the Federal Conservation Program of Doran, Minn., Gilbert Brattland, Andrew Trovaton, and George W. Blake. The following resolution was passed; signed by Martin Sandmark, acting chairman:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS the requirement in regard to re-seeding of Soil Conservation Crops may be impractical because of lack of moisture and due to the lateness of the fall season.

AND WHEREAS these requirements may mean a needless waste and hardship to the farmers.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the Grygla Local of the Cooperative Union Activities (Farmers Union) in meeting assembled this seventh (7th) day of the month of August 1936 hereby request that this requirement be amended so as to comply with good judgment and common sense.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be sent to the proper authorities, Harry Muir, 210 Post Office Building, St. Paul, Minn., and to Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BERRIES TASTE GOOD, BUT NOT HORNETS, IVAN FINDS

Ivan Jindra of the Onamia district learned recently how to tell the difference between hornets and raspberries. You eat them, he found, and if they sting you they are hornets. Jindra was harvesting raspberries and absent-mindedly picked one and put it in his mouth, not noticing that it carried with it a large and irate hornet. His next sensation was that of acute dissatisfaction [illegible] feeling [illegible] accompanying [illegible] his mouth [illegible] net but the [illegible] already done. President Speeds Red Lake River Project vey reported to Secretary Ickes Minnesota streams were continuing to fall daily. It reported the municipal water supply situation "critical" in the Red river basin. Small fires were reported in grass areas and peat swamps.

Holt Lands Project

The president was asked to allocate approximately $750,000 from flood control funds to finance the work, after the national resources committee and the public works administration had indicated the project was feasible.

"The action of the president means that Thief River Falls and four other cities affected will have an adequate water supply," said Holt in Washington after the conference. "Needless to say, all of us realize the great importance of this project to the cities involved and we are elated over the success our visit to Washington."

Will Dig Channel

The river project, as shown in plans drawn by engineers, includes channeling of the Red Lake river from the mouth of the lower lake to the vicinity of High Landing, 20 miles east of us, to direct water down the stream and to increase the supplies delivered to cities served by the river.

The plans call for digging a channel which in several places would cut across curves in the present stream, straightening the course of the river and shortening it by several miles.

For years past, water released from Red lake has spread over the upper river marshes in great quantities, with the major portion of the supply being lost through absorption and evaporation and with little of the water reaching the lower portions of the stream.

Lake Is Receding

For the past two years, Greater Grand Forks and two other cities served by the stream have received their supplies from Clearwater lake, the source of the Clearwater river which empties into the Red Lake river. This was gained through special permission of the state of Minnesota when supplies from Red Lake failed to afford sufficient water.

Clearwater lake now is reported to be receding considerably and with water levels going down at all five cities served by the river, these places faced a serious impending shortage this summer.

Serious Fires Rage In Virgin Forest Regions

Concern was widespread over the seriousness of fires which have been smouldering on the Wisconsin-Minnesota borderline and which have burned over several thousand acres in Pine county. Most of the fire is in brush and cutover areas.

With conditions described as the "worst in 25 years and growing worse daily" fire fighters were handicapped by lack of sufficient equipment, absence of needed rain, and renewed outbreak of at least seven fires in the northern part of the state.

The scenic Gunflint trail, thru the border forest northwest of Grand Marais, Minn., was closed to traffic.

Conzet said he had reports from International Falls, in an area where another bad conflagration was raging, that several arrests of persons accused of starting fires had been made.

SMILEY F. U. LOCAL HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The Smiley Local of the Farmers Union Activities held its monthly meeting Monday evening, August 3rd at the Smiley hall.

George Blake, state organizer for Minnesota, gave a brief talk. He stated that at the present time Pennington county has a set-up of seven locals with a membership of six-hundred. Fred Luhe, chairman of the Smiley Local, discussed what organization has done for the people of Missouri, where he used to reside.

More plans were made for the coming picnic which will include locals in the surrounding counties.

Efforts are being made to secure Charles Talbott, state president of North Dakota, who has a splendid reputation as a speaker.

TWIN GIRLS BORN 20 HOURS APART; WEIGH 20 POUNDS

Graceville has its Baby Schmitz, a 16-pound youngster born normally recently and whose unusual size and weight was the occasion of great amazement among physicians all over the country. But Graceville cannot hold the spotlight alone this week. Near Farmington twin girls born 20 hours apart weighed 20 pounds, with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest DeMuth the parents. The DeMuths now have 10 daughters and two sons, the recent twins being both girls. Joyce was born at 6:30 a. m. and Janet was born the next day at 2:00 p. m., the former weighing 9 pounds and the latter 11 pounds. And in Stevens County a Shorthorn cow owned by Ernest Kiefer of Donnelly gave birth to a [illegible]-pound calf [illegible] inches in length, [illegible] inches high and measuring [illegible] inches around its body.

California Picnic Held By Former Residents

It was a glorious, glamorous gathering—this picnic of 1936. The same old gang was there, with additions. Being Leap Year, the female of the species gets the breaks. And at that, it took a real old time kid to make the coffee. Olaf Ramsted tried to start the fire. "Sooted" himself and "suited" the gang with his brew. Chase & Sanborn haven't a corner on all the amateurs, and Major Bowes might learn something from Friend Ramstad's coffee. Anyway our 1937 meet will feature a coffee contest.

One of the features of the 1936 meet was the presence of Old Timers. Mother Wedmer close to her 90th birthday was active and alert, greeting old friends as heartily as she did back home fifty years ago.

And Mrs. Caldwell! Who can forget those happy days of thirty-five and forty years ago, when she mothered the gang and watched over the kid parties?

And Hettie Wallin—why modernize and call her Mrs. Munro? She's still the same guardian angel she was forty-odd years past.

There was Phil Zeh, Sr. It wouldn't be the old town without Phil Zeh and that wink in his eye as he spied Yours Truly and Frank Kratka and Bertel Bakke in a secret confab showed (that wink did) that he knew full well some deviltry was afoot.

And that gets us to the point. This second annual reunion, was a big success. Next year's meet, thanks to Harry Dobner, will be held in Rose Palms Park, San Pedro. From the mountains to the sea is only a small jaunt for us folk of old Thief River. Last year we heard the soothing good-byes of the mighty Pacific. This year we said goodbye as the shadows fell from the Sierra Madre mountains. Next year, we'll greet you for the Salty Seas, again.

Oscar Sponheim, who really started this annual gathering, forced the secretarial role on Homer F. Mussey, who reciprocated by making Oscar president for another year. George Kratka collected more than $5 for next year's picnic—and we know there'll be cream enough to go around.

Short talks by various hometown boosters put "a tear in the eye, and "a bead on the brow" and helped put the picnic over.

As the "Good-bye Time" came, there was a fervent, inwardly expressed, prayer from everyone that 1937 would see the same folks on hand, the same hearty handshake, and the same old greeting:

"You folks back home, come on out and see us sometime. We feel out here in the Golden West, that God quit when he finished Southern California. But we also believe he did his best in Thief River Falls. And we send you greeting, deep from our hearts, and hope that in 1937 we'll see some of you at Rose Palms Park, San Pedro."

Those present included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sedlacek, Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Hageman and son Donald, Anna J. Wedmer and Theodora Bakken, Gunda Wedmar Goar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Kratka, Geo. H. Kratka, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. E. Withrow (Alice Bloom), Mrs. Mildred Durheim (Mildred Bloom) Mrs. Elizabeth Berg (Mrs. P. O. Berg), Theresa Schusser Holzknecht, Oliver Sedlacek, Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Quist, C. T. McCulley, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Starr (Elsie Kratka), Mrs. C. B. Kreager (Florence Kratka), Pres. and Mrs. Oscar Sponheim, Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Backe, Coffee and Mrs. Ramstad, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Auringer and J. A. Sether, Ann Meehan, Henrietta Munro and Florence Wallin, Esther L. Stebbins (1936 Long distance T. R. F. tourist), Eulah M. Stuart (2nd place long distance tourist), Mr. and Mrs. Shec Johnson and son Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Aaslund, Phil J. Zeh, Sr., Mrs. C. R. Stowell, Mrs. L. Larson, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Larson and children, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jacobson, Minnie A. Caldwell and daughter Mary, Elsie Adler Benioff, Homer F. Mussey and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gunderson, Carl Sondreal, O. J. Haugen, Peter Haugen, H. R. Halverson, Geo. M. Hicks, Peter L. Mayhew, Mrs. Ila Reynolds and daughter Marene, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Evenson and daughter, Miss Dorothy Blanchard of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson of Pasadena, California.

COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP INVOLVES LINDSTROM DOG

The cooperative ownership idea, which is rapidly spreading to operate oil companies, banks, electric power plants, mines, and the like has given four Lindstrom people the "bug", influencing them to own and pet a "cooperative dog". When nightwatchman Jesse M. Moore was about to carry out his official duties and dispense with the life of a large police dog without license, four Lindstrom citizens each donated a quarter to buy the tag in order to save the dog from a premature grave. Those who are stockholders in "Cooperative Canine, Inc." are Mrs. William [illegible] Olson, Arnie Swanson and Walter Bergstrom. The cooperative ownership idea, in at least this instance, seems to be functioning rather well, as the dog is good natured enough to enjoy the affection of its four masters.

eighth innings and Orvalla, the local mainstay, who has been out of the box for the past two weeks due to a sore shoulder, limbered up and tossed the sphere in the ninth.

The two scores for Garnes were tallied in the opening frame. O. Stennes reached first on an error, D. Hervey was hit by a pitched ball, the two counted when B. Hervey and M. Lund hit safely, Lund getting a two-bagger. They threatened to score in later innings, but failed as the local boys gave their twirlers good support.

The Thief River Falls team will go to Kittson Sunday for a game, there where the local boys are conceded another easy victory. A double-header with Warren is in the making and may be played as a closing engagement the first part of September.

East Grand Forks Wins

The East Grand Forks team proved too much for the local boys Thursday evening, and walked off with a 9 to 2 victory. Orvalla was on the sidelines with a sore shoulder, so young Sahl had to do the twirling. The East Siders took well to his offerings in the first inning and tallied seven scores before the Thief River Falls boys got settled down to good playing. From then on the game was an even battle. Peterson and Shore held the local boys pretty well in hand with the exception of the fourth inning when Ekeren hit safely, Battelson walked and the two scored on a hit by Sahl. Ekeren did some extra fine fielding in the center garden, nabbing three difficult flies in one inning.

Yanks Defeat Cards In Junior Ball Game

The Yankees and the Cardinals, two of Coach Lee's youthful balltossers, played a five-inning game after the Garnes-T. R. Falls game Sunday and gave a good exhibition of the national pastime. The players were from 9 to 12 years of age, and are in training under George Lee, who has charge of junior athletics in the city. The youthful Yankees went on an old-time Yankee batting spree in the last inning to score eleven runs after trailing 8 to 3 up till that time. The final score was thus 14 to 8 in favor of the Yankees.

Three Roseau County Farmers Die Unusually

A wind storm that struck the Roseau region Friday afternoon resulted in the death of Ole Simonson of River, and a runaway proved fatal to T. T. Aasen, farmer near Fox.

At the Simonson place the wind tore the roof from the barn and it landed on Simonson as he was crawling through a fence. He died a short time later. Mrs. Simonson barely missed being struck by the barn roof as she was going through a gate near the barn.

Mr. Aasen died of a broken neck suffered when he was thrown from a hay rake when his horses became frightened and ran away. No one witnessed the accident and it was not until the following day that his body was discovered in a field after neighbors noticed the team in the farm yard. Mr. Aasen was born in Norway in 1892 and was a bachelor.

P. A. Heieren, homesteader near Wannaska suffered a stroke while harvesting which caused his death. When his horses turned into his farm yard with no one driving them Mrs. Heieren started a search for her husband. She found his body on a road near the farm home

Brainerd Will Be Host To Legionnaires

All is in readiness at Brainerd, Minn., for the reception and entertainment of the largest American Legion State Convention to be held in many years, the dates for the same being August 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19. Scores of committees working with able support of the Minnesota Department of the American Legion have arranged all details.

A high record is expected to be set in attendance; in the number of bands, drum corps, glee clubs present; in special trains; in visitors, large delegations coming from Canada and neighboring states.

Advance figures of housing committees indicate the wave of Legion enthusiasm will be augmented by representation from possibly every post in the state, every unit of the Auxiliary. Registration opens Saturday morning at the new armory. Two comprehensive programs of convention business and entertainment have been provided.

In his welcome to the Legionnaires, Mayor Harry W. Creger says: "Our greeting is not one of welcome alone but an expression of fervent desire to serve you; to make your stay a pleasant one and aid in whatever way we can to conduct the business of your organization to a new peak of successful and meritorious endeavor."

George W. Sweet, commander of Brainerd Post, says: "Our membership has long awaited this opportunity to serve the Department. We hope that you will take advantage of and enjoy our many lakes, resorts and other outdoor facilities. It is our endeavor to make your visit a pleasant one."

Mrs. H. S. Bliss, Unit President, assures all they will find not only Auxiliary members, but all of Brainerd ready and anxious to serve and assist.

Greetings from many ex-service men's organizations will be voiced at the convention, including those from Canadian War Veterans. Parades include memorial parade 7 p. m. August 16; massed bands and drum corps 11 a. m. August 17; Forty and Eight torchlight parade 11 p. m. August 17; Convention parade 2 p. m. August 18, with its colorful bands, drum corps, marchers and floats.

F. D. ROOSEVELT GARNERS MOST STRAW BALLOTS

Lemke Shows Strong Following In Thief River Falls Vicinity

Readers Are Urged To Send In Ballots

First Count On National Scale Is Expected For Next Issue

President Roosevelt leads the straw vote conducted by the Forum in Thief River Falls and the surrounding territory as indicated in a count of the ballots Wednesday evening. Ballots that have been turned in to the Forum office by that time showed the following vote:

Roosevelt, Democrat	40
Landon, Republican	5
Lemke, Unionist	32
Thomas, Socialist	16
Colvin, Prohibitionist	9
Browder, Communist	4

The nation-wide Presidential straw-vote being conducted by the weekly newspapers throughout the country gives all promise of being the most representative poll of small town and rural America political sentiment ever recorded in a national election year.

Reports from the weekly newspapers' straw-vote headquarters in New York, as this issue of the Forum was going to press, told of leading weekly newspapers far and near launching the poll in their respective territories with promise of returning a convincing vote to extend the scope of the poll and thus afford a national tabulation for interesting political speculation.

That the poll will be non-partisan in every respect can be accepted as a fact inasmuch as it is being conducted by Democratic, Republican and Independent newspapers located in states throughout the nation.

Roosevelt vs. Landon

In a special pre-convention straw-vote poll last winter, nation-wide in scope, wherein voters expressed a preference for Presidential candidates, the weekly newspaper poll again proved its worth. It showed Republican choice as between Borah and Landon, the Landon landslide starting during the last 3 weeks of balloting. In the last week of voting, Landon polled a greater vote than Borah, passing the Idaho senator. Landon was the only candidate to draw a larger popular vote than Borah during any one week of the voting. Roosevelt was the undisputed choice of Democratic voters.

In that pre-convention poll, the publishers of the weekly newspapers conducting the feature decided to open the doors wide and invite publishers of weekly newspapers everywhere to join in and conduct a poll in their respective territories. Hundreds of progressive pub-

Meeting of Farmers Union Set for Sept. 1

Talbott Will Be Main Speaker; Pennington County Set-up Planned

The first county convention of the Farmers Union of Pennington county will be held Tuesday, Sept. 1st, according to Geo. W. Blake, the county organizer. C. C. Talbott, president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, has informed Mr. Blake and his committee that this was the earliest available date he could be here to speak so the committee is proceeding with arrangements to stage an outstanding event for that day.

The place for the gathering has not been determined as this paper goes to press. The plan is, however, to secure some picnic grounds in the vicinity of Thief River Falls and, if the day is rainy, hold the meeting at the city auditorium.

Interested readers are asked to look for complete details of the meeting next week. Arrangements will be made at a meeting of the committee Saturday evening.

Red Lake Falls Man Dies In Car Wreck

Levite Thibodeau, 24, of Red Lake Falls, was instantly killed and three others were injured on Sunday night when a car in which they were riding turned over several times in a ditch on highway No. 92 a mile west of Trail.

Thibodeau's neck was broken. The injured are Leonard Roy, owner of the car, Leo Bendel and Archie Olson, all of Red Lake Falls. Olson suffered a severe head injury which may be a fractured skull, doctors said. Roy and Bendel were badly bruised and cut. All three are in the hospital at Fosston. Thibodeau's body was taken to Red Lake Falls.

The accident occurred when the car missed a turn while traveling fast, according to officials who investigated the accident.

Called to the scene were Dr. H. E. Nelson, Polk county coroner and Deputy Sheriffs O. K. Bolstad and Ed Kelly.

2 LOCAL UNITS WIN 3 PRIZES

Many Legion & Auxilairy Members Attend State Convention

The local large delegation of Legionnaires and Legion Auxiliary members returned to this city on Wednesday night from the annual state Legion convention at Brainerd, with two trophies, awarded for work in Americanization and for junior activities.

The Elmer J. Eklund Post, local Legion post, was awarded the Haferman trophy for outstanding progress and achievement in Americanization work; and the junior activities trophy, which was presented to the local post because of their sponsorship of such activities for juniors as a baseball league and hockey teams.

The local American Legion Auxiliary drum corps, under the direction of Mrs. Jeanette Wright, was for a third consecutive year designated as the outstanding ladies corp competing in class "B".

The Ninth District Legion band which includes eight members from this city, placed fourth at the convention. Local men who are members of the band are E. L. Eggermayer, W. E. Carlisle, P. G. Pederson, Reuben Lawson, Lyman Fossum, Don Chalmers, Leslie Winkleski, and Kerman Smith.

Automotive Meeting Is Well Attended

The automotive meeting Wednesday evening, sponsored by the National Carbon Company, makers of the Everready Prestone was attended by seventy-five dealers and service men. Not only was the local trade well represented, but surrounding towns as well. Those travelling the greatest distance to attend were: Baudette garage dealers.

Particular emphasis was placed in the film, "Going Places" as well as Mr. C. S. Freistroffer, antifreeze engineer, in his talk following the showing of the moving picture on the necessity of periodic and thorough cleaning to guard against

DEDICATION OF SMILEY BRIDGE IS ARRANGED

Structure Near Popular Picnic Grounds Is Now Completed

Provides New Road For Much Local Traffic

Lundgren, Prichard and Kovarik will Address Gathering

Dedication of the new Smiley township bridge will be a feature of a community picnic, which will be held at the picnic grounds near the bridge next Sunday. The program is expected to begin at one o'clock. Speakers will include Attorney Paul Lundgren and Mayor Prichard of Thief River Falls, and J. B. Kovarik, district director of the Works Progress Administration. The presentation of the plaque will be made by Paul Roy, chairman of the Pennington county board.

The bridge, which was erected by the Works Progress Administration and sponsored by the County Board of Commissioners, was constructed at a cost of $3,174, of which the federal government supplied $2,867 and the sponsors approximately $800. The structure, built of timbers, is 180 feet long and 16 feet wide; and is very important from the standpoint of local traffic, as it offers the only place in the township where the Red Lake river can be crossed.

Work on the bridge was started May 18th and was completed in three months. Between 10 and 12 workers were used on the project. Hjalmer Hostvet has been foreman on the project.

The event is a leading one and people from the entire county are asked to come and aid the enterprising Smiley township residents in observing the dedication.

Four Speakers Address River Valley Picnic

A crowd of about 400 attended the annual picnic held Sunday by the River Valley Cooperative creamery and the Cooperative store. The event was held in Kolestrand's grove near River Valley. The program consisted of talks given by J. O. Melby, Paul Harris, Paul Lundgren and B. Bjornaraa, with a variety program of vocal and instrumental numbers. J. Denning was the chairman.

Mr. Melby, representative from the sixty-fourth legislative district, spoke against the proposed Amendment No. 2 which will be up for vote this fall. He asserted that more obnoxious taxes as the sales tax will follow if the amendment is adopted.

Mr. Harris spoke on the importance of cooperating. He contended that enterprises of this kind play a leading part in the more equal distribution of earnings in industry and predicted that the time will come when the cooperative spirit would rule business the

Federal Farm Leaders May Change Their Attitude Regarding Farm Crops

A bumper crop of corn and wheat, with surpluses stored away as insurance against another shortage like the present, is being planned for next year by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Instead of attempting to restrict plantings as they have in the past, AAA officials, now informally discussing next year's program, are inclined to let farmers plant wheat and corn to their heart's desire and ask Congress to authorize some sort of crop insurance scheme that will enable the Government to hold farmers' surplus grains until lean years.

Saving in Time of Plenty

The crop insurance plan was first proposed by Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, in Kansas City last month. He renewed discussion of it in Chicago last week.

Under the plan farmers would pay in a certain portion of their crops each year as premiums. In poor years supplies would be paid out from these reserves to supplement lean crops.

Normally bumper crops of all foodstuffs follow a drought year since it is natural for farmers to enlarge their plantings after a poor crop. Unless the Government makes some effort to take the surpluses off the market, prices are likely to slump.

Farmers Might Be Shy

After their recent experience with the drought, many farmers doubtless would question the wisdom of complying with another AAA crop reduction or soil conservation program next year. The crop insurance plan is expected to be more popular.

Howard H. Tolley, AAA administrator, is now holding a series of conferences in the field with county agents to determine what the reaction of farmers is to the crop insurance proposal. No attempt will be made to have such a plan put into effect unless the majority of farmers show they favor it, AAA officials insist.

Pheasant Hunting Begins October 24

Pheasant hunting in Minnesota will begin October 24 and will last until November 13 in twelve western counties and until November 1 in 55 counties in the southern and central parts of the state, the state Conservation Commission decided at its regular meeting last week.

The nine-day season will be in effect in the following counties: Norman, Mahnomen, Clay, Becker, Wadena, Todd, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Kanabec, Pine, Stearns, Benton, Sherburne, Isanti, Chisago, Washington, Anoka, Hennepin, Wright, Meeker, Kandiyohi, Renville, McLeod, Carver, Scott, Dakota, Goodhue, Rice, Le Sueur, Nicollet, Brown, Redwood, Lyon, Lincoln, Pipestone, Murray, Cottonwood, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Waseca, Steele, Dodge, Olmstead, Wabasha, Winona, Houston, Fillmore, Mower, Freeborn, Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Nobles, Rock, Sibley.

The 21 day season applies only to Wilkin, Ottertail, Traverse, Grant, Douglas, Pope, Stevens, Big Stone, Swift, Chippewa, Lac Qui Parle, and Yellow Medicine. The longer season in these counties was decided upon following a survey made by Frank Blair, superintendent of game propagation, which indicated a substantial increase in pheasants.

There will be no pheasant season in Lake, Cook, St. Louis, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Itasca, Pennington, Red Lake, Hubbard, Clearwater, Cass, Aitkin, Carlton, and Crow Wing counties.

Birds may be taken only between noon and sunset. The daily bag limit is three pheasants, of which only one may be a hen. The possession limit at any time is six birds, two of which may be hens.

PLUMMER PLAYS HERE SUNDAY

Visiting Team Ranks Second; Last Game in N. League Here

The Plummer baseball team will play Thief River Falls at the fair grounds here next Sunday for the last Northern Minnie League game on the local diamond this season. Plummer now ranks second in the league rating and rates as the strongest league team to face the local boys who are leading the league.

Plummer was defeated by the local boys earlier this season by the score of 5 to 2, but this only after a 2 to 2 tie which was broken in the ninth inning as Thief River tallied three runs on three hits and an error.

Fremlin, a left-hander, who is considered as the best in the league, will do the twirling again for the visitors. If Orvalla is not in form Sunday, the burden of the outcome for the local boys will depend on Sahl. Plummer defeated Garnes Sunday by the identical score which the local boys defeated Garnes a week earlier.

Thief River Falls had little difficulty in defeating Kittson at the Crookston diamond Sunday. The local boys took well to the delivery of Holtz, the Kittson twirler, and garnered twenty-one hits off his delivery. The final score wos 15 to 1. Sahl was on the mound for Thief River Falls and allowed only four hits in the five innings he pitched. He was relieved by Olson in the sixth, Sahl playing at third in the four last frames. Eide led the heavy hitters with four bingles. Lee, Battelson, Sahl and Johnson followed with three each.

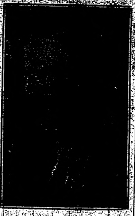
F-L Factions Plan National 3rd Party

A unified national Farmer-Labor party for the congressional campaign of 1938 and the presidential campaign of 1940 was set Wednesday as the goal of the liberal "third" parties of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A statement of principle and program was issued by executives of the Farmer-Labor association of Minnesota and the Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation of Wisconsin after representatives of the two groups had met in executive session Tuesday at Madison, Wis.

The question of what course liberals shall pursue in the present national campaign will be discussed at a meeting in Chicago early in September. Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, agreed Wednesday to join U. S. Senator Robert LaFollete, Wisconsin Progressive, in issuing the call for the Chicago meeting.

Olson, from his sick bed at Rochester, pledged support to Roosevelt and said "if we liberals by splitting our vote place Landon in office, we will have performed an act for which we never will be forgiven."



GOVERNOR FLOYD B. OLSON

GOVERNOR IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Floyd Olson Taken Back To Hospital as Ailment Becomes Worse

The first official announcement of the seriousness of Governor Floyd Olson's condition was made Wednesday night in a statement signed by three Mayo clinic physicians.

"The governor's condition is very serious indeed. What the outcome will be, we can not know," was the admission of the physicians in a statement reciting results of the governor's condition since an exploratory operation last December.

Deny Peritonitis Rumor

The statement came three hours after a bulletin asserting that the physicians encountered difficulty in giving him adequate nourishment. Intraveneous and tube feeding has been resorted to since he was flown in a chartered airplane from his Gull Lake home Monday night.

Asked whether peritonitis had developed, Dr. Waltman Walters, who with Dr. W. J. Mayo and Dr. A. B. Rivers issued the statement, said: "This is not a real condition of peritonitis."

A burning conviction he would "make it" was voiced by Governor Olson as tears welled in his eyes.

Feeding Is Problem

Inflamation of the abdomen was indicated, increasing the danger of peritonitis simultaneously with physician's difficulty in maintaining adequate feeding to the governor of the state.

"The maintenance of adequate feeding continues to be a problem," a clinic bulletin said. "However, feeding causes less distress than Tuesday. There is no further operation contemplated."

CITY F-L CLUB WILL MEET FRIDAY EVENING

The Farmer-Labor club of Thief River Falls will meet Friday evening at the court house, beginning at 8 p. m. This will be the regular August meeting. Geo. W. Blake, the Farmers Union organizer located here, will be the principal speaker.

WORK STARTED ON DEEPENING RIVER CHANNEL

Temporary Aid Has Been Started by Removing Weeds and Sandbars

Federal Engineer Is Expected Here Soon

Equipment May Be Sent Here From Fort Peck Project

Thirty men from Pennington and Red Lake counties are already at work clearing the channel of Red Lake river so that more water may flow from the lake thru the regular river channel.

The flow of water has increased notably here and the water in the city mains has improved considerably in taste as less chemicals are needed to be added at the water plant for purification.

Besides these 30 men at work in Pennington county, east of Highlanding, forty-five Indians have started the same kind of work beginning at the point where the river leaves the lake. It is believed that the work will be completed in six to eight weeks. The state conservation commission has set aside $10,000 to pay for this clearing.

As the work of these crews is of only a temporary nature the arrival of Major Markham and a committee is awaited here by Mayor Prichard, who was a recent delegate to a conference at Washington, D. C., pertaining to the project. Major Markham will determine the kind of channel to be made and make arrangement to have it dug.

Rumors have it that equipment to build a channel forty feet wide and nine feet deep will be shipped here from Fort Peck, Mont., where the federal government is constructing a large dam in the Missouri river. This indicates that the work will be done exclusively with government equipment and WPA labor.

15-Day Season on Quail Voted; 'Chickens' Closed

A 15-day quail shooting season, from November 1 to 15, and a closed season this year on prairie chickens and ruffed grouse, were ordered by the state conservation commission. Nine counties are included in the quail season with a bag limit of six a day and 12 in possession. Both resolutions were adopted unanimously.

Included with chickens and grouse in the protected roster were sharptailed grouse, upland plover and wood cock. Scarcity among these species was reported.

Albert G. Niss of Fairmont, president of the Minnesota Game Protective League, said his organization believed a prairie chicken season was "not advisable" and he quoted numerous authorities to substantiate his contention.

Quail shooting counties, with a bag limit of 18 provided for the season, are Sibley, Scott, Carver, Dakota, Washington, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona and Houston.

New Grocery Store Will Open Friday

Suckerman Will Manage the New Establishment In Quarters Across from Postoffice

Another new and up-to-date grocery store will open in our city on Friday when Earl F. Phillips throws open the doors of the Cut Rate Grocery for the public that morning.

The new business place is located in the quarters of the former Cosgrove Tavern, adjoining the office of the Northern Hotel, directly across from the new post office building. H. Z. Suckerman, formerly employed at the Bromund Hotel will be the manager.

Mr. Phillips, who made arrangements for the new store here, is the head of a number of stores which are located at Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Newfolden, and Red Lake Falls.

F. D. ROOSEVELT GARNERS MOST STRAW BALLOTS

Lemke Shows Strong Following In Thief River Falls Vicinity

Readers Are Urged To Send In Ballots

First Count On National Scale Is Expected For Next Issue

President Roosevelt leads the straw vote conducted by the Forum in Thief River Falls and the surrounding territory as indicated in a count of the ballots Wednesday evening. Ballots that have been turned in to the Forum o ca by that time showed the following vote:

Roosevelt, Democrat	40
Landon, Republican	5
Lemke, Unionist	32
Thomas, Socialist	16
Colvin, Prohibitionist	9
Browder, Communist	4

The nation-wide Presidential straw-vote being conducted by the weekly newspapers throughout the country gives all promise of being the most representative poll of small town and rural America political sentiment ever recorded in a national election year.

Reports from the weekly newspapers straw-vote headquarters in New York, as this issue of the Forum was going to press, told of leading weekly newspapers far and near launching the poll in their respective territories with promise of returning a convincing vote to extend the scope of the poll and thus afford a national tabulation for interesting political speculation.

That the poll will be non-partisan in every respect can be accepted as a fact inasmuch as it is being conducted by Democratic, Republican and Independent newspapers located in states throughout the nation.

Roosevelt vs. Landon

In a special pre-convention straw-vote poll last winter, nationwide in scope, wherein voters expressed a preference for Presidential candidates, the weekly newspaper poll again proved its worth. It showed Republican choice as between Borah and Landon, the Landon landslide starting during the last 3 weeks of balloting. In the last week of voting, Landon polled a greater vote than Borah, passing the Idaho senator. Landon was the only candidate to draw a larger popular vote than Borah during any one week of the voting. Roosevelt was the undisputed choice of Democratic voters.

In that pre-convention poll the publishers of the weekly newspapers conducting the feature decided to open the doors wide and invite publishers of weekly newspapers everywhere to join in and conduct a poll in their respective territories. Hundreds of progressive pub-

Red Lake Falls Man Dies In Car Wreck

Levite Thibodeau, 24, of Red Lake Falls, was instantly killed and three others were injured on Sunday night when a car in which they were riding turned over several times in a ditch on highway No. 92 a mile west of Trail.

Thibodeau's neck was broken. The injured are Leonard Roy, owner of the car, Leo Bendel and Archie Olson, all of Red Lake Falls. Olson suffered a severe head injury which may be a fractured skull, doctors said. Roy and Bendel were badly bruised and cut. All three are in the hospital at Fosston. Thibodeau's body was taken to Red Lake Falls.

The accident occurred when the car missed a turn while traveling fast, according to officials who investigated the accident.

Called to the scene were Dr. H. E. Nelson, Polk county coroner, and Deputy Sheriffs O. K. Bolstad and Ed Kelly.

DEDICATION OF SMILEY BRIDGE IS ARRANGED

Structure Near Popular Picnic Grounds Is Now Completed

Provides New Road For Much Local Traffic

Lundgren, Prichard and Kovarik will Address Gathering

Dedication of the new Smiley township bridge will be a feature of a community picnic, which will be held at the picnic grounds near the bridge next Sunday. The program is expected to begin at one o'clock. Speakers will include Attorney Paul Lundgren and Mayor Prichard of Thief River Falls, and J. B. Kovarik, district director of the Works Progress Administration. The presentation of the plaque will be made by Paul Roy, chairman of the Pennington county board.

The bridge, which was erected by the Works Progress Administration and sponsored by the County Board of Commissioners, was constructed at a cost of $3,174, of which the federal government supplied $2,867 and the sponsors approximately $800. The structure, built of timbers, is 180 feet long and 16 feet wide; and is very important from the standpoint of local traffic, as it offers the only place in the township where the Red Lake river can be crossed.

Federal Farm Leaders May Change Their Attitude Regarding Farm Crops

A bumper crop of corn and wheat, with surpluses stored away as insurance against another shortage like the present, is being planned for next year by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Instead of attempting to restrict plantings as they have in the past, AAA officials, now informally discussing next year's program, are inclined to let farmers plant wheat and corn to their heart's desire and ask Congress to authorize some sort of crop insurance scheme that will enable the Government to hold farmers' surplus grains until lean years.

Saving In Time of Plenty

The crop insurance plan was first proposed by Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, in Kansas City last month. He renewed discussion of it in Chicago last week.

Under the plan farmers would pay in a certain portion of their crops each year as premiums. In poor years supplies would be paid out from these reserves to supplement lean crops.

Normally bumper crops of all foodstuffs follow a drought year since it is natural for farmers to enlarge their plantings after a poor crop. Unless the Government makes some effort to take the surpluses off the market, prices are likely to slump.

Farmers Might Be Shy

After their recent experience with the drought, many farmers doubtless would question the wisdom of complying with another AAA crop reduction or soil conservation program next year. The crop insurance plan is expected to be more popular.

Howard H. Tolley, AAA administrator, is now holding a series of conferences in the field with county agents to determine what the reaction of farmers is to the crop insurance proposal. No attempt will be made to have such a plan put into effect unless the majority of farmers show they favor it, AAA officials insist.

Pheasant Hunting Begins October 24

Pheasant hunting in Minnesota will begin October 24 and will last until November 13 in twelve western counties and until November 1 in 55 counties in the southern and central parts of the state, the state Conservation Commission decided at its regular meeting last week.

The nine-day season will be in effect in the following counties: Norman, Mahnomen, Clay, Becker, Wadena, Todd, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Kanabec, Pine, Stearns, Benton, Sherburne, Isanti, Chisago, Washington, Anoka, Hennepin, Wright, Meeker, Kandiyohi, Renville, McLeod, Carver, Scott, Dakota, Goodhue, Rice, LeSueur, Nicollet, Brown, Redwood, Lyon, Lincoln, Pipestone, Murray, Cottonwood, Watonwan, Blue Earth, Waseca, Stele, Dodge, Olmstead, Wabasha, Winona, Houston, Fillmore, Mower, Freeborn, Faribault, Martin, Jackson, Nobles, Rock, Sibley.

The 21 day season applies only to Wilkin, Ottertail, Traverse, Grant, Douglas, Pope, Stevens, Big Stone, Swift, Chippewa, Lac Qui Parle, and Yellow Medicine. The longer season in these counties was decided upon following a survey made by Frank Blair superintendent of game propagation, which indicated a substantial increase in pheasants.

There will be no pheasant season in Lake, Cook, St. Louis, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Itasca, Pennington, Red Lake, Hubbard, Clearwater, Cass, Aitkin, Carlton, and Crow Wing counties.

Birds may be taken only between noon and sunset. The daily bag limit is three pheasants, of which only one may be a hen. The possession limit at any time is six birds, two of which may be hens.

PLUMMER PLAYS HERE SUNDAY

Visiting Team Ranks Second; Last Game in N. League Here

The Plummer baseball team will play Thief River Falls at the fair grounds here next Sunday for the last Northern Minnie League game on the local diamond this season. Plummer now ranks second in the league rating and rates as the strongest league team to face the local boys who are leading the league.

Plummer was defeated by the local boys earlier this season by the score of 5 to 2, but this only after a 2 to 2 tie which was broken in the ninth inning as Thief River tallied three runs on three hits and an error.

Fremlin, a left-hander, who is considered as the best in the league, will do the twirling again for the visitors. If Orvalla is not in form Sunday, the burden of the outcome for the local boys will depend on Sahl. Plummer defeated Garnes Sunday by the identical score which the local boys defeated Garnes a week earlier.

Thief River Falls had little difficulty in defeating Kittson at the Crookston diamond Sunday. The local boys took well to the delivery of Holtz, the Kittson twirler, and garnered twenty-one hits off his delivery. The final score wos 15 to 1. Sahl was on the mound for Thief River Falls and allowed only four hits in the five innings he pitched. He was relieved by Olson in the sixth, Sahl playing at third in the four last frames. Eide led the heavy hitters with four bingles. Lee, Battelson, Sahl and Johnson followed with three each.

Horseshoe Tournament To Begin This Week

Local horseshoe tossers are getting into shape for the first city tournament to be held since Olson "copped" the laurels several years ago. Strong contenders are: Leaf Sahl, recent winner of the Pennington county horseshoe tournament, Hemmy Sahl, and Gust Anderson.

About sixteen players will take part in the popular barnyard pastime. Entries should be filed immediately with Marvin Benson at the National Youth Administration office.

UNIQUE EVENT IS ARRANGED TO BE HELD HERE SOON

Legion Auxiliary to Sponsor 'Personality Parade' For Aug. 26 and 27

Three-Act Show Will Be Feature of Performance

Local Characters to Compose Cast for Assorted Entertainment

On Thursday and Friday, next week, Aug. 27 and 28, the entire city of Thief River Falls is cooperating in staging one of the most unusual and unique events ever produced in this city. The Personality Parade will provide wonderful entertainment for the entire community. This event is exactly what the name implies—a parade of the most famous personalities in the city, performing in a manner such as to captivate the entire town.

There are a great many outstanding and unusal attractions staged in connection with the Personality Parade and Contest.

The big feature attraction of the Personality Parade and Contest is the big personality amateur contest in which the best talent of the city will compete. Prizes will be given and the winner will be decided by a vote of the audience. If you haven't already filed your entry, do so immediately, because if you can play a musical instrument, sing, dance or recite, get in touch with the American Legion, which is sponsoring this gigantic event and file your entry at once.

One of the outstanding features of the big Personality Parade is the professional three-act show which will be performed by the best actors in the city. It is a hilarious farce comedy that will cause you to roar with laughter.

Supporting the main cast we have the famous, vivacious, charming, beautiful and glorious Person-

F-L Factions Plan National 3rd Party

A unified national Farmer-Labor party for the congressional campaign of 1938 and the presidential campaign of 1940 was set Wednesday as the goal of the liberal "third" parties of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A statement of principle and program was issued by executives of the Farmer-Labor association of Minnesota and the Farmer-Labor Progressive Federation of Wisconsin after representatives of the two groups had met in executive session Tuesday at Madison, Wis.

The question of what course liberals shall pursue in the present national campaign will be discussed at a meeting in Chicago early in September. Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, agreed Wednesday to join U. S. Senator Robert LaFollete, Wisconsin Progressive, in issuing the call for the Chicago meeting.

Olson, from his sick bed at Rochester, pledged support to Roosevelt and said "if we liberals by splitting our vote place Landon in office, we will have performed an act for which we never will be forgiven."

GOVERNOR FLOYD B. OLSON

GOVERNOR IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Floyd Olson Taken Back To Hospital as Ailment Becomes Worse

The first official announcement of the seriousness of Governor Floyd Olson's condition was made Wednesday night in a statement signed by three Mayo clinic physicians.

"The governor's condition is very serious indeed. What the outcome willl be, we can not know," was the admission of the physicians in a statement reciting results of the governor's condition since an exploratory operation last December.

Deny Peritonitis Rumor

The statement came three hours after a bulletin asserting that the physicians encountered difficulty in giving him adequate nourishment. Intraveneous and tube feeding has been resorted to since he was flown in a chartered airplane from his Gull Lake home Monday night.

Asked whether peritonitis had developed, Dr. Waltman Walters, who with Dr. W. J. Mayo and Dr. A. B. Rivers issued the statement, said: "This is not a real condition of peritonitis."

A burning conviction he would "make it" was voiced by Governor Olson as tears welled in his eyes.

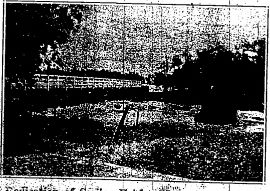
Feeding Is Problem

Inflamation of the abdomen was indicated, increasing the danger of peritonitis simultaneously with physician's difficulty in maintaining adequate feeding to the governor of the state.

"The maintenance of adequate feeding continues to be a problem," a clinic bulletin said. "However, feeding causes less distress than Tuesday. There is no further operation contemplated."

CITY F-L CLUB WILL MEET FRIDAY EVENING

The Farmer-Labor club of Thief River Falls will meet Friday evening at the court house, beginning at 8 p. m. This will be the regular August meeting. Geo. W. Blake, the Farmers Union organizer located here, will be the principal speaker.



Dedication of Smiley Bridge Planned for Sunday

The new structure pictured above, recently completed across the Red Lake river near the Smiley picnic grounds, will be dedicated at appropriate exercises next Sunday.

WORK STARTED ON DEEPENING RIVER CHANNEL

Temporary Aid Has Been Started by Removing Weeds and Sandbars

Federal Engineer Is Expected Here Soon

Equipment May Be Sent Here From Fort Peck Project

Thirty men from Pennington and Red Lake counties are already at work clearing the channel of Red Lake river so that more water may flow from the lake thru the regular river channel.

The flow of water has increased notably here and the water in the city mains has improved considerably in taste as less chemicals are needed to be added at the water plant for purification.

Besides these 30 men at work in Pennington county, east of Highlanding, forty-five Indians have started the same kind of work beginning at the point where the river leaves the lake. It is believed that the work will be completed in six to eight weeks. The state conservation commission has set aside $10,000 to pay for this clearing.

As the work of these crews is of only a temporary nature the arrival of Major Markham and a committee is awaited here by Mayor Prichard, who was a recent delegate to a conference at Washington, D. C., pertaining to the project. Major Markham will determine the kind of channel to be made and make arrangement to have it dug.

Rumors have it that equipment to build a channel forty feet wide and nine feet deep will be shipped here from Fort Peck, Mont., where the federal government is constructing a large dam in the Missouri river. This indicates that the work will be done exclusively with government equipment and WPA labor.

15-Day Season on Quail Voted; 'Chickens' Closed

A 15-day quail shooting season, from November 1 to 15, and a closed season this year on prairie chickens and ruffed grouse, were ordered by the state conservation commission. Nine counties are included in the quail season with a bag limit of six a day and 12 in possession. Both resolutions were adopted unanimously.

Included with chickens and grouse in the protected roster were sharptailed grouse, upland plover and wood cock. Scarcity among these species was reported.

Albert G. Niss of Fairmont, president of the Minnesota Game Protective League, said his organization believed a prairie chicken season was "not advisable" and he quoted numerous authorities to substantiate his contention.

Quail shooting counties, with a bag limit of 18 provided for the season, are Sibley, Scott, Carver, Dakota, Washington, Wabasha, Olmsted, Winona and Houston.

New Grocery Store Will Open Friday

Suckerman Will Manage the New Establishment In Quarters Across from Postoffice

Another new and up-to-date grocery store will open in our city on Friday when Earl F. Phillips throws open the doors of the Cut Rate Grocery for the public that morning.

The new business place is located in the quarters of the former Cosgrove Tavern, adjoining the office of the Northern Hotel, directly across from the new post office building. H. Z. Suckerman, formerly employed at the Brumund Hotel will be the manager.

Mr. Phillips, who made arrangements for the new store here, is the head of a number of stores which are located at Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Newfolden, and Red Lake Falls.

POLITICAL INCONSISTENCIES

Some glaring inconsistencies are brought to light when a person more carefully weighs the campaign arguments advanced by John D. Hamilton, Landon's political manager, and other GOP politicians.

They advance the idea of budget balancing, one of the main assets of the GOP candidate they claim. Yet on the very day that Landon made his speech of acceptance, when he decried the vast federal spending of the Roosevelt administration, his own state's U. S. senator, Mr. Capper, was in Washington, D. C., begging for federal relief funds for Kansas, Landon's home state. If Landon is such a shark at budget balancing, let Kansas raise its own $100,000,000, which Sen. Capper asked Washington, and then balance its budget. State poor relief is about as scarce as hen's teeth in Kansas.

Mr. Hamilton also tries to charge Roosevelt with double-crossing the farmers because of the Canadian trade treaty. The American farmer is suffering because of imported products from Canada, he maintains. But the actual facts are that while imports have increased, exports have increased likewise. But, Hamilton doesn't give any figures on exports. His argument wouldn't hold water if he did.

We have imported more of some kinds of agricultural products and in turn exported more of other similar products. Really the trade agreement with Canada has started the trade agoing again.

Export figures have been issued monthly. On page 169 of the August 10 issue of "Foreign Crops and Markets" appear the following figures of exports of processed pork to Canada for the first six months of 1935 and 1936:

	1935	1936	Increase
Hams and Shoulders, lbs	81,577	279,397	187,820
Pickled and salt-pork, lbs.	332,904	1,022,141	689,237
Lard lbs.	516,322	947,054	430,732

There are more farmers in the Northwest raising hogs than there are interested in beef cattle. Why should the facts be suppressed?

A commentator in Monday's Minneapolis Journal summarizes the situation as follows:

"The Landon-Knox campaign continues to attack New Deal spending and to urge voters to balance the budget with a Republican Administration. The bold attack on Government spending and the blank promise of a balanced budget carry certain implications that cannot be ignored by thinking people.

"In attacking the spending, do they mean to decry the extension of moneys and credit through Governmental agencies for the aid and relief of business and individual citizens? Was it wrong to come to the aid of the banks and other big corporate interests with the RFC or to relieve unemployment and stimulate business with the PWA, the WPA and the AAA? In the implied promise to balance the budget, is the intention to discontinue these agencies fair? Is it the intention to ignore the accepted fact that said relief agencies saved the nation from chaos and possible revolution of violence? Is it the intention to throw back to the States the burden of unemployment and relief?

"Is it not sheer mockery to propose balancing the budget in a period of depression and mass unemployment, unless it be granted that extraordinary tax must be placed on the holders of great wealth and income? The present Administration realizes the necessity of increased taxes on those able to bear the load in any sane approach of balancing of the budget. But the champion friends of entrenched wealth are busy hoodwinking the people."

STEFFENS DIES IN CALIFORNIA

Lincoln Steffens, the dean of the American writers a generation ago, and later a journalist and writer of world calibre and reputation died at Carmel, Calif., of heart disease recently. He was 70 years of age.

As a journalist, Steffens saw most of the world-shaking events of the last 30 years, and was acquainted with politicians, business men, artists and writers throughout the world. He figured either as reporter or meditator in the following—McNamara case, the Mexican insurrection, the making of the Versailles treaty, the Russian revolution, and several of the post-war international conferences.

His autobiography is one of the most important books ever written in America, for it not only chronicles the social history of the country in the twentieth century, but reveals the mental progress of one of the finest minds this nation has produced.

Steffens became interested early in his newspaper career in the reasons for graft and corruption in American business and politics. He found himself reluctantly forced to discard the "bad man" theory which held that the reason government was corrupt was because bad men were in office. He found that the governments of unquestionably good men were necessarily corrupted too, and after years it dawned upon him that political democracy was rotten because it conflicted with an undemocratic system of industry. He thus came to the view that democracy must extend to all phases of human life, and especially industry, before the promise of the good life could be fulfilled. In his autobiography, he predicted that America would come to something like the Russian system within this century.

CROP INSURANCE

The topic of crop insurance is forging its way into foremost position as a proper solution for the problems of the farmer who invests eight and nine billion dollars and their own labor in one of the riskiest of all major occupations—farming.

Crop insurance is not a new idea and the problem of devising a plan of adequate insurance against a crop failure had been studied by the Department of Agriculture before the World War. Many measures providing for various forms of crop insurance have been introduced into Congress during the past two decades.

What major benefits in addition to the prevention of the abandonment of poor homesteads might be derived from such a program?

Agriculture would be made self-supporting and the rest of the country would not be called upon to assist in distressing periods. In North Dakota alone, it is estimated by one state official, $400,000,000 in federal funds has been spent in the last 10 years and another $100,000,000 may be needed to alleviate suffering during the present drought.

Crop insurance would level prices and lead to fairer prices for farm lands in drought areas.

Farmers would be able to obtain better credit terms and thus be able to finance farming operations at a reduced cost.

Loss of population in drought areas may be averted if the program could be put into effect in a reasonable length of time.—Devils Lake World.

HOW TO STOP IT

Man has always appeared as a pigmy in comparison with a fire or flood, and at no time has he seemed smaller than at present when the great forest fires of the north are raging.

Nature has seemed this year to put on double or triple hazard or chance on the wheel of fortune for the northern areas. Not only are the young trees full of combustible fats but the hot, dry weather no doubt brings out more of them. Then the underbrush is dry and easily ignited, while the grass itself leading into the forest is an invitation for fires to spread from lighted cigarettes thrown down on the highway or from some camp fire perhaps left burning.

One has only to read between the lines on the story of a fire-trapped family, such as this paper prints this week to learn something of the trials of the fire-fighters. Everywhere is the smoke inflaming the eyes and the breathing system. It is not like a fire at a dwelling or other building; that smoke generally goes straight up or swings with the wind, but the forest fire fills the country with its acrid, biting fumes.

And the worst phase of the whole situation is the despairing question "What can we do to stop this destruction?"—Hastings Gazette.

DROUTH AND GOVERNMENT

To date the Republicans have not blamed the drouth upon the Democratic or Farmer-Labor administrations, but we can expect it any day.

Drouth is not a new thing in the prairie states although before the timber barons denuded our forests and destroyed our natural watershed, they were less common. In the eighties and nineties there were severe drouths. Cattle bellowed and died for want of water on ranches. Water holes dried up and lakes disappeared.

Our condition may be worse today in that more people are affected because immigrants have settled more and more on the plains. In their eagerness to own land, they have pushed the line of cultivation westward, destroying the buffalo grass and natural binder of the soil. In wet years they made money; dry years following the war brought disaster.

What is new is the attitude of the government. Under Republican administrations the victims of the drouth were left to the tender mercies of rugged individualists who bought up lands for a song or foreclosed on mortgages; they drove the original homesteaders away. Later these financiers resold the land at a profit to new settlers, who were lured by tales of money in dry farming and a "permanent" change in the climate.

Then the government exhibited no solicitude for the burnt-out stockmen and farmers. Its only solicitude was for the financiers who were making fortunes out of the misery of man. No effort was made to protect the still existing watershed or to store water in natural basins or to maintain the levels of wells and lakes.

In fact, the government bonded itself to build ditches so that more lands might be available for the speculator.

Under the present administration, not only is every effort being made to mitigate the effect of the drouth in terms of human suffering, but for the first time in our history the government is taking steps to restore the natural watershed, to build catch basins and maintain lake levels.

In addition, the government is attempting a long-time program of rehabilitation in moving some families from the driest sections to ones more favorable; a broad program of land utilization is being put into effect.

We might sum it all up by saying that neither man nor government can prevent the drouths once they have started. But man can lessen the human suffering in connection with them, and governments, by long-term planning, can prevent the abuses which lead to soil erosions and the disappearance of natural watersheds.

One party, when it was in power over a long period of years, consistently followed the policy of individualism. The other party, during its few short years of ruling, faithfully adhered to long-term planning in relation to human needs. That is the essential difference.—Minnesota Leader.

THE DROP IN CATTLE PRICES

Republican Campaign Manager Hamilton is doubtless an excellent lawyer. One may confidently believe that he can reel off a "Writ of Certiorari' or a 'Habeas Corpus' without batting an eye, or even recite the Rule in Shelly's case . . .

We are quite willing to concede that in these respects he is probably our superior by a considerable margin. For a 'Certiorari' means about as much to us as that certain mark on the Chinese laundry ticket which resembles a three-legged potato bug carrying an umbrella.

* * * *

And if he had confined himself to such matters, all would have been well. But he didn't. He became over-confident, and in a moment of recklessness branched off into the subject of cows.

And there he blundered! For it is to be doubted whether he even knows the starboard side of a cow from her port side.

* * * *

Cattle prices had dropped, quoth Hamilton much to the injury of the Mid-West farmer; and, of course, it was all the fault of the administration and its reciprocal trade agreement with Canada. He let on that if the Republicans had been in the saddle, nothing like that could possibly have happened.

* * * *

We seem to remember, however, that on a certain occasion during the happy Republican days of Herbert Hoover, we tried to sell a cow which weighed about 1,000 pounds in her socks.

And we have a very distinct recollection that the buyer wouldn't even look at her till we threw in the cow-bell. Then we got $3.50 net for the whole critter, less the 10c exchange it cost to cash the check.

* * * *

It bothers us, too, that Government food statistics show no appreciable drop in the retail price of beef. We wonder whether Ham would mind hinting to our butcher that prices have gone down scandalously.

* * * *

Secretary Hull says that Ham is talking through his hat—or at least through his carefully marcelled hair . . .

For the Secretary has taken a peek into the book and has found that while there has, admittedly, been a slight increase in imports, it has been almost entirely in cattle of less than 700 pounds.

And, strangely, on cattle of this weight the rates are still the same as they were in Hoover's time.

* * * *

There are about 60 million cattle in the United States. And during the current year, 164,000 had been imported up to July 25th.

Figured in understandable terms the total import would give each inhabitant of the United States an 8-ouce hunk for one meal, without deducting for gristle.

* * * *

But, of course, Ham has an election to win. And in elections, as in love and war, most anything goes.

But it might be safer if he talked about something more of us know less about . . the "Constitooshun", for instance. For nobody is agreed on the Constitution. At least, the Supreme Court isn't. They're usually split on almost every decision.

Capitol News Review

(By A. L. Harris)

In the face of a threat of the worst forest fire since 1917, state and national agencies moved fast last week. Senator Elmer A. Benson wired Washington for federal aid. With Victor A. Christgau, WPA Administrator for Minnesota, he made a tour of the stricken districts and submitted a report to the federal government. . . . .

Thanks to Senator Benson's timely assistance, it is expected that Minnesota citizens of the fire stricken areas will receive cash aid from WPA and aid in re-establishing their homes through rural resettlement. . . . .

At the same time, Attorney General Harry H. Peterson called a special meeting of the State Executive Council to consider the needs of our northern citizens and to appropriate funds for present emergencies. Some of the members of the Executive Council attempted to make a political football out of emergency aid to fire sufferers, but Attorney General Harry Peterson insisted that human wants and needs came first. The Council appropriated $100,000 to fight the forest fires and $50,000 for the relief of sufferers in the area. . . . .

From his summer home at Gull Lake Governor Olson authorized Adjutant General E. A. Walsh of the Minnesota National Guard to use the militia if necessary to fight the fires or to remove residents of threatened areas. . . . .

While there are still some today who think an individual should take care of himself under all emergencies, in the face of a natural disaster such as drouth, fire or flood, we all admit that the individual is helpless unless he is aided by others. This is the duty of progressive states. Minnesota will not fail in its duty.

Governor Floyd B. Olson is feeling fine and putting on weight at his summer home at Gull Lake where he is recuperating from an operation which he underwent at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester three weeks ago. The Governor plans to commence his campaign for the United States Senate with a series of radio addresses in September.

The Minnesota Old Age Assistance law provides applicants with ample legal means for assuring a full and fair disposition of their individual cases. Methods are provided wherein an applicant or recipient who is aggrieved or dissatisfied with the decisions made by a county agency, may appeal to the state agency for hearing and adjudication. The division of appeals of the state agency is set up and will be functioning fully within two weeks. Appeals from 28 counties are now being donsidered.

Prices of foodstuffs in the city are steadily rising. Canned vegetables are now almost as expensive as the garden variety and the outlook for the winter is even less hopeful. Our corn crop, according to government forecast, will be the lowest for 50 years and from all indications we will have to import wheat. Oats, barley, rye and other crops are all from 40 to 50 per cent of the normal yield, and while the hay crop is good, it is still approximately 15 million tons less than last year. . . . .

A good portion of the potato crop is ruined and milk production has fallen off to such an extent that we can look for a 20 per cent increase in the price of butter next winter. . . . .

With these facts in mind it will be necessary to scrutinize relief allotments and old age pensions very carefully, for what was a subsistence allowance in July may be a starvation allowance in January.

Paul A. Amidon, deputy state commissioner of education since 1934, has just been appointed superintendent of schools for the city of St. Paul. Mr. Amidon formerly was superintendent of schools at Litchfield and has taught at Upsala and other places. He has a bachelor of science and a master of science in education degree from the University of Minnesota.

The battle of the banners in New Ulm seems to have ended in a defeat for the Landon-Knox,Nelson-Christianson forces. . . . .

In order to refresh your memory, some time ago the Republicans painted a sign on a fence built around a corner where a new building was being constructed. The sign admonished citizens to "Vote American"—and Republican. City officials objected to the use of city property for political advertising purposes and painted the sign out. The Republicans countered by putting up a removable Landon-Knox banner which they guarded during the day and took in at night. . . . .

Finis to the episode was written when Judge Fred W. Senn of Waseca granted an injunction, prohibiting the Republicans from placing any banner or advertisements on the fence on city property.

Certain Republicans, it has been ascertained, plan to enter a slate of candidates for the November elections on the Union ticket. Renegate Farmer-Laborites have already been approached and it is understood the Democrats are also under consideration. . . .

Voters of Minnesota, familiar with the tactics of these reactionaries in 1934 when they filed Arthur B. Townley as an independent candidate for governor in the fall election against Floyd B. Olson, are not surprised at this strategy. The Romans had a motto: "Divide and govern." The Republicans realizing in Minnesota that they cannot govern in a fair election, are seeking to divide the opposition. It is hardly likely, however, that their tactics will be any more successful in 1936 than they were in 1934.

For years the reactionaries opposed women's interest in politics because they feared that women might not fall for their strategems and schemes. There is something inherently honest in most women and the connivers in politics feared them. It may be that there is also something honest in women in writing when they express their opinions, particularly in relation to the home schools, and needy people. . . . .

We have seen a recent example of this when the only woman political commentator in the state of Minnesota, although working for a reactionary paper, has had the courage to express her views regarding the social policies and the philosophy of Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for the presidency. . . . . .

While a man would have feared to reveal the truth, she did not hesitate to publicize Governor Landon's niggardly relief for the aged of $5.30 a month, the fact that school teachers work for sweatshop wages, and the further fact that children of 14 are employed in factories and mines. . . . .

It may be that the Republicans are right and that the entrance of women into politics will mean that for the first time truth will come out, even in our largest dailies.

The proposal made before a recent meeting of the Minnesota Public Safety Committee for a 20 cent increase in the automobile license fee for a state safety program faces legal obstacles. Some attorneys say that it may be unconstitutional, conflicting with the Minnesota principle that motor vehicles taxes must be used for highway purposes. If this is the case, some modification of the plan must be worked out. The Public Safety Committee has made a notable record and deserves legislative support for a permanent safety organization.

All chiefs of police in towns of 2,500 or more population and 81 county sheriffs are now cooperating with the state Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, according to Melvin Passolt, chief of the Bureau. There are nearly 54,000 finger prints now on file in the office under the same system used by the federal government.

"RAIN MAN" FAILS TO BRING DOWN SHOWERS

A Weary Willie, posing as a "rain man" stopped off in Olivia long enough last week to test his rain-making abilities. The old gent parked along the railroad tracks west of the village and proceeded to try his chemicals with the greatest of faith. His method added humor to the incident. Bed brick was used in the crude construction of a fireplace, where he burned a mixture of kerosene and "chemicals". He stated that he added some tar to the mixture in order to bring a heavier rain. The "rain man" failed, but so have a number of other signs the past few weeks, including an east wind, sun setting behind a cloud, a new moon, and sweating water pipes.

Landon's Bridge

The kids are playing a new game now: "Landon's Bridge Is Falling Down." It is a budget-balancing stunt, with everything coming out even except the relief clients, who go hungry. Toward the end of the game the kid representing Landon hires another kid named William Allen White to boost for him, and the game ends up with William Allen White alienating the Germans, Norwegians, and Swedes. It's fun. Try it.

The Hitler Olympics

Hitler won all the games at Berlin recently, except a few that were won by American negro athletes. Jesse Owens of Ohio university, in particular, found out that Aryans are superior to all other races, even though negroes can run faster and jump farther than the runningest and jumpingest Aryans Hitler can invite to his games. Owens broke the world's record in the 100-meter event, but the Nazi officials disclaimed the record for, said they, he had a wind on his back which materially aided him. They didn't say anything about the wind when he won the running broad jump with a sensational leap of nearly twenty-seven feet.

But Hitler got back at Owens and other Negro record-breakers when the time came to shake hands with the winners. Adolf simply left the stand before Owens and his comrades reached it.

"Without politics there are no sports," quoth Bruno Malitz, sports leader of the Nazi storm troopers. What he really meant was that there are no sports without politics—in Germany.

The Journal's Sanctions

The Minneapolis Journal, in common with all dailies, has faithfully reported all the horror stories coming out of Spain, and fell hook, line and sinker for the fascist propaganda spewed forth by foreign news agencies. When it seemed that the fascist armies were winning against the people's army in Spain, the news was played up sensationally; but the fact of a stady, stubborn crushing of the revolt by the people's government has been played down until now it cannot be denied any longer.

The Journal calls for "strict neutrality" and opines that whichever party wins out the Spanish people will be put under "cruel, despotic rule". We translate "strict neutrality" into "sanctions" and wonder if the Journal remembers a certain man named Mussolini and a country named Ethiopia. At that time, with the fascist armies entering a peaceful country, the Journal was in favor of abandoning the sanctions, because they could not be enforced anyway. Under the present circumstances, sanctions would mean only that the Spanish people would be hampered in their fight for complete freedom, while their enemies would not be affected one particle.

With this behind us, we can expect the new People's Government in Spain to be misrepresented from now on in the press of this country.

MRS. REEP IS HONORED AT FAREWELL RECEPTION

Mrs. T. Reep, who will leave soon to make her home in Northfield, Minn., was guest of honor at a farewell reception at the Trinity church Friday evening. Seventy-five guests attended. For the occasion the rooms were decorated beautifully with arrangements of garden flowers. The lights were shaded into pastel shades by means of colored streamers. The guests were entertained with a brief program which included a solo "Oh Friend of Mine", sung by Mrs. Dora Granum, accompaniment for which was played by Mrs. O. F. Mellby, several impromptu talks, and assembly singing led by Miss Maud Johnson of Red Wing, Minn. A purse of money was presented to Mrs. Reep as a farewell gift, and refreshments were served.

RED LAKE FALLS WINS KITTENBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Of the six teams participating in the soft ball league tournament held at the Lincoln field in this city Sunday afternoon, the Red Lake Falls team became the champion by virtue of its victory over the Smiley team in the deciding game of the tournament. A large delegation of fans from out-of-town was present as well as a large gathering of local people. The tournament culminated a summer of soft ball league activities.

Red Lake Falls won over Newfolden in the opening game of the tournament by a score of 8 to 7. Smiley defeated the local team 4 to 2 and Rocksbury and Wyandotte were tied at the close of their game. By virtue of their victories in the preliminary games, Red Lake Falls and Smiley clashed in the final game to decide the championship. At the close of the game the two teams were tied, each team having scored five runs. In an extra inning, Red Lake Falls won the championship by defeating Smiley 8 to 7.

Ole Engelstad was in charge of arrangements for the tournament.

FOR CAROL REEP

Carol Reep, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Reep, who will leave next week to make her home in Northfield, Minn., was guest of honor at a farewell surprise given by Marguerite Simonson last week. Guests were the guest of honor and Frances Stenberg, Elaine Douglas, Lois Jordahl, and Norma Jean Looker. The group presented a reading lamp to the honor guest.

JOINT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Ruth and Miss Helen Wassgren shared honors at a joint birthday surprise at which their mother, Mrs. Abbie Wassgren, was hostess Tuesday evening. The guests included in addition to the two honor guests, the Misses Margaret Dillon, Martha Ristau, Jean Frissell, Ruth Bredeson, Adeline Lindberg, Verona Urdahl, Avis Arhart, and Adele Holmstrom, and Mrs. Ed. Carlson. The evening was spent informally and refreshments were served. Gifts were presented to the guests of honor.

BERENICE LOFTNESS IS BRIDE OF G. M. ELSTAD

The groom's father read the service Sunday at the marriage of Miss Berenice Loftness, daughter of Mrs. Palma Loftness to George M. Elstad, son of Rev. and Mrs. O. H. Elstad of Minnewaukon, N. Dak. The ceremony took place in the Trinity Lutheran church at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Summer flowers, palms, and ferns decorated the church for the event.

Before the exchange of vows, a program of nuptial music was played by Mildred Engen Hamilton at the pipe organ. Delta Wold Myrom sang "I Love You Truly". The "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin's "Wedding March" was played for the processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional. The bride's mother, wearing a dress of navy blue lace and a corsage, was escorted to her pew by her son Einer.

Miss Elvina Loftness, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing yellow lace over yellow satin. She wore green accessories and carried gladioli in mixed tints. Bridesmaids were Miss Palma Hornseth, the bride's cousin, and Miss Viola Loftness, the bride's sister. Both were dressed in mousseline de soie gowns in tints of peach and blue and carried red and yellow roses. The flower girl, little Beverly Brown of Moorhead, wore a floor length, full-skirted dress of yellow organza. Carl Franson of Karlstad was best man. Ushers were Ralph Nelson and Arthur Myrom, both of this city.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Peter Hornseth of this city. Her wedding gown was of white satin over which she wore a tulle veil of train length, which was trimmed with lace and fastened with orange blossoms to a pleated halo head dress. Simplicity of design characterized the gown. A row of tiny buttons extended down the back from the small turned down collar, and from the elbow to the wrist of her long sleeves. Her bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses and baby breath.

Mrs. Palma Loftness gave a lawn reception at her home to eighty guests following the ceremony. Long white tapers banked with flowers decoroted the table at which Mrs. Carl Franson, the bride's sister presided.

Out-of-town guests were Rev. and Mrs. O. H. Elstad of Minnewaukon, N. Dak., Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Nelson, Earl and Lowell of Fairfax, Mr and Mrs. Obert Grover of Breckenridge, Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Monson of Fertile, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellis and Ruth of Fergus Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Elstad of Faribault, Mr. A. U. Hamrum of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Monson of Fertile, Miss Bonnie Solberg of Heimdahl, N. Dak., Mrs. Roscoe Brown and Beverly of Moorhead, Miss Francelia Iverson of Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George Cheney and Doris of Warren, Maxine Franson of Karlstad, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lyksett and David of Fergus Falls, Mr. A. Heggenvik of Minneapolis, Miss Norma Vasenden of Fertile, and Miss Dorothy Erickson of Karlstad.

The bride was graduated from the local high school in the class of '29 and from Concordia college, Moorhead, in the class of 1934. Mr. Elstad is a graduate of St. Olaf college and is instructor in history and music in the high school at Denton, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. Elstad are traveling to various points in Minnesota. For travel the bride wore a tan and brown ensemble with brown accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Elstad will reside in Denton, Mont., after September 1.

BIRTHDAY CLUB MEETS

Mrs. B. J. Holum entertained the members of the birthday club at her home Saturday evening. Bridge was played at two tables, with Mrs. James Steen [illegible] the prize for high score. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

MARRIAGE IS ANNOUNCED

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Gra[illegible] Sandum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sandum, to Woodrow Kost of Brainerd formerly assistant manager of the local Montgomery Ward Co. store. The wedding took place Tuesday, August 18, at the home of Mr. Kost's brother at Paynesville, Minn. Mr. and Mrs. Kost, who are spending a few days at Detroit Lakes will motor to this city for the week end, while enroute to Winnipeg and other northern points.

JOINT FAREWELL PARTY

Complimentary to Miss Barbara and Miss Carol Reep, who will leave soon to reside in Northfield, Minn., Miss Mary Chommie and Miss Peggy Jacobson were hostesses to nine guests at Miss Jacobson's home Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in playing various games and refreshments were served by the hostesses. The hostesses presented each honor guest with a gift in remembrance of the occasion. Present in addition to the two guests of honor were the Misses Marion Oden, Joyce Bennes, Joan Dahlquist, Elizabeth Dahlen, Lois Morell, Marion Green and Harriet Simonson.

PARCEL SHOWER

Mrs. Neary Louze and Mrs. C. Higinbothum were joint hostesses at the latter's home at a shower for Mrs. Barney Davidson Thursday, August 6. The following names were included on the list of guests: the Mesdames Barney Davidson, guest of honor, Chas. Langer, LeRoy Groslie, James Murphy, Andrew Hagen, James Johnson, O. A. Lindland, Henry Van Pelt, Nick Davidson, Edmond Archambault, LaMar Edwards, Neary Louze, O. P. Johnson, Adolph Hagen, Jorgen Austad, Anna Carlson, E. H. Besancon, and C. Higinbothman; and the Misses Florence Christofferson, Mabel Christofferson, Bertha Johnson, Thelma Loberg, Olga Nelson, and Phyllis Besancon.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

The congregation of the Gatzke and Grygla Lutheran churches entertained at a farewell surprise reception in honor of Olaf A. Anderson, son of Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Anderson of Grygla, who will leave August 26 for Tacoma, Wash., to serve as student assistant pastor in the Central Lutheran church of which Dr. E. M. Hegge is pastor. The reception was held Sunday evening, August 16, at the Grygla Lutheran parsonage. A program of music was rendered by the St. Peter choir, Our Savior's Choral club, and a girls trio composed of the Misses Clara, Margaret and Caroline Lillevold. Rev. S. T. Anderson spoke in behalf of the assembled guests and presented the honor guest with a purse containing $85, a gift from the congregations. Olaf Anderson spoke in response. Refreshments were served.

OBITUARIES

MRS. ANNA MORKEN

Funeral rites were held Monday, August 17, at the Bethesda Lutheran church, Rev. S. T. Anderson of Grygla officiating, for Mrs. Anna Morken, who died August 13 at her home in Spruce Grove township. Interment was made in the Bethesda cemetery. Mrs. Morken was seventy-six years of age at the time of her death. She was born August 19, 1859, in Gulbransdalen, Norway. She came from Norway to Hawley, Minn., in 1886, and on November 11 of that year was married to Peter Morken in Becker county. In 1911 they moved to Hammre township, and in 1927 to Bemidji, moving back to Hammre two years later. In 1931 she moved to Spruce Grove, where she spent the remaining years of her life. Mrs. Morken's surviving relatives are her husband; her daughters, Mrs. A. N. Thompson of Hawley, Minn., and Mrs. George Svengingson of Crookston; her sons Henry and John, both at home; and her sisters, Mrs. Oline Leven of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. Otting Olson of St. Louis Park, Minneapolis; also two brothers, Andrew and Hans Kleven, both of Grygla. Her parents and three sisters and one brother preceded her in death.

GILBERT BAKKE

Gilbert Bakke, who died August 15, at his home in Sanders township, was born March 14, 1860 in Norway. He came to the United States in 1882, and settled at Northwood, N. Dak., where he lived for twenty-three years. He was married on November 1, 1895, to Miss [illegible] Marque in Grand Forks. In July of the year 1905 he moved to Sanders township where he resided until the time of his death. Funeral services were conducted at the Larson chapel in this city Wednesday afternoon, Rev. J. O. Jacobson pastor of the Norwegian Evangelical Free church officiating. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery. Mr. Bakke is survived by his wife, his son Jessie of Sanders township; his daughters, Mrs. Peter Lindquist of this city, Mrs. Grace Miller of this city, and Miss Leona Bakke of Minneapolis; and a sister and brother in Norway.

FROM A PRAIRIE STATE

Miss Rosina Lechner, Otter Creek, N. Da., writes: "I have used Dr. Peter's Kuriko several times for stomach distress, belching and nervousness, and every time I found relief". This is the experience of hundreds of thousands of people who have used this valuable herb remedy. It tones the stomach, regulates the bowels, increases the urinary flow and eliminates injurious waste matter from the system. Thereby it has a beneficial effect upon the general state of health. Dr. Peter's Kuriko is not sold in drug stores; it can only be obtained from authorized local agents. For information write to Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons Company, 2501 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dozing at the fireside, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he assists Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday.

CHAPTER III.—The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

CHAPTER II.—Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss.

CHAPTER IV.—Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder. Barry suspects the Filipino servant of Kelly. When Barry visits the Hambidges, the judge denies the accident he witnessed occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, where such an accident had occurred. Patricia bids him, "Watch your step, Mr. Gilbert."

CHAPTER V.—Barry, on Evans' advice, advertises for witnesses to the fatal accident which occurred near the scene of the Kelly murder, believing the taxi driver who had had the murderer as a fare might respond. Rogers is indicted.

CHAPTER VI.—Barry learns Mrs. Kelly had been told of a phone call to Kelly from one Betty Barclay, named in her divorce proceedings against Kelly, and had gone wild. The Duke receives the $2,000 from his "mother." A taxi driver answers the ad. He identifies a singular passenger he had had on the night of the murder as Hambidge. Barry tells Pat what he has discovered. The judge had seen Kelly after Rogers had been there. Barry insists the judge tell the truth to free Rogers, or he will. Pat threatens to expose him as a thief. Barry tells Pat he loves her. The judge admits quarreling with Kelly and that Kelly was dead when he left.

CHAPTER VII.—Judge Hambidge further reveals that Kelly threatened him with something he had in his pocket, and ordered him from the house when Hambidge refused to favor Kelly in the suit. Before the judge left, some one struck down Kelly. Barry suspects Mrs. Kelly.

CHAPTER VIII.—Pat takes Peggy and her youngster to her home. Barry meets Luis Morano at the Cocoanut Bar. He describes Morano to Harwood as having an impediment in his speech. Evans reports Mrs. Kelly had quarreled with Kelly the fatal night. Kelly then had fired the Filipino, calling him a lousy spy. Barry's "mother" cables: "Sailing for home Sunday."

"That's true," Hambidge admitted. "But Nolan was drunk last night, you say. And some parts of his story simply don't hold water. I don't believe there was anything 'queer' between Mrs. Kelly and the Filipino. Kelly's finding that out wouldn't account for his calling the man a 'lousy spy,' would it?"

"No," Barry retorted. "But listen. If the Chink was a 'lousy spy,' he got paid for it, didn't he? Wouldn't that explain Mrs. Kelly's giving him 'coin and jewelry?' And everything else? The Chink's reporting Betty Barclay's message, and all the rest of it? I tell you, this story's as straight as a string. Betty Barclay went on the road with her show about the time Mrs. Kelly sued for divorce. I found that out some time ago. She got back the day of the murder, and phoned Kelly. Mrs. Kelly learned of that from the Chink, and lit into Mike. Then Mike lit into the Chink, and the Chink killed him. I think we can prove that."

The Judge shook his head.

"Anyway, it certainly establishes reasonable doubt of Jack's guilt."

"They can't convict Jack," the Judge insisted. "Peter says so, and I've never known Peter to be wrong when he made an assertion like that. But acquittal means waiting for the trial, and waiting for the trial means that Jack will still be in jail when his father returns."

Pat remained silent, but, the next morning, on the beach, she drew Barry away from the little group engaged in railroad construction.

"You were right in the beginning," Pat said. "There was only one thing to do. Father saw Kelly alive after Peg's husband left him, and we should have said so.

"I can't stand seeing Peggy," Pat continued. "Was that what you had in mind when you sent her here? Anyway, it's too terrible. She comes down to breakfast, looking—well, you know. You knew about trouble like that—all night long—alone—and I didn't. I do now, and we've got to 'come clean.'"

"I don't think it matters," Barry replied. "I still think we can free Jack without that."

"How soon?"

"By next Wednesday."

Pat nodded.

"All right," she said. "We'll wait until Wednesday."

Barry had never seen her more charming.

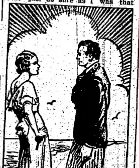
As they walked down the beach, to rejoin the others, he asked, "Are you ever going to confess how you found out about me?"

Pat laughed.

"That was too easy. The night of Marian's visit, you told me you'd taken the name of Barry Gilbert. And it had a curiously familiar sound. After a moment, I remembered that I'd once seen an actor called Barry Gilbert in a war picture."

"And then?"

"Then you shut your hand in the door. The expression of mingled surprise and pain in your face—that was what had kept the picture and the actor in my mind. You were the man who'd come out of the drinking place, laughing and talking, and been shot. I was sure of that—just as sure as I was that you'd crushed your fingers deliberately to keep us from knowing that, unlike the Jack Ridder you were supposed to be, you couldn't play a violin any more than you could play Hamlet."



"I'm Glad You Found Out," Barry Said.

"I'm glad you found out," Barry said. "I'm glad I haven't been deceiving you, at all events."

They had reached the railroad builders.

"Pat!" Jack called. "Pat! We've finished—"

"Jacky! You mustn't call Miss Hambidge 'Pat.'"

"Everybody else does."

"I like it," Patricia came to the rescue. "We're Pat and Peg to each other now; why shouldn't I be Pat to Jacky?"

It was almost a miracle, Barry decided. Was this the same girl of whom, only a couple of months ago, her father had said, "Pat, for short, though it takes courage to call her that."

The change wasn't all his doing, or Peg's. Something else had contributed to softening Pat, and making her sweeter and lovelier. It was ironic, Barry felt, and bitter—that she should be the loveliest when he was losing her. What of his plan to come back for her—"Some day, when I've made good?" A girl like that might marry an ex-vagabond; she certainly couldn't marry an ex-convict.

Barry drove back to town Sunday evening, without having put anybody's house in order. He had dined with the Hambidges, and gone over there in the morning "to see Jacky start for his ride."

"Well, our trial's set for two weeks from today," said Winslow when Barry called at his office Monday morning.

"I'm still hoping there won't be any trial."

"Meaning that you think you've got Mrs. Kelly?"

That was the question Barry had dreaded. Winslow's frank amusement at his "sleuthing" nettled him, and made him feel foolish. Especially now that he was compelled to admit, "No; I'm afraid you were right about Mrs. Kelly. She slept at her sister's that night."

"Well, then," Peter asked, "who's the latest candidate?"

"Do you remember reading me your cross examination of the Filipino?"

"A few notes [illegible]"

"You found a lot of holes in the boy's story?"

"Yes."

But Peter was still amused.

"Well, I've got a few more," Barry said, "and a motive."

He sat down, and Peter opposite him. Barry repeated what Evans had told him of the dinner with Nolan.

"Well," Peter remarked at the end, "that settles the case against Rogers."

"You think so?"

"Obviously. If Nolan sticks to his story. We say Nolan's testimony establishes that the decanter was downstairs all the time Rogers was upstairs. But we've got to make the jury believe it."

"Or the district attorney."

Winslow shook his head.

"The district attorney wouldn't move for dismissal of an indictment on that evidence."

"But—"

"You're perfectly sure that the Filipino killed Kelly," Winslow went on. "I'm not. And the district attorney wouldn't be. The Filipino was angry. And the decanter was downstairs. That's all there really is to that story."

"And Kelly was alive an hour after Rogers left."

"That's what you've got to prove to the jury. My own guess is that the decanter had been carried into the dining room when the murderer entered the house."

"After Nolan went home?"

"Yes, and after the Filipino went to bed."

"And that man—"

"You're sure it was a man?"

"Very sure. And that man was some one who had better reason than we've found yet for hating or dreading Mike Kelly."

Barry rose.

Peter had picked a glove off his desk, and was turning it right side out.

"Have you ever thought of Luis Morano?" Barry asked.

Winslow let the glove fall.

"Why?"

"He seems to have had some reason for hating Kelly."

"You mean that row in the Cocoanut Bar?" Peter said. "Oddly enough, that's why I haven't thought of Morano. He was telephoning me from the Cocoanut Bar—about the row—at the time of the murder.

"Luis always came to me when he was in trouble. And he called me, at home, just after one that morning, to say that one of his girls was in jail, and would I take the case. I could hear that jazz of his."

Barry stooped for the glove.

"Well, that's that," he remarked. "Kelly was threatening Morano, you know, and—"

But Peter was smiling again.

"You can make a case against almost anyone," he said. "But a case that'll stand up—that's another thing."

Barry grinned sheepishly.

Winslow pressed a button.

"Stop worrying," he advised Barry. "We're going to free Rogers. If we have to get the guilty man to do it, we'll get him, but let's give the court a chance first."

"I guess we'll have to," Barry conceded.

Peter's secretary opened the door.

"What's Nolan's first name?" Peter asked Barry. "And where's his garage? Got it, Miss Clark? Got it, Miss Clark? Now, get Nolan in here this afternoon."

He looked up at Barry.

"Don't mind my joking," he said. "Something tells me you did a grand job when you turned up Mr. Nolan."

"Peter's wonderfully kind," Barry told Harwood that evening, "but he makes me feel as small as an author's name in a motion picture advertisement."

"I don't think Winslow means to make anyone feel small," Ernie answered. "He's too big for that. It's the small men who've got to make other people smaller, in self-defense. The trouble with Winslow is that he's generally right, and that's trying, no matter how kind anyone may be about it."

"Winslow's a great lawyer," he went on, "and a swell guy. He's had his own troubles, too. Ever meet his wife?"

"Once."

"He's nearly wrecked his career for her, you know. She ran away from home with some youngster in a military school. The kid turned crook, and the cops killed him. Then she married Winslow. The tabloids played the story up all over the place, and Mrs. Winslow crashed, and had to be taken to Europe. She went to pieces again two or three years ago, and Winslow closed the office and went to live in the South of France. The money gave out, I guess. Anyway, they didn't stay long. Of course, that telephone message doesn't prove anything."

"You mean Morano's message to Winslow?"

"Yes. Luis might have sent that at one o'clock, and still've been in time for the murder."

"Is there any chance that Luis didn't send it?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"It occurs to me that Peter might be shielding some one."

"Whom? Morano?" Harwood shook his head. "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer. As a matter of fact, I know Morano phoned him."

"Who told you?"

"Violet Fane."

"Then you've been to the Cocoanut Bar?"

"Yes, I went Saturday, and met all your cronies. Miss Fane says Luis followed Peggy Rogers around to the police station, and then came back to the Bar, and called up his lawyer, and drove to Morristown."

"At one o'clock?"

"Yes."

"How about faking an alibi?"

"You reminded me it could be done," Barry went on.

Ernie turned suddenly.

"Ever strike you as queer," he asked, "that nobody ever connected Kelly's murder with the Jefferson Street grab?"

Barry couldn't trust himself to reply.

"They were pulled off about the same time. As I remember it, Judge Hambidge's decision was handed down the day after the killing."

Barry remained silent.

"Kelly stood to make a million or two on that deal," Harwood continued. "Those Jefferson Street houses were pretty decent once. Then they went slummy. Through agents, Kelly bought 'em in, one by one, for little or nothing, and turned 'em over to a phoney corporation to sell to the city at a huge profit. Some of the original owners may have been a little bit sore, don't you think?"

The conversation was drifting into safer channels, and, relieved, Barry let it flow on.

"As a matter of fact," Harwood resumed, "some one was—very sore. He called me up, the day of the murder, and offered to squeal. He wouldn't give me his name, but he said he'd be here, at ten-thirty that night, to deliver the goods on Kelly."

"And then?"

"Then he didn't show up."

"Somebody got to him."

"Probably. And then somebody killed Kelly."

Barry asked, "Is that the clue you had in mind when you said, 'Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day?'"

Harwood nodded.

"Yes, but, as I remarked later, that guy who phoned might have been anybody. I didn't have a darn thing to go on except that he had a soft voice and a funny impediment in his speech."

"And then—"

"Then you told me about Morano, and I went to the Cocoanut Bar. The guy that phoned me was Morano, all right. But what does that mean? Not a thing, maybe. If Morano did hop in his car at one o'clock that night—"

He paused.

"I've got a dozen men on this trail. Now, I'm going to send somebody to Morristown. Not you. They know you. Your job is to lay low. Morano hasn't the faintest idea who I am. I told him I came from Grand Rapids. But—"

The city editor was pacing the floor.

"My God, how this picture begins fitting together," he cried. "Morano threatens to spill the beans. Some one tells Kelly. Kelly goes to the Cocoanut Bar. With two strong-arm men. Why? To silence a squealer. That was around eight o'clock, and, at ten-thirty, the squealer didn't squeal. Why? Because Kelly had something on him."

Barry was on his feet, too, now.

"Something in writing," he said.

"Sure! The paper he accused Peggy Rogers of trying to steal."

"Yes," Barry went on, "and get this: somebody did try. Violet Fane, probably. Peggy Rogers says Violet had just left the table when the row started. And that Luis was talking to Vi, outside the dressing rooms, just before that.

"—What did he say? He said, 'I'll send this dame to jail, and you to the hot spot.' And you can't send a man to the electric chair for picking pockets."

"No."

"But you might, if you knew of something else he'd done, and had the proof of it. There was a paper, and it had disappeared when the body was found. Who got it? Morano. And not in the Cocoanut Bar, because it was still in Kelly's pocket at midnight."

Harwood laid down his pipe.

"How do you know that?"

"Somebody told me."

"Jack Rogers?"

"No."

Harwood's eyes narrowed.

"Was it Judge Hambidge?"

Barry didn't answer.

"If Winslow's shielding anyone it's Judge Hambidge," Harwood said. "Judge Hambidge, or some one close to him. I've been thinking that ever since you put the idea in my head. The judge has always been a straight shooter. Why did he write that decision? Was that paper a threat to him, too?"

Barry said, "I don't know."

"I don't either. But I'm going to find out before Saturday."

"Can I help?"

Ernie looked at him.

"No," he replied, curtly. "For the present, I want you to keep out of this."

PARROT TALKS IN TWO TONGUES, LAUGHS, SINGS

So you no speka da Spanish, eh? Well, that's all right too, because Lorita, 15-year-old worldly-wise parrot pet of Edward Ranger of Detroit Lakes can speak English just as well, although she prefers her native tongue. Hailed as the most cosmopolitan parrot in existence, Lorita has visited Europe, South America, Central America, and the West Indies. Highly educated, she talks, sings, whistles, coughs and speaks two languages. Most of her time is spent in whistling boat calls—calls for mess and watches—which she learned while on board ship. When she starts to go in for some close harmony, she usually picks "Anchor Awiegh" for her selection. Abnormally large for a parrot, Lorita tips the scales at about 1½ pounds. Ranger, her owner and erstwhile seaman, purchased Lorita in 1928 from a native pet shop dealer in the Panama Canal Zone.

GRYGLA FARMERS UNION LOCAL HOLDS MEETING

A well attended meeting of the Grygla Local of the Farmers Union Cooperative Activities was held in the Sandmark school house north-east of Grygla Monday evening.

Speakers of the evening on the program were George Blake, local organizer, Gilbert A. Bratland, M. McLaughlin of the Union Activities from St. Paul. Mr. Blake stressed the importance of unity of purpose in farm organisation and co-operation. Mr. McLaughlin explained the rise of the organization and stated that he had been a member of the Farmers Union for about 1[illegible] years. ality Girls. We find all of our business and professional men as Broadway and Hollywood show girls, dressed in frills and ruffles a-plenty. We have for dancers, Broadway Gold Diggers, Hula Girls, Parisian Cuties, Queens of Burlesque, as well as other famous feminine beauties.

To make the Thief River Falls Personality Parade complete, we cannot leave out the younger generation—the ultra modern, sophisticated generation of kiddies five to seven years of age. In the Thief River Falls Personality Parade they discard all traditions and break all precedents by performing a wedding to syncopated rythms.

Then we have more—forty—beautiful chorus girls sing catchy songs and dance clever dance steps.

We can't tell you all about the Personality Parade. You have to see it to appreciate it. So treat yourself and your family to a holiday and celebration.

Don't forget the dates—Thursday and Friday August 27 and 28.

world over.

Paul Lundgren, local attorney and secretary of the Thief River Falls Civic and Commerce association, praised the people of River Valley for the fine spirit of cooperation they have shown by their enterprises. Like, Mr. Harris, he agreed that cooperation was necessary and held that a great deal of our world's business ills was due to lack of cooperation and the improper manner of distribution. The cooperative spirit will overcome this, he contended.

Mr. Bjorharaa spoke in the Norwegian language, his speech being of a general nature, consisting of humor intermingled with actual occurrances a usual excellent talk so much enjoyed by his audiences.

Automotive Meeting Is Well Attended

Following the meeting Eveready Flashlights were given as door prizes. The lucky winners were:

The new all-talking motion picture, "Going Places", is a sequel to a picture shown at similar meetings last year and portrays in interesting and entertaining fashion problems concerning the cooling systems of automobiles which almost daily confront the automotive industry. It also convincingly points out how dealers can assure their car driving customers of better cooling system performance.

According to E. L. Johnson, of the Falls Supply Company, local jobbers of Prestone in Thief River Falls, the increase in the use of Prestone has been almost phenomenal during the past few years. Women's Tennis Tourney Reaches Semi-Finals

The first women's tennis tournament ever held in this city has six players still left in the running. In one semi-final encounter Edna Lee takes on the winner of the Merton Ward and Flora Schroeder match. The other semi-final match finds Evangeline Douville pitted against the winner of the Eleanor Harris and Inga Loken match. The dope favors Lee and Douville to meet in the finals.

The semi-finals will be held tonight and Friday night, while the championship match will take place Saturday night at six o'clock.

The results of the first round matches were: Edna Lee defeated Margaret McKechnie 6-1, 6-1; Merton Ward won from Ione Halldin 6-4 6-3; Eleanor Harris took Marion Green 6-2, 6-1; Inga Loken toppled Marjorie Helquist 6-1, 6-0; Evangeline Douville eliminated Elizabeth Dahlen 6-3, 6-1; Delores Urdahl won from Evelyn Tungseth by default; Flora Schroeder and Lois Morell drew byes.

The quarter-final scores were: Lee over Morell 6-1, 6-0; Douville put out Urdahl by a 6-0, 6-2 count. The Harris-Loken and Schroeder-Ward matches will determine who the other two semi-finalists will be.

The tournament is being sponsored by the local unit of the National Youth Administration, and is under the direction of Marvin Benson.

Pretzel-Benders Hold Annual Golf Tourney

The Municipal Golf Course was the scene Saturday of the final play-off for the championship of the third annual Big Ben Pretzel Benders golf tournament. Vic Jung, the defending champion, stroked off a 3-2 victory over Helmer Lundgren, runner-up in a handicap match which forced the champion into putting on all his pressure to win.

As a climax to the tournament, a picnic was held Saturday evening at the Rifle Range for the Pretzel Bending golfers and the other employees of Jung's Quality Bakery. Imitations by Eddie Holmstrom and Bob Inman, stunts, and an extemporaneous men's quartet kept the fun moving while fried chicken and corn-on-the-cob also received a big ovation. Vic Jung and Helmer Lundgren were presented with their awards by Thurston Williamson, master of ceremonies for the occasion.

ALBERTA PUSHES PLAN FOR $25 PER MONTH 'DIVIDEND'

Agreements under which retailers would qualify in the prosperity plan of Alberta's Social Credit government, were distributed recently by Provincial Secretary E. C. Manning.

The government, it is estimated, would pay all bona fide citizens of the province about $25 a month under the plan of Premier William Aberhart. It is expected to cost approximately $120,000,000 and to be financed by special taxation.

The government would disburse the stipend in "prosperity certificates", negotiable only in the province and only for Alberta-made goods and services, and would act as clearing house in the scheme to stimulate production and purchasing power.

The retailers' "covenants" are similar to those already disclosed for individuals, farmers and producers.

The government announced plans to issue $250,000 in certificates and begin registration for payment of the dividends.

In the "covenants" the retailers pledge themselves on seven points including promises of co-operation with the government and preference to Alberta-made and Alberta-financed goods.

The government, reciprocally, promises to "augment purchasing power and thus increase consumer sales by giving monthly dividends in Alberta credit, primarily for the purpose of purchasing Alberta-made goods and services".

The government promises also, among five other guarantees, to maintain prices of the province's goods and to assist retailers with interest-free loans in Alberta credit.

Other "covenants" will be made with manufacturers and processors.

Aberhart said he believed circulation of each $5,000 in scrip would mean additional business each year of from $50,000 to $60,000.

CALIFORNIA STATIONS MUST SELL GAS TO DRINKING DRIVER

Federal Judge B. F. Bledsoe of California has formally ruled that even though a service station attendant believes an applicant for gas is intoxicated, the sale must be made or the attendant is liable to be made defendant in a possible suit. F. U. ORGANIZER RETURNS FROM JUNIOR CAMP

George W. Blake, the Farmers Union state organizer, returned on Monday from the Junior Farmers Union State camp at Cross Lake and reports a very successful camp. Forty juniors from different parts of the state attended the camp and took an active part in the class instructions. It is an annual event that is held in every state, where the Farmers Union is well organized.

THE READER'S ROSTRUM

MR. WHITE'S SUBSTITUTE—THE SALES TAX!

Editor,

Prompted by your editorial in your issue of August 13.

F. W. White, President of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, speaking Sunday, August 9th at the Pennington County Farm-Bureau Picnic continued his advocation of Amendment No. 2, the so-called Youngquist Amendment.

Mr. White does not deny that money must be raised for state purposes and that the 1935-36 realty levy for State purposes was necessary. It will be necessary for the 1937 Legislature to raise money for state purposes and since the revenue from other than realty is insufficient, how does he propose to raise the sum now realized from the realty tax?

Without waiting for his answer, let us "look at the record" and maybe we won't need to wait for his answer.

In the 1935 regular session of the Legislature, Mr. White voted for the Sales Tax, he voted against Increasing the Inheritance Tax, against increasing the Income tax, against Increasing the Telephone tax, against increasing the Money & Credits tax, against exempting the entire homestead up to $4.000, against tax relief for Small telephone companies: against a State Owned Power System, against permitting Municipalities to extend their power lines to 50 miles, against the train length bill, against seating Walter E. Day, legally elected representative, and he voted AGAINST cutting Interest rates.

The answer is written—the substitute is the Sales Tax!

Which leaves the further question—if the Amendment is passed who will make up in taxes for the saving of about 3½ millions now paid the state by the Mining Interests, the savings of owners of large loop property in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, the saving by absentee owners of farm and city property?

If Mr. White is so worried over the small farmer (but is he?) losing his home, why did he vote against exempting the homestead from taxation?

No, Mr. President, you are not leading the Farmers out of the wilderness—but into it.

Roosevelt Garners Most Straw Ballots

lishers accepted that invitation, as they are doing in this poll now under way. This poll now gives promise of being the most successful ever conducted.

As a result of this wide spread in number of newspaper participating in the poll, the first national returns may not be available for a week or two. However, they should prove to be most interesting when they start coming through. All voters will then have the opportunity of knowing just which way the political winds are blowing in this year of 1936.

Let's Show Our Strength

Have you voted in this nation-wide Presidential poll?

If not, then reach now for pen or pencil, clip the ballot, vote your choice then mail or bring your ballot to The Forum office.

Just as you may be interested in knowing how fares the fate of your presidential choice in other states throughout the country, so do the voters there wish to know how we here in Minnesota are thinking, politically, and how we intend to vote in November. That is the reason that the voters of this vicinity should cast their ballot in this nation-wide poll and so register the full strength here for each of the respective candidates.

Local and National

Remember ...... your favorite candidate is depending upon you to help show his strength in this territory. So clip, vote and mail your ballot today. The result of the local voting is being published herewith each week then the ballots are sent on to straw-vote headquarters in New York for tabulation.

You do not have to sign your name in the ballot, nor do you commit yourself in any manner. You are asked to write in the name of town and the state from which you expect to vote in November. This identification of the ballot makes possible a more accurate tabulation of the national vote.

ality Girls. We find all of our business and professional men as Broadway and Hollywood show girls, dressed in frills and ruffles a-plenty. We have for dancers, Broadway Gold Diggers, Hula Girls, Parisian Cuties, Queens of Burlesque, as well as other famous feminine beauties.

To make the Thief River Falls Personality Parade complete, we cannot leave out the younger generation—the ultra modern, sophisticated generation of kiddies five to seven years of age. In the Thief River Falls Personality Parade they discard all traditions and break all precedents by performing a wedding to syncopated rythms.

Then we have more—forty—beautiful chorus girls sing catchy songs and dance clever dance steps.

We can't tell you all about the Personality Parade. You have to see it to appreciate it. So treat yourself and your family to a holiday and celebration.

Don't forget the dates—Thursday and Friday August 27 and 28.

Four Speakers Address River Valley Picnic

world over.

Paul Lundgren, local attorney and secretary of the Thief River Falls Civic and Commerce association, praised the people of River Valley for the fine spirit of cooperation they have shown by their enterprises. Like, Mr. Harris, he agreed that cooperation was necessary and held that a great deal of our world's business ills was due to lack of cooperation and the improper manner of distribution. The cooperative spirit will overcome this, he contended.

Mr. Bjornaraa spoke in the Norwegian language, his speech being of a general nature, consisting of humor intermingled with actual occurrances a usual excellent talk so much enjoyed by his audiences.

The new all-talking motion picture, "Going Places", is a sequel to a picture shown at similar meetings last year and portrays in interesting and entertaining fashion problems concerning the cooling systems of automobiles which almost daily confront the automotive industry. It also convincingly points out how dealers can assure their car driving customers of better cooling system performance.

According to E. L. Johnson, of the Falls Supply Company, local jobbers of Prestone in Thief River Falls, the increase in the use of Prestone has been almost phenomenal during the past few years. Women's Tennis Tourney Reaches Semi-Finals

The first women's tennis tournament ever held in this city has six players still left in the running. In one semi-final encounter Edna Lee takes on the winner of the Merton Ward and Flora Schroeder match. The other semi-final match finds Evangeline Douville pitted against the winner of the Eleanor Harris and Inga Loken match. The dope favors Lee and Douville to meet in the finals.

The semi-finals will be held tonight and Friday night, while the championship match will take place Saturday night at six o'clock.

The results of the first round matches were: Edna Lee defeated Margaret McKechnie 6-1, 6-1; Merton Ward won from Ione Halldin 6-4, 6-2; Eleanor Harris took Marion Green 6-2, 6-1; Inga Loken toppled Marjorie Helquist 6-1, 6-0; Evangeline Douville eliminated Elizabeth Dahlen 6-3, 6-1; Delores Urdahl won from Evelyn Tungseth by default; Flora Schroeder and Lois Morell drew byes.

The quarter-final scores were: Lee over Morell 6-1, 6-0; Douville put out Urdahl by a 6-0, 6-2 count. The Harris-Loken and Schroeder-Ward matches will determine who the other two semi-finalists will be.

The tournament is being sponsored by the local unit of the National Youth Administration, and is under the direction of Marvin Benson.

Pretzel-Benders Hold Annual Golf Tourney

The Municipal Golf Course was the scene Saturday of the final play-off for the championship of the third annual Big Ben Pretzel Benders golf tournament. Vic Jung, the defending champion, stroked off a 3-2 victory over Helmer Lundgren, runner-up, in a handicap match which forced the champion into putting on all his pressure to win.

As a climax to the tournament, a picnic was held Saturday evening at the Rifle Range for the Pretzel Bending golfers and the other employees of Jung's Quality Bakery. Imitations by Eddie Holmstrom and Bob Inman, stunts, and an extemporaneous men's quartet kept the fun moving while fried chicken and corn-on-the-cob also received a big ovation. Vic Jung and Helmer Lundgren were presented with their awards by Thurston Williamson, master of ceremonies for the occasion.

ALBERTA PUSHES PLAN FOR $25 PER MONTH 'DIVIDEND'

Agreements under which retailers would qualify in the prosperity plan of Alberta's Social Credit government were distributed recently by Provincial Secretary E. C. Manning.

The government, it is estimated, would pay all bona fide citizens of the province about $25 a month under the plan of Premier William Aberhart. It is expected to cost approximately $120,000,000 and to be financed by special taxation.

The government would disburse the stipend in "prosperity certificates", negotiable only in the province and only for Alberta-made goods and services, and would act as clearing house in the scheme to stimulate production and purchasing power.

The retailers' "covenants" are similar to those already disclosed for individuals, farmers and producers.

The government announced plans to raise $250,000 in certificates and begin registration for payment of the dividends.

In the "covenants" the retailers pledge themselves on seven points including promises of co-operation with the government and preference to Alberta-made and Alberta-financed goods.

The government, reciprocally, promises to "augment purchasing power and thus increase consumer sales by giving monthly dividends in Alberta credit, primarily for the purpose of purchasing Alberta-made goods and services".

The government promises also, among five other guarantees, to maintain prices of the province's goods and to assist retailers with interest-free loans in Alberta credit.

Other "covenants" will be made with manufacturers and processors.

Aberhart said he believed circulation of each $5,000 in scrip would mean additional business each year of from $50,000 to $60,000.

MR. WHITE'S SUBSTITUTE THE SALES TAX?

Editor,

Prompted by your editorial in your issue of August 13.

F. W. White, President of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, speaking Sunday, August 9th at the Pennington County Farm-Bureau Picnic continued his advocation of Amendment No. 2, the so-called Youngquist Amendment.

Mr. White does not deny that money must be raised for state purposes and that the 1935-36 realty levy for State purposes was necessary. It will be necessary for the 1937 Legislature to raise money for state purposes and since the revenue from other than realty is insufficient, how does he propose to raise the sum now realized from the realty tax?

Without waiting for his answer, let us "look at the record" and maybe we won't need to wait for his answer.

In the 1935 regular session of the Legislature, Mr. White voted for the Sales Tax, he voted against increasing the Inheritance Tax, against increasing the Income tax, against increasing the Telephone tax, against increasing the Money & Credits tax, against exempting the entire homestead up to $4,000, against tax relief for Small telephone companies; against a State Owned Power System, against [illegible] Municipalities to extend their power lines to 50 miles, against the train length bill, against seating Walter [illegible] Day legally elected representative, and he voted AGAINST cutting interest rates.

The answer is written—the substitute is the Sales Tax!

Which leaves the further question—if the Amendment is passed who will make up in taxes for the saving of about 3½ millions now paid the state by the Mining Interests, the savings of owners of large [illegible] property in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, the saving by absentee owners of farm and city property?

If Mr. White is so worried over the small farmer (but is he?) losing his home, why did he vote against exempting the homestead from taxation?

No, Mr. President, you are not leading the Farmers out of the wilderness—but into it.

Roosevelt Garners Most Straw Ballots

lishers accepted that invitation, as they are doing in this poll now under way. This poll now gives promise of being the most successful ever conducted.

As a result of this wide spread in number of newspaper participating in the poll, the first national returns may not be available for a week or two. However, they should prove to be most interesting when they start coming through. All voters will then have the opportunity of knowing just which way the political winds are blowing in this year of 1936.

Let's Show Our Strength

Have you voted in this nation-wide Presidential poll?

If not, then reach now for pen or pencil, clip the ballot, vote your choice then mail or bring your ballot to The Forum office.

Just as you may be interested in knowing how fares the fate of your presidential choice in other states throughout the country, so do the voters there wish to know how we here in Minnesota are thinking, politically, and how we intend to vote in November. That is the reason that the voters of this vicinity should cast their ballot in this nation-wide poll and so register the full strength here for each of the respective candidates.

Local and National

Remember ...... your favorite candidate is depending upon you to help show his strength in this territory. So clip, vote and mail your ballot today. The result of the local voting is being published herewith each week then the ballots are sent on to straw-vote headquarters in New York for tabulation.

You do not have to sign your name in the ballot, nor do you commit yourself in any manner. You are asked to write in the name of town and the state from which you expect to vote in November. This identification of the ballot makes possible a more accurate tabulation of the national vote.

Now....help pile up the vote for your favorite. Clip and mail the ballot right now.

LANDON LEAD IS FOUNDASSTRAW VOTE IS TABBED

Early Count of Ballots At Headquarters Favors Republican

Lemke Fails To Show Much Strength

Forum Readers Should Rush In Blanks For Tabulation

While President Roosevelt leads in the straw vote in the Forum office, Landon, the Republican candidate is leading in early national reports. Lemke is a strong second here while he is a weak candidate as reported nationally. The week's vote as tabulated at the Forum office show the following: Roosevelt 44, Lemke 40, Landon 5, Thomas 16, Colvin 9, and Browder 4.

Ballots were received and tabulated from 23 states. But votes in sufficient number to actually be considered indicative of what the final returns may show, were available in only five of these 23 states.

Nevertheless, on all returns from the 23 states, as between the two leading candidates only, the ballots show voters' choices as follows:

Landon	54 pct.
Roosevelt	46 pct.

The 23 states from which first scattered ballots were received here for national tabulation are: California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Vermont, Washington and West Virginia.

Bearing out early surmises of political observers that support of the Union party candidate, Lemke, would come from the small towns and rural America, the tabulations of first total returns from the same

City Council Holds Meeting Tuesday Eve

The city council held its regular session Tuesday evening in the council chambers.

The Ninth District Grocery Men's association was granted the free use of the auditorium for its convention to be held Sept. 9th. Ed. Timm appeared before the council and asked that he be permitted to rent the poor farm for another year at a price of $60, which was the price paid last year. His request was granted.

The application for the transfer of the license for the sale of 3.2 percent beer and refreshments at 219-3rd St. E from Ole G. Granum to Peter N. Peterson and Albert Larson was presented to the Council and approved. The council instructed Ole Legvold, superintendent of the water and light department, to buy a new motor for the pump at the sewer lift on North Horace Avenue.

The application made by Theodore Quale in behalf of Ivan W. Peterson offering a compromise settlement of $100 for accumulated taxes on lots 20 and 21 and the south half of 19 in block 34 original townsite, was discussed, and the council recommended to the Pennington county board that a compromise settlement be made on condition that the special assessment on paving in favor of the city of Thief River Falls be paid in full.

Ole Ihle appeared before the council as representative of the Inga Boen estate and offered a compromise settlement of $400 on lots in the Meehan addition. The council recommended to the Pennington county board that the offer be accepted.

E. L. Lium, consulting engineer of Grand Forks, who is employed by the city of Thief River Falls in investigating the sewage disposal situation, reported to the council his findings as to location and the costs of erecting a disposal plant. The council voted to instruct Mr. Lium to prepare an application for a grant through the Works Progress administration.

Mahnomen Man Dies As Car Turns Over

Thomas Kenyon, 27 years old, was killed Friday night when a car in which he was riding with Donald Peete, 21, also of Marnomen, turned over 7 miles east of Fertile.

Thomas Kenyon was born in this city, attended the local public schools, and grew to young manhood here. He moved with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kenyon, to Mahnomen about four years ago. He was married two years ago, and is survived by his wife and small child. His parents, two sisters, one of Fordville, N. Dak., and the other living at home, and one brother of Detroit, Mich., also survive. A large number of local people autoed to Mahnomen Monday where funeral services were conducted.

Officials were informed the accident occurred when the driver failed to see a curve in the highway and the machine went into the ditch, turning over.

Peete was injured but managed to walk to Fertile where he was found roaming the streets in a dazed condition Saturday morning. He was unable to give a clear description of what happened but accompanied Dr. P. J. Griffith on a search for the accident scene. The wrecked machine and Kenyon's body were located and Polk county authorities notified.

Prichard Will Attend District Water Meeting

Mayor W. W. Prichard will attend a meeting of the Red Lake River Development association at Crookston this evening when he will address the association. Mayor Prichard was a member of the delegation which recently conferred with President Roosevelt at Washington, D. C., with regard to the development of the Red Lake River.

At this evening's meeting results of their conferences at the nation's capital will be discussed, and plans will be made to hasten action on the project.

CommercialInstructor Is Engaged by School

At a special meeting Tuesday afternoon, the board of education of this school district elected Miss Tora Marie Larson of Northfield as commercial instructor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Lyle R. Lanning. Miss Larson was graduated from St. Olaf College and from the Packard Commercial college, New York City. She took up graduate work at the Minneapolis Business college. She has taught in the schools of Blue Earth, Canton, S. Dak., and Lewiston, Minn.

Randall Noper was appointed bus driver for route one, and Albert Horter for route four. The board approved the bond of the treasurer, Alfred Skarstad. The bid of the Alnes Electric Service for the installation of new motors in the Lincoln building was accepted.

PETERSEN OATH AS GOVERNOR IS TAKEN MONDAY

Chief Justice Devaney Presides As New Executive Assumes Office

Will Continues Policies Of His Predecessor

New Executive Came From Denmark At Age Of Two Years

Gov. Hjalmer Petersen took the oath of office as Minnesota's twenty-third governor and immediately assumed the duties of his office Monday forenoon.

The oath was administered to Governor Peterson, who as lieutenant - governor automatically succeeded to the post on the death of Gov. Floyd B. Olson, in the reception room of the governor's suite at the state capitol.

Chief Justice John P. Devaney, of the state supreme court administered the oath in the presence of Mrs. Petersen, their two children, a considerable number of other relatives of the new governor and many friends.

In succeeding Governor Olson, the new governor said:

"With the good will and cooperation of the citizens of our great commonwealth, the state of Minnesota, which I feel I will have, I shall labor to the best of my ability, sincerely working for the common good of all, be my term of office short or long."

The new governor's term ends Jan. 5, 1937. He is known to be hopeful of succeeding himself.

With Mrs. Petersen were Evelyn 15, daughter of the governor by his first wife, and Karla, 4-months-old, who was wheeled into the room in a baby carriage.

Mr. Petersen's three brothers,

SCHOOL LISTING SHOULD BE MADE SOON, BYE STATES

Our superintendent of schools, Morris Bye, requested this week that anyone having rooms for rent to high school students, or anyone wishing to procure a student to work for board and room, or having other work for high school students, should get in touch with the dean of girls, Mrs. William Korstad, as soon as possible. Mrs. Korstad's telephone number is 66. Students wishing for opportunities to work, and students looking for rooms to rent during the school-year should also contact Mrs. Korstad as soon as possible.

W. G. Claffy is now registering students for the school term 1936-1937, and urges all students planning to attend high school who have not already registered to do so at once.

City Horseshoe Tourney Is Now In Progress

Favorites survived their first round matches as the local horseshoe tourney neared the second round. Leaf Sahl, one of the favorites, won his first match by defeating Morris Langer 50-33, and 50-42. Merrill Grothe won from Cameron 50-35, and 50-41. M. Benson won from R. Soderberg by a default. Gust Anderson beat E. Ottum 50-47, 50-8. Floyd Olson won over C. Langer 50-22, 50-19.

LOCAL ATTORNEY WINS STATE LEGION GOLF TITLE

Word was received from Minneapolis last night that H. O. Chommie, local attorney, Wednesday won the state American Legion golf championship, formerly held by Herb Lewis of Minneapolis, by scoring a 2 and 1 victory over Mr. Lewis in their final 18-hole match at Bloomington. Mr. Chommie, formerly Red River Valley champion, was the first golfer to take the Legion title outside of the Twin City area for the past seven years.

Personality Parade Is Big Attraction

Local people are set to attend the special event which will be held tonight and Friday evening at the city auditorium. It is the performance sponsored by the local Legion Auxiliary.

You have been hearing a great many things about the Thief River Personality Parade and now the big secret is out. C. V. Whitchurch, prominent local man, is going to be "Miss Thief River Falls" in this famous personality parade. We don't have to ask you to stretch your imagination one bit to realize what a funny and hilarious situation Whitchurch will create playing the part of a vivacious, charming "Miss Thief River Falls".

Throughout the performance Mr. Whitchurch leads a double life, first being a lowly, humble, press agent, and next trying to make the citizens of this town believe he is "Miss Thief River Falls". And true to all stories of people living a double life, Whitchurch has to pay and pay. And all the time he suffers you and everyone in the entire community will laugh and split your sides with the funny and hilarious comedy he is going to produce.

Then there is Donovan Mattson, our prominent bank clerk, who claims he has never had anything exciting happen to him in all his life. He cuts up in the most unusual manner in the Thief River Falls Personality Parade. He is our bachelor and confirmed woman hater who for forty years has been able to withstand the pleas of the fairer sex. But when Don sees Whitchurch in that beautiful and enticing role of Miss Fairfield, the lid is off! The sky is the limit and he cries "Whoopee! Here is a woman of my dreams." Imagine Don's disappointment when he has been proposing to Whitchurch.

Labor Day Festival Is Set For River Valley

A Labor Day festival will be held Monday, Sept. 7th on the site of the new community hall planned for the River Valley club in Deer Park township. The event is being staged by the community club there in conjunction with a group from the Thief River Falls Civic and Commerce associations.

Events during the day, according to tentative plans, will include baseball games and other contests, band music, Norwegian folk dances, carnival features and sleight-of-hand feats by Dr. C. M. Haug. A dance in the evening will close the day's festivities.

The general committee of the River Valley group includes Stanley Radniecki, chairman; G. G. Deming, Gust Iverson and Nils Fore, while the Civic and Commerce association is represented by W. E. Dahlquist, chairman; R. M. Douglass, Dr. A. M. Smith, A. M. Senstad, and C. H. Jung

PLUMMER IS DEFEATED 8-7

Local Team Plays Oklee Next Sunday; Two More Games Are Planned

Thief River Falls narrowly staved off defeat in Sunday's ball game played at the fair grounds here. Plummer proved as tough as was expected. The visiting team staged a rally in the last inning which threatened to tie the score but failed as Orvalla fanned the relief batter sent in to bring in a runner from second. The final score was 8 to 7.

Sahl did the twirling for the local boys. He was relieved by Orvalla when the visitors threatened in the seventh. Fremling was on the mound for Plummer until the seventh when he fell into difficulties and the bases were filled. He was relieved by McGrady who was rather wild at times, two runs being tallied because of it.

The local boys furnished rather ragged support for their pitchers, five errors being chalked up against their playing. Outside of the first two innings the visitors played errorless baseball.

Both teams tallied a counter in the first inning. Thief River Falls tallied two more in the third to lead 3 to 1, but Plummer came right back to score three runs and led 4 to 3 up to the seventh. The

Heinze Grove Is Site For Big Event Tuesday

People Asked To Bring Own Lunch; Free Coffee Will Be Served

Arrangements have been completed for the first annual convention of the Cooperative Union activities for next Tuesday, beginning at noon. The event will be held at the Heinze grove, a mile south of Thief River Falls.

A large crowd is anticipated as C. C. Talbott, the main speaker is a nationally known farm leader and a wonderful orator. His is president of the North Dakota Farmers Union, and for the past several years has been very active in securing relief for farmers, being head of the Farmers Union committee in Washington. Other speakers will also be heard.

Music will be furnished by the various locals. The Pennington county set-up may be organized after the program. In case of inclement weather, the event will be held at the city auditorium.

People are asked to bring their own lunch baskets. Free coffee will be served on the grounds. Other refreshments will be obtainable also.

The event is being sponsored by the locals of Pennington and Clear water counties and the Red Lake Farmers Union Oil company.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND HOUSE-WARMING AT FISHER

Representatives of the Sons of Norway went Sunday to the farm of Arne Grundeson, 7 miles South of Fisher, to a house-warming. Among those who went from the Thief River Falls district were Bjorgulf Bjornaraa and family, Olaf Neset and family, Gilbert Brattland and family, Svenke Dahle, Mrs. Abraham Newton and others. A considerable group of friends and relatives in the district also gathered to felicitate Mr. and Mrs. Arne Grundeson on the new house which he had built to replace the farm home burned last fall. Also to commemorate their golden wedding anniversary.

Bjorgulf Bjornaraa gave the presentation of a chime clock from the Sons of Norway lodge. A bounteous lunch was served on the grounds.

Mr. Grundeson, in thanking the presentation committee, friends and neighbors who had gathered, gave a very interesting response. Other talks were given, Mr. Bjornaraa and his wife danced some Satersdal "steps", accompanied by Mr. Tveitbak on the violin.

Mr. Grundeson has a fine farm on the river and is one of the oldest settlers in that section. He has been one of the leading men in the Satesdal lag, and is well known to many local people.

Special Midnight Show Scheduled For Saturday

The management of the Avalon Theatre has this week added to its regular entertainment program, a special midnight show for adults only, to be shown Saturday night at eleven o'clock. The title of the picture is "Forbidden Love."

On Sunday and Monday, Jean Harlow, Franchot Tone and Cary Grant will appear on the screen of the Avalon theatre in the production "Suzy", a late very popular production.

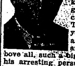
MAGNUS JOHNSON, ONCE SENATOR CRITICALLY ILL

Litchfield, Minn.— Magnus Johnson of Kimball, former Farmer Labor United States senator from Minnesota, was in a critical condition Wednesday from pneumonia. Johnson, brought here Sunday, had a temperature of 102.6 and the outcome of his present illness is uncertain, according to his physician, Dr. Karl A. Danielson of Litchfield. Use of an oxygen tent is being considered.

GOV. FLOYD B. OLSON IS BURIED WEDNESDAY

Tribute Is Given Gov. Olson By Rev. Stub

The following tribute to the late Gov. Floyd B. Olson is a part of the sermon of Rev. J. A. O. Stub, given at the services Wednesday:



"Whether or not men differed with Governor Olson in politics or life, of those who came to know him the great majority came to love him. There was such youthful enthusiasm, such brilliant ability; above all, such a big warm heart in his arresting personality that we can well ask ourselves: When shall we look upon another like unto him!

"Not only the people of our own state, but men and women over the nation mourn with us here in Minnesota his untimely passing. His rapid rise to a commanding position in state and nation captures our imagination".

FARM SOIL PLAN MEETINGS SET

Gatherings For Explanation of Soil Conservation Have Been Arranged

The Allotment Committee of the Soil Conservation Program met last week to make final adjustment in soil depleting bases for the farms in Pennington county which have had work sheets executed on them.

The state committee has released these preliminary bases and the county office sent out the notification of bases to farmers this week. It was necessary to make a twelve and one half per cent cut from the 1935 harvested acres before the State Committee would release the bases in this county.

The Community Committees made the preliminary cuts with the final adjustments being made by the County Allotment committee. The establishment of bases will be explained at a set of educational meetings that start Wednesday evening, August 26. The modifications on payments will also be explained.

Following is a schedule of meetings to be held:

Thursday, Aug. 27th

St. Hilaire, Bilden & Olson hall, at 8:00 P. M.

Bray and Polk Centre, Luttmer school at 8:00 P. M.

Mayfield and Wyandotte, Bruggeman school at 8:00 P. M.

Sanders, Seaverson school at 8:00 P. M.

Friday, Aug. 28th

Mavie, Mavie school, 8:00 P. M.

Smiley and Kratka, Smiley hall, 8:00 P. M.

Reiner and Star, Hoffman school at 8:00 P. M.

Tuesday, Sept. 1st

River Valley Forum, Tent at River Valley creamery, 8:00 P. M.

Wednesday, Sept. 2nd

Highlanding Forum, Vaughan school, 8 P. M.

Cafe Grand Opening Is Set for Saturday

The new Sorensen's Cafe, located in the former quarters of the post-office in the Citizen's Bank building, will observe its grand opening Saturday afternoon and evening. The cafe was opened temporarily a month ago to await later installation of permanent equipment.

The regular fixtures and booths arrived the first of this week and a crew of men are now busy making the installation. Nine beautiful oak stained booths are being set up along the west wall, marble tops laid on the counters and the entire equipment being decorated.

Mr. Sorensen, who is an experienced restaurant manager, has set the official opening day for next Saturday afternoon and evening. Flowers will be given all lady guests and cigars for the gentlemen. The public is cordially invited to call and view the new establishment.

SUDDEN DEATH COMES SAT'DAY AT ROCHESTER

Gov. Philip LaFollette Gives Funeral Oration

Minnesota's Executive Is Borne To Resting place In Deep Mourning

Floyd B. Olson, governor of Minnesota passed away at St. Mary's hospital at Rochester, Saturday evening at 8:29. Death was caused by a tumorous growth in the stomach.

The governor had been sinking rapidly since taken to the hospital in an aeroplane from his summer home at Gull Lake, near Brainerd, five days earlier. The end came suddenly and unexpectedly, though it was feared that the polyp growth on his intestines, discovered last December in an exploratory operation, would be fatal.

The largest funeral services ever held in the Northwest was conducted Wednesday afternoon at the Minneapolis auditorium where 10,000 crowded in to attend the public rites. Several other thousands had to remain outside, but heard the services broadcast through loud-speakers. The services were also broadcast by half a dozen radio stations.

The remains were viewed Sunday and Monday when the body laid in state at the capitol at St. Paul where crowded thousands remained on hand at all times, awaiting their turn to view the corpse.

Among the people from Pennington county at the funeral services were Paul Harris, a member of the state Farmer-Labor committee, E. L. Tungseth, state senator from this legislative district, and Helmer Halland and son Oreal, H. Hennigan, Mr. Stepan, and John L. Wold.

Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin delivered the funeral oration. Rev. J. A. O. Stub, president of the United Lutheran Church of

4-H Leaders Meeting Held Monday Evening

The 4-H Club leaders met Monday evening in the County Agent's office. The following leaders were present R. M. Douglass, County Agent; Henry Oen, Rocksbury 4-H club; Mrs. Axel Engelstad, Rocksbury 4-H club; Mrs. L. Johnson, St. Hilaire 4-H club; Donna Brink, St. Hilaire 4-H club; Hazel Joyce, Norden 4-H club; Mrs. J. M. Johnson, Highlanding 4-H club; Howard Grow, Ass't County Agent; Thea Skugen, Steiner 4-H club; Alda Gunderson, Silverton 4-H club; Bernice Woolson, Silverton 4-H club; Miss Solie, Temporary County Club Leader; Mrs. Owen Weckwerth, Hazel 4-H club, and Owen Weckwerth, Hazel 4-H club.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Henry Oen. The minutes were read by Bernice Woolson, secretary. Fall Achievement Day was discussed. The date was set for October 17th. This is the final Achievement Day for all fat livestock.

At this time all records are to be handed in and those who have not exhibited before and those who will be unable to exhibit at the Fall Achievement Day are requested to turn in their completed record blanks as soon as possible. "Let's raise the 78.9 percent completions of 1935", urges Mr. Douglass.

The banquet given by the Civic and Commerce association to all 4-H members who have completed their projects will be held sometime after the Fall Achievement Day.

The next meeting will be held September 22nd.

THE PASSING OF A MAN OF DESTINY

Minnesota's leading citizen is dead. Floyd B. Olson, the greatest of all her native sons, has passed on. The voice of a man of destiny is stilled. Not only the people of Minnesota but people over the entire nation deeply mourn as he is taken to his final resting place.

Floyd B. Olson was a product of the American system in the fullest extent. He was born of poor parents and arose to occupy the highest position attainable in the state. Had fate not intervened it is a generally accepted opinion that he would in time have occupied the highest position the country could have given him, that of the presidency.

In spite of the fact that Governor Olson was a product of the American system, in that he rose from the lowly to the highest, he was fully aware of the many inequities of that system and no one did more inside of our state to change that system. As head of the leading party in the state he did more to bring about the more abundant life, that of more opportunity for all, than any Minnesotan has ever done. That he should die in the midst of a promising career, with his life-work only half completed, is deeply regretted.

Because he was the leader of a formidable party in the state, Governor Olson became the object of much false propaganda, designed to ruin his political career and character. In spite of all these rumors the people of Minnesota believed in the virtue of its governor; he was re-elected on two occasions and, at the time of his death, became the object of sincere sympathy. Even his staunchest political opponents had to confess that his life was that of a noble character.

Governor Olson must be credited with a remarkable foresight, courage, and judgment. Combined with this he had a thorough understanding of the operation of our political and economic system. He was in full sympathy with the forgotten man and his life-work was devoted entirely to the bettering of the life of the down-trodden. Theirs is the loss as Floyd B. Olson passes on without being able to complete his full political and economic program.

He was blessed with a genial and winning personality. He possessed the gift of eloquence and he played upon the listening crowd as a master musician plays upon his violin. He loved the game of politics, was an adept at party organization and a master at strategy. He stripped his opponents of argument and won generally because his was the more just cause.

Governor Olson was the prospective leader of a national progressive party. When predictions were made that there would by two major parties in 1940, one a conservative and the other a progressive party, he was always mentioned as the most formidable of the leaders of the progressives. With Olson gone the chair is vacant. Who will come to occupy it is the big question.

In the meantime, the people of Minnesota are paying respect and reverence to a most worthy leader, the peer of whom we seldom find.

LANDON'S STOCK IS FALLING

As the presidential campaign is proceeding it is becoming apparent that Alf M. Landon is making a futile attempt at being elected. We have heard him and his chief manager, John M. Hamilton, make appeals over the radio for support, but from our judgment and that of all others with whom we have spoken, their arguments fall flat. It is apparent that Landon is nothing but the leader of a party whose support is centered in Wall Street.

While many conservatives or standpat Democrats have left their party because of Roosevelt and his New Deal policies it is now becoming evident that before November comes around Landon will be without the support of progressive-minded Republicans. Among the recent avowed who will rather support Roosevelt is Senator James Couzens of Michigan. This announcement was preceded by only two days by a similar one from a group of prominent progressive Republicans in Iowa who set a date for a meeting to organize Republican support for Roosevelt in the great corn state.

Landon's speech Saturday justifies our claim made before that he is merely supporting the very identical program as enacted by Herbert Hoover when he was in the White House. Landon's American way is nothing but the rugged individualism so fervently supported by the GOP platforms of the past several national campaigns. Really, while we don't like to say it, but we believe that Landon belongs at Topeka rather than Washington. Topeka is an Indian name meaning the place of the small potato.

NOT SHARING IN RECOVERY

By taking a glance at the report of salaries earned by some of the heads of our big corporations such as General Motors, the General Electric, Bethlehem Steel Corp., etc., we can duly say there are many a president, a first vice-president, second vice-president, third vice-president, chairman of the board of directors, head of the board of counsel, etc., etc., who isn't doing his bit in bringing about "recovery" in our country. A list recently disclosed by the federal treasury, shows that there are hundreds of these corporation heads getting salaries ranging from $100,000 to $200,000 yearly and are "sqawking" about the burden of taxes, and penalties. A comparison showed that these salaries are about equal to the sum these super-heads received in 1928 and 1929.

That this group isn't doing its share in bringing a better distribution of incomes is evident. In addition they are doing everything to hinder anything that may be tried to bring about a better distribution of wealth.

GOOD AND BAD NEWSPAPERS

The American newspapers have been generally and severely criticized for the part they play in relation to crime. The following charges are made against them in a recently published book. It is charged:

First, they promote crime by the constant advertising of crime, by glorifying the criminal leaders and acting as press agents for them, by a jocular method of presenting crime news which takes away the dignity of court proceedings, and by providing advance information to the public, including the criminals, regarding the plans of the police and the prosecutors.

Second, they interfere with justice by "trial by newspaper" and by distortion of news.

Third, they produce a public panic in regard to crime which makes consistent and sober procedure difficult.

Many newspapers grew vehement at the charges and began to search for a defense. Some data was gathered but this is not as revealing as it might have been.

From these statistics, two conclusions are evident: (1) that the small town paper is not a part of the "crime press", so-called by critics, though it is an important part of the "press" as the term is used in professional journalism; (2) that crime news in the city dailies appears magnified because of its prominence and emphasis.

But in this defense let it not be lost sight of that these few newspapers have a large daily circulation reaching into the millions. Because of this they exercise greater influence than by mere numbers. A Hearst newspaper may exert as much ill influence as a hundred smaller publications.

THE EVERPRESENT TARIFF ISSUE

With every nation in the world putting up trade barriers in some form or other, trade among countries has dwindled to one-fourth of what it was a few years ago. It is becoming such that people in each of these countries have to either pay an exhorbitant price for the important goods or use a substitute.

The tariff has always been a predominating issue with the American people whether we recognize it as such or not. It has been made use of to a large extent by politicians who have used it as a local issue in every state whereby they enhanced their own chances for re-election but which as a national issue has been a serious detriment in our economic life.

Cordell Hull, the present secretary of state, states the following: "The bitter experience of the past six years, under the highest tariffs in our history, should have convinced the most ardent and confirmed high protectionist that embargo tariffs do not insure domestic prosperity; perhaps it is too much to expect also that they should realize that our extreme tariff policy was one of the great contributing forces making for depression and distress throughout the country. Such tariffs have forced the people of this country to pay fat subsidies to certain American producers. They have dealt a serious blow to our foreign trade by shutting off foreign purchasing power for our products and by causing retaliatory measures in many countries. Prices have dropped, factories have closed, workmen have been discharged, and farmers have been unable to sell their surpluses." Mr. Hull further states that the protection furnished by tariff is not genuine as a survey shows that workers making goods that are duty-free get $1,900 annually as average salary, while workers making protected goods get only $1,100 annually.

SLOW DOWN AT NIGHT

Here is some worth-while advice to motorists: As soon as darkness descends, slow down pronto.

In spite of the fact that the bulk of cars are operated almost entirely during the day, well over half of all the fatal accidents last year occurred at night. Sixty-nine per cent of the victims were pedestrians. And the death rate for the evening rush hours was over 100 per cent greater in winter than in summer, due to darkness.

Unconsciously or otherwise, many motorists chronically "overdrive their headlights"—that is, they could not bring their cars to a stop within the illuminated distance before them. And more powerful lights are no cure for this—they produce glare, a potent cause of head-on crashes, and are justly illegal in most states.

The pedestrian, of course, is not wholly free from blame. It has been extensively publicized that one should always walk on the left side of the highway, facing oncoming traffic—but a great many night-walkers apparently haven't heard the news yet. And many of them also don't seem to realize that to walk on a dark highway wearing dark clothes is an invitation to the coroner. Light refraction is an eccentric thing—and a darkly-dressed pedestrian often can't be seen by the motorist until it is too late.

Thus, we need education for the pedestrian as well as for the auto driver. But in the meantime, the driver should take every precaution—and even go to what may seem ridiculous lengths—to operate his car safely. After all, he is in command of a potentially lethal vehicle that literally kills more men than does war. Don't take a chance!

The Washington Commentator

E. C. Stengelsen

THE COMMUNIST MENACE

Says William Randolph Hearst in the Chicago Herald and Examiner. . .

"There are six times as many members in the Communist Party and its affiliated movements in the United States today as there were in Russia at the time of the bloody Bolshevist revolution".

And then he goes on, and, using a whole, large newspaper page, tells in grim detail of all the subversive, revolutionary activities of the Communists in the United States.

* * * *

Upon reading Mr. Hearst's lurid recital, one's first impulse was to jump into bed and pull the quilt over one's head. . . an urge which had to be fought down, however. For what chance would one have, with one's legs all tangled up in blankets, if a Communist should happen to come bouncing into the room at that precise moment, holding aloft a sizzling bomb which he was about to heave at one. . .

. . . And, besides, it can become a bit stuffy under a quilt during some days such as we've had this summer.

* * * *

Which is not to say, nowever, that your patriot did nothing but merely sit there and let the worst come to the worst. Quite the contrary, he was immediately up and doing.

* * * *

First, he determined to go out and catch himself a Communist, preferably a small one who could be managed without too much exertion . . : though he could undoubtedly have handled a large one with equal ease, provided a good whisker-hold could have been obtained.

For he felt confident that if a Communist could be caught—and it promised to be simple, since there were so many of them, according to Mr. Hearst—it would be readily possible, under the threat of such torture as a bath or hair-cut, to terrify the Communist into telling all.

But right here, where the tale should, according to all rules, begin to develop suspense ond excitement, surprisedly it quite flattens out. . .

For your patriot was utterly unable to find a Communist. He began first, by peering behind each set of long whskers, but abandoned this method at the very outset as too hazardous. For the first bewhiskered person approached turned out to be a House of David athlete who responded to the opening question with a smart biff to your patriot's nose.

* * * *

Nor did more discreet methods bring results. Nobody, it seemed, could lead your patriot to a Communist's lair. All those questioned were fully aware, of course, that the land abounded with the scoundrels. Hadn't they heard it often enough from Mr. Hearst, the D. A. R. Hamilton Fish and 'Nervous Nellie' Kellog! But to name one, or point one out, was quite another matter.

Nor, apparently, had anybody ever received any Communistic literature or propaganda; so that avenue, too, seemed closed to possible leads.

Your patriot then tried another tack. He checked the 1932 election returns. From these he learned that out of each 400 votes cast for president, one was for the Communist while the other 399 were for the respectable candidates.

And to interview 400 in order to sift out one Communist seemed hardly profitable. For there was no assurance that he wouldn't when found, turn out to be a Patagonian, or some such foreigner, who couldn't speak a word of English. And to have discussed matters in Patagonian might have proved only moderately satisfactory; for your patriot can't even say "Please pass the gravy!" in Patagonian.

It was at this point that your patriot abandoned the search . . . not because his zeal had dwindled, but by reason of a sudden and perhaps surprising doubt which assailed him, viz: Did he and Mr. Hearst define 'Communist' in identical terms?

After long cogitation and pondering, he concluded that they did not. . . that Mr. Hearst probably classed as 'Communists' all who refused to accept his particular political views.

This explained, too, how it was that Mr. Hearst found the land simply swarming with 'em.

Capitol News Review

(By A. I. Harris)

Courage is a commedanble trait and draws the admiration of friend and foe alike. This is true whether that courage is displayed on the field of battle, on the political field, or in the laboratories of science. . .

The fact that the Mayo Clinic physicians found Governor Olson one of the most courageous men they had ever come in contact with is not at all surprising. As a matter of fact, his most bitter foes never charged him with lacking in courage. Though it made them fight him more bitterly, they were compelled to express admiration for the fighter. . .

Man could not shake his fighting spirit and neither could disease. These fighting qualities, together with his cheerfulness and consideration, won for him the deep admiration and affection of Dr. William Mayo and the other attending physicians. . .

Governor Olson's deep interest in current political happenings never waned, even during the critical stages of his illness. Last week, in response to an invitation extended by Senator Bob LaFollette to join in conference of progressives, the Governor answered forth with, pointing out the necessity for all liberals uniting behind President Roosevelt in order to prevent the election of a reactionary Republican. While urging the reelection of Roosevelt and also unity among liberals and progressives for future political action, Governor Olson made it plain that he is not opposed to Congressman Lemke personally and that he also felt Father Coughlin's monetary program to be sound. . .

"I have the utmost respect", the Governor said, "for the Union ticket candidate and for Father Coughlin, whose program of monetary reform is sound. We Farmer-Laborites have been for the same program for many years and Father Coughlin can rely upon us in helping him to put it over. However, I think the defeat of Landon is of the utmost importance to the great masses of America. If we liberals by splitting our votes place Landon in office we will have performed an act for which we will never be forgiven."

—O—

Additional evidence concerning the plot of certain leaders of the Republican Party to run a fake slate of candidates on the Union Party ticket was revealed last week. . .

A trumped-up dispatch from Cleveland said the National Union for Social Justice was going to force a show-down on Governor Olson to compel him to endorse Lemke. Inquiry as to the source of this dispatch revealed that it was only a rumor . . .

John D. Sullivan of St. Paul, the state supervisor for the National Union, on his return from Cleveland was asked about this. He said that no such action had been taken at Cleveland either by the officials of the National Union or by the Minnesota delegation to the National Union congress. . .

Mr. Sullivan asserted: "A candidate receiving the indorsement of the National Union for Social Justice does not have to commit himself likewise to the candidacy of Mr. Lemke, and while we have indorsed the candidacy of Mr. Lemke, a congressional candidate whom we support need not indorse Mr. Lemke unless he desires to do so."

Unemployed teachers working in the Adult Education and Workers Education projects in St. Paul protested through the Minnesota Emergency Teachers Assn. at WPA offices against the closing of their project and the reducing of their wages from $10 to $40 per month.

The old project upon which they were working expires as of September 1, and the new project calls for substantial wage reductions for teachers by transferring them to a recreational project . . .

After some negotiations and telephone calls to Washington, the old projects were continued and the teachers retained at their former wage scales.

—O—

The fat is in the fire and the Republican tax program has come out in the open at last . . .

State representative W. R. Youngquist of Minneapolis says that any one who understands the tax situation in this state knows that the retail sales tax is inevitable . . .

Speaking at the Minneapolis Kiwanis Club last week, Youngquist replied indirectly to the challenge which Senator Elmer A. Benson hurled at Martin A. Nelson to reveal the secret Republican tax program. . .

Senator Benson said: "We have very definite information that the Republican Party proposes to substitute a sales tax for the state real estate tax." . . .

Shortly after, Republican Press Agent R. W. Hitchcock denied that the Republicans had this plan in mind. But Mr. Youngquist, one of the Republican leaders in the Legislature, gave the secret away. He said: "I can tell the Farmer-Labor gentleman (Senator Benson) that the new tax bill in the next Legislature will very closely resemble the Omnibus bill which was vetoed at the last session, and which would have removed the entire state levy from property. I know the tax program will take substantially such form because there is no other form it can take".

—O—

The battle of percentages goes on, much to the discomfort of R. W. Hitchcock and the Republicans. Some Farmer-Labor statistician has revealed that in Hennepin, Ramsey, and St. Louis counties the Republican Party in 1932 polled 56 percent . . .

In the same counties in 1936 the Republican Party polled 37 per cent of the vote and the Farmer-Labor Party 41 per cent of the vote. Of course, we don't know what percentages mean. We always believed that the votes that elected were cast in November and we still believe that.

Farmers and students of farm or ganizations are offered a number of free scholarships at the Brookwood Labor College, Katonah, N. Y. The Brookwood Labor College was formed for the purpose of training workers as organizers of cooperatives, farm organizations, and trade unions. . .

Courses are offered in economics, history of Farmer-Labor movements, public speaking, cooperation, journalism, methods of organization, and parliamentary law.

The scholarships cover all costs for students. Applications should be sent at once to Brookwood Labor College or to John Bosch, 4745 13th Avenue S., Minneapolis.

—O—

The mining companies in northern Minnesota, not content with engineering the famous Hibbing North 40 bill at the last legislative session, which will save them nearly $5,000,000 in taxes, and the Youngquist Amendment which, if passed next fall, will save them more than two and a half million annually, are planning an attack upon the ad valorem, occupation and royalty tax on iron ore, it has been stated. They hope to have a friend in the Governor's chair, and with their present control of the Senate and a large slush fund to purchase votes in the House they look to easy pickings.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

By Ben C. Hagglund

Plato

"Plato said that two gifts of the gods equip man for living. One is the arts and inventions to supply him with means of livelihood. The other is justice and co-operation to put him in harmony with his fellow-men."—J. P. Warbasse, Fourth of July Oration.

—O—

Browder

Your Viewer and Reviewer, in company with a few others from this neck of the woods, heard Earl Browder speak at Minneapolis last Sunday. The Communist party had arranged a picnic at Fish Lake, near the city, and invited the public to attend and hear their candidate for president. Over two thousand came for that purpose.

At the average picnic, one comes merely to meet his fellow-mortals and maybe talk of the crops or the weather. It becomes a heterogeneous affair, with no particular purpose. A few office-seekers mount the rostrum to tell what is wrong and why you should vote for them —maybe a dozen listen to him and maybe they do not.

At Fish Lake things were different. People came to hear Browder. When he arrived, after being delayed three quarters of an hour, the picnickers massed around the speaker's stand and gave him an ovation which lasted long enough to satisfy a Roosevelt, a Coughlin, or a Lemke. And when he spoke, everyone listened—and applauded—and listened again—listened hard. For what he had to say had weight and the conviction of truth.

After painting a convincing picture of the American political scene and the various reactionary and reform political parties which infest it, Browder read the Communist party platform and challenged anyone to disagree with the justice of any one plank. The platform includes the Frazier-Lundeen plan for old-age pensions and unemployment insurance, which calls for a tax on higher incomes to defray the costs; the Benson-Amlie plan for youth aid; government operation of closed factories for the benefit of the unemployed; curtailment of government spending for munitions; and various other things.

All of these measures, Browder pointed out, aimed at immediate relief in a desperate situation, but could not be construed as being "socialistic" even in the widest sense of the word. The measures aim simply to benefit the workers and farmers under our present system.

An interesting side-light illustrated this new realistic attitude of the Communist party. The speaker told of people who admitted that the Communist platform was perhaps all right, but that the Communists went too far on the negro question. Browder's reply was this: "We go just as far on this question as Abraham Lincoln did." He pointed out that a bloody war had been fought for the principle of equality of the races, and that two amendments to the constitution had been adopted for that purpose. If other parties did not believe in equality for all men, he said, that made the Communist party the only one to stand up 100 per cent for the Constitution.

It was an edifying affair. A great part of two thousand people no doubt had expected to hear a wild-eyed radical talk revolution and socialism. Instead of that they heard a logical analysis of the modern scene and some very practical measures for its alleviation. I am sure that two thousand people went away with at least a half-formed intention to look deeper into this question.

Olson

In the hundreds of eulogies to Governor Floyd B. Olson this week, how many will mention that he made blunders, but was always willing to rectify them later, and that his entire political development was distinctly to the left? That he was labor's greatest friend is of secondary interest to the fact that he was in steady advance, and not in retreat, as so many of his contemporaries are.

Landon Leads in Straw Vote Returns

23 states, discloses division of choices in this manner:

Landon	50.9 pct
Roosevelt	43.5 pct
Lemke	03.4 pct.
Thomas	01.3 pct
Colvin	00.3 pct
Browder	00.6 pct

In only one state, Michigan, of the 23 from which first returns were received here, was the vote of sufficient volume ,at this early date, to warrant tabulation which might be considered an authoritative straw which accurately indicates the direction of the August political winds. The Michigan vote shows:

Landon	45.9 pct
Roosevelt	45.5 pct
Lemke	04.3 pct
Thomas	02.4 pct
Browder	01.9 pct

Another distribution of first returns from the 23 states, as between Roosevelt, Landon and Lemke only shows:

Landon	52.2 pct
Roosevelt	44.4 pct
Lemke	03.4 pct

Poll Wide Spread

The early interest shown in this poll by publishers throughout the country, plus the continued increase in the number of weekly newspapers that are cooperating by conducting the straw-vote in their territories, indicates most clearly that the final returns in the nation-wide balloting will be the most representative pre-election expression of political sentiment ever tabulated from small towns and rural America in a national election year.

Extra effort has been made to keep this poll non-partisan in every respect. All weekly newspapers, whether they be Democratic, Republican or Independent policy, have been invited to join in on the poll. Hundreds of them are now conducting their local polls. They will then forward their ballots to Publishers Autocaster Service, straw-vote headquarters in New York, for national tabulation.

Our Local Vote First

Readers of the Forum may expect more and more interesting national returns in the weeks right ahead. This newspaper will give you week to week reports on the progress of the voting.

Have you voted yet? If not, then clip out the straw-vote ballot, vote for your presidential choice, then mail or bring it to the Forum office.

You are not obligated in any manner by voting in this poll. You need not sign your name. You only write in the name of the town and the state from which you expect to vote in November. This is done to assist in an accurate tabulation of the national vote.

Every voter in this vicinity should cast a ballot in this poll. Voters in other states throughout the country are interested in knowing which candidate we favor here in Thief River Falls vicinity, and Minnesota . . . just as we are interested in learning of their choices.

So clip out the ballot . . . Vote for your favorite . . . Send the ballot to us . . . We will count it in the local vote . . . then send it on immediately for national tabulation.

MIDDLE RIVER

At the CCC camp there has been a change of aspect in the last six weeks. Since the procuring of the drag line a month ago the throwing up of road grade has speeded up until now one can drive on the new grade on the south shore line the entire length of the old lake—some five or six miles—and, starting north from the camp travel on the new grade for several miles around on the west and north shores. The drag line is now operating on the north side working two eight hour shifts and making several hundred feet of grade each day. It is hoped that within the next month the lake will be completely encircled by a passable automobile road.

The stone house being built for the use of the game and fish commission is well under way. the stone laying of the walls being about finished. The building will be of stone up to approximately half its height and the upper part of the walls will be made of wood finished in rustic log style. The building will be fully modern and convenient in its interior arrangements.

Biologist Kenneth Krum has a crew of about a dozen men engaged in gathering wild fruits and extracting the seeds or pits for planting. 1500 pounds of choke cherry pits have been extracted, dried and sacked up. It is not intended that all these pits will be planted at this camp, but that the major portion of them will be shipped to other camps. No bought machinery whatever is used in the extracting process. A sort of a crusher was rigged up by fastening an auto hood door on top of a table or dry goods box. The ripe cherries are poured on top of the hood lid in small quantities and the men with a hand block crusher about the size of a brick crush the cherries and pits into a formless mass of juicy pulp by grinding them over the surface of the metal. Then there is a lot of sluicing, stirring and rinsing to be done before the job is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Berg's new home will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks.

The next meeting of the Gleaners will be with Mrs. Harry Cook on Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Melvin Hanson is again at home and is in poor health having only recently been released from sopital treatment.

The walls of the new creamery are up ready for the roof. It will surely be a handsome and imposing looking structure.

One of the biggest Saturday night crowds of the season was in town last Saturday night to attend the wedding dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kolden.

The county job of raising the road east of Thief River has been completed to within two miles of Gatzke. That is the dirt grading is done. The graveling is yet to be done.

S. D. Lincoln and John Whalen of Stephen were in town a short time Monday. Mr. Lincoln is engaged in collecting material for both the county and state historical societies.

Mrs. Albertson of Fairmont, Minnesota, visited with Mrs. Wright from the middle of last week until Monday evening, when she left for her home, accompanied by Mrs. Wright, who will visit there for sometime.

The biggest rain of the season fell last Friday and caused renewed optimism among the farmers. If frost holds off a while yet there will be some potatoes, late garden vegetables, flax and sweet clover, and exceptionally good fall pasture.

Rev. and Mrs. Trelstad left Monday for St. Peter, Minn., to attend their sons wedding. From there they went to Montevideo to visit friends. They were accompanied by Mrs. Victor Berg, who went to visit her sister at Granite Falls. They will return today.

The Overold and Fonnest families moved from the Sjoberg house to the Nelson house last week and the lower floor of the Sjoberg house was at once rented to C. W. Nelson, who with his family moved into it on Sunday last. Mr. Nelson is a foreman over a crew of workers at the CCC camp. It is reported that another family from the camp are to occupy the upper floor.

Miss Marie Phillipson was surprised last Sunday afternoon by the appearance of four auto loads of friends from Foldahl where she at one time taught school. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoberg, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hoberg, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Willer, and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnson. The guests enjoyed a picnic supper. Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Buringrud of Thief River Falls, were also guests of Miss Phillipson that afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Riley of Sterling, N. D., visited at the Carr home from Thursday until Saturday. Mrs. Riley is a cousin of Mrs. Carr and the two had not seen each other for nine years. Mr. Riley and Mr. Carr drove over a large part of Marshall county on Friday. Mr. Riley was favorably impressed by the condition of things here, and said we have everything to be thankful for here in comparison with the drouth stricken condition of his section of North Dakota.

Our First Birthday

On Monday, August 24th, the Northern State Bank observed its first birthday. Starting without any deposits or loans just one year ago, this banking institution opened its doors in the belief that there existed a need for a strong independent bank in this community. One year's operation has proven that that belief was justified. Month by month the bank has enjoyed a steady growth in its business volume. Each quarterly statement has shown a substantial increase in deposits. Today the footings of this statement total more than half a million dollars, a result which the most hopeful did not expect a year ago.

As officers and directors of this growing institution, we wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation to the people of this community for the fine support we have received. By providing a complete and dependable banking service, we hope to deserve a continuation of that support, growing not merely in size but rather in usefulness to the community we serve.

Herewith, we present a statement of our condition as of:

SOCIETY

FAREWELL KITCHEN SHOWER

Mrs. Manville Gunderson (nee Violet Gulseth) prior to her departure for Hazel, South Dakota where she will reside, was honored at a farewell party given Friday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Gulseth. Miss Violet Langer, Miss Jeanette Ness, and Mrs. Stanley Swanson were hostesses at the party, which was in the form of a kitchen shower. Guests were the honor guest, and the Mesdames Andrew Ness, Gust Johnson, Albert Poppenhagen, Lizzie Rasmussen, Fred Byrom, M. Hegg, Olaf Ryan, H. B. Newell, P. Efteland, LeRoy Fåvrow, LeRoy Groslie, Bill Groslie, L. Ness, J. Olson, and Chas. Langer; and the Misses Borghild Johnson, Maxine Dalton, Junette Quist, and Ellen Berggren. The evening was spent in a social way and lunch was served. Gifts for the kitchen were presented to the guest of honor.

FOR MRS. TAXERAAS

Mrs. O. E. Taxeraas was pleasantly surprised Friday evening when a group of her friends entertained for her at her home, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. Those present included Mrs. Taxeraas, guest of honor, the Mesdames Fred Hallander, C. W. Mattson, Inga Berg, Minnie Kirby, Hannah Eide, Frank Smith, Iver Bugge, Mike Dordy, Halvor Moe, Jim Mullen, John Dokken, Fred Byron, Lauren Mullen, L. V. Johnson, Arvid Bloomquist, and Alfred Bredeson; and the Misses Alice Hall, Ilene Hoffseth and Elaine Klementson. Games were played during the evening, and refreshments were served. A beautiful lace table cloth was presented to Mrs. Taxeraas from the group.

FOR MRS. A. J. SANDEN

Mrs. A. J. Sanden was pleasantly surprised last week by a few of her neighbors who entertained at a party for her on her seventy-sixth birthday anniversary. The party was given at her home at 933 LaBree Avenue North. A pleasant afternoon was spent and lunch was served by the guests. Mrs. Sanden was presented with many lovely gifts.

MARSHMALLOW ROAST

Complimentary to her guest, Miss Ruby Bens of Strandquist, Miss Vivian Skoglund entertained ten guests at a marshmallow roast Thursday evening. Her guests were Miss Bens; Carol Peterson and Miss Gladys Andeen, both of Warren; Lloyd Tornell, and Miss Evelyn Tornell of Viking; Miss Austrid Koland, Foster Bens, and Carl Johnson, all of Strandquist; and Miss Edla Erickson and Robert Hanson.

MRS. SKOG IS HOSTESS

Mrs. John Skog entertained informally at her home last Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Roy Oen, who has been visiting in this city.

JOIN BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Gustafson entertained sixty guests at a buffet supper at their home Saturday evening, complimentary to Mrs. Gustafson and Evangeline Olson, whose birthday it was. The evening was spent in a social way. Gifts were presented to the guests of honor.

FOR MRS. REEP AND CHILDREN

Complimentary to Mrs. T. Reep and her children Barbara, Carol, and Paul, who left this morning for Northfield where they will make their home, several friends entertained for them throughout the past week.

Miss Avis Akre was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Reep and their children at dinner on Wednesday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Nelson were hosts at a dinner in their honor Thursday evening, and on Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Oden gave a dinner for them.

On Saturday afternoon, George Effinger was host to Paul Reep, honor guest, Merle Carlson, James Connor, Robert and Willis Wright, at a theatre party followed by the serving of refreshments by Mrs. Leon Kelliher at her home.

Thirty young people entertained at picnic supper Saturday night at the Old Dam for Miss Barbara Reep.

Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Rice were hosts at a dinner at their home on Monday evening. Their guests were the Reep family, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Ekeren, and Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Nelson.

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Nesse entertained for the Reep family and for Mrs. Nesse's sister, Mrs. Christine Hinderlie of Minneapolis at dinner Wednesday evening.

ZION LADIES AID

The Zion Ladies Aid will meet in the church parlors Thursday, September 3. Hostesses will be Mrs. Carl Green and Mrs. Otto Parbst.

LIDEN-FROILAND VOWS ARE SPOKEN AT DETROIT LAKES

At a wedding ceremony Sunday evening at the First Lutheran church of Detroit Lakes, Miss Verna L. Liden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Liden of this city, became the bride of B. I. Froiland, business manager of the Bratrud Clinic. The Rev. H. S. Strand read the service at eight o'clock.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white slipper satin, fitted to the knees and fashioned with an Elizibethian collar of lace and a lace yoke outlined in small satin rosebuds. The sleeves were of lace and extended in points over the hands. She carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and wore a head band of roses to match.

Mrs. George Blake of Detroit Lakes, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a navy blue triple sheer crepe frock with a white picture hat of felt, and white accessories. Her bouquet was of yellow Talisman roses. Mr. Blake was Mr. Froiland's best man.

Following the luncheon held at the Blake home, Mr. and Mrs. Froiland left immediately on a trip to points in Minnesota, and will be at home after September 10 at 422 North LaBree Avenue in this city.

For travel the bride is wearing a costume suit of chandron and brown sheer wool tweed, with brown antelope accessories.

FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Anne Svidahl, bride-to-be, was guest of honor at a glassware shower given Wednesday evening at the St. Luke's hospital. Hostesses were Miss Lois Norlander, Miss Dorothy Norlander, and Miss Hilda Heglie. Bridge was played at four tables. Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen winning the high score prize and Miss Adeline Lindberg the second high prize. The hostesses served a two course luncheon to the guests at the bridge tables. A decorative color scheme of orchid and white was carried out with bowls of sweet peas in the two shades, and candles trimmed with white canterbury bells. Shower gifts were presented to Miss Svidahl. Names included on the list of guests in addition to the honor guest were the Misses Elna Anderson, Hannah Launa, Margaret Stadum, Josephine Johnson, Agnes Sherry, Anna Latic, Mary Otmar, Corrinne Thompson, Edna Moen, Barbara McLaughlin, Adeline Lindberg, Helen Wassgren, Katherine Ellis, Verna Brandon, Vivian and Edith Skoglund; and the Mesdames Otis Wold, Rudolph Sagmoen, Saul Larson, and Anna Norlander of Canton, Miss.

ALUMNAE REUNION

Alumnae of the Lincoln high school graduating classes of '20 and '21 were reunited in this city this week at social affairs at which two alumnae, Mrs. Art Holte and Mrs. Andy Williamson, were hostesses at their respective homes on Monday and Tuesday evenings, respectively. Eleven alumnae were present. Guests of honor were Mrs. R. R. Henderson of Lone Pine, Calif., Mrs. J. J. Mack of Magnolia, Ark., Mrs. E. F. Matzke of Minneapolis, and Miss Alpha Bishop of Park Ridge, Ia. School day reminiscing formed the diversion, and refreshments were served.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mrs. B. M. Krogstad entertained for Mrs. Ray Kiland at a surprise afternoon party Tuesday, the occasion being Mrs. Kiland's birthday anniversary. Bridge was played at three tables. Prizes were presented to Mrs. Harold Eide for high score, Mrs. Alvin Holzknecht for second high, and Mrs. M. McKay for low. A late afternoon luncheon was served to the guests. The honor guest cut the four-layer cake which formed the table centerpiece. The cake was flanked on either side by tall white tapers. This simple decorative scheme was also carried out on the sideboard, a bowl of sweet peas being the centerpiece. The group presented Mrs. Kiland with a gift of remembrance and a dozen roses. The guest list included the following: the Mesdames Kiland, guest of honor; Harold Eide, M. McKay, D. A. Evanson, C. M. Haug, J. C. Belda, Alvin Holzknecht, E. J. Holmgren, Harold Arneson of Minneapolis, Clarence Knutson, and Henry Hanson.

Miss Edna Lee Wins Women's Tennis Title

Edna Lee, by virtue of her victory over Evangeline Douville, on Saturday, became the first women's tennis champion of this city. Before the tournament started, these two players were doped to reach the finals, although Miss Douville was given a scare in her semi-finals match with Eleanor Harris, but managed to nose her out by a 10-8, 8-6 count. Miss Lee won her semi-final match in a more decisive manner by winning from Flora Schroeder 6-2, 8-1.

In the Junior Men's Tournament, Abby Jaransen led the way into the finals by winning a close semi-final match from Bud Nelson 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Jarensen's opponent in the finals has not been determined as the lower bracket matches have not advanced that far. Either Vic. Jung or Austin Shanahan is given the best chance to meet Jarensen in the final match.

First round scores are: Roy Lee defeated Delmar Hovie 6-3, 6-3; Bud Nelson won from James Cosgrove 6-1, 6-1; A. Shanahan eliminated Bob Bredeson 6-2, 6-2; Lowell Nesse took the measure of Jack Booren 6-1, 6-3; Vic. Jung put out Wayne Bredeson 6-1, 6-4, and Abby Jaranson beat James Nesse. Loren Stadum and Gordon Holte won by defaults from Gene Nelson and Bruce Prichard, respectively.

Second round results are: Jaranson over Stadum 6-3, 6-0; Nelson over Lee 10-8, 7-5.

In the third round only one match was played, Nelson losing to Jaranson, thus putting the latter in the finals.

CHAPTER X

"NOT a word to anybody," Harwood had said. "Dig in 'til I phone you. One little leak, and we're finished."

Barry saw that. But why should Harwood fear the leak coming from him? Pat? Nonsense! Winslow, of course, who was Morano's lawyer. But Ernie had said, "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer." And he had said, also, "If Winslow's shielding anyone, it's Judge Hambidge. Judge Hambidge, or someone else close to him." Except Winslow, who was close to Judge Hambidge, but Pat?

Into Barry's mind trickled slowly small, insistent recollections—one after another. Recollections that, in the beginning, seemed to have nothing to do with the case. Pat was in town the night of the murder. Naturally—with her father; what of it? "He wouldn't let me stay with him," she had said, at dinner the next evening in Southampton. What of it?

But the trickle was becoming a flood now. The afternoon Hambidge had confessed seeing Kelly, why did Pat keep checking the Judge? What did she fear his disclosing? And the confession itself; why did he make it?

"I'm off again," Barry raged at himself. "Just because Ernie said, 'Winslow may be shielding Hambidge, or someone close to him,' That might mean someone close to Winslow. But who's closer than the Hambidges?" And then he remembered declaring, the afternoon of the Judge's confession, "The man—or the woman—who killed Kelly knew what he—or she—was going to do."

"Why do you say 'she?'" Pat had asked emotionally. "This wasn't a woman's crime."

Winslow had asserted, too; only a few hours ago: "that man." Curious.

And motive? Well, you couldn't deny that. If Kelly was threatening Judge Hambidge, and Pat knew it. There was no doubt that she did. "I've got something in my pocket," the Judge had quoted Kelly as shouting, and Pat had intervened promptly. All those weeks, before the decision was filed, she had writhed under the newspaper attacks on her father. Suppose she had known what was compelling that decision, and undertaken to remove the compulsion. "Silly!" Barry fumed at himself. "Fantastic! Peter isn't shielding anyone. He's talking sense, that's all, and he's the only one of the lot of us who does. I told him I'd suspected almost everyone in New York, and now it's Long Island. And the only girl in the world I ever gave a damn about. I'm the champion catch-as-catch-can moron of the United States and Canada!

The house of cards was a wreck now, and Barry turned to other self questionings. "That paper in Kelly's pocket—the threat over Luis. But it seems to have been the threat over Hambidge, also. What's the connection?

"None," he finally decided, interring that idea, too, and turning in bed, determined that he must sleep. "Something between Morano and Kelly, yes, but between Morano and Judge Hambidge—well, that's just beet-tops!" With that he fell asleep.

The telephone awakened him.

"Ten o'clock," the girl at the switchboard droned. "Call from Southampton?"

"Mr. Gilbert? This is the hospital at Southampton. Miss Hambidge asked me to tell you that Jacky Rogers has been hurt. We don't know how badly yet. His horse threw him. She'd like to know if you can come at once."

"Certainly."

"Miss Hambidge says, if you'll go straight to her house, she'll be there."

Fortunately, he got Evans at once, and they were on the Merrick road less than an hour later. "Never mind the red lights," Barry ordered. "Keep going."

But Evans was wary, beating the lights when it seemed safe to do so; stopping when it didn't, and pushing the car to its limit on stretches of unpoliced highway. Before two o'clock, Evans drew up in front of the Hambidges'. Pat was waiting.

"I've just this minute got back from the hospital," she declared. "Peg's still there, of course. But Jacky's arm's broken."

"Nothing worse?"

Pat shook her head.

"The whole thing's my fault," she said, tremulously. "Jacky's too young for a pony. Although I had one at his age. My mother was brought up in a little town called [illegible], where babies rode before they could walk."

She took him into the drawing-room, where they were joined by her father, who seemed terribly broken.

"Poor kid," he kept saying. "And poor Peggy. With all her other worries."

Between them, they told Barry what had happened. A bit of paper had blown across the pony's eyes, and he had bolted, with Pat after him. She got hold of the bridle, but the frantic little animal had dragged her out of her saddle. Still she had clung, until, maddened, the pony had bucked, and thrown his small rider. Pat had let go then; not without visible and invisible casualties to skin and clothes.

"They're nothing," she insisted, "but, if that wretched beast had got away—"

She left the sentence unfinished.

"I think we'd all be better for a bite of something," the Judge suggested, and led the way into the dining room, where luncheon evidently had been ready for some time. Nobody ate much.

Pat's nerves were on edge, and Hambidge rambled on about the "poor kid," and this being "the last straw" for Peggy, and what were they going to do now, with the Ridders coming to Southampton.

And, suddenly, Pat said, "This is Wednesday."

Barry conceded the point.

"We agreed to tell the truth if Jack wasn't free Wednesday."

The Judge's muscles stiffened.

"What do you mean by the truth, Pat?"

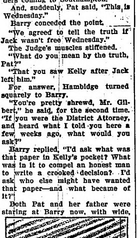
"That you saw Kelly after Jack left him."

For answer, Hambidge turned squarely to Barry.

"You're pretty shrewd, Mr. Gilbert," he said, for the second time. "If you were the District Attorney, and heard what I told you here a few weeks ago, what would you ask?"

Barry replied, "I'd ask what was that paper in Kelly's pocket? What was in it to compel an honest man to write a crooked decision? I'd ask who else might have wanted that paper—and what became of it?"

Both Pat and her father were staring at Barry now, with wide, startled eyes in which lay something like terror.



For Answer, Hambidge Turned Squarely to Barry.

The Judge cried, "We can't face that."

"We've got to face it," Pat said. "We've got to. There's a woman with a sick boy—"

"There's another woman too," the Judge interrupted. "A woman closer and dearer to me—" He checked himself, remembering suddenly that he and his daughter were not alone. Remembering, he turned back to Barry. "You know how I feel about all this," he pleaded. "I've said repeatedly that we must clear Ridder at any cost. But now you've put my fear into words. They can't convict this boy. What's the difference whether he's free tomorrow or two weeks from tomorrow? If there were any possibility of convicting an innocent man—any innocent man—I'd have no choice. But now—"

The telephone rang in the hall.

Pat said, "It's Peggy!"

She had risen, and the Judge after her, when a servant appeared.

"Mr. Winslow on the wire," the servant announced. "Very important, sir."

The Judge went out, closing the door after him.

Pat excused herself. "I think I'd better go to my father."

Barry waited, alone, but his anxiety was great, too, and, at last, he parted the double doors and went into the drawing room.

As he did so, he heard the Judge's voice.

Evidently, Hambidge had just hung up the phone, and was addressing his daughter.

"They've arrested Morano," he said. "For murdering Kelly. What are we going to do now?"

But the girl had seen Barry.

An instant later, she came into the room, very white and shaken.

Barry looked at her.

"Who killed Kelly?" he asked. "You know, don't you?"

But Pat did not answer him. Her hand closed over the back of a chair, and she swayed dizzily.

Barry caught her up in his arms.

"It's no use. We've got to have the truth. Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

His grip tightened on her shoulders.

"For God's sake—Pat—darling—was it you?"

"Who murdered Mike Kelly?"

The question was being asked him from every news-stand in New York.

Beneath it, in huge headlines, the Globe answered, and accused. In journalistic circles, that story is still referred to as "the big beat": "Who murdered Mike Kelly?" "Do the police know?" "Have they always known?" "And has this knowledge been pigeon-holed, while an innocent man was held for the crime, because the real murderer knew too much about Tammany Hall?"

The Globe replied to these queries in a series of denunciatory statements, libel-proofed by a discreet sprinkling of the usual "it is alleged" and "who is said to be."

"Luis Morano owned the house at 24 Jefferson street. He bought it in 1929, and lived there alone, with two colored servants, until 1931, when he purchased a stock farm near Morristown, N. J. The house remained vacant, and, last January, Morano sold it to the Progressive Realty company for $12,000.

"In March, when the Progressive company transferred most of Jefferson street to the city for a so-called boulevard, the value of the Morano property was set at $55,000.

"The Civic association alleged that the Progressive company was merely a stalking horse for Boss Kelly, and condemnation proceedings were instituted before Judge Curtis Hambidge, whose decision was filed only an hour after Kelly was found dead, his skull fractured by a blow from a heavy cut-glass decanter.

"On the day of the murder, a man, believed to be Morano, telephoned the Globe that he could and would establish Kelly's connection with the Progressive company. An appointment was made for 10:30 that night. The man did not appear.

"But at eight o'clock—two hours and a half earlier—Kelly went to the Cocoanut Bar. He is said to have had with him two henchmen, and a paper of some sort, with which he threatened Morano. Kelly alleged that an effort was made to pick his pocket of this document, but it was still in his possession when he left the Cocoanut Bar.

"When Kelly's body was found, the paper had vanished. All this is, and always has been known to the police. Kelly was killed between one and two o'clock in the morning.

"At one o'clock, Morano telephoned his attorney that he was hopping into his car to drive to Morristown. But the police know, and have always known that Morano's car was still in front of the Cocoanut Bar three hours later. They know, and have always known that a new traffic cop gave the chauffeur a summons at that time, and that the two men went into the Bar together to find Morano. He was not there, and the doorman said he had not been there since shortly after one o'clock.

"Where was Morano? The police know, or should know that he was the occupant of a taxicab that dashed out of Sixteenth street—where Kelly lived and was then lying dead—at two o'clock the morning of the murder. Half a block from Kelly's house, the taxi struck and killed a woman, Mrs. Theodore Jaxon, of 53 Washington square. The number of that taxi is, or should be known to the police. Its driver is, or should be known to the police. He is George Mundelein of 861 Cass street, the Bronx.

"Morano hired the cab at Sixteenth street and Sixth avenue, and told Mundelein to take him to the Cocoanut Bar. When the accident threatened to identify him, he changed his mind, and ordered the driver to 'keep on going.' He said then that he had to catch a 2:12 train at the Pennsylvania station.

"Whether or not Morano caught that train, he was not seen again until late the next evening, when he reappeared at the Cocoanut Bar with his right wrist heavily bandaged. Morano told the doorman he had sprained the wrist playing with one of the horses on his stock farm. But Morano was not anywhere near that farm the night of the Kelly murder, or the day following.

"Most of these facts are, or should be known to the police. Morano is still at liberty. No effort has been made to detain him as a material witness. For more than two months, another man has been locked in the Tombs, under indictment for this murder. If the police haven't known of Morano's connection with the case, they have been grossly and criminally negligent. If they have known, they have been grossly and criminally corrupt.

"In either event, the public awaits their next move."

A considerable part of that public waited in the Cocoanut Bar, or in front of it.

And, at seven o'clock that night, Morano was "still at liberty." The police hadn't arrested him—in spite of the Globe, and Winslow's message to Hambidge—nor manifested the least interest in his whereabouts. The first show at the Bar was beginning when Tim Laugherty arrived with "Big Bill" Devine.

Both were in plain clothes, and attracted no attention.

"Where's the boss?" Tim asked one of the head waiters.

"Upstairs—on the balcony. He's having his dinner."

He was.

Whether Morano counted too much on his pull, or whether he realized the impossibility of escape, no one ever knew. The platinum blonde had urged him to clear out. "What for?" he asked.

"Then he said, 'Even in America, you can't get away with murder forever—not forever, you can't,'" she testified later.

"'I'm tired of the whole business,' he said. 'We might as well have it over.'"

What Morano meant by that was soon evident.

"He'd been drinkin' all afternoon," the platinum blonde testified. "First time I'd ever seen him squiffy."

It was buyers' night at the Cocoanut Bar. The street-floor was so crowded that the detectives had trouble reaching the stairs.

From what Morano called "the mezzanine," operators revolving multi-hued gelatine wheels in front of spot-lights, and gentlemen in paper caps emptied cornucopias. The din was incredible, and the air full of smoke, and confetti, and bright-colored streamers.

Tim walked into Morano's little dining room.

"Hello, Luis! They want to talk to you at headquarters," Tim said.

Luis refilled his glass.

Directly beneath him, 20 brazen voices were bawling a chorus:

"Let me be—
That's all I'm askin' you.
Can't you see?
That's all I'm askin' you.
Take your hand from off'n my hips.
Take your mouth away from my lips.
Let me be,
That's what I'm tellin' you—"

"I guess you better come along, Luis."

Morano rose.

"I'm not going," he said.

"No?"

"No."

"Because why?"

"Because I don't like your boarding house. I don't like that easy chair you got waiting for me. If you're gonna croak me, you might as well do it right here."

"Nobody don't want to croak you," Tim argued. "What's the use making trouble, Luis?"

For answer, Morano gave him the contents of the glass of champagne in the eyes.

"Big Bill" Devine seized Morano's right arm.

Only for an instant, however. As Luis came forward, "Big Bill" caught him straight on the chin. It was a terrific blow. It sent Morano spinning against his own chair, and then, over that, through the flimsy railing, and down among the dancers, 15 feet below.

"Let me be—that's all I'm askin' you," came voices, bawling the chorus.

And then a babel of voices.

Screams, cries, shouts for help. The band was still playing when a "bouncer" lifted the boss' shoulders. He was bleeding at the mouth, and stone dead.

The Letter Box

Dear Editor:

We were happy to read the good news in our local papers recently concerning the progress and the growth of our Farmer's Co-operative Creamery. This is an institution of untold value to our farmers as well as to our city. Its progress speaks well for the co-operative spirit of our farmers as well as for their business ability in managing the enterprise. I know that I voice the sentiment of our large community when I offer congratulations to our Co-operative Creamery and also to its capable head, Mr. G. Bergland. We feel assured that this organization will continue to prosper and serve an ever increasing number of our citizens.

It may be of interest to your readers to mention here that the state of Minnesota ranks first in cooperative organizations. There are some 4,000 of them, making Minnesota the co-operative center of the United States. Under wise and friendly legislative leadership our State has for the last 15 to 20 years been passing legislation favorable to co-operative organizations. As experience and requirements increase, such legislation must constantly open the way for expansion of co-operative business enterprises of all kinds. The progressive state of Minnesota will no doubt continue its leadership in the co-operative movement in our country.

And so the great problem of true prosperity rests with the people of our country. Prosperity can not prosper by political platforms alone. Our state and nation will progress only as the rank and file of our citizens realize their individual and collective responsibility. Eternal vigilance is the prize of liberty. There is no substitute for industry. It is a blessing to intelligently labor and build our commonwealth step by step.

E. L. TUNGSETH

Dear Editor:

Owing to the fact that the writer of this letter is a keen student and practical man of wide experience, wish you would publish it.

Gilbert A. Brattland.

Ambrose, N. Dak.,
August 19, 1936

Dear Sir and Friend:

Received your "A Voice of the West". Do not want to appear brilliant or wise but I have advocated your ideas for the last seven years. Our old characters in Biblical times never asked or prayed for a scarcity. Thank offerings were made because of an abundance. What we need is full grain bins on every farm. But let us regulate the amount placed upon the market by the needs of our people and then receive adequate remuneration for the portion consumed by our people in our own land. Let labor receive fair wages and let business cooperate in every way possible.

We were placed upon this earth to enjoy the good things of life. All the publicity relative to our surplus of this commodity or an oversupply of fruit is all hookum. The inability to purchase due to lack of funds is the cause of any apparent over supply.

When everyone has a paying job or every farmer receives a fair price for his product then business becomes normal and spindles will again rotate, and peace, power and plenty will fill this land with contentment; young people will again go forth with optimism and find this a land of real opportunity.

The aged and infirm must be given a sufficient amount to be able to live well, that they may feel an independence and not be made to feel they are objects of charity. 90 per cent of them are victims of the greed and avarice of others.

Go to it Gilbert, giv'em both barrels and I trust you and many others may succeed in getting the power that are to see the conditions and apply the proper remedy.

Sincerely yours,
G. BAILORD

FUSION

Some of the "All Party" politicians who got into the Farmer-Labor association are now advocating fusion with the Democrats. They are like the Bourbons in that they "never will learn anything". but unlike them in that they will forget. The People's party went strong and gained like a whirlwind so long as they stuck to principles, but as soon as they had fused with the Democrats it was the beginning of the en dfor them.

I hope all Farmer-Laborites, both the later ones in the party as well as the pioneers, will be warned by the political history of reform parties, and not listen to these "All Partyites" who are nearly all office seekers and whose desire for office has blinded their judgment. Let us also remember what our late governor, Floyd B. Olson, advised in his lecture, "An Appeal to Youth." (5c at Farmer-Labor Political Federation, 130 Hotel Fredric, St. Paul.) He said: "Youth today has nothing to hope for by aligning itself with either of the older parties."

Read the Union Party platform and check up on Lemke's splendid record in Congress and stand by both that party and our Minnesota Farmer-Labor State and Congressional candidates.

Personality Parade Is Big Attraction

We find W. E. Jones as the promotor of the big Personality Parade. He runs the show from start to finish and what a show-man he turns out to be. He is a whizzbang all the way.

In looking further we have Ted Quale as chairman of the committee of the Personality Parade. He has to spend a lot of time with Whitchurch and as a result his wife, played by Mrs. Albert Ulleberg, threatens divorce.

Lo! and Behold! We find Paul Lundgren as the man about town who for forty years has had the women at his knees crying for attention, but Mrs. Fred Fredrickson finally makes him say "Yes, I do".

Ward Long is the important financial backer of the Personality Parade. They say he is out buying tickets for $1.00 and selling them for $3.00. Someone should check on Mr. Long.

Verna Becker, the wealthy society lady, solves all the problems of the Personality Parade and guides it to a successful and happy finish. Then we have the two beautiful young women, Misses Frances Kavanaugh and Rose Sheedy, who play sweethearts of these famous men.

Orrin Hall as the greatest little press agent in the U. S. proves he knows his stuff.

All in all, you will have to admit the Personality Parade can't help but be a success with these famous people backing it.

It is a sure cure for the "blues" and something that is guaranteed to chase away every ache, pain, care, and worry that you have ever had.

AUXILIARY NOTES

PERSONALITY PARADE!

Miss Sunny Shavlik has been here the past ten days as director of our local talent show "Personality Parade" to be given at the Auditorium, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 27 and 28. Miss Shavlik represents the Universal Production Co. of Fairfield, Iowa, and has been producing plays the past two years her work taking her throughout the Rocky Mountain section. She reports that we have a fine cast of characters, snappy choruses, attractive costumes, and everything that goes to make an attractive, interesting show. Business men of the city are co-operating by appearing as Parisian Beauties, Queens of Burlesque, etc. You'll want to see the Kiddie Wedding with the tiny bride and groom. An Amateur Contest is being arranged, too. Look for your hand bill Thursday, giving full program and cast of characters. While here, Miss Shavlik has been a house guest at the George Biddick and Lloyd Alnes homes and has been entertained at many of the Auxilars' homes. Mrs. George Biddick and Mrs. Leonard Hanson are chairmen of the show with the executive board as their committee.

Auxiliary meets again the first Thursday in September.

Congratulations to our Drum Corps and to Mrs. Leonard Hanson for their prize winning exhibition at Brainerd.

See you Thursday or Friday at the "Personality Parade".

ROSEWOOD CHURCH HONORS PASTOR ON 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS SERVICES

The Rindal Lutheran church, near Rosewood celebrated the tenth anniversary of the pastoral services of Rev. E. L. Tungseth. The celebration was in the nature of a surprise for the pastor and his family who came to attend a regular Luther League program.

After the opening exercises Miss Celia Saugen took the floor and promptly announced the nature of the occasion and spoke words of appreciation for the ten years of pastoral services by Rev. E. L. Tungseth.

Several other selections followed on the festival program at the close of which a fine purse was presented to Rev. and Mrs. Tungseth in memory of the occasion. Rev. Tungseth responded, thanking the congregation for the manifestation of its good will. The ladies of the church served refreshments at the close of the program.

Accordian Gospel Team Ar At Local Church

This Accordian Gospel Team is drawing big crowds of eager listeners at the M. E. Church, Eastside, which was filled to capacity last Sunday night. Petersen's Oath As Governor Is Taken

Rasmus, a store manager at Askov; Dr. Thorwald, Minneapolis; and Sven, postmaster and co-publisher with the governor of the Askov American, a weekly paper in Pine county, and their families, were also present.

Mrs. Petersen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Grandprey, Owatonna, also were present. The governor's sister, Johanna, and her husband, Gerog Strandvold, editor of the Decorah (Iowa) Posten, are in Europe.

All the Petersens, with the exception of Sven, who was born in America, are natives of Fyn, Denmark. They came to the United States with their parents in 1891 and settled at Tyler, Minn., going to Askov in 1914.

Gov. Hjalmer Petersen late Monday issued a statement as follows:

"I am here to conduct a business administration and I shall expect good work and co-operation on the part of department heads.

"I have had 22 years of business and legislative experience and should be amply qualified for the office.

"Government is the biggest business in the state and should be operated like any good business, with efficiency and honesty and taxpayers' money well spent for government services, relief, old age pensions and the health of the people. There is no question but that taxpayers, big and small, will pay their taxes more willingly and cheerfully.

"I intend to carry out the policies of our great governor, the late Floyd B. Olson, in the spirit of the liberal movement to which he gave impetus."

Gov. Floyd B. Olson Is Buried Wednesday

America, gave the funeral sermon. Pallbearers were Senators Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, Robt. E. La Follette of Wisconsin and Elmer Benson and Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota and Chas. Ward, his personal friend and Maurice Rose, his private chauffeur.

"The exaggeration of friend and bitterness of foe alike disappear in the silence of death," declared La Follette after reviewing Olson's accomplishments.

"He was no hypocrite. He was endowed with the vitality and courage of his viking ancestors. He stood by his friends with loyalty which no question of expediency or personal consideration could swerve. He never posed as anything he was not. He had a rugged, honest quality like that of Cromwell who said "paint me as I am, warts and all.'

"He would want us to look forward to the future. He would be the first to tell us that he devoted his life to a cause that was greater than he. He would tell us to close ranks and standing shoulder to shoulder to carry forward to victory the cause for which he gave his life."

The crush of spectators outside and inside the auditorium was so great that several persons, including at least four women, fainted or collapsed. The first aid station established by the 151st Field Artillery of the national guard, was rushed to take care of the victims.

The casket was not opened at the auditorium. Walter P. Quist, in charge of arrangements, closed it for the last time at midnight Tuesday when the last of an estimated 100,000 persons filed past the flower-banked rotunda of the capitol.

So great was the mass of flowers sent from all parts of the country that a dozen trucks were necessary to transport them.

When the procession left the auditorium, motorcycle police, national guardsmen and the state highway patrol swung into line to head the march. Following them were Adjutant General Ellard A. Walsh of the national guard, with the 206th infantry, next in line. Following them came the funeral coach and the car carrying the family.

The president of the United States added a huge wreath of roses to the pretentious floral offerings. He was represented on this occasion by General David L. Stone, commandant at Fort Snelling.

Farm & Implement News

Bargains in Used Grain Threshers

We have two outstanding bargains in used grain threshers
1—is a 28x46 McCormick-Deering with 14 ft. carrier self feeder, including all belts complete with new teeth ready to run.
1—is a 28x48 Twin City same equipment and both in fine condition ready to run.
Your choice of the above threshers at $500.

Used Automobile Values

Our used automobile stock has changed very materially since our last advertisement. Daily we receive comments on the outstanding values we are offering.

On hand now—5 Plymouth Sedans from 1931 to 1935 models $195 to $585. 4, Ford Sedans and coupes, from 1926 to 1930 models—$20 to $195. Several other makes and models, that have been reconditioned and good low priced car values.

Truck Bargains

Seven reconditioned Chevrolet Trucks, several models from 1929 to 1934 models, ranging in price $75 to $515 and the $515 is equipped with sleeper cab, dual rear wheels and grain tank. Price less without grain tank. Three International trucks which includes our warehouse truck. In our used truck stock there is also two Pickup trucks at bargain prices.

Used Grain Binders

We have 10 used grain binders, most of them only $10 to $25, but still are in condition so they can be repaired and used for many years. But we have two outstanding values. A 7 ft. Minnesota, only used three years at $90.00 and a very good 6 ft. Deering at $45.00.

PLOWING

Plowing is the annual big job every fall and we know of no better advice than your invitation to let us come out and demonstrate to you just what a McCormick-Deering Tractor plowing outfit will do for you. During the last week four of our good farmer customers have decided and bought McCormick-Deering Tractors and Farmalls of us with McCormick-Deering Plows. Be convinced of value by trying this equipment in your own field and run it yourself.

HORSES

We have some very outstanding values in horses:
A span of black mares, 7 and 8 years, full sisters over 3,000 lbs.
1—Black mare about 1400 lbs., 9 years old with colt 5 weeks old.
2—Mare colts, 5 months old, from good stock. Half sisters and will make a perfect team.
2—Geldings coming 3 in the spring.
Expect to have other horses most any day.

WORK RUSHED IN COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION

Men Will Check Compliance of Each Farm In Pennington County

Personnel Includes Men From Each Township

Advance Report is Given of Group Who Began Checking Today

The soil conservation plan is moving along rapidly in Pennington county at the present time states R. M. Douglass, county agent. The soil depleting bases were released last week. The Allotment Committee has selected the necessary men, from the list of applications to do the required work in the checking of compliance. These men all met in Thief River Falls Monday at a school of instruction. They were given the information regarding the measuring of farms and the filling out of necessary forms.

Actual work in the field of measuring farms will start today. A farm reporter will visit every farm that has a work sheet executed on it. The farm operator or someone designated by him will go with the reporter while the measurements are taken and will give the report on both the 1935 and 1936 crop in each field. Every farmer will be notified one or two days in advance of the time the reporter will call on him for this information.

Following is a list of farm reporters and the townships that they will work in: Black River, Alton Almquist; Bray, Edgar Naplin; Cloverleaf, Harold Jorstad; Deer Park, Martin Hoass; Hickory, H. A. Myrom; Highlanding, Dan Aastad, with Theo. Hyland, assistant; Kratka. Jim McCrum; Mayfield, Henry Bolstad; Norden, Ernest Krause; North, Owen Weckwerth with Gilbert Mickelson, assistant.

Numedal, Gorden Hunt; Polk Centre. Vernon Lindquist; Reiner, Hans Solberg; River Falls, Lloyd Johnson, Rocksbury, Glenn Wilson and Donald Toomey; Sanders, Roy Rude and Raymond Anderson; Silverton. Clarence Hovie; Smiley, L. A. Nelson and Harry Causin, with Earl Englestad, assistant; Star, Ted Kusmak and J. P. Kulseth; and Wyandotte, Pat Culkins.

Prowlers Begin Football Practice

Faster But Lighter Football Team Is Expected This Fall Says Coach George Lee

Football practice for high school boys has begun. Twenty boys reported at the Lincoln field for the opening practice session Tuesday. Coach George Lee announced this week.

The coach has seven lettermen around which to build the team. These are: Milton Nesse. fullback. Pomeroy Hill halfback. Selmer Dicken, halfback, Jack Adkins, guard, Alfred Nelson, end, James Pederson, tackle, and Loren Stadum, tackle.

With a large number of aspiring boys out to fill the other positions Coach Lee expects to put a fast team on the field. The players are not as heavy as last year but what they lack in weight will be made up in more speed. The best prospects so far are: Roger Wessling. halfback, Ray Bredeson, guard, Robert Hanson, center, Don Lorentson, end, and Clark Mickelson, end.

A system of flood lights for the Lincoln football field will be installed this fall, which will mean that all of the four games scheduled to be played in this city will be played at night in place of in the afternoon as heretofore. Installation of the system will begin immediately, and it is hoped that it will be completed in time for the opening game of the season, when Red Lake Falls comes here Sept. 18th.

Other games on this season's schedule include:

Sept. 25—Crookston, there.
Oct. 2—East Grand Forks, here.
Oct. 9—Grafton, here.

City School Board Approves Flood Lights

Plans for the installation of a flood-lighting system on the Lincoln high school athletic field were approved by the board of education at a special meeting held on Tuesday evening.

The project is being sponsored by the Thief River Falls Junior Civic and Commerce association. They are seeking donations from other organizations in the city to help defray the expense of the project.

The Junior Civic and Commerce association has agreed to furnish the additional amount that the system will cost beyond the donations collected, and will be repaid by the High School Athletic association from football gate receipts.

Preparations for the installing of the system will go forward immediately in an effort to complete the installation by Sept. 18, the date of the opening game with Red Lake Falls.

BIG LABOR DAY EVENT SET FOR RIVER VALLEY

Annual Celebration Sponsored by River Valley And Local Groups

Lindsten and Buckler May Be Main Speakers

Horse Races, Ball Games, And Other Events Are On Sports Program

Arrangements are completed for a big Labor Day celebration at the River Valley Picnic grounds next Monday. The program will start promptly at one o'clock and visitors are asked to come and spend the entire afternoon and evening at the park. A dance is the closing number.

The speakers will include Cong. R. T. Buckler of Crookston, Gottfred Lindsten of Minneapolis, the Farmer-Labor candidate for lieutenant governor, and others.

The sports program will consist of snappy baseball games, a tug-of-war. horse races and other sport events.

The event is sponsored by the River Valley Community club and the Thief River Falls Civic and Commerce association The picnic grounds are also known as Kolstrand's grove and is a fitting place for an excellent out-door event which is so often held in the River Valley vicinity.

LOCAL GIRL WINS FRONT PAGE PHOTO CONTEST

Announcement was made last week by the Central Cooperative Association of So. St. Paul that Lorraine Berg of Thief River Falls won the first prize in the July photo contest with her picture of her pet dog and cat, Rex and Tom. The photograph appeared as the cover design for the August issue of the association's magazine, The Cooperative Shipper. Lorraine's picture is reproduced on the Forum's editorial page.

Fifty Dollars Sent To Olson Memorial Fund

Donations amounting to fifty dollars in all were solicited in short order the past week from local people toward the Memorial Home fund for the late Gov. Olson.

A fund is being raised by the many friends of the departed governor in Minnesota to perpetuate the home of Floyd B. Olson, which is now being moved from its original site in Minneapolis to a park there where steps to preserve it for future generations are now in progress.

NORTH & SILVERTON FARMERS UNION LOCAL MEETS

The North and Silverton Local Union held a meeting on Friday, August 28th, and elected as their temporary officers until the regular meeting of Sept. 11th: P. O. Sorlom. chairman; M. H. Ballangrud, vice-chairman; T. H. Bjerke, secretary-treasurer; Clarence Peterson, junior leader.

Geo. Blake, the local organizer for the Farmers Union, gave an interesting talk on what can be accomplished by the farmers by uniting in their own economic organization.

Red Lake Woman Drowned In River

Believed to have been grief crazed by death of her father, the late Gorge DuPont. Red Lake county auditor, who died last April, Miss Emma DuPont, 37 years old, who succeeded him, drowned herself in the Red Lake River Wednesday near the city of Red Lake Falls.

Her body was found near the power dam one mile from Red Lake Falls. She was last seen alive at 6 A. M. Wednesday morning and when she failed to come home for lunch at noon search was begun.

Survivors are her step-mother, three step-brothers and five step-sisters. Funeral arrangements are incomplete as this paper goes to press.

Talbott, Erickson Speak At Farmers Union Picnic

While not as large a crowd attended the Farmers Union picnic as was desired last Tuesday, the four hundred in attendance heard two of the best workers in the movement speak on their favorite subjects. C. C. Talbott, president of the N. D. Farmers Union, and Morris Erickson, secretary of the same group, gave two interesting talks on the subject of cooperation and the need for adjustment of the present-day economic system. They were probably the most logical and able speakers who have appeared locally for the past year.

Robt. Miller, state president of the Cooperative Activities in Minnesota. acted as president and also spoke before the other two arrived which was at 3:30. F. J. McLaughlin, fieldman for the F. U. oil stations in Minnesota, also spoke. Mr. Miller explained the split that had risen in the Farmers Union circles in Minnesota but that this will evidently be healed at the coming fall state convention Several musical numbers by F. U. locals were rendered.

The committee in charge of the event, of which Geo. W. Blake was chairman. acknowledges the assistance from the following business places in staging the picnic: The People's Coop Store, Red Owl Store and the Thief River Falls Coop Creamery.

Farmers Union Meeting Is Billed For Grygla

Robt. Miller, president of the Union Cooperative activities, will hold an open meeting at Grygla next Saturday afternoon, when he has announced he will answer all charges against his organization.

Geo. W. Blake, the state organizer, and Gilbert A. Brattland will also speak. The meeting will be held at the ball park there.

WARREN PLAYS HERE MONDAY

Oklee Runs Surprise In Winning Last Sunday's Game By Score of 6 to 0

The last game of the season for the Thief River Falls baseball team will be played at the fair grounds here with Warren next Monday, which is Labor Day. The game will start at 2:30 according to past performances. The two teams are evenly matched. Two games have been played this season between the two with a victory for each. Next Sunday's game will therefore be a top-notcher.

Because the All-Star—Thief River Falls game failed in arrangement, the Northern Minnesota League champions will go to Grygla to play an all-star aggregation there Sunday afternoon.

After having gone through the season undefeated in the Northern Minnie league up till Sunday, Thief River Falls suffered its first defeat in the league schedule as the last game in the group was being

Floyd Olson Wins City Horseshoe Title

Floyd Olson won his second local horseshoe title Monday by defeating Ames Pederson in a match cut short by darkness. It was already dark when the two players began their match, but both players agreed to settle it by playing one game. Olson won the game 50-45. Due to the fact that Olson was leaving for the Cities that night, the tournament had to be finished that evening. Earlier in the evening the semi-finals were played and when the finals were reached darkness was already falling.

In the semi-finals Olson defeated Merrill Grothe 50-28, 42-50, and 50-8; Benson lost to Pederson 50-42, and 50-34. Quarter-finals were: Pederson upset L. Sahl 50-33, 50-42; Benson eliminated Gust Anderson 50-8. 49-50 and 50-38; Grothe beat H. Sahl and Olson won from Art Berg by default.

A round-robin tournament may be started in a few days, states NYA office, which sponsors the local tournament.

Meeting Will Decide Falls Festival Days

A public meeting, sponsored by the Civic & Commerce association will be held this evening (Thursday) to decide or make arrangements for the annual Harvest or Fall celebration in this city. The meeting will be held at the city auditorium. The tentative dates have been set for Oct. 1st, 2nd and 3rd by the committee in charge.

A. W. Mickelson is chairman of the committee which also includes A. M. Magnuson and O. C. Paulson. They were instructed to develop plans for the event and report back at a meeting with an outline of the projected program. It is understood that the Junior Civic & Commerce association and the local American Legion post will cooperate in arranging for the celebration.

Jaransen Wins Junior Men's Tennis Title

Abby Jaransen defeated Austin Shanahan 6-4, 3-6, 6-1 to win the junior tennis crown Saturday. In the semi-finals Jaransen won from Bud Nelson 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; Shanahan took Vic. Jung 6-4, 6-3. Quarter-finals results were: Shanahan over Gordon Holte 6-4, 6-4; Jung over Lowell Nesse 6-3, 6-2; Jaransen over Loren Stadum 6-3, 6-0; Nelson over Roy Lee 10-8, 7-5.

The play-off was sponsored by the local NYA offices with Marvin Benson in charge.

Landon Retains Straw Vote Lead

Pres. Roosevelt, However, Gets Big Lead Over Others In Forum Poll

Approximately 100,000 ballots from 32 states in the Nation-wide Presidential Straw-vote which is being conducted by the newspapers in small town and rural America, poured into national straw-vote headquarters here during the last 10 days, thus affording the first state by state tabulation.

As between Roosevelt and Landon only, total of 69,602 votes, first tabulated returns from the 18 states show:

Landon ......37,937......54.5 pct.
Roosevelt ....31,665......45.5 pct.

President Roosevelt continues his lead in the votes coming into the Forum office, with Lemke a close second. Much comment is heard here about the apparent lack of sentiment for Landon, who is strong in the national poll: Roosevelt 72, Lemke 56, Landon 5, Thomas 24, Solvin 9 and Browder 12.

Why there is such a discrepancy between the Forum vote and the national vote may be explained because the majority of the newspapers in the poll are republican in politics while the Forum's politics is progressive or Farmer-Labor.

In some of the far outlying and smaller states the vote received here was yet too small to be included in the state by state tabulation. However, from 18 of the 32 states the vote was of sufficient volume to afford tabulation and present first returns sentiment in some of the key states. That these trends, as expressed in this first national tabulation, will hold throughout the poll might easily be the subject for many hot debates between voters, never the

Sunday School Rally Will Be Held Sunday

The annual fall rally of the American Sunday School association will be held next Sunday at Rosewood. northwest of this city. The first session will open at 10:30 a. m., with regular services conducted by Rev. J. Bowman of Viking an hour later.

There will be a picnic luncheon hour to which visitors are asked to bring their own lunch. Free coffee will be given away by the officers in charge.

There will be a general program in the afternoon at which Rev. J. P. Wiens of Bemidji and Arthur Hanson will be the main speakers.

LUNDEEN NAMED CANDIDATE TO SUCCEED OLSON

Selection Made Saturday By State Farmer-Labor Committee

Endorsee Will Get Full Ticket Support

Biography of Chosen Man Reveals Progressive Tendencies

Ernest Lundeen, congressman from the Third Congressional district, was chosen late Saturday as the candidate for the United States senate from Minnesota on the Farmer-Labor ticket, succeeding the late Gov. Floyd B. Olson. Lundeen was chosen on the first ballot taken by the Farmer-Labor state central committee, the vote being Lundeen. 41, Paul Rasmussen 13, and Geo. B. Lommen 10. This was later made unanimous.

Several others had stated they would accept the endorsement to run for the senator to succeed Olson on the ticket. Among these were the governor, Hjalmer Petersen, Harry Peterson, the attorney general; Paul J. Kvale, congressman, and others. Lundeen will be opposed by congressman Theo. Christianson on the Republican ticket and P. J. Delaney on the Democratic ticket.

Governor Petersen and the others congratulated Cong. Lundeen upon his endorsement and they pledged their full support to bring about his election this fall.

The choice of Lundeen will heal the ruption that was in evidence with followers of the Lemke Union party candidacy. Lundeen is sympathetic to the third national party movement to a limited extent. The Farmer-Labor party, as such, is taking no stand as between Roosevelt and Congressman Lemke, but the F-L candidates are expected to go along with Roosevelt as Governor Olson urged.

Lundeen returned from a speaking engagement at Rush City to be nearby when the vote was taken and was called in for a speech.

Lundeen Issues Statement

Lundeen said he had not expected the nomination, but "I was available, that was all." He said he had not communicated with any members of the committee because he felt they should select a nominee "solely with the best interest of the party in mind, selecting the candidate who would help the ticket most."

Pledging his "vigorous" support to "every plank of our platform", Lundeen asserted the "country needs our program as never before."

When notified of his selection he issued the following stotement:

"Having been honored with the nomination for United States senator, there is nothing more I can say now than that I will carry out the policies and program of our departed leader, Floyd B. Olson."

As Lundeen spoke to the committee itself, he pledged his active

Funeral Held for Red Lake Leader

Funeral services were held Saturday in the Presbyterian church at Red Lake Falls for Charles L. Kundert, 57, one of that city's most prominent business leaders, who died Wednesday, last week, following a stroke suffered three days earlier while watching a baseball game.

Mr. Kundert was owner and manager of the Red Lake Falls Telephone Co. and the St. Hilaire Telephone Co. He was prominent in the Farmer-Labor party in Red Lake county and had been nominated for county commissioner from the fourth district. Before coming to Minnesota 15 years ago he was county auditor in Lincoln county, S. Dak., where he was born in 1878.

Survivors are his wife; daughters, Mrs. V. B. Pushing of Olivia, Minn., Mrs. V. A. Weed of Red Lake Falls; two brothers, C. W. Kundert of Canton, S. Dak., and Melvin Kundert of Burns, Ore, and one sister, Mrs. E. C. Fitzgerald of Clifton, Ariz.

CONDEMNATION FOR PART OF THE PRESS

Newspapers of the sensational type were heavily scored by the American Bar association at its convention in Boston, Mass., last week. "We must not have two trials, one in court and one outside," said Judge Hallam of St. Paul, head of a special committee of the criminal law section of the group.

The report severely criticized the manner in which the Hauptmann trial was conducted. It stated: "The system of the public press arguing the case outside of the court is fundamentally wrong. In the second place, there is grave danger in the dramatization of crime and exploitation of the criminal."

It refers also to the activities of the governor of New Jersey as "repugnant to our sense of propriety and in our opinion unwarranted." The taking of moving pictures in the court room during the trial was equally condemned, as were minor matters in the most notorious case ever exploited by the rabid newspapers of America.

Trial by newspapers has been a common practice most of us will admit. But since the Hearst press and others of a similar type have appeared to exploit events of this kind the practice has become so obnoxious that some means of preventing it must be adopted.

Racketeers have seized upon every means or instance to exploit the public. It is found in schemes of various kinds from "quack" medicines, trick performances, yes hundreds of ways in which the innocent people are "moved" in some manner so they are relieved of some cash. The work-up of sensational events is among the most recent racket and the newspapers are the guilty agencies. If an item isn't sensational enough there are specialty men who re-write the report and thus can make anything sensational in print. The Lindbergh kidnaping case reached the depth of indecency and makes any newspaperman blush.

While no one desires any restriction of the freedom of the press, yet we cannot blame the public to want a restriction in matters as court cases of the nature of the Lindbergh case or the Hauptmann affair as handled by reporters and state officials in New Jersey last winter. A law has been proposed to hear charges of this nature by a special judge who can stop affairs in time so it doesn't become a national scandal.

EDUCATIONAL GROUP TO BOYCOTT HEARST

Rev. Dr. Jerome Davis, president of the American Federation of Teachers, said Friday the federation had adopted a "strong resolution" concerning William Randolph Hearst.

The resolution provided that the federation form central and local committees "to organize a boycott against Hearst newspapers and all other agencies of communication under his control," and to oppose candidates "whose principles and program are those of Hearst.'

The resolution was adopted August 21 at the federation's national convention in Philadelphia. Dr. Davis, who is an associate professor at the Yale divinity school, said the federation represented approximately 20,000 public school and college teachers throughout the nation.

Hearst was characterized in the resolution as the country's "outstanding jingoist," a "constant enemy of academic freedom" and "the chief proponent of fascism" in the United States.

He is a fanatic in more ways than one. Because of the fact that he controls nearly fifty newspapers and magazines in the United States it is proper that some obstruction be put in the path of such an autocrat. Because of his wealth he opposes everything progressive and, unless we stop him in time, he may have us chained to anything he may wish.

NO WAR TOYS IN NAUTICAL NURSERY

According to passengers on the Queen Mary, the world's biggest ship, the children's nurseries on the boat are veritable fairylands containing everything to delight a childish heart. But there are no military toys in the playrooms—no soldiers, no tanks, no toy guns. Thrills are provided instead by trains, tunnels, chutes—all miniature examples of peacetime invention.

The man who planned this floating toyland is George Ramon, a Hungarian, who during travels in Europe has seen so much unrest on all sides, that he decided to keep everything military out of the small juvenile kingdom over which he held sway.

IF MANKIND COULD GET ALONG AS WELL

WHAT IS THE NAVY FOR?

Every year the Navy League in Washington sponsors a day to bring to the attention of the public pertinent facts about the American navy. Plans are now under way for observance of this Navy Day in October, and this slogan has been announced for it: "Sea Power—What Is It?"

That is a good question, and it needs answering. For many years now the American taxpayer has been digging deeper and deeper into his pockets to pay for an ever-growing fleet of battleships, destroyers, cruisers, and submarines, presumably to build up "sea power." Not until this year has he been asked to consider just what it is he has been paying for.

Heretofore, when members of Congress have raised the question, it has been answered with "sea power is to protect American lives and property," or "to protect American interests in any part of the world", or "to have a Navy second to none."

The time has gone when such generalities satisfy the astute voter. None of us questions the need of naval protection of our shores. What is questioned is the wisdom of spending money for "defense" when that term is yet to be officially defined, and when "sea power" also lacks definition. Thinking Americans would feel easier to learn that the country's naval policy was designed for defense and not for aggression in foreign waters. Common sense demands some reason for a bigger navy, and hence an answer to this query about sea power will be looked for with more than ordinary interest.

LOW PRICES AND PROSPERITY

It is beginning to dawn on the minds of many prominent people that the way to maintain prosperity is by bringing about a more equitable distribution of the national wealth, and that the most practical way in which to accomplish this is by lowering prices. One of the first prominent business men to take this stand was Henry Ford, and now the Brookings Institute after an exhaustive study of the economic situation advises that the way to prosperity is to lower the spread between price and cost.

There is no doubt whatever but that capitalism or the profit system could continue to exist if business generally was willing to adopt low price technics, both of manufacture and distribution, and also low rate interest on legitimate capitalization. Such procedure would keep industry running and at the same time maintain a high standard of living for all.

It is exceedingly doubtful, however, that we may expect to see the economic masters of society adopt any such plan on a sufficiently large scale as to have any appreciable effect on our national life. But the people themselves can bring about this desirable result through adopting consumers' cooperation in all competitive business, and at the same time prohibiting private monopoly through ownership of natural resources or franchises giving them what is in effect monopoly powers.

Consumers' cooperation literally destroys private profit, because in the final analysis commodities are produced and distributed at cost. Even though a member or patron of a cooperative may pay at the time of purchase a price greater than the cost of the commodity purchased, the difference between the price paid and the actual cost is returned to him in the form of what is known as a patronage dividend. Thus does consumers' cooperation solve the economic problem by bringing about an equitable distribution of wealth, and offers a practical technic for achieving that which the best minds of the country are agreed must be done in some way or other if national prosperity is to be attained.—Midland Cooperator.

THE WORLD LOVES AN HONEST FIGHTER

All the world loves an honest fighter, a man who asks no quarter from his enemy, a man who frowns upon unfair tactics and refuses to resort to them. Such a man was Gov. Floyd B. Olson.

From early childhood, until the time of his death, Gov. Olson never took unfair advantage of an adversary, nor did he select the weakest opponent he could find. He was a fighter, but he fought for a noble cause, the cause of the downtrodden. He was a foeman worthy of his steel. There was not a trace of hypocrisy in his entire makeup. His opposition always knew exactly where he stood.

That is why he was loved by his friends and respected by his enemies. Born of poor parents in a tenement district, he knew the trials and tribulations of the poor. He was endowed with a brilliant mind and his boyhood experiences taught him many lessons that stood him well in future life.

It was during these days of suffering and hardship that he was equipped to become the champion of the common people. He never looked for monetary reward or personal gain. Every step in his well-defined life was a step toward the goal of equal rights to all and special privilege to none.

He didn't gain this end, his work was undone when his column was broken, but he implanted a high ideal in the minds of his friends and followers and his immortal spirit will carry his party on to a victory, not only in the coming election, but in the battle for humanity.

Floyd Olson never knew defeat. He suffered reverses, but they were only a part of the scheme of things and he was spurred on to new heights by every setback. Such was the man who will go down in the history of the nation. His niche has been carved in the Hall of Fame.

Let us all take this page from the life of our beloved friend and servant. Let us fight the battle fairly and squarely. Let us remember that he always fought in the open and that he despised any man who would revert to unfair tactics to gain his end. With such an inspiration before us, we cannot be defeated. Statues have been erected and memorials have been constructed to honor our nation's dead, but the greatest memorial we could erect for our beloved Governor is a living memorial, a victory in the coming election, that his ideals and principles may be carried on through the ages to come.

He has thrown us the torch and we must carry it for him. Guided by his immortal spirit, we cannot fail.—Madison Independent Press.

The Washington Commentator

E. C. Stengelsen

INCREASED CREAM IMPORTS

Your commentator is the agreeable, good natured sort who is not too fussy about trifles. . .

For example, he is entirely ready to accept as substantial truth the statement that Ivory soap is exactly 99.44 percent pure. Of course, he may entertain a bit of understandable curiosity concerning the doubtful 56-100 of 1 percent about which the soap manufacturer seems somewhat reticent; but he is broad-minded enough to let it pass.

So, too, with Old Gold cigarettes. If a user should happen to cough a time or two while smoking a carload, it is quite all right with your commentator.

* * * *

In like manner, when Governor Landon promised that he would, if elected, strive mightily to restore American markets to American farmers, your commentator was promptly ready to believe as truth the implication that due to bungling on Mr. Roosvelt's part, these markets had been lost to American farmers.

He quite took Mr. Landon's word for it, that due to learned tariff schedules in various reciprocal trade agreements, foreign imports of farm products were pouring in and lowering prices ruinously.

* * * *

Your commentator was particularly disturbed over the cream situation. For there were the Republican spokesmen, pounding desks and thundering that cream imports had increased 2,000 per cent.

It seemed to your commentator that only the most thick-skinned and callous Democrat would there after be able to look an honest, hard-workisg cow in the face without blushing.

* * * *

But then your commentator ran across certain surprising figures, recently released by Governmental agencies in Washington. . .

From these he learned that during the first four months of 1935, the total cream imports were $87, while in the corresponding period of the current year, they were $1,860. . .

Not much more, in fact, than four moderate dairy farms would produce alone. But, quite as alleged, the percentage figured 2,000.

* * * *

His suspicions aroused, your commentator then investigated other Republican charges. And, on close examination, these fared no better. It developed that on all the items on which the tariff had been lowered, the increase in four months of imports was only 5½ million dollars.

Canada's purchases of our manufactured products (on which she in return, had lowered the tariff) increased greatly, however, during the same period—98 per cent on automobiles, 30 per cent on machinery, 23 per cent on fruit.

When it is considered that our pay rolls probably increased substantially as a result, thus broadening our domestic market for farm produce, one may well believe that in the tariff dickering with Canada, we actually got considerably the best of the bargain.

* * * *

Your commentator realizes, of course, that the Republicans have an election to win and must make the most of such material as they have. He won't quarrel with that. But he requests to admit that he is no longer quite the trusting soul he was at the outset.

He is no longer sure, for example, that 'Luckies are actually toasted. . .

Or that 'Chesterfields satisfy. . .

Or that any considerable section of the population is goofy enough to walk a mile for a 'Camel'.

He has even become just a little bit suspicious that Mr. Heinz, instead of having the full 57 varieties claimed, may, on careful count, actually be short a pickle or two.

Capitol News Review

(By A. I. Harris)

Now that Floyd B. Olson has passed to the great beyond, people are asking: What kind of a man was Olson? How will history treat him? What does his death mean to the future of the Farmer Labor party of Minnesota and to the liberal movement of America?

It was perfectly natural that one in public life, so gifted in oratory, possessed of such a magnetic personality and a keen sense of practical political values, should have been called an opportunist by his opponents. . .

Floyd Olson's personal friends always knew that he was an idealist determined to do his part in helping to bring about an economic order which would give to the millions of toilers in the city and on the farm a greater degree of comfort and happiness than they now enjoy and a larger and more equitable share in the wealth which they produce. These friends knew that his radical utterances came from the soul, an outcry against the social and economic injustices of today. . .

When Olson spoke as a radical he was speaking not as a politician but as a crusader for a cause. He knew that such utterances could do him no good politically, but would subject him to bitter criticism and abuse. It is no exaggeration to say that no man in public life in the history of Minnesota had ever been subjected to the abuse and vilification as had Floyd B. Olson. He took it all as a matter of course . . . something to be expected . . . and went serenely about his tasks. . .

It was a fine gesture for a political writer on a conservative newspaper . . . Leif Gilstad of the Minneapolis Journal . . . to set the record straight. Said Leif Gilstad in an appraisal of the late Governor:

"I have been asked the question many times, and I have asked it myself . . . was he an idealist, a real believer in all that he professed, or was he merely a willing opportunist, riding a vehicle to personal power?

"My own opinion is that he was essentially a sincere crusader for the underdog, who earnestly wanted to see better things for the common man; that he mixed that feeling with the instincts of an acute and ambituous politician who loved politics as a great game; that he would utilize any reasonable means to gain the end of power and position."

* * * *

What will history say of Olson?

He will be remembered as a pioneer in the movement for a better America. Before Olson came upon the scene there was protest and grumbling on the part of the agrarian west, but the farm revolt never got beyond the protesting stage. Olson dramatized this revolt and related it to the problems of the city worker. He crystalized sentiment that had been forming for years, gave it enthusiasm, inspiration, coupled with the practical political leadership it needed for success. . .

At the same time he synthesized its philosophy. Before his time, persons who were against the present system did not know what they would substitute for it. Olson gave their protests a radical direction, showing them that reform was only a palliative, and that without a new economic order depressions would constantly recur, war was certain, and social security impossible. . .

He popularized and dramatized economics, held up to ridicule and scorn the defenders of the old order, showed how a new order was not only possible but inevitable. That the party became radical with the courage to advocate a complete new system of production and distribution was due to Olson's direction. . .

History will say that this was his greatest accomplishment. And when the Farmer-Labor Party realizes its ideals nationally and the dreams of Floyd Olson become actualities, men will remember him and say, "This great man saw the light and pointed the way. He did not live to see his people enter the promised land, but his vision directed them on the right path, his courage started them on their journey."

* * * *

What will his passing mean to the Farmer-Labor Party and the liberal movement of America? Was he the whole Party and will the Party follow him soon to an untimely end? . . .

For months Olson's enemies knew that he was ill unto death and laid their plans accordingly. They decided to bury the Farmer-Labor Party with his body. To accomplish this they built up a myth of inter-party strife, encouraged jealousies between different leaders, and tried to thwart the will of the rank and file by running independent candidates. . .

Olson's illness and death have solidified the Party. Even those within the Party who were critical of some of his actions—the matter of appointment—are determined to carry on in the name of Floyd B. Olson so that the ideals of the leader can be realized. These ideals will now become a holy crusade. . .

Although Olson was the spearhead of the party, he never claimed to be anything more than the voice of a movement which was greater than he and which would have attained success had he never lived. He was modest. Speaking before the 1932 convention, he declared, "The Farmer-Labor Party is greater than any single man in it. It alone has the power to accomplish the ideals we stand for; it alone can carry on, bringing it alone can, carry on, bringing peace and security to humanity years after we have passed away."

The death of Olson means a new alignment of leadership. It means that the party will depend more on itself and less on one man. It means that what started as a movement of the people is still a movement of the people, strong, confident, and sure. . .

Those who hoped to bury the movement with Floyd Olson's mortal remains will taste the bitter fruit of disappointment. . .

The passing of Olson as it affects the national liberal movement is of great importance. It was in Minnesota under Olson and the Farmer-Labor Party that social security first became a political issue. It was here that the youth problem first found effective leadership and sympathetic understanding. It was here that the first moratorium on mortgages was declared. It was here that political leadership demonstrated that the people could be freed from the domination of the two older parties. . .

Just as Olson pointed the way in Minnesota so the Farmer-Labor Party of Minnesota has been pointing the way for the country. Had Olson lived he would unquestionably have been a national leader. But the movement he started is already on its way. All Pennsylvania, Washington, New York, and points in between have their di-

A Reminder

"The world requires not so much to be informed as to be reminded."—Aphorism. A word to the wise is usually sufficient, but the world requires to be reminded every so often, and even then it sometimes forgets.

—O—

Spain, the Touchstone

Old timers used to test the purity of gold and silver with a rock which they called the "touchstone". Whether the device worked or not is beside the point. One thing is certain—we need something like it to test the genuineness of various political movements in this country—something that is sure.

Earl Browder, Communist candidate for president perhaps has supplied the touchstone to current affairs. His formula is this: Ask a man what he thinks of the Spanish situation, and you will know whether he is for you or against you. If he is for the Loyalists, he is all right; if he is for the fascists, beware of him.

The USA presents such a bewildering array of political movements that it is difficult to test them all; but the above formula can be put to all with fair results. Thus, if we would know the worth of a Landon, a Father Coughlin, a Gerald K. Smith, or a Lemke, we have but to find out what is their stand on the Spanish question. In no other place in the world is the issue between Democracy and Fascism so clearly drawn.

—O—

Jew-Baiters

How can we tell a fascist? One of the easiest methods is to discover what he thinks of Jews, or Negroes, or "non-Aryans". If he is a Jew-hater, you may be sure he is fascistic-minded. Father Coughlin has impregnated thousands of followers with the virus of Jew-hatred. The myth of the "international Jew" which has been fostered for years—ever since the "Coin" Harvey days—has played right into the hands of the fascists. Certain it is that a Jewish capitalist is no more lenient than an Aryan capitalist—but our monetary muddle is not the product of the Jews alone.

One of the latest of the fascistic organizations springing up like mushrooms is the Knights of the White Camellias, who published in their official organ, THE WHITE KNIGHT, a list of thirty prominent Jews who would be better put out of the way. Their chief spokesman, James True of, New York, boasts of having invented a new and more deadly police club, which he named the "Kike Killer".

As yet, these fascistic organizations are many, and have only small followings; but they are straws in the wind. To those who claim that "it can't happen here" we have but to point to the old Ku Klux Klan, the Black Shirts, the Silver Shirts, the Knights of the White Camellias, the Black Legion, and the like. They are the nuclei from which an American Hitler could form a fascist army that would take over the government on short notice.

It appears that our greatest fight within the next few months will be to preserve democracy, to maintain what little freedom we do have.

Can Human Nature Be Changed?

One of the perennial arguments against which you run while discussing economics or world conditions is this: These reforms and new societies may be all right, BUT YOU CAN'T CHANGE HUMAN NATURE.

That is, human nature is considered a poor material with which to build a new society. As a matter of fact, this is a ruling-class philosophy, and rightly interpreted it means: "We do not want to change human nature."

I claim that human nature need not be changed to put across any reform. Walter Duranty of the New York Times says that human nature is much the same in the Soviet Union as it is in other countries. The only difference is—human desires have been turned into new channels.

A people accustomed to Coolidge prosperity will not allow themselves to be depressed to a pauper standard. It is not in human nature. Come to think of it, we don't want human nature changed at all!

STRAW VOTE BALLOT

Nation-Wide Vote for PRESIDENT

THIS Straw-Vote is being conducted by co-operating weekly newspapers located in states throughout the nation to show pre-election sentiment of small town and rural America in their choice for President for the next four years.

TO VOTE:

Mark a cross X in the square before the name of the candidate you prefer.

Group or club voting is NOT allowed. . . . Only single individual votes will be counted.

A voter need not sign his or her name, but to assist in national tabulation please fill in name of town and state, below.

Vote for one only of these candidates

☐ ROOSEVELT (Democratic)
☐ LANDON (Republican)
☐ LEMKE (Union)
☐ THOMAS (Socialist)
☐ COLVIN (Prohibition)
☐ BROWDER (Communist)

Town.................................... State....................

First Returns From 18 States in Nation-Wide Presidential Poll

less here they are, as the many-times checked score sheets discloses them.

In the eighteen states the total vote of 74,703 are distributed to favorite candidates, as follows:

Landon	37,937	50.8 pct.
Roosevelt	31,665	42.3 pct.
Lemke	3,485	4.7 pct.
Thomas	720	1.0 pct.
Colvin	336	.5 pct.
Browder	560	.7 pct.
Total	74.703	100 pct

Above is the first release of state by state tabulation in 18 of the 32 states from which returns have so far been received by Publishers Autocaster Service, New York, which newspaper service company is acting in the capacity of national straw-vote headquarters.

In the 18 states below, where the first national returns were tabulated, Landon shows first majorities in 10 of the 18 states. They are as follows: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

Roosevelt shows first majorities in the 8 following states: Florida, Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, and Texas.

First Figures For Debates

Despite some seeming political inconsistencies shown in these first national returns, as the state by state tabulations are studied separately, the release of first figures always afford a basis for speculation and discussion which voters everywhere enjoy. As points in question the vote in Ohio, Virginia and Maryland might easily start quite lengthy discussions between partisan folks.

On the other hand, the Michigan and Minnesota vote is of sufficient volume to bear out the percentage average of the entire poll to date and thus justify the total returns as presented above for first perusal.

That final returns in this nation-wide poll from small town and rural America voters should be extremely interesting is indicated by the hundreds of new polls that have been started during the last ten days in weekly and small town daily newspapers in all parts of the country. The publishers of these newspapers, irrespective of their paper's policy. Democratic, Republican or Independent, were invited to join in the poll. The votes of the readers of these newspapers will soon be forthcoming to swell the totals already pouring in and thus make possible the most comprehensive straw vote ever recorded from country America in a national election year.

You're Invited To Vote

Editor's note—If you haven't yet voted in this nation-wide presidential straw-vote, we suggest you do so at once. The Forum straw vote ballot will be found on page .. of this issue of this newspaper.

The Forum is cooperating in this nation-wide poll, thus affording its readers the opportunity of showing their fellow voters in other states who we here in Thief River Falls and Minnesota prefer for President during the next four years.

All legal voters are invited to clip the ballot, vote it as they wish, then mail or bring it to the office of the Forum. The local vote is announced weekly. The ballots are then sent on to New York for national tabulation.

Voters are under no obligation to sign their names. The space on the ballot for the name of the town and state, from which you expect to vote in November, is placed there only to assist in an accurate national tabulation at straw-vote headquarters in New York.

To Labor--

It's men and work that made America. Men who weren't afraid to roll up their sleeves, put in long hours and finish that job no matter how hard or how tough.

And those are the kind of men who are the most reliable, the most trustworthy, the ones with whom we like to do business, loan our money.

As a tribute to labor this bank will be closed Monday, Sept. 7th

MIDDLE RIVER

May Be A Co-Op Store

A movement is underway towards the establishment and operation of a co-operative store here. While there has been no actual selling of stock yet some thirty-five or forty men have signified their willingness to become stockholders. A meeting was schedulel for Wednesday evening when it was planned to appoint a stock soliciting committee and take other steps towards a definite organization. John V. Niemi, recently of Thief River Falls, a man of some experience in co-operative enterprises, is actively engaged in pushing the project along.

Albert Engelstad, a freight conductor on the G. N. Ry., at Grand Forks, motored over here last Thursday and went out to Gatzke to visit his father, C. A. Engelstad, who is in very poor health.

Hans Uertes, of Warren, was in Middle River, Thursday.

Miss Viene Peltola returned last week from her extended visit in the east. She was accompanied by Mrs. Eugene Peltola, whose home is at Finlayson, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Anderson were surprised last Friday by a visit from an auto load of relatives. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm Sandberg and baby Ruth, parents and sister of Mrs. Anderson, of Bemidji; Mr. and Mrs. C. Frisk of Chisholm and Mrs. Helen Frisk, of Duluth, cousins of Mr. Anderson. The visitors remained until Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Anderson will leave Middle River in a few days and take up their residence in Crookston, where Mr. Anderson has accepted a position as principal of the Carmen school. Miss Pernille Larson, who taught here last year, and Miss Gladys Carrier will both teach in the same school.

The continued warm weather and absence of frost is bringing smiles to the faces of most farmers. The flax and sweet clover is ripening nicely and some who cut an early first crop of alfalfa are optimistic about getting a paying crop of seed from a second cutting. And, besides all this the potatoes, sweet corn, and other garden vegetables are still growing.

Peter Lorenson and family of Strathcona visited at the Ludvig home here Sunday and little Miss Alice, daughter of Pete, stayed for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole C. Granum and children of Thief River Falls were visitors at the H. A. Hall home Sunday.

Grandma Hanson mother of Mrs. Risberg and Mrs. Sam Kezar is very ill at the Sam Kezar home.

Mr. William Peabody and family will in the near future move into the upper story of the Sjoberg house formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fonnest. Mr. Peabody is one of the technical foremen at the CCC camp and his family have been living at Grand Rapids.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mattinen, of Cloquet, parents of Mrs. D. M. Johnson, visited at the Johnson home this week and incidentally renewed old acquaintances with several Finnish settlers here who formerly lived at Cloquet.

Mrs. A. W. Clay, of Greenbush visited friends here Saturday. Mrs. C. A. Berg aicompanied her home that evening and on Sunday returned home with Mrs. Clay who was on her way thru here enroute to Grygla.

The Peterson & Biddick store opened up here for business Friday.

Mr. Ernest Phillipson of Kenosha, Wis., and Dr. A. Phillipson of Drayton, brothers of Miss Marie Phillipson, and Mrs. Hans Chester, of Seattle, Wash., were guests of Miss Phillipson last Sunday. The doctor and Mrs. Chester left for their homes Sunday while Earnest is remaining for several days.

Miss Lillian Olson will take up a position as teacher in the Badger schools on Sept. 14th.

The county authorities are surveying the road west of Middle River as far as the Soo track preparatory to regrading and raising it higher to counteract the snow drifts that have heretofore blocked it up in winter. Good jobs, push it along.

Miss Gladys Carrier has recently returned from a weeks stay in the Gillette hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stephens visited at Walter Stephens' near Grygla last Sunday.

Dr. C. H. Longley, Mrs. A. L. Longley and Miss Pearl Longley of Little Falls, were guests at the L. D. Longley home from Saturday until Sunday evening.

Mrs. Solum of Grand Forks, with her two daughters, Miss Myrtle Solum, also of Grand Forks and Mrs. O. C. Johnson of Moorhead, mother and sisters of Mrs. Arvid Carlson were visitors at the Carlson home the latter part of last week.

support to the entire Farmer-Labor ticket, and especially to the nominee for governor, Senator Elmer A. Benson.

"I realize," he said, "that if we do not elect our candidate for governor, and maintain our state organization, our party will not elect any senators or congressmen and we will have a wrecked party in the state. For that reason, I shall stress my support of Senator Benson."

In advance dickerings, intensive work was done for Governor Petersen, to induce Senator Elmer Benson to run for the senate instead of the governorship. Petersen declared his own wishes, but said he would abide by the committee verdict.

"Need Man to Blast GOP"

Proceedings were harmonious as the committee agreed that the party must stand together. One speaker, in advancing Lundeen's name, said, "We need a man who can blast the Republicans—who can dynamite them."

The next task is the selection of a congressional candidate to take Lundeen's place in the third district. A district mass convention of all members of the Farmer-Labor Association will be conducted next Sunday, with at least 10 candidates in the field. The Third Ward Farmer-Labor club will consider the question tonight at St. Andrews church, Nineteenth and James avenue N. Speakers will include former Mayor William Anderson and Representatives W. F. Bennet and Samuel H. Bellman.

Ernest Lundeen was born at Beresford, S. Dak., August 4, 1878, the son of the Rev. Charles and Christine Lundeen. He received his B. A. degree from Carleton college, Northfield, Minn., in 1901, and in the same year entered the law department of the University of Minnesota, being admitted to the bar in 1906. He began his law practice in Minneapolis.

Mr. Lundeen was married to Norma Ward of San Francisco, Calif., on February 5, 1919, and is the father of two children, Ernest Ward and Joan Jessie.

He was a member of the Minnesota House of Representatives for two terms, 1910-1914, and a delegate to the Republican National conventions in Chicago in 1912 and 1916. He was a member of the Sixty-fifth (War) Congress from 1917 to 1919, and voted against entering the war, against conscription for foreign service, and against war with Austria. He opposed the League of Nations and United States entrance into the World Court.

Mr. Lundeen was editor and publisher of "Uncle Sam." He is a Spanish War veteran, having served as a private in Company 8, 12th Regiment Minnesota Volunteers in the Spanish-American War, and holds a commission in the Minnesota National Guard. Mr. Lundeen is a member of Delta Sigma Rho, the Masonic lodge, and the Spanish War Veterans Association of which he is first vice-president. He delivered the Memorial Day oration at the National Cemetery, Arlington, Va., in 1919 upon invitation of the National Grand Army of the Republic.

He was again elected to Congress at large November 8, 1932, receiving 350,455 votes; and was re-elected to Congress November 6, 1934, Third Congressional District of Minnesota, receiving 59,097 votes to 28,637 for his Republican opponent.

NATIONAL REEMPLOYMENT SERVICE

E. R. Stanghelle, Interviewer
Telephone 411

All National Reemployment Offices will be closed Monday, September 7 in observance of Labor Day.

• • • •

The farm placement service supplies the following types of labor: general farm hands, day laborers, dairy hands, farm couples, farm tenants, farm tractor operators, housekeepers and housemaids.

• • • •

The United States Employment Service maintains in its subordinate offices throughout the states a distinct farm placement service. To this service is delegated the responsibility of bringing the workers and the jobs together in agricultural employment as are otherwise made available to employers and to labor in commerce and in industry.

• • • •

Through our State Clearance System qualified applicants can secure employment in any part of the state by merely registering at the local office and requesting the local interviewer to consider them for state-wide employment. Skilled applicants are primarily handled by state clearance.

• • • •

There is a demand for elderly women for housekeeping openings; write or call in for information.

• • • •

We can place experienced waitresses. Contact the local employment office.

• • • •

Employer: "What can you do, boy?"

Boy: "Anything, Sir."

Employer: "Can you wheel a barrow full of smoke?"

Boy: "Certainly, Sir, if you will fill it."

He lived there for twelve years and then moved to Lac Qui Parle county, where he lived until 1912. He came to Oklee in that year and settled on the farm on which he lived at the time of his death. Mr. Barsness is survived by his wife, his sons Melvin of Spring Valley, Wis., Adolph of Badger, Clarence and Peter, Jr., of Oklee; his daughters Lavina and Myrtle, both of Oklee; and his sisters Martha Torgerson of Chicago and Maragaret of Norway.

AUXILIARY NOTES

Auxiliary meeting this Thursday evening, Sept. 3rd. Be sure to be there! State convention reports will be submitted at this meeting. Also report on our show "Personality Parade."

It was an interesting show, wasn't it? With its many features adding variety, the production won the approval of the audience. To all who gave of their time and talent, the Unit is indeed very grateful. You helped make this a success both from the entertainment standpoint and as a financial aid to the Auxiliary. The Amateur contests demonstrated that there is indeed a great deal of talent in our community and every number was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Paul Lundgren acted as Master of Ceremonies, the applause of the audience deciding the winners. To Clayton Tripp, 7 year old tap dancer, went the first prize, while our young vocal artist Nicky Christo, won second honors. Congratulations! The Tom Thumb wedding scored a hit with the little actors daintily costumed assuming their roles in a most natural manner. The individual dance numbers put on by the "Personality Girls" brought down the house when the "girls" were recognized as some of our city's business men. The characters in the main cast are to be congratulated for their fine performances. It was fun! The choruses added their bit, too, and Miss Dorothy Hoel, the accompanist, was right on the job all the time.

See you Thursday evening at the Legion club rooms.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

There will be a regular meeting of the local unit of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. E. L. Rolland at 3 p. m. Friday, September 4. There will be musical numbers, a program and refreshments. Assisting hostesses will be Mmes. H. A. Pratt, Albert Swanson, and A. C. Matheson.

CHAPTER XI

"WHO murdered Mike Kelly? . . . Pat—darling—was it you?"

The Globe had answered the question, but, in Southampton, Barry Gilbert held this girl-of-all-girls in his arms, and asked it again.

For a moment, she stared at him, dazed and inert, and then she pushed him away.

"Let me sit down, please," she said, coldly.

She remained standing, however, when Barry released her, though she still clung to the chair at which she had stopped when she came into the room. "Do you really think I could kill anyone?" she asked, with just a trace of amusement tempering the wonder and resentment in her tone. "But, of course, I know why you think it. My father said he couldn't tell the truth because of a woman. The woman was my dead mother."

"I'm sorry—" Barry began.

"It doesn't matter," the girl interrupted. "Nothing much matters now. Peter says this evening's Globe completely clears young Ridder, and that they'll probably release him tomorrow. That's all you want, isn't it? And, if you don't mind, I'll go upstairs to my father. He's really ill."

She had closed the door to the hall after her and Barry opened it.

"Can I do anything?" he asked lamely.

"No, I don't think anybody can," Pat answered. "Nothing father or I could say now would help Morano, or anybody. Is Evans outside?"

"Yes."

"Then, of course, you'll see Peggy. Her worries are over. Please tell her how glad I am, and that I'll phone later about Jacky."

They were in the hall by this time and the butler appeared on the landing.

"Will you come to your father, Miss?" he said, quietly.

"Im coming," Pat replied, just as quietly and, without looking at Barry again turned and ran up the stairs.

Well, that was over—along with everything else. "I made a clean sweep while I was at it," Barry told himself, ruefully, on his way to the hospital. "What did I have to shoot off my mouth for, just at the last minute? 'My dead mother.' Three words, and my whole train of suspicion went off the rails."

It had taken Harwood barely more than 24 hours to get his man. "He certainly worked fast," Barry paid mental tribute; "once he'd identified that voice on the phone." Some time before the evening papers would reach Southampton. What was the difference? "Nothing much matters now," Pat had said, and it didn't. They'd probably release young Ridder tomorrow, and, two days later, old Ridder'd be in New York. "I've got plenty to do," Barry said to himself, and to Evans, "I've had a cable from Mr. Ridder. He's on the Bremen, arriving Saturday. You'd better get your wife back to town."

They were at the hospital now, and Evans made no reply.

Peggy came into the reception room. "I can't stay," she began. "Jacky's up there. He says everything's all right, but, somehow, I'm worried."

"Can you stand a bit of good news?" Barry asked.

"I don't know. I haven't had any in so long—"

"It's about Jack."

He wanted to "break it gently," but Peg couldn't wait.

"He's— What is it? Just another clue? Or— Go on, please!"

"They've arrested Morano. Peter phoned Judge Hambidge. He says Jack'll be out tomorrow."

Peg didn't move.

At least her body didn't but she ran her tongue over her lips, and her hands opened and closed spasmodically.

After a moment: "No foolin'?" she said.

It was an absurd thing to say, but, in a long experience with suffering, Barry had learned that just such things are said under stress.

"No foolin'."

Tears came into the girl's eyes, and flowed down her cheeks.

"It's in tonight's Globe," Barry told her. "The papers aren't here yet, but I'll ask Evans to bring you one. There doesn't seem to be any possibility of mistake. I'll go in to town by the first train in the morning. I'll take care of everything, and keep in close touch with you."

"Thanks," Peggy said.

One syllable, but Barry thought he had never heard so much praise and gratitude before. His own eyes were threatened with moisture, so he declared, "You'd better get back to the boy. Pat's going to phone later, and I'll ring up tonight. That's all now."

And he left the room as abruptly as Pat had left him, a few minutes ago.

"Home?" Evans asked.

Barry nodded. That word was the last straw.

"Anything else, sir?" Evans inquired, in front of the Ridder house.

"Yes, please. The instant the evening papers get to Southampton, will you bring me a copy of the Globe, and take one to Mrs. Rogers?" He gave the chauffeur a quarter. "Kelly's murderer's under arrest," he continued, "and we're through 'sleuthing.' You'll find it all in the Globe."

"Yes, sir."

Evans was thinking of something else.

"You understand — about Mrs. Evans?" Barry asked.

"Yes, sir." A pause. "You ain't staying here yourself, I take it."

"I am leaving tomorrow."

"I was wondering," Evans said, "would you like us to come with you?"

"Very much," Barry answered, "but it can't be done."

"You ain't always going to live in a hotel—begging your pardon, sir. Mrs. Evans is a mighty good cook."

"Thanks," Barry returned, "but my cooking's going to be provided by the state of New York. You may as well know the truth, Evans. I'm not Mr. Ridder. Never was. I jimmied my way into this house for a night's shelter, and then you and Willetts came, and thought I was Ridder, and I let you go on thinking so. The game's up now. The boss gets back Saturday, and what happens then is anyone's guess."

Evans said, "Yes, sir."

"That's all, except I'd be glad if you'd tell Willetts, and the rest. It'll save me introducing the subject."

"Yes, sir."

"And better stand by tonight. I may have to drive back to the hospital."

"Yes, sir . . . I was wondering—"

Barry grinned.

"You do a good deal of that, don't you?"

"I was wondering how you'd like to go to my sister's. You know—where I live in town. You could lay low there a while, and then slip away somewhere."

"That's swell of you," Barry responded. "Much obliged. But I think I've done all the slipping that's good for a man. Tell Willetts, when you get a chance, and remember to bring me the Globe."

It was close on to five o'clock then, and "plenty to do" before dinner. Willetts wasn't about—luckily.

"That Leaves My Account Straight," Barry Thought.

Barry let himself in with his key, and ran up to his room. Should he pack first, or get the rest of it out of the way?

He decided to begin with "the rest of it."

From a long envelope, in his inside pocket, he took all his vouchers. Then, on a sheet of note paper, he wrote, "Received . . . Cash $200." Beneath that, he listed the check from Mrs. Ridder, and "board, lodging, etc." Under "Disbursed," he credited himself with the same check, which had been banked for Peggy, and with whatever sums he had given her, and a few minor expenditures. "That leaves my account straight," Barry thought. "Except for unlawful entry, tampering with the mails, and pretending to be somebody I wasn't."

It left his bank account far from straight. When he'd subtracted "Disbursed" from "Received," and made out his check for the balance, the result was a rather startling overdraft. "All right," Barry said. "I'll sell out my wardrobe. Studs, and cuff-links, and things. I guess I won't need 'em any more."

He wanted—terribly—to write a letter to Mrs. Ridder. It would have begun, "Dear Mother: (Not mine, of course.)" That was too maudlin. "Me: I'm just a sob-sister," Barry berated himself, tucking his accounts, accompanied only by his check, into an envelope, and inscribing it, "Mrs. John Clarke Ridder, Addressed." He propped the envelope against a calendar, and, for a moment, sat looking at it. "I wish I could find my mother," he had thought, his first morning at Southampton. He wished it even more fervently now, after all these weeks of "make believe."

"I've got to write Pat," he decided, at last. "I certainly owe her an apology, and a 'good-by.'" This letter certainly mustn't be "maudlin."

"Dear Pat," he started. "Dear Pat: (I suppose I should write 'Miss Hambidge' now, but I can't.) You wouldn't let me say I was sorry for what happened today, but I am. I won't try to excuse myself. You'll forget it, I hope, as quickly as you'll forget everything else in this grotesque association. I won't forget. You're the realest lady I ever knew. So this is thanks and good-by to you and your father, and—most sincerely trusting that your worries, like Peg's, are over—I remain always respectfully, Barry Gilbert."

Packing proved complicated. Most of his clothing—paid for long ago—was out here, and had to be taken in. But there was no suit-case. Neat, to the end, Barry folded his belongings into two tailor's boxes. He hadn't quite finished folding when Willetts knocked.

"Evening paper, sir."

"Thank you."

"And your key, sir. You left it in the front door."

"You'd better keep it. And there's a letter for Mrs. Ridder on the desk there. I'd like her to get it when she arrives."

"Very good, sir. Dinner at seven?"

"If you please."

That was all. No reference to Barry's packing, or the confession that—Barry felt sure—had been relayed by Evans half an hour ago. "I'm taking the 7:21 back to town tomorrow morning," Barry said, as Willetts was closing the door, but Willetts only answered, "Yes, sir," and went on closing it.

Morano hadn't been arrested. So much was clear from the screaming headlines Barry scanned. However, "that ends it," Barry felt sure. "Harwood did a swell job. Why didn't I follow up the number of that cab? It didn't seem of the least importance when the taxi-driving medico gave it to me. I might have known it was, though, when Ernie wrote it down in his notebook."

Dinner was uneventful—with Willetts remembering his "position" and behaving as any well-trained butler might have been expected to behave. Afterward, Barry phoned Peg. She had seen the Globe, but was still dubious. "Do you really think they'll let Jack out now?"

"Certainly. They're not going to get that sheet started again on Tammany Hall."

"And it'll be tomorrow, you think?"

"Probably. I'll keep in touch with you," Barry promised, and finished his packing. Then he re-read the Globe story, and marked parts of it—to ponder in town.

Throughout breakfast next morning, Barry wondered whether this remarkable butler could know he was "going for good." "I've left a few parting gifts on my desk," he ventured, at last. "For cook, and everybody. Will you take care of 'em?"

"Yes, sir."

"I shan't be back. I suppose Evans told you."

"Yes, sir."

That was too much.

Barry said, "Well, what do you think about it?"

"That's not for me to say, sir. My place is to obey orders. I've tried to do that, sir. If I've made a mistake, it hasn't been for want of trying."

"Your mistake was quite natural," Barry reassured him. "You'd been told you'd find young Mr. Ridder here, and you found me. I said I was young Mr. Ridder. That seems to let you out."

"Yes, sir."

Willetts hesitated.

"Anyway, that wasn't the mistake I had in mind, sir. That was a natural mistake. I thought you were a gentleman. I still think so. It's five after seven, sir."

Barry just made the train. At Speonk, he bought a morning paper, and read of Morano's death. Even the conservative Times regarded that as the end of the case against Rogers. "Night Club Owner, Accused of Kelly Murder, Killed Resisting Arrest," its headlines began, and ended with, "Move to Free Rogers Expected Today." Barry pored over both stories—that in the Times and that in last night's Globe—all the way to New York.

WATERFOWL SEASON OPEN FROM OCT. 10 TO NOV. 8

It will be legal to take migratory waterfowl in Minnesota from 12 o'clock noon, October 10, to 4 p. m., November 8, state conservation commissioner E. V. Willard announced last week.

At the same time it was announced that there will be an open season for mourning doves from noon, September 19 to sunset, September 27, with shooting afternoons only.

The waterfowl open season, which is the same as the season fixed by the federal government, permits shooting from 7 A. M. to 4 P. M. on all except the opening day.

There will be no open season on wood ducks, Canvasbacks, redheads, ruddy ducks, and buffleheads.

The bag limits for waterfowl are ten each day, with ten permitted in possession. The daily limit for mourning doves is six, with twelve permitted in possession. The open season applies to all counties of the state, except Ramsey. Observors report that mourning doves are unusually plentiful.

Although Europe has four times the population of the United States, this country has 75 per cent more telephone wire than all of Europe. In fact, the number of miles of telephone wire in the United States is 30 per cent more than that of all foreign countries.

In the United States, telephone wires connect more telephones and carry more telephone conversations than in all the rest of the world. American leadership also includes quality of service provided. In no other country is service so high in quality nor charges as low for the service provided.

CHEMIST WARNS FARMERS AGAINST FLAX POISON

There is danger of livestock poisoning from hydrocyanic (prussic) acid developed in drouth-stricken or frosted flax, according to T. H. Hopper, agricultural chemist of the North Dakota Agricultural college. The farmer should be extremely cautious in feeding or pasturing the drouth-stunted or frosted flax. Sweet and grain sorghums are Sudan grass may, under similar circumstances, carry the poison just as well as the flax.

The acid is present in toxic quantities in these plants only when the normal growth has been retarded or stopped by drouth, frost, bruising, trampling, wilting, mowing or other causes of which drouth and frost are the most important.

Death may come when only a few mouthfuls of forage containing hydrocyanic acid is eaten by an animal. The hay or forage is generally harmless when thoroughly cured.

Farm & Implement News

Something NEW in INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS, now out and our first shipment expected soon.

A cab-over-engine truck of beautiful design for all kinds of hauling in the 1½ ton field. Here we have increased loading space, proper load distribution, perfect place for driver, on a compact chassis of two wheelbases, 99 and 117 inches, and at low price. Watch for full announcement of new Model C300.

Low Cost Electric Light

The long evenings are coming on and what a treat to have the convenience of electric lights on the farm. We have our demonstrator Mercury Electric Light Plant all set and ready to give you a demonstration. It's not a big cumbersome plant, nor is the cost out of reach for any farm. It carries 12, 25 watt lamps continually which is more than average used at one time on a farm and the plant only costs you $69.50.

WASHING MACHINE

The long summer hard wash days are tough jobs for the women on the farm especially and surely they are entitled to a good washing machine to lighten and brighten wash days. We have a very big number of satisfied customers on Horton Washers and the Horton never fails to prove satisfaction. The Horton is the oldest washing machine on the market and is a time tried proven success. We want to demonstrate this quality machine and a demonstration in your home is yours for the asking.

The New No. 6 Field Cultivator

The New No. 6 McCormick-Deering Field Cultivator is just a lot more than we can tell you by way of improvement over anything we or any other has offered in the past. You just cannot appreciate this new cultivator until you have tried it. I am sure you will get a surprizing good report if you ask some of our customers. Otto Parnow, Erie, Alfred Longren, R 4, C. M. Hoverstad, R. 4, Ed Houske, Hazel and others. The usual statement "I would not care to farm without one if these New No. 6 cultivators.

Manure Spreaders

As the fall farm work is nearing completion, there is a most certain paying job that should not be overlooked that too often is neglected. On many farms there are large piles of manure and any number of old straw bottoms that should be out on the field this fall for big crop dividends in 1937. No better way to get it there than with a New No. 4 McCormick-Deering light running all steel Spreader. It's a copper rust-resisting steel, simple in construction and durable and long lasting machine. We will deliver one at your request.

Low Priced Used Cars and Trucks

Not very many on hand now, but we are making every effort to give special price values in these low cost automobiles that we have on hand. Several very low priced, good working trucks and a few of the late models. They are going fast because the bargains we now give.

HORSES

Two teams and one single horse. One team as low as $75. The other is such an outstanding value in a pair of draft mares that it is hard to find the equal. The single horse is a 7 year old 1500 lb. gelding and a mighty fine horse.

Warren Will Play T. R. F. Here Monday

played. The local boys journeyed to Oklee and returned a few hours later defeated to the tune of 6 to 0.

Oklee engaged a battery from Bemidji in the persons of Rube Schell and Haugen. Rube is a twirler who has been whizzing the ball past the batters in great style this year and continued his stride Sunday as he whiffed nineteen, allowing only five hits. Schell informed the local boys that he has been offered a tryout with the Milwaukee Brewers, leaders of the American Association for next spring.

The Thief River Falls boys were not prepared to meet such opposition. Lee, the manager, is away on his vacation, and Orvalla, the regular twirler, is still bothered with his sore shoulder. More than the usual number of errors were chalked up against the local lads too, which is part of the account in having six scores tallied against them. Ten hits were garnered by the Oklee boys.

The Thief River boys threatened to score in the first and third innings but Schell bore down in the pinches and the runners at third were left stranded in both instances. Ekeren and Battelson garnered two hits each but the other locals boys were unable to connect, most of them being victims of the speed artist via the strikeout route. Ness, at right field, singled in the fifth for the other hit.

Oklee scored once in the first inning, added three in the third and two more in the fifth to complete the scoring.

The box score:

This was the last of the league games, of which fourteen have been played. The Thief River Falls team wins the league title having won thirteen and lost one. Prospects are that the Northern Minnie league will be in operation next year with only a few changes, the local team being one of the teams seeking another association.
